$1500.00 WORTH OF PRIZES GIVEN AWAY

In the Intelligencer's Big Popularity Contest—The Greatest Ever Held by Any Paper in This Section of the Country—Nominations are Coming In Fast—Don't Overlook the Importance of Having Your Favorite's Name on the First List—This Will Give Her the Best Chance to Win One of the Grand Prizes

When we decided to offer the ladies of Belleville and vicinity the chance to win prizes in a popularity contest, we took great pains to select prizes that would be of value to them. We thought of trips to Europe and a great many other things, but after due consideration decided on the prizes we are giving, because they are prizes anyone will be proud to win, and at the same time many of them are prizes that will last a lifetime. Everyone understands that the circulation of a newspaper is the foundation on which a newspaper stands, the stronger the foundation the better the newspaper. We are able to take care of a great many new subscribers, thus accounting for our decision to put on a big popularity contest. The prizes to be given away are as follows:

1ST GRAND PRIZE.

The first Grand Prize, and most valuable of all the prizes in this great Contest, is a handsome $400.00 Ionic Heintzman Piano. It was purchased from W. B. Riggs and can be inspected at his store. Here is what the manufacturers have to say about this grand instrument:—Pianos are like men, they have character; likewise, too, this character is reflected in every detail of construction. It is the cumulative value of little things in the making of a piano that in the end will secure the symmetrically developed instrument. We want the details of this instrument to be inspected because we know they will be creditable to the makers. The Heintzman Piano Co. is composed of men who have built up an industry on a solid foundation, who have distinct ideals in their undertakings. We invite the inspection of this grand instrument at Mr. Riggs' store.

2ND GRAND PRIZE.

The second Grand Prize is a beautiful $300.00 Kohler-Campbell Piano. This piano is conceded by experts to be the best value on the WELCOME BY THE MAYOR.

His Worship, Mayor Ackerman was called and addressed the gathering. He said it was a pleasure to welcome the delegates to the city which for the time being was theirs. He hoped the meeting would be both of a pleasant and profitable nature and that whilst within our borders they would enjoy themselves.

The minutes of the past annual meeting held at Colborne were read and approved.

The auditors' report showed that the receipts for the year were $19.62 and the expenditure was $3.20, leaving a balance on hand of $16.42

A motion prevailed that the secretary, Dr. G. A. Hay, of Campbellford, be paid $10 as remuneration for services rendered.

Mr. R. H. Ketcheson moved, seconded by Dr. Simmons, that in future the secretary be paid $10 per annum.—Carried.

DATES OF FAIRS.

Mr. Neville, of Newburg, in speaking of the dates of fairs, said that Napanee had been ignored in the past as to meeting for passing fair dates and in consequence there had been a clash in fair dates, especially with Belleville fair.

Dr. Ming, of Napanee, said for some reason the officials of the Napanee fair had never been notified to attend a meeting of the Central Ontario Fairs Association. He would like to have the dates of fairs arranged in an amicable manner. Napanee desired to be in this group.

Dr. Simmons of Frankford suggested that one representative from the various fair associations be named and get together and draft dates of fairs. This, the speaker said, was the law of the Association and should be lived up to.

A PRESENT DAY HEROINE OF ROMANCE

Mrs. Van Schaick Succeeds in Getting Parole for Captain—Married Him at Darkest Hour of His Life—Sentenced For Ten Years Then She Labored for His Release

HAMILTON, Jan. 28.—The following despatch from New York tells of a romance of which a former Hamilton, Ont. girl, Mrs. Van Schaick (nee Miss Spratt) is the heroine; "Capt. William H. Van Schaick, of the steamboat General Slocum, is to be paroled. He is serving a sentence of ten years in Sing Sing prison at hard labor for misconduct, negligence and inattention to duty, as master of the Slocum. The boat burned to the waters edge on June 15th, 1904, off North Brother Island in the East River, with the loss of more than one thousand lives. That Capt. Van Schaick is to be paroled became known at the federal building, yesterday.

While United States Attorney Henry A. Wise would not discuss the matter, it was learned that he is not opposed to the granting of a parole to the captain of the burned steamer. Capt. Van Schaick is over seventy-five years of age and has served more than one third of his sentence . The president of the parole board in Washington, it is understood, has decided to recommend to the attorney-general that Capt. Van Schaick be paroled.

The parole of Capt. Van Schaick will have been largely due to the earnest efforts of his wife, who was Grace Mary Spratt, one of the heroines of the great disater, and who married Capt. Van Schaick when he was under $10,000 bail and facing a long term of imprisonment.

At the time of the burning of the Slocum Mrs. Van Schaick was superintendent of nurses at Lebanon Hospital, this city. At the first alarm she left for North Brother Island at the head of eight trained nurses and took full charge of the rescue work. In recognition of her heroism the government gave her a certificate of honor. Captain Van Schaick was arrested as soon as he was able to leave the hospital and tried for negligence of duty. On Jan. 27, 1906, a verdict was rendered in the United States Circuit court holding the captain responsible for the disaster and sentencing him to ten years imprisonment. An appeal was taken and he was released on $10,000 bail until October. On Feb. 28, 1908, he gave himself up to the federal authorities after he had been retried and was taken to Sing Sing.

Grace Mary Spratt was married to Capt. Van Schaick at the darkest hour of his life. He had wooed her for fourteen years, but during the days that his reputation was secure and he was regarded as one of the most competent masters of navigation about this port, the trained nurse would not consent to the marriage, saying she desired to follow her career. But when the gray days came and all the future looked black to Van Schaick, she went to him in his disgrace and told him that she would marry him.

"It was the time that he needed me most," said Mrs. Van Schaick, "and I went to him: I have known the captain for fourteen years. We both desired to follow our professions, but when he was left alone and this terrible blow had fallen upon him I could not let him hear it alone. I went to him because he needed me, and I have not reretted it."

Since Capt. Van Schaick has been in Sing Sing his wife has worked for his release in conjunction with the American Association of Masters, Mates and Pilots. A petition signed by 230,000 citizens praying President Roosevelt that a pardon be extended to the convicted captain was submitted by the association in 1908.

LOST HIS LIFE ON PRAIRIE

NOKOMIS, Sask., Jan. 30.—A sad fatalty occurred within a short distance of Watertown, Sask., on Monday, Jan. 23, when William Bailey lost his life in the bitter cold of the night. He started out from Govan at 4.30 p.m. to drive Mr. A. S. Clancy, Manager of the Northern Crown Bank there, to Imperial, a town about thirty miles away, where a new branch of the bank is being opened. They did not intend to make the whole journey, but were to stop at Watertown, and resume the journey in the morning. They were, however, overtaken by night, and, having lost the trail, the horses got fast in six feet of snow about two miles from Watertown. Their position was a serious one, as they were in a hay slough where the grass was long and the snow very deep. Both men started for a housesome distanceaway where a light was shining, but Clncy decided to return to the sleigh to guard the funds which he was taking to Imperial. He held his post until morning, and protected himself from the cold with blankets and robes. He then made his way to Watertown and there learned that Bailey had not reached his destination. A search party was organized and the frozen body of Bailey was found not more than twenty rods from the house which he hoped to reach.

His brother is of the opinion that he was exhausted in the deep snow and sank from heart failure, as his heart was weak and caused him considerable trouble. This seems reasonable, as under ordinary circumstances he should have reached his distination, as the trip was not a long one.

Deceased was about 5 yrs. old and unmarried. He leaves brother and two sisters here to mourn his death. He came from Orangeville, Ont.

Easter is somewhat late this year coming on April 16th. Easter is one of the movable feasts, its date depending upon a phase of the moon It is always the first Sunday after the full moon that happens upon or next after the 21st of March. A GREA TRAILWAY SYSTEM.

Hardly a town, village or city in Ontario that does not receive daily benefit from the operation of the Grand Trunk Railway System, and considering the net work of branch line connections, it is wonderful with what regularity trains are run. Not only is a good service provided between points in Ontario, but this line also reaches nearly all the important cities of Michigan, viz: Detroit, Flint, Saginaw, Bay City, Lansing, Battle Creek, Jackson, Grand Rapids and Muskegon, South Bend, Ind. and the second city in America, viz: Chicago, Ill. the gateway to the North-west, West and South, bringing Ontario in close connection. On the East, the Grand Trunk connects Ontario with Montreal, Quebec, and Maritime Provinces and Boston, Mass.

With a double-track line all the way from Chicago to Montreal, and also to Niagara Falls, connecting with the Lehigh Valley for New York, the Grand Trunk reaches out in all directions for your patronage, and well deserves it, for its vestibule coaches, Parlor and Dining cars and modern Pullmans, give the service desired.

COTHAM'S LATEST MYSTERY INVOLVES STRANGLED WOMAN

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—The police of various cities were asked to instigate a search for a tall, slender man with a cast in one eye, who wears a light overcoat and a slouch hat, who is wanted to clear up the murder of a handsome woman found dead from strangulation last night in the Hotel Bryant, at Fourty-Fourth street and Sixth Avenue.

To-day, twelve hours after the discovery of the crime, the remains of the woman were still unidentified in the morgue and the assassin is still at large.

The man and the woman had registered early yesterday morning at the hotel as Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, of Montclair, N. J., but the police declared to-day that these were fictitious names.

The murderer had fourteen hours start on the police which led the authorities to believe he had left New York.

He carried a suitcase when he left the hotel, but the hotel attaches were unable to furnish the police with the initials on it.

An autopsy performed to-day showed that the woman had struggled against death and the muscles of her throat were contracted and there were bruises upon the outside of the neck and upon her arms and shoulders.

A telephone call may lead to the capture of the assassin. Hotel attaches remembered to-day that about an hour before the man left the hotel he called up a number on the telephone. The police refused to divulge the number although they declared they had secured a valuable clew from it.

Edwin Craig, the bell boy, who discovered the crime, was taken to police headquarters this morning and questioned.

"When the woman in the room failed to leave it, I was ordered to investigate," said he. "I knocked but got no answer. I opened the door with a skeleton key, and there was the woman half lying on the bed with something white sticking from her mouth. An outer black skirt and an imitation pony coat were hanging on the back of a chair."

There was neither card nor trinket in the woman's handbag to help identify her. Her clothing led the police to think that she was not a resident of New York. She was about 35 years old with reddish-brown hair and blue eyes. Attaches of the hotel said they had never seen her before.

BELLEVILLE BOYS HAVE MADE GOOD

A. H. Wallbridge and G. N. Lingham Have Won Their Way in Business Life

Belleville boys, when they enter into occupations in other places, generally make good. They are to be found in positions of trust and capacity in all the large cities of Canada and the United States in such numbers that their names would fill a column of The Intelligencer.

Among the latest to be added to the list of Belleville boys who have won honors and corresponding financial reward are Mr. G. N. Lingham, son of Mr. Nelson Lingham, ex-Mayor of this city, who is one of the division commanders in the selling army of the National Cash Register Company, of Dayton, Ohio. Mr. A. H. Wallbridge, of Vancouver, son of the late A. H. Wallbridge, barrister, of this city, is a Vice-President of the same concern. The many friends of the two Belleville boys named will rejoice with The Intelligencer in their success.

ORANGEMEN WANT MEMORIAL HALL

The Orange Order are collecting funds for the erection of a forty-thousand dollar memorial hall in which to preserve the archives of the society, which has now been in existence for nearly a century in Canada. The hall is designed especially to perpetuate the memory of Ogle R. Gowan, 1803-1876, one of its pioneers, and its grand master in this country. Before his coming there were a few local lodges. But Mr. Gowan organized the society upon its present basis independent of the Grand Lodge of Ireland, of which he had been secretary. Ogle R. Gowan was a half-brother of the late Sir James Gowan, senator, of Barrie, Ont. A Brockville committee have charge of the memorial project, which is received with favor by the order. The earliest primary lodges of the Orange Order were organized by British soldiers during the war of 1812-14. About the same time a lodge was established in Montreal by an Irish merchant.

The bride was given away by her father and was married under an arch of evergreens and flowers. The bride looked exceedingly pretty in a gown of cream San Toy and the bridal veil, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. The bridesmaid also looked pretty in a blue silk gown and carried a bouquet of white carnations. The little flower girl was Elda Grills, sister of the groom, who was very prettily dressed, and did her part exceedingly well. After the ceremony about fifty guests sat down to a sumptuous repast. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful set of furs. Many handsome presents were received. Their many friends will wish them a long and happy wedded life. ORANGE JUICE INEBRIATE CURE; MAKES BAR ODOR "DISGUSTING.

Doctor Tells Vegetarian Society Cooked Food Is Source of 95 Per Cent. of All Human Ills—Unfried Viands Ideal.

Knights of the flowing bowl, attention!

If you wish to stop dallying with the cup that cheers, eat oranges.

The advice was given by Dr. George J. Drews, to the Chicago Vegetarian Society in an address on "Cooked Food vs. Unfried Food."

"Orange juice is the best antidote for an alcoholic appetite," he said. "When any one feels a desire to drink anything intoxicating all he has to do is to buy a couple of oranges. After eating them the desire will soon pass away. The secret lies in the sugar of the orange. It immediately causes a wholesome disgust even for the odor of a barroom.

"About 95 per cent. of all diseases are caused by eating cooked food. That is because food coming in contact with fire makes it unnatural. It gives it a sweet taste which causes an abnormal appetite. In consequence the system becomes overworked and the blood deteriorates."—Chicago Tribune.

HALF-A-MILLION PAID FOR OVERCLASSIFICATION

Board of Arbitration Find Overbreak and Overclassification to the Extent of Over Half a Million

It will be remembered by our readers that a short time ago Mr. Lumsden resigned his position of Chief Engineer of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, refusing longer to be held responsible for the frauds which he knew were being committed by contractors for the construction of the railway, through improper classification and overbreak on portions of the road.

So directly were these charges made that a committee of Parliament was appointed to investigate the charges. The committee, like all others of the kind, was composed of a majority of Government supporters, who, the moment the Opposition members of the Government asked the adoption of a policy by which all the facts could be brought to light, voted them down. Finding the object of the majority being to whitewash the commission and allow the culprits to go free, they declined to sit longer on the committee, and retired.

The result was, as anticipated, a report from the committee meaningless in character. Public opinion, however, was too strong, and the charges made of too serious a character, to be ignored; hence the Government was compelled to refer them to a Board of Arbitrators consisting of Gordon Grant for the Transcontinental commissioners, B. B. Kelliher for the Grand Trunk Pacific, and Collingwood Schreiber, C.M.G., chairman. The report has been sent to the Government and represents several months of work in which the different sections were examined, and notes taken on each cut.

What is the result of the investigation of these gentlemen?

Half a million, approximately, is to be deducted from contracts on the eastern division of the National Transcontinental Railway in respect to overclassification and allowances for overbreak, and the work is only partially completed. So far as the arbitrators have gone, the finding, while not declaring in so many dollars how much is to be deducted, takes each particular part of the work complained of and lays down a ruling as to what the measurements and allowances should have been. This will be compared with what was allowed and what is in excess of the arbitrators' findings, deductions will have to be made, accordingly. As stated, about half a million dollars will be taken off contractors and sub-contractors.

The complaints were made, not only by the Chief Engineer, but by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, whose concern arises from having to pay interest on the total cost of the Eastern section.

The contracts involved are about sixty million dollars.

If the result of two months' investigation has been the checking of these frauds to the extent of over half a million dollars, what may be expected when the whole road is built, and the over-allowances made to contractors in excess of what is right, no one can tell.

IN A NUTSHELL

A highly interesting meeting, which was very largely attended, was held a few days ago at Beaverton, the object of which was to hear a discussion on the proposed tariff pact between Messrs. T. A. Russell, late secretary of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and tariff expert, and Mr. E. C. Drury, president of the Dominion Grange and champion of the Free Trade farmers.

The points which Mr. Drury attempted to make were these: The Canadian farmer pays $200 in duties yearly. The tariff farmer is ready to make this sacrifice if it benefits the country. Canadian manufacturers put this amount of duty in their own pockets.

These arguments were easily overcome by Mr. Russell, who put the case in a nutshell as follows:

"Tariff raises revenue and encourages diversified industries in Canada. Under a tariff 225 American factories have come to Canada. Every machine exported means more money to the Canadian farmer."

LIFE FOR INDIAN STUDENT FOUND GUILTY OF SEDITION

Diplomatic Question Arising Over the Man's Arrest is Still Before the Hague Tribunal

LIFE FOR RCH t1 ryb((Se,augN

BOMBAY, Jan. 30.—Savarkar, the Indian student who was arrested in London on a charge of sedition, was to-day sentenced to transportation for life.

After his arrest in London Savarkar was extradited to India, but escaped from the ship while she was anchored at Marseilles and swam ashore. He was arrestd either by a French gendarme or and Indian policeman—the stories in regard to this do not agree—and returned to the ship, which took him to India.

A diplomatic question arose between France and Great Britain over the arrest of th student and revolutionist. France contended that, Savarkar having escaped to French territory from a British ship, should not have been taken by the British police without due process of extradition.

France wanted Savarkar sent back to that country, where England's demands for his extradition could be judicially examined into. England had Savarkar in jail here and did not care to give him up. The French Government also insisted that if Savarkar had been arrested in Marseilles by an Indian policeman it constituted an invasion of of French territory.

The matter was finally referred to The Hague Tribunal. It has not yet been decided.

Life Isn't Worth Living

When This Statement is Made, It May be Generally Attributed to the Lack of Good Health.

We want to talk to people who are nervous, who suffer frequent headaches, who don't enjoy their food, who are irritable, quickly lose their temper, who are so exhausted that they feel they must give up, and have become so despondent that life doesn't seem worth living.

Most of the above described conditions are chiefly caused by what is commonly called catarrh, a "below par" condition of mucous membranes This delicate lining of the body cavities becomes weakened, inflamed and congested until the whole system is weakened, mental depression ensuing as one of the results. The wise way to overcome this condition is through a treatment of the general system. We have the treatment and we are so positive it will produce the results we claim for it that we will supply it to any one with the understanding that we will return to them every penny paid us in every instance where the treatment is not in every way satisfactory and beneficial to them.

We want you to try Rexall Mucu-Tone, which is a scientifically devised alterative tonic and body builder its action being to aid the body in its efforts to re-establish the natural and healthy functions of the mucous membranes.

Rexall Mucu-Tone thus acts to expel the "catarrhal poison," restore the mucous cells to good health, tone up the whole body, allay inflammation, remove congestion and stimulate the system to healthy activity. It is splendid for aiding in building up of flesh and muscle tissue and removing weakness.

Come to our store and get a bottle of Mucu-Tone, and after giving it a reasonable trial, if you are not satisfied, simply tell us so, and we will hand back your money without question. Surely nothing could be more fair than this. Rexall Mucu-Tone comes in two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00 Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Belleville only at our store—The Rexall Store. J. S. No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

LOCAL APPEAL CASE HEARD AT TORONTO

Cosby vs. Detlor.—An appeal by plaintiff and a cross appeal by defendant from the judgment of the County Court of Hastings of June 20, 1910. The action was for trespass and for a declaration that the plaintiff is the owner of the lands in question and entitled to the use and enjoyment of same without any interference by or from the defendant, and for an injunction to restrain further tres-judgment was given declaring plaintiff owner of the land, restraining further trespass by defendant, finding plaintiff not entitled to damages for trespass and ordering each party to bear their own costs. Judgment—It does not clearly appear in what manner the plaintiff received title from James Cosby. We think, therefore, the judgment below should be varied, striking out that portion thereof which declares that the plaintiff is the owner of the land in question, and in lieu thereof there should be inserted a clause to the effect that the plaintiff is entitled to possession thereof as against the defendant. With reference to the plaintiff's appeal upon the question of costs, we do not think the judgment below should be varied having regard to all the circumstances of this case. Both appeals being unsuccessful they should be dismissed without costs.

DISTRICT PRIZES.

There are ten other prizes, which will place five in each of the two districts, making a total of six valuable prizes for each district, including the Grand Prizes. They are as follows:

Two beautiful $100.00 Diamond Rings. The gems are perfect in every respect. They were purchased from Angus McFee and can be inspected at his store.

Two handsome $75,00 Bedroom Suites; one purchased from S. B. Sills & Co.; the other, a beautiful Brass Bedroom Suite, purchased from W. Thompson & Co. Both of these suites can be inspected at the above dealers.

Two $65.00 complete Business, Shorthand and Typewriting Courses. This includes a complete unlimited course.

Two $35.00 complete Shorthand and Typewriting Courses. The scholarships were purchased from one of Belleville's leading Business Colleges.

Two Ladies' beautiful Gold Watches. These watches were purchased from Mr. McCurdy and are fully guaranteed by him. They will be on display at his store.

THE WAY THE PRIZES WILL BE AWARDED.

The contestant receiving the largest number of votes in the whole contest territory, that is in both districts combined, will be awarded the 1st Grand Prize, the beautiful $400.00 Heintzman Piano.

The contestant receiving the largest number of votes in the remaining district after the award of the 1st Grand Prize will receive the $300.00 Kohler-Campbell Piano. One piano will be awarded to each of the two districts.

The third highest candidate will have her choice of the remaining five district prizes.

The fourth highest will have her choice of the remaining prizes, and so on down, after the other higher candidates have selected their prizes. This applies to both districts.

Every one has an excellent chance to win one of these valuable prizes. Just think, there are fourteen regular prizes and special prizes will be added from time to time during the term of the contest.

Any young lady who desires to enter this great contest and win one of the magnificent prizes offered should see that her name is sent in to the Contest Manager. All that is necessary to win a prize is to receive the largest number of votes, according to conditions mentioned elsewhere in this announcement.

A nomination coupon is printed in this paper, which, when sent in to The Intelligencer office with the prospective candidate's name and address, is good for 1,000 votes. Only one nomination blank for each nominee.

The easiest and quickest way for a candidate to win is for the candidates to ask their friends to pay and prepay their subscriptions in advance. It costs the subscriber nothing extra to do this, and they have saved the annoyance of weekly and monthly collections. By so doing the candidate receives a special vote voucher, which is good for votes, according to the schedule, and will count at any time during the contest.

Any young lady residing in the territory mentioned is eligible to compete in this contest. Any one who desires to vote in this contest may do so by ballots cut from the paper, or by special vote coupons by subscribing for The Intelligencer.

The coupons secured by subscribing to The Intelligencer may be held as long as desired and voted at any time up to the close of the contest, but the ballots cut from the paper are only good for a few days from the time of publication and wil not be counted after date printed on ballot.

This affords the girls of Belleville and outside territory an excellent opportunity to receive valuable prizes with very little effort on their part.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR VOTING.

Enter the name of the young lady whom you wish to secure one of these valuable prizes in this contest at once. Better still, get the young lady to enter her name and then vote for her. Those who get in at the start have the best chance of winning, so it is desirable that the names be entered at once. Candidates who enter this contest do not necessarily have to be subscribers to this paper. Enter your name and your friends will do the rest.

The first announcement as to who are the young ladies competing in this contest will be made Thursday, Feb. 2nd. We will then publish the names and number of votes each one has to her credit. After the first announcement of candidates the votes will be published daily.

Any person has the privilege of nominating one or more candidates.

Nominations should be mailed to the Contest Manager before Feb. 2nd. Candidates can be nominated after that date, but it is of great advantage for each candidate to have her name in the first list published, so that her friends will not agree to work for some one else before knowing who are entering the contest. It costs absolutely nothing to nominate a candidate. In all cases where ballots are issued subscriptions must be paid. The full amount of money must be sent direct by mail, paid to the contestants or brought to this office.

Robin Found Sane.

New York, Feb. 1.—Joseph G. Robin, alleged wrecker of banks, must stand trial on eight indictments charging larceny in the first degree. Although five alienists testified that in their opinion he is crazy, a jury before Judge Swann in the Court of General Sessions thought otherwise, and returned a verdict of "sane" late yesterday afternoon. William Travers Jerome, unwillingly acting as counsel for Robin under court appointment, declared that there had been a great miscarriage of justice. Judge Swann on the other hand congratulated the jury for their verdict contrary to expert opinion.

Fielding Testimonial Comes Up in the Commons.

Government Supporters Vote Down Mr. Boyce's Resolution Condemning the Giving of Presents to the Crown Ministers—Not a Personal Attack—Premier to Blame For His Attitude of Secrecy.

Ottawa, Feb. 1.—For the second time within a year an attack on Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, in respect to his acceptance of the testimonial of $100,000 last spring, was voted down by the House of Commons yesterday, after a protracted debate, on a straight party division of 118 to 63. It was a delicate situation, and A. C. Boyce (West Algoma), who moved the amendment to the motion to go into supply to consider the question of Ministers of the crown receiving gifts of money from those having pecuniary relations with the Government, did his best to make what appears that he had no desire to embarrass the Minister of Finance.

As soon as Mr. Boyce had finished, Mr. Fielding made a brief, manly statement of his knowledge of the facts and withdrew from the House, taking no part in the division.

Mr. Boyce urged the Government to have the list of subscribers to the Fielding testimonial made public, claiming, in the words of Sir Richard Cartwright, 20 years ago, that the pledge of secrecy was a "direct aggravation of the offence."

Hon. George E. Foster, who was the last speaker, claimed that the circumstances were not parallel with that of 1891, and said that if the news went abroad that Hon. William Pugsley, Minister of Public Works, had received a memorial of $100,000, it would almost provoke a revolution in the country.

A. C. Boyce (W. Algoma) in moving an amendment to the motion to go into supply, offered a resolution declaring that acceptance of gifts or testimonials by Ministers of the crown or of any members of their families, from contractors, Government officials, etc., was calculated to bring Parliamentary Government into contempt, that the source of any such gift ought not to be surrounded with secrecy, and an authentic statement of the names of the donors should forthwith be made public.

At the outset Mr. Boyce made it clear that his resolution was not a want of confidence motion, but he desired the principles involved on the resolution. He had no desire to injure any public man.

The member for West Algoma then urged with considerable force that the withholding of the list of subscriptions to the Fielding testimonial placed the Minister of Finance under grave suspicion, and that the whole transaction was in bad odor. He charged Sir Wilfrid Laurier with being the chief obstacle to the granting of the information to the House and country.

Mr. Fielding said it was not his intention to reply to the statements of the member for North Algoma, but as the matter was so personal to himself, to make a statement and then withdraw from the House. Some years ago, a personal friend had approached him, on behalf of a group of other personal friends, and asked him to accept a testimonial. He requested that the proposal be dropped, and, although his friends pressed the matter upon him a second time, the proposal was dropped. Subsequently that friend passed away.

Some years later, said Mr. Fielding, the proposal was again renewed by another friend, and his first decision was to decline to take the proffered gift, for several reasons. One was that in the case of gifts made to public men in former years it had been alleged that contributions had been made by contractors or men receiving favors from the Government.

Mr. Fielding said that this friend continued to press the matter, on the ground that the Finance Minister was getting old, but he remained obdurate. Finally his friend said that he had been advised by his associates to say that they would guarantee that not one penny would be taken from any Government contractor or official, or from any one who would at any time be likely to have any favor to ask of the Government. In order that he might not have any sense of obligation to anyone whatever, it was proposed that the list of subscribers should not be made known. The object of secrecy thus was good, and not harmful in its purpose.

Mr. Fielding said that he had suggested that, should the time come when he might be out of office, he might care to know who had been his friends, but he was informed that even under such circumstances it was not proposed to reveal to him the names of the subscribers.

In view of these assurances and the plan having had the approval of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, he finally agreed to accept the testimonial.

"Those who know me best will believe," said Mr. Fielding in conclusion, "that there was nothing in this matter which any way reflected on my honor or the honor of my colleagues, or that will in any way affect my independent action as a member of this Parliament."

Mr. Fielding then bowed to the Speaker and walked out of the chamber amidst Liberal cheers.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier took straight issue with the good intentions of the mover of the resolution. He said it was a direct attack on the Minister of Finance. He claimed that no analogy could be drawn from the previous debate in 1891, when the gift of Sir Hector Langevin was under consideration and no imputation had been raised in the House at the propriety of the testimonial to Sir John Macdonald about 1887.

Admitting that publicity was the best thing to provide a safeguard in such matters, Sir Wilfrid thought, after the assurances had been given, Mr. Fielding was justified in his own conscience if he did not seek to obtain a list of the donors.

R. L. Borden then rose to reply. He said he had seen Sir Wilfrid Laurier in many tight places, but he had never seen him struggle so hard as in the present instance. Mr. Boyce had pointed out that there should be publicity in all matters of this kind, in order that no paper, Grit or Tory, would dare to utter a word of suspicion.

He accepted absolutely every word Mr. Fielding himself had said in his own defence, but believed that in stipulating for secrecy he had made a serious mistake. He ought to have taken the ground of full publicity, and he could not understand why the Minister of Finance should want to keep the names secret.

Hopes For Favorable Vote.

Washington, Feb. 1.—President Taft refuses to discuss "extra session" in connection with the reciprocity agreement. He hopes that the present session will act favorably.

In conversation yesterday, he emphasized his belief that reciprocity would establish currents of commerce which would benefit both the United States and Canada. The fears which were being expressed in some quarters, he said, were ghosts which would melt away as soon as the agreement went into effect. Many letters have been received at the White House congratulating him on the decided stand he has taken in the matter. He has been told also that he would have the backing of many influential associations throughout the country. While a few missives have reached the President criticizing the proposed reciprocity, these have been by far in the minority.

The President called attention to the fact that on the day his message went to Congress, when its influence on the market might have been supposed to be felt, there was a difference of only one cent in the price of wheat at Winnipeg and in Minnesota. This was in spite of the argument that reciprocity would effect unfavorably the prices of articles included in the agreement in either country.

Shot Down by ex-Soldier.

Vancouver, Feb. 1.—About 11 o'clock Monday night, in front of the Wonder Cafe, Carroll street, John Flax of Montreal, a young man of 23 years of age, was shot down by Alfred Rowach, a veteran of the British army. No enmity had existed between the two; it was purely and simply the sudden and unaccountable act of a brain crazed with bad whisky.

Flax had been in the city less than a year, and the affray took place on the eve of his departure for home. Doctors last night had little hope for his recovery.

Toronto, Feb. 1.—A skirt falling from a rail where it had been hung disconnected a tube and extinguished the flame of a little gas stove which Mrs. Jane Parks had left burning in her room at 44 Teraulay street. She was found dead from asphyxiation yesterday morning. No inquest will be held.

Impersonator Fined.

Niagara Falls, Feb. 1.—George Murray, sailor, was yesterday fined $50 for impersonating Anthony Welch at the election in Thorold Township Jan. 2. William Gordis, proprietor of the International Hotel, St. Catharines, was charged with impersonating L. C. Sheppard, but was discharged.

The Censor at Work.

Philadelphia, Feb. 1.—As a result of a protest by clergymen and citizens the police department yesterday afternoon issued an order prohibiting the production in this city by Sarah Bernhardt of the religious play "La Samaritaint."

INDEMNITY INCREASED

Supplementary Estimates Are Brought Down In Ontario House — They Aggregate $2,659,043 and Include Appropriations For Increases of Salaries to Officials, Technical Education and Government House.

Toronto, Feb. 1.—Members of the Ontario Legislature had the fact impressed upon them yesterday afternoon that the Imperial Government is an august body and that the procedure of intercourse through viceregal channels was one of form and ceremony. This was brought home by the explanations by Sir James Whitney that in sending the resolution of thanks to the Imperial Government, adopted on Monday, for volumes donated to the library of the Legislature, it was necessary to adopt an address to the Lieutenant-Governor, requesting him to transmit the resolution through the official sources. Such an address was then read by the leader of the Government and agreed to.

Hon. W. J. Hanna introduced a consolidation bill with respect to the Municipal Act. The Provincial Secretary said that the measure was more than a mere consolidation, as it took the portions relating to local improvements and grouped them together. When the bill was before the members of the House he desired the changes to be carefully considered; even this caused a little delay.

Expectation was on the tip-toe when the leader of the House announced that he had received a communication from Government House, in which the Lieutenant-Governor transmitted the supplemental estimates.

In presenting these estimates, which are supplementary to the main estimates adopted for this current year at the last session of the Legislature, Sir James announced an increase of the sessional indemnity. He said that the question was discussed in an informal way last year, but now the Government had taken the full responsibility and was treating the subject on its own responsibility. There had been no bargaining and no round robin. The question was not discussed at the general elections, neither was that of the increase of the salaries of Cabinet Ministers, but the latter had been afterwards confirmed by the public. The increase of the indemnity and the increases of salaries of members of the civil service were in accordance with changed conditions and the increased cost of living.

The Prime Minister expressed the opinion that rules regulating the number of days which a member might be absent, and of deductions to be made for absence over that number, should be adopted. The amount of indemnity proposed was $1,400.

The increase of $400 additional for each of the 106 members is included in the supplementary estimates. The item reads: "To provide indemnity to members, $42,400."

Among the estimates of public interest are:

Hydro-Electric Power Commission (capital account): To complete Niagara power transmission lines, including additional extensions to Tillsonburg, Weston, Port Credit, Brampton, Mitchell, Seaforth, Agricultural College, London and Hamilton Asylums, $1,000,000.

To complete Port Arthur station and transmission line (in addition to $29,909.08 expended in 1909-1910, which is approved), $30,000.

Enforcing Liquor License Act in local option districts, $5,000.

Fish and game, $5,000.

The supplementary estimates contained a total of $39,900 for technical education, and granted the recent requests of the Hamilton deputation for a revote of the $2,400 and of $5,000.

Agricultural training in high schools will receive $6,000.

Colonization and immigration, $26,280.79.

New Government House, $50,000.

Parliament and Departmental printing, $488,440.

Alterations, additions, etc., to Hospital for Insane, Hamilton, $24,500.

To Brockville ditto, $48,140.

To Mimico ditto, $16,300.

Toronto ditto, $7,900.

Similar supplementary votes are called for in respect to the alterations at a number of other hospital and public institutions.

Central prison, including the erection of provincial prison, $100,000.

The following have had their salaries increased from $3,250 to $3,500: Edward Bayly, solicitor to the Attorney-General's Department; A. H. U. Colquhoun, Deputy Minister of Education; T. W. Gibson, Deputy Minister of Mines; R. P. Fairbairn, Deputy Minister of Public Works; C. H. Sproule, Assistant Provincial Treasurer; S. A. Armstrong, Deputy Provincial Secretary.

Dr. McCullough, Deputy Registrar-General, and secretary of the Board of Health, has his salary increased from $2,800 to $3,200 a year. J. A. Amyot, M.D., provincial analyst, has his salary increased from $1,900 to $2,200.

A. E. Donovan, Brockville, states that 90 per cent. of the replies he has received from municipal officials form his bill for having the municipal elections held at a date which will not conflict with the Christmas and New Year holidays.

Unprotected Ice Holes.

Hamilton, Feb. 1.—At the Board of Health meeting last night Thomas Hutton asked whose duty it was to mark the iceholes in the bay. He was told it was the duty of the police. Mr. Hutton then said that the holes were often left in an unprotected state, and said that was what caused the death of two young men on Sunday.

LIBEL CASE TO-DAY.

London, Feb. 1.—Proceedings will begin to-day before the Lord Chief Justice and a special jury brought by the crown authorities against Edward F. Mylius, who is charged with having been concerned in the publication of seditious articles and a defamatory statement that King George, when Prince of Wales, was morganatically married to a daughter of an admiral at Malta.

According to The Standard, there is still a possibility that the King may appear in the witness-box if Mylius persists in his plea of justification. The law officers of the crown, Sir Rufus Isaacs and Sir John A. Simon, may advise His Majesty to adopt this course.

The case is likely to occupy two days and the evidence presented will include the marriage registers from Malta, covering the whole period of the King's service with the Mediterranean fleet. Many distinguished men associated with the King at that time are expected to appear as witnesses.

Honors For Aviators.

London, Feb. 1.—The feature of the dinner of the Royal Aero Club last night was the presentation of the Gordon Bennett aviation trophy to Claude Grahame-White and the Baron de Forest prize to Thomas Sepwith, the English aviator. Grahame-White's victory was scored at the Belmont Park meeting last October, while Sepwith captured the De Forest prize of $20,000 for the longest flight, including the crossing of the English Channel, on Dec. 18.

The Duke of Argyll, who presided, expressed the hope that the British Government would spend more in the development of military aeroplaning. Admiral Sir Edward Seymour referred to McCurdy's flight across the Florida Straits as a noteworthy and striking achievement.

Major Sir Alexander Bannerman evoked dissent by expressing doubt whether for military purposes the aeroplane was much ahead of what it was when Wright made his first flight.

Nationalist Objected.

London, Feb. 1—The second Parliament of King George assembled yesterday with little ceremony, the spectacular function being reserved for next Monday, when the King and Queen will open the proceedings in state. Mr. Lowther was re-elected Speaker.

An unprecedented scene occurred in the House, shortly after the opening of the session, in the protest raised to the re-election of Speaker Lowther. Lawrence Gintell, Irish Nationalist, objected to his re-election, asserting that he had proved self-subservient to the party machine and had used his office to muzzle other members.

Gintell's objection was drowned in a roar of anger from the other members, and he quickly subsided for fear that he might be forcibly ejected.

They Expected It.

Montreal, Feb. 1.—Representatives of Montreal interests opposing the Long Sault dam scheme expressed little or no surprise yesterday at the news from Washington to the effect that the committee on rivers and harbors have reported favorably on the subject.

Navigation men interested in the St. Lawrence shipping and passenger trade say that they had expected nothing else from the committee of the United States House of Representatives which had recommended the scheme.

Sues For Ten Millions.

Trenton, N.J., Feb. 1.—Suit was commenced in Court of Chancery yesterday against James H. Post and the executors and trustees of Henry O. Hevemeyer to compel the surrender of $10,000,000 of common stock of the National Sugar Refining Co. of New Jersey, or the payment for the same at its face value with interests from 1900. In case the stock is not paid for the suit seeks the return of $2,500,000 which has been paid out on the stock in dividends.

Froze nto Death.

Regina, Feb. 1.—As a result of careful search of the country six miles east of this city the mounted police yesterday afternoon discovered the frozen body of William Knaggs, a farmer of the Regina district. Accompanied by two dogs Knaggs left the city last Thursday night to return home. The dogs in due course turned up at the home of a neighboring farmer, but Knaggs himself failed to appear.

There Are Others.

London, Feb. 1.—The Express remarks editorially: "There is neither reason nor excuse for a jeremiad of despair. Canada is not the whole of the overseas dominions. The resources of Australia in wheat are probably immeasurable. It can be made as effectively the Empire's granary as Canada may become the granary of North America."

Strathcona, Alta., Feb. 1.—A disastrous fire swept out three places of business early yesterday morning, with a total loss of about $40,000. The stores destroyed were: Bright & Ashbaugh, men's outfitters; Cook & Orr, general merchants. An overheated stove in the up-town office of the O'Brien Lumber Co., was the cause.

Abandoned His Trip.

London, Feb. 1.—On account of the plague in Manchuria and China, Frederick Wilhelm, the German Crown Prince, has abandoned his oriental tour, according to a Reuter despatch yesterday, and will go directly home from Calcutta.

Will Lose an Eye.

St. Catharines, Feb. 1.—Struck on the hand by a flying piece of metal from an exploding gasoline tank, Thomas Boston, married, employed at Ginner's garage, will lose one eye.

FINKLE IS EXONERATED

Judge Did Not Receive a Dollar From Oxford County.

Graft Investigation Ends, and Report Will Soon Be Ready—Reeve Fleet of Ingersoll Has a Clean Sheet Say Auditors Who Balanced His Accounts to a Dollar—Three Hundred Thousand Words Taken.

Woodstock, Feb. 1.—Judge Finkle cleared himself yesterday morning before Judge Snider, of any suspicions that may have existed as to whether he shared in any rake-off while he was acting as an arbitrator in setting a price on the Ingersoll-Port Burrell road. His evidence was taken at his home, where he is ill. He further said that he knew of no person who had accepted a bribe in that connection.

A special audit was made Monday night of the bills, receipts, drafts and time-books of Reeve S. W. Fleet of Ingersoll, and though he had made no accounting to the county, nor kept a detailed account of upwards of $10,000 of the county's money, which had been paid to him in the last three years to apply towards good roads in his town, yet the auditors, by working from 6 o'clock to midnight, were able to check every item and found that he had not misappropriated a dollar. Evidence to this effect was also taken yesterday and the famous Oxford County graft enquiry was brought to a close.

Judge Snider will put his report into the Attorney-General's Department before the week is over. He was all ready to hand it in last week; but the county investigating committee appealed to Premier Whitney to have the commission return to Woodstock and probe further into a rumor that $500 was given to somebody in facilitating the sale of the Ingersoll-Port Burwell toll road to the county.

Three hundred thousand words have been taken in evidence.

Trade With Canada.

Ottawa, Feb. 1.—An interesting return tabled in the Commons yesterday tells of the unsuccessful negotiations which have been conducted between Canada and Australia for 11 years with the hope of bringing about a reciprocal trade agreement between the two premier colonies of Great Britain.

The latest information on the subject is to be found in a letter in which the Canadian trade commissioner in Australia says that representatives of the Australian Government will be prepared to discuss the matter at the time of the approaching Imperial Conference in London.

McCurdy Gives Exhibition.

Havana, Feb. 1.—J. A. D. McCurdy, the Canadian aviator, gave another fine exhibition of his skill as an aviator in the presence of a great crowd at the drill grounds at Camp Columbia yesterday afternoon. President Gomez and many public officials were interested spectators. McCurdy rose to an altitude of a thousand feet and executed a large number of different evolutions.

May Be a Clash.

Montreal, Feb. 1.—There may be a clash to-day when civic authorities attempt to remove ten thousand cans of frozen eggs from a cold storage ware house for the purpose of destroying the condemned food. It is said that when the officers attempt to take the eggs an injunction will be served upon them.

POLICE IN BATTLE WITH ANARCHISTS

Red Flag Carried at Head of Procession Through New York Streets—Row When Ordered Down—Boy Blew Whistle Summoning Reserves When Patrolman Was Being Overpowered

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—In a battle with policemen more than 1,000 Anarchists and sympathizers were put to rout last night at Broadway and Leonard street. The Anarchists, wild with enthusiasm over a turbulent mass meeting held in the afternoon were on their way to the Japanese consulate at No. 3 Wall street to protest against the hanging in Japan of Dr. Denjairo Kotuko, his wife and ten students.

The fight reached its climax when after Police Captain Hodgins and the reserves of two stations had charged ten policemen wrestled with the mob for possession of the red flag which had waved at the head of the procession. A score of men and women were felled with clubs and the butts of revolvers before the policemen captured the flag and arrested five of the marchers.

The singing of "The Marseillaise" by 400 women who marched in the rear of the Anarchists sounded above the shouts of the mob, while police whistles echoed in distress signals from Broadway to Greenwich street on the west and the Bowery on the east. More policemen arrived. They formed flying wedges which sent the mob in flight into the side streets.

Patrolman William Reilley, of the Leonard street station had heard the singing of a Russian song as the paraders neared Canal street. When they came opposite the New York Life building Reilly saw the red flag He stepped to the head of the column and ordered the leader to show a parade permit.

"We have no permit and we don't need one," replied the leader as a half dozen men crowded around the red banner.

"Put down that flag," ordered the policeman as he drew his club.

Before the leader could reply the vanguard closed in on Reilley and almost lifting him off his feet, rushed him to the entrance of the New York Life building. Then the women, led by one who, hatless and coatless, had been urging the demonstration against Japan's representatives came to the front.

"Down with the police! To hell with the law! Murder them!" yelled the mob, while Reilley was being jammed against the corner of the doorway.

A shifting in the mob gave Reilley a chance to draw his revolver. He waved it before him as he swung his club with his left hand. By that time Patrolman Cowenthal, of Leonard st. was battling on the outside of the mob to get to the aid of his brother blue-coat.

"Mister, I'll help you. What can I do?" whispered a small boy who had been swept to the wall with Reilley.

BOY'S AID WAS TIMELY.

"Get in my back pocket. Pull out my whistle and blow like you never did before," panted the policeman, as he wrenched himself around to give the boy room to get at the whistle.

A second afterward blast after blast sounded from the whistle. Patrolmen Hagan of Leonard street and Pollock of Elizabeth street who were blocks apart, heard the signal and ran toward the source, blowing their own whistles to send the riot call along.

Surface cars in Broadway were halted by the struggling mob. Motormen, whose names were not learned, pulled up their controllers and, with these as weapons, plunged into the rear of the mob. They were reinforced by Sergt. Saul and ten men from Leonard street.

Then was formed the flying wedge which drove through the struggling men and women to the doorway where Reilley was defending himself. As the mob broke, Reilley seized Mathilda Cheseman, who said she lived at No. 410 East Ninth street.

"The police will murder her like the Japanese killed Kotuko," shouted one of the women leaders as they saw the Cheseman woman dragged into a hall by policemen.

Again "The Marseillaise" was chanted by the rioters, who mingled the song with cries against the law and the Japanese Government. The vanguard of the fighting mass flocked solidly around the flag, which was waved as an order for a second charge against the police.

A sergeant ordered the men to line up and draw their clubs. Then came the order to charge.

Sweeping over men and women, the police reserves ploughed toward the centre of the mass until two bore down the man who carried the emblem of anarchy. Then a half dozen bluecoats seized the men they believed were leaders.

The mob swerved before the charging policemen. The women urged the men to give battle, but the men realized the uselessness of facing the nightsticks and the heavy revolvers. As the flag was torn into shreds the mob darted in terror east and west.

Three hundred of the crowd managed to get out of the block where the fighting had been before Lieut. Woodbridge, of the Leonard Street Station, at the head of twenty men, shut off Broadway between Leonard and White streets. For a time the police lines were drawn closely until Capt. Hodgins passed those men who were not to be arrested.

HEBREWS WERE FOUND NOT GUILTY

After a rather tedious trial, the proceedings against the four Hebrews, Robert, Harry and Abe Solomon and Charles Sloma was brought to a close yesterday afternoon. On the charge of conspiring to defraud creditors, the Crown felt that a sufficient case had not been made out and all were acquitted. Under section 417 of the statute all four were accused of receiving property with intent to defraud creditors. On the charge Sloma pleded not guilty and was acquitted, the other three pleading guilty to receiving the goods and as there is a civil action pending in which the title to all goods is envalued, the accused abandoned their claim and must make restitution, and to pay all cost in the proceedings. A fine of $100 was also imposed upon the defendants. Mr. McMasters, K. C. and County Attorney for the Crown and Mr. Carnew for the accued.

GREATEST CURE FOR RHEUMATISM IS "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

"I Honestly Believe It," says Mr. Mills

Knowlton, P.Q., Oct. 12th, 1909.

For many years I suffered from severe Rheumatism and the attacks were very distressing and prevented me from doing my ordinary work.

I tried many remedies and physicians' treatments but nothing seemed to do me much good, and I was becoming very anxious for fear I would become a permanent cripple from Rheumatism.

I tried "Fruit-a-tives" and this medicine has entirely cured me, and I honestly believe that "Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest Rheumatism Cure in the world.

E. E. MILLS,

Asst. P.M., Knowlton, Que.

"Fruit-a-tives" not only strengthens and heals the kidneys—but also regulates the bowels, improves the action of the skin—and thus keeps the blood pure and rich and free from uric acid which causes Rheumatism.

"Fruit-a-tives"—the great fruit medicine—is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50; trial size, 25c; or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Central Ontario Fairs Association

The suggestion was adopted and a delegate from the various fair associations was appointed to draft the dates of fairs.

Mr. R. H. Ketcheson repudiated the statement that Belleville had encroached upon the dates of the Napanee fair. For years the Belleville fair dates were in the week following the Toronto fair.

Belleville—Sept. 12 and 13.
Peterboro—Sept. 14, 15, and 16.
Lindsay—Sept 21, 22, and 23.
Millbrook—Oct. 6 and 7.
Warkworth—Oct. 5 and 6.
Frankford—Sept. 14 and 15.
Wooler—Sept. 7 and 8.
Marmora—Sept 18 and 19
Colborne—Oct. 3 and 4.
Castleton—Sept. 29 and 30.
Roseneath—Sept. 29.
Demorestville—Oct. 14.
Napanee—Sept. 18 and 19.
Ameliasburg—Oct. 6 and 7
Picton—Sept. 20 and 21.
Madoc—Sept. 11 and 12.
Tweed—Oct. 4 and 5.
Stirling—Sept. 21 and 22.
Norwood—Oct. 10 and 11.
Keene—Oct. 3 and 4.
Campbellford—Sept. 25 and 27.
Brighton—Sept. 28.
Odessa—Oct. 6.
Tamworth—Sept. 30.
Centreville—Sept 23.
Shannonville—Sept. 16.

The report was on motion adopted.

Dr. Simmons moved, seconded by Mr. Neville, that a committee composed of Dr. Hay, Messrs. Mallory Sine and the mover be appointed to draft resolutions embodying the constitution of the Association. —Carried.

NEXT PLACE OF MEETING

Mr. Neville extended to the members of the Association a hearty invitation to meet in Napanee next year.

Dr. Ming said that if the Association decided to go to Napanee next year he promised them a good time and would entertain them.

Mr. Tweedle invited the Association to hold their next annual meeting at Brighton.

Mr. Curtis endorsed the remarks of Mr. Tweedle and thought Brighton had a prior claim over Napanee.

Upon a vote being taken Brighton was selected as the place of meeting next year.

A PRACTICAL ADDRESS.

Mr. J. Lockie Wilson, of Toronto, Superintendent of Fairs, gace an address, expressing the pleasure it gave him to be present at the meeting. What the Association was doing was excellent work. The speaker referred to his recent visit to various countries, namely, England, Ireland, Scotland, Belgium, Germany, and had also visited many fairs. The fairs in Canada would compare favorably with fairs in the older countries. A question such as the Central Association should settle was the boundaries, and then a better result could he thought, be accomplished. He wished the Association every success in the future. In speaking of the work of the Provincial Association of Fairs, Mr. Wilson said the Province had been divided into twelve districts, and a director from each district is selected to attend the annual convention. He would strongly impress upon the members of the Association to be careful as to the selection of judges at the fairs. Have an honest man for a judge. It was injudicious, he claimed, for a director of a fair to be mixed up in the judging of cattle, horses, etc., as it creates a bad impression. If the Director is going to show cattle or anything else he should discard his badge of office. The director should not be in the ring with the judge. The Directors, if they are busy men could find enough to do during a fair without being the bookkeeper or acting secretary to the judge. A judge should not accept a favor from a director or anyone connected with the fair. In speaking of judges, the speaker said that the time is coming when all judges must have diplomas for judging, whether it be for cattle, horses, hogs, sheep or grain. The judge should be a man who is able to impart knowledge in reference to crop competition. By Specialization is the thing for the farmers of this country, such as the growing of a certain kind of oats, wheat or other grain. By specialization you will improve your grain crops and better prices will be realized. The speaker then spoke of the Government proposition, what is known as the rainy weather insurance. For a number of years some societies were crippled and even went down owing to wet weather. They were unable to pay their prize list and to overcome this a scheme was proposed to assist agricultural societies to meet such deficiencies. A sum of $10,000 was set aside for an insurance against wet weather. What amount is to be paid to a society in such circumstances is based on a percentage of the gate receipts of the three previous years. No more than $300 is given to any one society.

DISTRICT REPRESENTATIVE.

Mr. D. A. McIntosh, of the Agricultural Department of the Stirling school addressed the gathering and asked the co-operation of all the fair societies represented to call upon him and if he could be of any assistance his services were at their demand to assist them in anything appertaining to agriculture.

RESOLUTION.

Mr. Curtis moved, seconded by Mr. Neville, that all the Agricultural Societies of this district shall give greater attention and prominence to the educational features of the Children's Department of the Society and that the judging classes for the young may be extended and more universally held by the Societies of the Province.—Carried.

Moved by Dr. Simmons, seconded by Mr. Sine,— Resolved that all Agricultural Cocieties in this district should give a greater stimulus to pure bred stock breeders of all classes of stock by way of special prizes honorable mention or diplomas, also to apply to clean and pure seed—Carried.

Moved by Dr. Simmons, seconded by Mr. Laycock,—Resolved, that the Central Fairs Association ask the Ontario Fairs Association de-limit the boundaries of the branch associations of the Ontario Fairs Associations, so that the routine of dates could be arrived at without conflictinng with the dates set in the outlying districts.—Carried Moved by Dr. Simmons, seconded by Mr. Neville, that the Central Fairs Association held at Belleville Jan. 31st, 1911, place itself on record and memorilize the Ontario Fairs Association that we approve of the proviso submitted by the Executive of Ontario Fairs Association, to be presented to the Legislature of Ontario, at the present session, to provide a grant to Fairs suffering from loss of gate receipts from inclement weather.—Carried.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

The election of officers resulted as follows:—

President—Jahn Miller, Castleton
Vice President—C. West, Campbellford.
Secretary-Treasurer— Dr. Hay Campbellford.
Auditors—W. Sine, Stirling; J. B Fergus, Campbellford.

Meeting then adjourned to the Quinte Hotel, where the delegates were entertained to a delightful banquet.

The Bald-Headed Man may Look Wise

But If He Had Been He Would Have Hair Now

You do not want a scientific treatise on the hair follicle—you are not particularly interested in the name of the German scientist who isolated the bug that is said to cause baldness. What you do want to know is how to save the hair you have and make it strong and lustrous.

Nyal's Hirsutone will do it better than anything else.

It is not claimed that Hirsutone is a wonderful scientific secret—but it is the concrete result of all that is proven in the scientific treatment of sick and diseased hair and scalp.

It is a happy combination and you will notice a prompt improvement in the feeling of the scalp and the look of the hair.

Hirsutone loosens and removes all scaly and matted deposit on the scalp—stimulates the hair bulbs and gives new life and vigor to the hair itself.

Nyal's Hirsutone gives back to the hair and scalp just what it has been robbed of by your neglect and abuse.

It is one of the Nyal remedies and no higher recommendation can be given it. They are all good. Ask your Nyal Druggist. He recommends it.

SUCCESSFUL SHORT COURSE AT MADOC

On Thursday and Friday, Jan. 26 and 27, a highly successful short course in judging light and heavy horses, dairy cattle and swine was conducted in the village of Madoc. The large tent secured for the occasion was not capacious enough to accommidate the large and interested audience.

Dr. H. G. Reed, of Georgetown, conducted the horse judging in his usual cheerful and graceful manner with the greatest of satisfaction to all present.

Mr. C. F. Bailey, of the Institute's Branch, Toronto, very ably handled the swine judging, and paved the way for the judging of dairy cattle by carefully reviewing the type, conformation, size, capacity, health, etc., of the dairy animal.

Then Mr. F. R. Mallory, of Frankford, who has recently been elected Secretary of the Belleville District Holstein Breeders' Club, conducted in a most masterly way the judging of dairy cattle.

A special feature of the course was the attendance of the senior boys of the Madoc High School. This class took the keenest interest and showed no mean ability to grasp and put into practice the ideas gained from the practical instruction of the demonstrators.

Messrs. McIntosh and Palmer, of the department at Stirling, expressed their high appreciation of efforts out forth by Principal Watson and his class toward making the first short course in this district a pronounced success.

The animals that were used in all classes received "many bouquets" from the speakers. Madoc district may well feel proud to possess animals of such high merit and it is only natural that as a result of such instructive demonstrations there will be a uniformly high class of animals of all kinds to be seen in this district. Those who furnished the horses, cattle and hogs deserve the thanks of the community and of those in charge.

The management was all that could be desired. Perhaps it was the best thing for the success of the course that the weather was bad on the last day or the tent would not nearly have held the crowd.

The enthusiasm of the audience was at all times evident, and when a much larger tent was promised for a similar course next year, the reply came clear and strong, "We'll find it!"

The evening meeting on Thursday was largely attended in the Town Hall. Mr. H. Rollins, of Cooper, filled the chair, as Dr. Reed said, in more ways than one. The Doctor gave a very learned and interesting address on "Breeding of Horses." He was followed by Mr. A. D. McIntosh, the local district representative, who gave an illustrated lecture on weeds, plant forms and insect pests, Mr. Palmer assisting with the lantern.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

BECAUSE HE JILTED HER

Doctor Slain on Eve of Marriage—The Girl Accused—The Two Found Together in Store

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Dr. Daniel A. Casella, a wealthy Genoese physician, widely known on the east side proprietor of two drug stores and a member of many social and charitable societies, was found dying on the floor of the back roof of his store No. 63, Catharine street, yesterday afternoon. There were two bullet wounds in the forehead.

Madelina Baccigalupo, a pretty girl, who was found huddled in a corner of the room when the locked door was forced open, is now in the tombs, charged with having killed the physician, who died little more than an hour later at Gouverneur hospital.

Dr. Casella was to have been married this evening to Miss Catherine Hagelstein, daughter of a well-known photographer on Fifth Avenue, with whom he also made his home since the death two years ago of his first wife, who was another niece of the photographer.

Although testimony was taken at the preliminary hearing before the Coroner later in the day dd not establish a cause for the shooting and only circumstantially accused the young girl, friends of the Baccigalupo family say she was justified because the man, they said had promised td marry Madelina after the death of his first wife.

She unexpectedly learned of the wedding. Realizing the disgrace that might come to her, humiliated and jealous, she had purchased a new revolver, had gone to him and demanded that he keep his promise to her and he had refused, and then came the tragedy.

RATTLESNAKE INDUSTRY

At the Height of Its Prosperity in North Carolina it Struck A Snag

In Swain County, North Carolina, an enterprising woodsman succeeded in building up a profitable business in shipping rattlesnakes to the East. That section of North Carolina it appears, produces a superior breed of rattlesnake, and New York scientists and naturalists have been paying willingly $5 apiece for good specimens of rattler.

Manuel Weeks, the wideawake individual who has been supplying the scientific world with live and husky snakes, owns a large body of land in the North Carolina mountains. The most of the land is too poor and too rugged to raise a fuss on, but it abounds in rattlesnakes A New York professor on a vacation, looking around for specimens of flora and fauna and other things of interest to nature lovers, saw one of the snakes and wanted a few for his collection. Weeks agreed to catch them and ship them and did so. Subsequently the fame of the North Carolina snakes spread over New York and other naturalists wanted specimens. Weeks was furnishing them right along, boxing them up and sending them from Bryson City.

The business was going merrily and remuneratively until one day a careless messenger dropped a box of snakes and smashed it on the floor of the express car. The express messenger left the car in haste, and the whole train crew was summoned for a general snake killing. It was an exciting time and it delayed traffic and threw a number of passengers into a condition approaching nervous prostration. Weeks not only failed to realize on that particular consignment, but the express company sent a hurry up order to the agent at Bryson City to accept no more snakes for shipment. The next time that Weeks appeared with a box of snakes the agent gave him the icy stare and suggested that rattlers were very much persona non grata and there didn't seem to be any indication of the company warming up to Weeks' peculiar industry.

Weeks has sued the company for $5,000 damages, probably on the ground that it is acting in restraint of trade. In North Carolina snakes are a drug on the market. It looks bad for the snake farm unless ways and means for shipment of its products may be found. Nevertheless the express company and its employees, the trainmen and the traveling public must be conceded to have some rights in the matter.

CAN RUN FARM BY ELECTRICITY

Hon. Adam Beck Outlines Scheme to Give Farmers Cheap Power

Hon. Adam Beck, in his address before the Ottawa Canadian Club at Ottawa, outlined the project by which the Hydro Electric power will be made available to the farmers of Ontario for farming purposes.

The scheme provides for the creation of crops and the harvesting and also the heating and lighting of the farm houses by electricity. Cows are to be milked and land fertilized and irrigated through a system operated by electric power. The plowing, threshing, etc., is to be done by electricity.

The first step is to be taken in the dairying district below Tillsonburg, and application for the necessary power has already been made. The intention is that the commission shall carry a low power line down through the district to be served with cross lines at intervals, over which the power is to be carried to the farms. The power, which begins at 3,200 h.p. will step down to 2,200 and 220 at the point of consumption.

The new departure will involve no special financing by the commission. The new lines will be paid for out of the surplus now on hand, and the cross lines feeding the farms will be paid for by the users.

The Bank of Vancouver, which has opened two new branches at Victoria, will cater to a Chinese patronage at one of the new branches. A Chinaman, Mr. Lim Bang, will manage the branch.

"Men love blondes," announces a Chicago sociologist with ponderous wisdom. To be sure they do—also brunettes, semi-blondes and "any little girl that's a nice little girl."

The ladies of Toronto are following the example of the women of the British islands by entering actively into politics. On Tuesday night they organized a branch of the Conservative Club.

A New York man has been sent to Bellevue for mental examination because he thought he was a fish. In nearly every saloon can be found one or more men who seem to have the same idea, but they are not sent to asylums.—Rochester Times.

The members of the Ontario Legislature are to be paid hereafter $1,400 per session instead of $1,000 as heretofore. In view of the fact that the members of the Dominion Parliament receive $2,500 per year, the increase does not seem unreasonable.

In electing Mr. W. P. Hudson, ex-M. P. P., as their Chairman, the Board of Education have honored a useful member of that body and a most worthy citizen. The Board and Mr. Hudson are alike to be congratulated.

Mail and Empire:—Judge Grant, who made the enquiry into the Chinese scandal at Vancouver, reports as a result of his investigation that "the microbe of graft is evident in the ranks of the Liberal party in the province." It seems to be a germ disease. That it spreads is very certain, and that it affects the highly placed as well as the poor history makes plain.

The Quebec bridge must be safe, no matter what the cost. The country is willing to pay a good price for a safe bridge, but not a dollar for an experiment.—Globe.

This is an unkind cut, as it forms a strong condemnation of the slipshod methods of the Laurier Government in connection with the construction of the bridge that fell, entailing a loss of many millions, and a warning against similar proceedings in the future.

The trolleys, autos and other vehicles in the United States are more deadly than war. In the year just closed in New York City, the lives of 376 persons were crushed out and 930 persons were injured by trolley cars, automobiles or horse-drawn vehicles; and the astonishing fact is revealed, says the Orillia Packet, that the officers and men in both the regular and volunteer armies in the United States who were killed in action, or died from wounds received in action, between May 1st, 1898, and June 30, 1899—the period of the Spanish-American war—were fewer in number than the persons who are killed by vehicles in New York City every year.

GRIFFINS OPERA HOUSE.

A PLAY WITH A WONDERFUL RECORD.

The greatest of all New York successes will be seen here at Griffin's Opera House to-night when it should awaken the liveliest interest in our local theatregoers, for it is a fact, that all the so-called successes on the road, none can lay claim to the proud distinction that has been achieved by Mr. Eugene Walter's masterpiece, "Paid in Full." Its great record of two years on Broadway and an entire season in Chicago are still fresh in the minds of those who keep in touch with the best in drama. That it will be greeted by the usual capacity business, is already indicated by the hundreds of requests for reservations.

VISITING DELEGATES WERE ENTERTAINED

Short, but Very Pleasant, Entertainment to Fairs Association Visitors

The Directors of the Belleville Fair and some of the citizens entertained the visiting delegates of the Central Fairs Association at a banquet at the Hotel Quinte on Tuesday evening after the meeting held in the Council Chamber during the afternoon.

Fifty guests gathered to enjoy two social hours together.

Col. W. N. Ponton, President of the Fair of 1910, presided. The recent bereavement of Mr. W. C. Farley was sympathetically referred to.

Excellent speeches were made by Mr. Lockie Wilson, representing the Department of Agriculture; Dr. Simmons, Vice President of the Province of Ontario Fairs Association; Mr. Miller, of Castleton, President of Central Association, Mr. W. Carnew and others.

Songs were sung, stories told, and thereafter the delegates adjourned in a body to the opera house and returned to the rotunda of Hotel Quinte winding up a most pleasant session.

Colonel Ponton produced from his archives a copy of the Intelligencer of 1838, with an advertisement signed by Billa Flint, Jr., with regard to a free market or Fair for 6 months and a proclamation of Sheriff Moodie more than 60 years old authorizing a Fair to be held at the historic city of Shannonville, to last no longer than sunset.

Mr. C. M. Stork, of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and Mr. John Elliott, represented the Banking fraternity, and many other citizens aided in the enjoyment of the evening.

The Ministerial session will begin on Wednesday morning, May 31st. The Conference will continue until June 6th, and will be one of the most important sessions ever held as the question of church union will be up for decisive action.

SUDDEN DEATH OF DR. R. P. MCKENIZE

He Succumbs to Attack of Pneumonia After But a Few Days' Illness

The whole city, says the Rossland Times, was plunged in grief on Monday afternoon, Jan. 16th, when it became known that Dr. R. P. McKenzie had passed away.

The pneumonia attacked first one lung, and then extended to the other, and in spite of everything possible that could be done by the best doctors of the city, including Dr. J. T. McKenzie of Vancouver, he gradually sank and passed away at 3.30 p.m. The deceased was so well known in the city that any review of his life in Rossland would be superfluous. He was the Medical Officer of Health for the city, and held a position as coroner. He was also a member of many fraternal societies and was keenly alive to the interests of his patients, and many hearts to-day in Rossland are aching in sympathy with the widow and two children, who are left to mourn his loss, and the community of Rossland will miss him sorely. The funeral took place from his late residence, Government Square, Thursday afternoon to Rossland Cemetery.

The late Dr. McKenzie was a son of the late J. F. McKenzie of Thurlow Township where he was born and was in his 35th year. He leaves besides his family there, a sorrowing mother, two sisters and three brothers to mourn his loss. Their many friends extend their sincere sympathy in their sad bereavement. In religion he was a Presbyterian.

AGED RESIDENT HAS PASSED AWAY

At an early hour yesterday morning, Mr. William Van Blaricom passed away in this city. Deceased, who was 69 yrs. of age, was born in Sophiasburg, Pr. Edward County, but the greater portion of his life was spent in Sidney Township. He had resided in the city but a few months. Mr. Van Blaricom had been ill for some time. Deceased was a man well and favorably known. For years he had been a member of the Methodist Church and had always taken an active part in church work in Sidney, being a trustee, steward and Sunday school superintendent. A widow and a family of two sons, Chares of Sidney and Earl W. at Queens Universtiy, Kingston survive, also two brothers, M. F. K. of this city and T. G. of Toronto. The remains will be interred in the family plot at White Church Cemetery.

TWO STRANGERS WERE TAKEN IN

Before Magistrate Masson this morning John Wood was charged with drunkenness. The accused is a stranger and for two nights was in the police station for protection, and upon each occasion gave different names. He was fined $5 or ten days, and, not having the change, went up.

Thomas Larney, a young man 21 years of age, asked to be sent up for a few days. He is a stranger in a strange land, without friends or means. The Magistrate sent him up for 30 days on a charge of vagrancy.

KING GEORGE NOT A MASON

King and Kaiser Among Few Protestant Rulers Who Are Not Members of the Craft

The Marquis of Montenoy, writing to the New York Tribune, says:—

King George, unlike most other Protestant rulers, is not a Mason, although he has just consented to become the patron of a great charitable institution in England founded and maintained by the Masonic fraternity. His father, Edward VII. at the time of his death last spring, had been a Mason for close upon fifty years, having been first initiated at Stockholm during a visit to Sweden prior to his marriage; immediately, indeed, after his return to Europe from the United States. For the last quarter of a century preceding his accession to the throne he was Grand Master of the English Freemasons, and as such it became his duty on two occasions to issue edicts forbidding the English Masons to hold any Masonic intercourse whatsoever with French and Italian lodges which deny the existence of the Divinity and which have eliminated the name of the Grand Architect of the Universe from their ancient ritual. When he came to the throne he resigned the Grand Mastership to his brother, the Duke of Connaught, owing to the apprehension that he might be called upon in his capacity as chief of the craft in Great Britain to give his name to measures that were not consistent with the advice of his ministers.

RESISTED FATHER'S PLEADING.

King George always resisted his father's recommendation that he should become a Freemason and the only other Protestant monarch who has kept similarly aloof from the fraternity is the Kaiser, whose father was an enthusiastic Mason. The Emperor's brother, Prince Henry, is a Mason, and so, too, are Prince Henry of the Netherlands, the kings of Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Greece and Wurtemberg. The Emperor Frederick was Grand Master of the German Masons during the last thirty years of his life, and the office is now held by Prince Frederick Leopold of Prussia, the Kaiser's brother-in-law.

Napoleon III. was a Freemason of the Italian rite, and endeavored to counteract the tendency of the French Masons to radicalism and republicanism by getting Prince Murat appointed Grand Master of the Grand Orient of France, but his efforts in this direction were doomed to failure, and it was the Masonic element in French politics which contributed more than anything else to the overthrow of the empire.

It is interesting to add in this connection that the vast majority of the Presidents of the United States, from George Washington down to Theodore Roosevelt have been Masons; a notable exception, however, was John Quincy Adams, who talked and wrote against the order with much vigor, and it was mentioned the other day that a recent poll of the two houses of Congress at Washington had revealed the fact that 87 per cent. of the members of the lower House and 80 per cent. of the members of the Senate belonged to the fraternity.

Municipal Finance

In the Financial Post Mr. H. C. Carson, F.S.S., continues his instructive and interesting articles on Municipal Finance. Some writers and administrators, he says, have even gone so far as to plead for the adoption of a uniform system of accounting, a desirable consummation, no doubt, but at present impracticable, at least so far as the larger cities are concerned. Local needs and circumstances vary to too great an extent to admit of the adoption of such fixed and arbitrary rules as would be necessary to give effect to such a proposal. Accounting, municipal or otherwise, has not yet reached the dignity of an exact science. There is often more than one way of doing the same thing correctly, and, so long as these conditions exist, individual cities must be permitted sufficient freedom to work out their own affairs in their own way.

But, while differences of detail may and do exist, the basic features and ruling principles of accounting are universal, and the difficulties in the way of presenting results along specified and uniform lises should not be so great as to prove insurmountable.

The problem is, then, to devise a uniform system of reports, in condensed form, which will be comprehensive enough to outsiders, and which will mean and give expression to the same thing in all cities.

Little difficulty should be experienced so far as a statement of receipts and disbursements is concerned. There is no intention, on the writer's part, to minimize the importance of this portion of an annual report, particularly is it of interest to the citizens immediately concerned, and especially where care has been taken to separate current transactions from those of capital. In too many instances, however, the statement of receipts and disbursements is made to do duty for the revenue account. It cannot perform this function. The revenue account is a statement of income and expenditure. Income means all debts accruing due to the corporation within the fiscal period, whether collected or not, and expenditure means all debts contracted by the city within the same period, where paid or unpaid. Failing cash settlement, all debts accruing due to a corporation within the financial year should, at the close, be credited to the proper department, and charged to accounts receivable, or similar account. Unpaid liabilities should likewise be charged to appropriate spending departments, and credited to accounts payable. By doing this, the revenue account will be rendered complete and dependable, and a true reflex of conditions made possible in the statement of assets and liabilities. Moneys received or paid in relation to matters prior to the beginning of the fiscal year, while appearing in the statement of receipts and disbursements, have no place in the revenue account.

To achieve uniformity in accounting results, some effort towards uniformity in methods of administration must first be made. This can best be done by provincial action, either legislative or administrative. The departments of a city, and the bureaus attached to each department should be defined. Each should be known by a uniform title, with identical duties and responsibilities.

AN ECHO OF THE OLD BOYS' REUNION

Col. Ponton's Services as Secretary Fitly Recognized—Several Speakers Gracefully Referred to His Work—Splendid Testimonial of Appreciation—Eloquent Acknowledgement by the Talented Recipient

It was with feelings of delight and gratitude that a number of ladies and gentlemen met in the Officers' Quarters of the XVth Regiment yesterday afternoon to do honor to one of the ex-commanders of our city regiment for the highly valued services he had rendered as secretary of the "Old Boys' Re-union of 1910."

It is an open secret that in view of the remarkably clever and successful way Mr. Arthur McGinnis discharged the strenuous duties of secretary of the first re-union, the organization found great difficulty in persuading anyone to follow Mr. McGinnis. When, however, Lt. Col. W. N. Ponton, K. C. at last acceded to the urgent and unanimous wish of the committee to be secretary, the success of the great event was assured, for already a president had been chosen in the person of ex-alderman D. V. Sinclair, whose well-known zeal in anything he took hold of and a determination that brooks no failure, were assurances from the beginning that with two such chief executive officers the affair would prove as great a success as the Re-union of 1905.

The President of the Association was chairman yesterday, who express his thanks to the various individuals and organisations who, working so unanimously and energetically together, had brought forth a result of which the city was justly proud

He, possibly better than any other knew what it meant to have Colonel Ponton as secretary, and he joyfully bore testimony to the spirit in which he had carried out his multitudinous duties. Mr. Sinclair said further that no language he could command could possibly express the debt of gratitude the city owed to Colonel Ponton. This he knew were the feelings of our citizens because they had been told to him by persons of every class and creed.

His Worship, Mayor Ackerman said that wherever he had gone in the city he had found the citizens talking of the Re-union and their admiration of it, and of those whose services had made it such a credit to the city, especially Mr. Sinclair and Col. Ponton.

Mr. Wm. Johnson, the president of the 1905 Re-union, and the first honorary vice-president of the last one was the next called on. He was very glad to have the chance of adding his eulogies to the citizens' concert of plaudits of the officiary of the Old Boys' Re-union of 1910. Especially those of the President and Secretary. He had expected much from them but they had far exceeded his most sanguine expectations. He regretted that his limited vocabulary forbid his using all the compimentary adjectives in the dictionary for he felt that they deserved them. The conundrum in many minds since has been, "When did Col. Ponton sleep?" for at all hours of the day and night he was as much omnipresent as it is given to a mortal to be, and ever bearing that smile or expressing sentences of welcome or cheer. In 1915 there will be no such question asked as 'Will the third Re-union be held?' A chorus that will reach from ocean to ocean, from Belleville Old Boys' Re-union Associations will be from now till then suggesting to the home Association, "How better can the next Re-union be observed. Mr Johnson also, in fitting words, spoke of Col. Ponton's son, Dick, and his valuable services.

Col. Ponton in his attempt to reply to the many encomiums of himself and the able officiary (who were possessed also of so much of his mind) aimed at giving to each of them and to the Ladies' Auxillary his thanks. So firmly is their services fastened on his memory that not one of them was forgotten, nor their particular services. Those who had oft had the joy of hearing Col. Ponton at his best thought he excelled himself yesterday afternoon.

Another presentation took place when the city, through the Mayor was presented with two large photographs of the Executive Committees of the re-unions of 1905 and 1910 The gifts were fittingly acknowledged The presentation was made by Major Marsh.

Thanks were also given to Col. Stuart and the other officers of the XVth for the use of the Officers' Quarters.

As nearly all our citizens have seen the valuable presentation to Col Ponton we need not describe it.

The exquisite cabinet of silver, enclosed in a cabinet of golden oak had in its lid a golden tablet with this inscription:

Presented to
Lieut. Col. W. N. Ponton, K. C.,
Secretary of the Belleville Old Boys'
Re-union of 1910.
From the citizens of Belleville.

IRON IN THE BLOOD

is an essential element to health.

When it is insufficient or lacking there is a dearth of red blood corpuscles, which causes anaemia and a run-down condition of the entire system, with consequent bodily weakness.

In order to restore the blood to a healthy condition, iron must be supplied in an easily assimilated form. We guarantee this may be done by Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, made without oil.

This combination of two world-famed tonics restores to the blood the elements lacking to make rich, red blood, which imparts strength and vitality to every organ in the body.

J. Edmund Miller, of New Haven, Conn., says their little girl had been frail and sickly ever since her birth. Vinol was recommended and they tried it, and immediately noticed an improvement in her condition. They continued its use and built her up until they cannot recommend it too highly to build up a weakened system. J. S. McKeown.

Picture Machine Exploded in Face of Operator

While taking flashlight pictures in the Simpson House last evening Mr. E. McIntosh, of Toronto, formerly chef at the Benson House, Lindsay, had his face and head badly burned by the machine exploding. While about to take the picture Mr. McIntosh pulled the string that causes the machine to explode, but it did not work. He tried it several times and finding it would not work, walked over to the machine to see what was wrong, and while repairing it the machine exploded in his face with the above results. He was at once taken to the Ross hospital, where he now lies suffering intense pain. Mr. McIntosh would have probably lost his eyesight, but for the fact that he was wearing glasses. Mr. MacIntosh says:—"At the hospital I was kept masked night and day for five days. At the end of that time the burns were still very bad, and the doctors would not hear of my returning to work. I knew if I could only get some Zam-Buk for the burns I would be back at work in quick time, because I had previously used the balm and knew what it would do.

At last I left the hospital and went straight to a local store and bought some Zam-Buk. At the hotel I applied a Zam-Buk dressing and this cooled the burning pains and gave me quick relief. I kept on with the Zam-Buk treatment and returned to work. Within just one week after first commencing with the Zam-Buk treatment I might have defied anybody to detect where the burns had been, so splendidly did Zam-Buk heal the injury."

SPANISH QUEEN SORELY TRIED

Fear of Losing Children May Cause Victoria To Remain

LONDON, Jan. 30.—From English court circles confirmation was obtained to-day of the domestic troubles of Queen Victoria and King Alfonso of Spain. The marital unhappiness of Victoria, who was formerly an English Princess, is known among English royality, probably better than anywhere else, and it is no secret among her relatives that Victoria would have quit Spain long ago but for the tremendous political pressure brought to bear by England.

The outcome of the latest quarrel between the Spanish ruler and his Queen, which developed from the notorious attentions shown by Alfonso to several of the noted beauties of the Paris stage, depends upon the efforts that peacemakers are now puttng forth. No effort is being spared by these persons to mitigate the King's offences in the eyes of Victoria, as his indiscretions have been too flagrant for justification, even according to the somewhat lax standards of Spanish royalty.

The serious political consequences that woud follow her separation from Alfonso and the possibility that she might lose the custody of her oldest child Crown Prince Alfonso, are the arguments chiefly relied upon by the peacemakers. Naturally, England does not wish to furnish an asylum for a self-exiled queen, as such would entail the most embarrassing, if not dangerous consequences. For this reason, the family of the Queen, in pursuance of the recognized wishes of the government, is counselling Victoria to put as good front to her matrimonial misalliance as possible.

It is, however, the threat that she might lose the Crown Prince if she separated from Alfonso that will probably persuade the Queen to follow the unwelcome advice that is being heaped upon her.

THE RED YEAR

A Story of the Indian Mutiny

—By—

LOUIS TRACY

* Copyright by McLeod & Allen

CHAPTER I.

The Meshes of the Net

On a day in January, 1857, a sepoy was sitting by a well in the cantonment of Dum-Dum, near Calcutta. Though he wore the uniform of John Company, and his rank was the lowest in the native army, he carried on his forehead the caste-marks of the Brahmin. In a word, he was more than noble, being of sacred birth, and the Hindu officers of his regiment, if they were not heaven-born Brahmins, would grovel before him in secret, though he must obey their slightest order on parade or in the field.

To him approached a Lascar.

"Brother," said the newcomer "lend me your brass pot, so that I may drink, for I have walked far in the sun."

The sepoy started as though a snake had stung him. Lascars, the sailormen of India, were notoriously free-and-easy in their manners. Yet how came it that even a low-caste mongrel of a Lascar should offer such an overt insult to a Brahmin!

"Do you know, swine-begotten, that your hog's lips would contaminate my lotah?" asked he, putting the scorn of centuries into the words.

"Contaminate?" grinned the Lascar, neither frightened nor angered. "By holy Ganga, it is your lips that are contaminated, not mine. Are not the Government greasing your cartridges with cow's fat? And can you load your rifle without biting the forbidden thing? Learn more about your own caste, brother, before you talk so proudly to others."

Not a great matter, this squabble between a sepoy and a Lascar, yet it lit such a flame in India that rivers of blood must be shed ere it was quenched. The Brahmin's mind reeled under the shock of the retort. It was true, then, what the agents of the dethroned King of Oudh were saying in the bazaar. The Government were bent on the destruction of Brahminical supremacy. He and his caste-fellows would lose all that made life worth living. But they would exact a bitter price for their fall from high estate.

"Kill!" he murmured in his frenzy, as he rushed away to tell his comrades the lie that made the Indian Mutiny possible. "Slay and spare not! Let us avenge our wrongs so fully that no accursed Feringhi shall dare again to come hither across the Black Water!"

The lie and the message flew through India with the inconceivable speed with which such ill tidings always travels in that country. Ever north went the news that the British Raj was doomed. Hindu fakirs, aglow with religious zeal, Mussalman zealots, as eager for dominance in this world as for a houri-tenanted Paradise in the next, carried the fiery torch of rebellion far and wide. And so the flame spread, and was fanned to red fury, though the eyes of few Englishmen could see it, while native intelligence was aghast at the supineness of their over-lords.

One evening in the month of April, a slim, straight-backed girl stood in the veranda of a bungalow at Meerut. Her slended figure, garbed in white muslin, was framed in a creeper-covered arch. The fierce ardor of an Indian spring had already kissed into life a profusion of red flowers amid the mass of greenery, and, if Winifred Mayne had sought an effective setting for her own fair picture, she could not have found one better fitted to its purpose.

But she was young enough and pretty enough to pay little heed to pose or background. In fact, so much of her smooth brow as could be seen under a broad-brimmed straw hat was wrinkled in a decided frown. Happily, her bright brown eyes had a glint of humor in them, for Winifred's wrath was an evanescent thing, a pallid sprite, rarely seen, and ever ready to be banished by a smile.

"There!" she said, tugging at a refractory glove. "Did you hear it? It actually shrieked as it split. And this is the second pair. I shall never again believe a word Behari Lal says. Wait till I see him. I'll give him such a talking to."

"Then I have it in my heart to envy Behari Lal," said her companion, glancing up at her from the carriage-way that ran by the side of the few steps leading down from the veranda.

"Indeed! May I ask why?" she demanded.

"Because you yield him a privilege you deny to me."

"I was not aware you meant to call to-day. As it is, I am paying a strictly ceremonial visit. I wish I could speak Hindustani. Now, what would you say to Behari Lal in such a case?"

"I hardly know. When I buy gloves, I buy them of sufficient size. Of course you have small hands—"

"Thank you. Please don't trouble to explain. And now, as you have been rude to me, I shall not take you to see Mrs. Meredith."

"But that is a kindness."

"Then you shall come, and be miserable."

"For your sake, Miss Mayne, I would face Medusa, let alone the excellent wife of our Commissary-General, but fate, in the shape of an uncommonly headstrong Arab, forbids. I have just secured a new charger, and he and I have to decide this evening whether I go where he wants to go, or he goes where I want to go. I wheedled him into your compound by sheer trickery. The really definite issue will be settled forthwith on the Grand Trunk Road."

"I hope you are not running any undue risk," said the girl, with a sudden note of anxiety in her voice that was sweetest music to Frank Malcolm's ears. For an instant he had a mad impulse to ask if she cared, but he crushed it ruthlessly, and his bantering reply gave no hint of the tumult in his breast. Yet he feared to meet her eyes, and was glad of a saluting sepoy who swaggered jauntily past the open gate.

"I don't expect to be deposited in the dust, if that is what you mean," he said. "But there is a fair chance that instead of carrying me back to Meerut my friend Nejdi will take me to Aligarh. You see he is an Arab of mettle. If I am too rough with him, it will break his spirit; if too gentle, he will break my neck. He needs the main de fer sous le gant de velours. Please forgive me! I really didn't intend to mention gloves again."

"Oh, go away, you and your Arab. You are both horrid. You dine here to-morrow night, my uncle said?"

"Yes, if I don't send you a telegram from Aligarh. I may be brought there, you know, against my will."

Lifting his hat, he walked towards a huge pipal tree in the compound. Beneath its far-flung branches a syce was sitting in front of a finely-proportioned and unusually big Arab horse. Both animal and man seemed to be dozing but they woke into activity when the sahib approached. The Arab pricked his ears, swished his long and arched tail viciously, and showed the whites of his eyes. A Bedouin of the desert, a true scion of the incomparable breed of Nejd, he was suspicious of civilization, and his new owner was a stranger, as yet.

It left her rather flushed and breathless.

"I like Mr. Malcolm," she confided to herself with a little laugh, "but his manner with women is distinctly brusque! I wonder why!"

SLANDERER CONVICTED

Edward Mylius Goes to Prison For a Year.

Editor of The Liberator, Who Declared That King George Had Been Morganatically Married, Has His Allegations Disproven to the Hilt—His Majesty's Honor Is Completely Vindicated.

London, Feb. 2.—A prison sentence of one year was imposed yesterday upon Edward F. Mylius after he was found guilty of criminally libelling King George.

Mylius had published in The Liberator an assertion that the monarch, while Prince of Wales, had morganatically married a daughter of Admiral Seymour, and that several children had resulted from the union. He was tried on three counts and was convicted on all of them.

Only a few witnesses were called. Among these was the crown advocate at Malta. He testified that it was compulsory under the law at Malta to register every marriage. He declared on the stand that the registration between the years of 1886 and 1893 had been searched without discovering a record of the King's alleged marriage.

"I had only two daughters," declared the admiral. "One died when she was 22 years of age and the other is the present Mrs. Napier."

Mrs. Napier was also called to the stand.

"I was never married to King George," was the simple statement to which she swore.

Mylius attempted a long elaborate cross-examination but was cut short by the court.

The verdict was the occasion for a ripple of subdued applause which disturbed even the stern dignity of the English court for a time.

Lord Chief Justice Alverstone, in delivering the sentence, stated that Mylius had wronged not only the British sovereign, but the British people.

The Liberator is a small paper published in Paris, its editor being Edward H. James, formerly a lawyer in the United States.

Sir John A. Simeon assisted Sir Rufus in the prosecution, collaborating with Public Prosecutors Roylatt and Muir, the latter being the prosecutor of Dr. H. H. Crippen.

New York women were in the crowd which surged about the court, attempting to break by the guards and enter. It required the efforts of fully a score of policemen to keep back the people who tried to fight their way into the room after it was already filled.

Mylius conducted his defense in person. Immediately after the opening of court he petitioned the tribunal to compel the attendance of King George. He gave three reasons why the King should be present, summing up his contentions in the following words:

"I demand the presence of King George, first, because the accused has the right to be faced by his accuser in court; secondly, because in libel action the accused must be in court, and, third, because without the accuser in court there is no proof that the prosecutor is alive."

Mylius also demanded the return of private papers which, he said, had been seized.

Sir Rufus Isaacs, for the prosecution, declared in opening the case, that all the allegations made by Mylius in his story in The Liberator were fakes.

"Beyond the fact that King George is married to Queen Mary every statement made by Mylius is an utter falsehood," declared Sir Rufus.

In addressing the court the Attorney-General announced that the charge of seditious libel had been withdrawn and the charge of plain libel substituted.

The Attorney-General further declared that the King could not appear constitutionally, although he is willing to refute in person the asperations cast upon him in The Liberator.

The Height of Folly.

Montreal, Feb. 2.—The damming of the Long Sault Rapids, the project for which the Illuminum Co. of the United States is seeking authorization at Washington and Ottawa, does not find much favor with Mr. John Kennedy, the consulting engineer of the Montreal Harbor Commission. He says it would be the height of folly to hand over to this American corporation the key of the navigable St. Lawrence, and to give into the keeping of others the future of the route on which we have spent so many millions of dollars in channels and canals.

Charged With False Pretences.

Chatham, Feb. 2.—Thomas A. Morehead, a Detroit promoter, was hauled into the Police Court yesterday afternoon by Samuel Bellamy, charged with obtaining money under false pretences. Five charges were placed against him.

Bellamy is a retired farmer. Morehead, it is alleged, claimed to be selling stock for an American automobile company, and secured promissory notes from him to the amount of $800.

Building Aeroplane In Toronto.

Toronto, Feb. 2.—The first aeroplane to be built in this city is now under construction for H. B. Wills, director of the Ontario Motor League, by Mr. Louis Rea, who has made a special study of aeronautics. Arrangement has just been made by the manager of the coming automobile show in the Armories by which the machine will be in the show, and Mr. Rea will carry on the construction of it during the show.

WILL RETAIN CONTROL

Hydro-Electric Commission to Remain in Charge.

Sir James Whitney Announces That He Will Not Press the Amendments Which Proposed to Put Public Power Under the Railway and Municipal Board—No Change For Two Years at Least.

Toronto, Feb. 2.—Not for the next two years at least will the control of the Hydro-Electric Power be diverted to any rival of the commission. Sir James Whitney, with characteristic frankness and promptitude, proclaimed the important information on the floor of the Ontario Legislature yesterday afternoon, to a House which listened with evident interest to his obviously welcome and significant address.

When the leader of the Government gave precedence to Government order No. 21: "Bill No. 102, to amend the Power Commission Act and the Ontario Railway and Municipal Act, 1906." Sir James said that when the bill was under consideration last year there was some question whether jurisdiction over the power transmission system should rest with the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board or the Hydro-Electric Commission. This was altogether a new question. Reasons for each side of the proposition were given. It was difficult to define what the proper legislation should be.

Doubts had been expressed regarding the course to be taken. He had discussed the matter with some of the engineers interested in and connected with the transmission plan, who had pointed out that in their opinion it was important that at least a portion of the jurisdiction should be allowed to remain with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, if not all of it, at any rate, until the final completion of the transmission lines and the handing over the lines to the municipalities. It was quite possible, indeed probable, that further construction work would be entered upon by the Hydro-Electric Commission, and many additional miles of transmission line would be necessary, therefore, having regard to the doubt respecting jurisdiction and to the necessity which, according to the engineers, existed for the Hydro-Electric Commission to have some jurisdiction, notably that of inspection, and to the fact that further construction would be entered upon, and as it would be a couple of years before the final work would be completed, he was not prepared to press this bill in its present shape.

Sir James, in concluding, said that he would let the bill stand on the order paper for a few weeks at least, until he could have further consultation with the engineers, because, whatever the final form, might be, there were several provisions which experience might show the necessity of adding.

Hon. A. G. MacKay—"Are we to understand that the bill in its present form takes the power from the Hydro-Electric Commission and gives it to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board?"

J. W. Johnston (West Hastings) gave notice of a bill to prevent the issuing of watered stock in certain companies. The bill is designed to prohibit the issuing of bonus or free stock. Mr. Johnson takes the position that the increased cost of living is being keenly felt by the great mass of the people. There are certain contributing causes that are remote and not easily defined, but there are factors in the existing situation that can be easily ascertained, and can be removed, at least so far as the incorporation of future companies is concerned, by legislation.

One of these factors is the practice now so prevalent of issuing watered stock.

The consuming population is being bled by companies that are charging for their products such prices as not only yield a dividend upon stock that was paid for, but also upon stock for which neither money, property, nor service was rendered. There are articles of food, which, the member for West Hasting said, are consumed by every family that have, through the determination of companies to acquire unfair profits, increased in price fifty per cent. within two years.

Defective Switch Causes a Wreck.

Montreal, Feb. 2.—Five persons were injured, three of them probably fatally, when the New York bound Rutland express which left Montreal yesterday morning tore through a defective switch at Lacadie, Que., 18 miles from here, cut its baggage car in two and overturned the locomotive.

Fireman Wm. Marchand and Enginees H. Laperiel and Mrs. Laura Lebombard, of Isle La Motte, were most seriously hurt. They were brought to the Royal Victoria Hospital.

Unearned Increment.

Berlin, Feb. 2.—The Reichstag yesterday passed the third reading of the bill taxing unearned increment by a vote of 199 to 93. Cities and other local municipalities will retain forty per cent. of the proceeds derived from the next taxation, and also may collect an additional tax in the form of a supplementary percentage. It is estimated that the German Empire as a result of the measure will obtain $5,000,000 annually.

Reciprocity Debate Tuesday.

Ottawa, Feb. 2.—The Government notified the Opposition last night that the debate on the reciprocity agreement with the United States would be begun next Tuesday.

The Conservative members held a caucus last evening, at which the trade arrangement was discussed at length. The caucus adjourned until this afternoon.

DYNAMITE GOES OFF

Cargo of High Explosive Blows Up at Communipaw, New Jersey, While Being Transferred to a Lighter and Terrible Havoc Results—Property Loss Is $750,000—Tug Utterly Disappears.

New York, Feb. 2.—A cargo of dynamite in transit from a freight car to the hold of a lighter moored at pier 7, Communipaw, N.J., let go at just one minute past noon yesterday, 150 yards south of the Jersey City terminal of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, and in the widespread ruin that followed seven men are known to have been killed, seven more are known to be missing, hundreds were wounded, and varying reports leave from fifteen to twenty more unaccounted for.

Thirty seems to be a conservative estimate of the dead, and property damage will hardly fall below $750,000. The cause of the explosion is variously attributed to the dropping of a case of dynamite and to a boiler explosion on a boat.

The Jersey Central terminal was wrecked; three ferry boats in the slips were torn and splintered; lower Manhattan, across the river, was shaken from the street level to the top of the Singer tower; severe damage was done in Brooklyn, Station Island, and the immigrant detention station on Ellis Island; the shock was felt on Long Island in Amityville, 35 miles distant, and in New Jersey at Long Branch, 40 miles distant.

The lighter Whistler, owned by the American Storage & Delivery Co. of New York, was so badly shattered that she sank with her crew of two, while the Swedish steel bark Entine Engrid, a stone's throw to the south, was stripped of her rigging and the lives of two deckhands aboard snuffed out. Fragments of one man's head were found swinging high on a tangled piece of rope.

The Katherine W. was tied to the outer end of the pier, and a crew of deck hands were unloading a consignment of fifty pound boxes from two freight cars to the lighter when the crash came. Theoretically, dynamite will not let go either shock or fire, but only from a combination of both—the detonation produced by a percussion cap. What followed is the best possible example of the whimsies of dynamite.

The Katherine with her crew of seven simply disappeared; not a splinter of her has been found. The freight car went up in a puff of dust. On the rear deck of the bark Entine, Engineer Edward found a pair of iron trucks. They may be the trucks of the dynamite car, or of one of the other four cars standing near that were also torn to bits.

Fifty yards back stood another car of dynamite. The explosion ripped the roof off it, and broke in the doors, but the dynamite itself held true and rested quiescent in its wooden boxes. On board the Entine the steel mizzen-mast snapped off below the lower yard and tangled wreckage came tumbling about the decks. Everything abaft the mizzen-mast was leveled flat, but the steel plates of the hull held stoutly and showed not even a mark.

For 100 feet the pier-end itself was utterly demolished. The planking seemed to have been ground to powder. Over the broken edges twisted steel rails of track.

The known missing: Edward Traver, master of the steam lighter Katherine W.; Louis Heinzeman, engineer of the Katherine W.; Frank Ackley, Henry Ackley, Oscar Stolpe, James London, Louis Belgian, all of the crew of the Katherine W.

Thought to be missing: Twenty unknown laborers just getting ready to eat luncheon at pier 7, when the explosion came.

James Healing, owner of the Katherine W., said he is not positive that the lighter and her crew of seven had been blown up. Nobody living knew for certain if she had been tied to the pier or not.

A man who senses had been strangely deranged, apparently by the dynamite explosion on the Jersey waterfront, appeared at the mayor's office in the City Hall yesterday afternoon. His incoherent mutterings about his "sufferings from electricity" and other weird talk, prompted the attendants to arrest him. He gave his name as Charles Thile, and said he was working in Bayonne when the explosion occurred. An open knife was found in the man's pocket, but he was not otherwise armed.

Magazine Eats Crow.

New York, Feb. 2.—Counsel for the Standard Oil Co., which recently began suits for $250,000 damages against Hampton's Magazine, and for $100,000 damages against Cleveland Moffett, the writer of an alleged defamatory statement concerning the Standard Oil Co., yesterday received written retractions from both the publishers and the writer. The article in question stated that the Standard Oil Co. manufactured and sold impure materials, which went into candies, and that, when the various dealers were arrested and fined, the Standard Oil Co. paid the fines.

Ask Grant for Harbor.

Ottawa, Feb. 2.—A deputation consisting of Col. Hugh Cleland, Reeve R. J. Agnew of Meaford, Chairman Wilson of the Meaford Board of Trade, and C. W. Startman of Clarksburg, yesterday asked the Minister of Public Works for a grant in the supplementary estimates for the improvement of Meaford harbor.

Want Harbor Dredged.

Kingston, Feb. 2.—Deputations from the council and Board of Trade sent to Ottawa to petition for the dredging of the inner harbor and construction of a new bridge from Bell's Island to Pittsburgh shore.

GOES BEFORE JURY.

Colonel Munro Is Refused Summary Consideration.

Toronto, Feb. 2.—Colonel Munro, president of the defunct Farmers' Bank will be tried before a jury.

It was well toward noon, when the slate at the Police Court was sufficiently cleared to enable Col. Denison to turn his attention to the case of Col. Munro.

The accused, who was absent when the case was first called on Monday, was on hand yesterday along with his counsel, H. H. Dewart, K.C.

During the preliminary proceedings these two sat apart, Mr. Dewart going over his brief and Col. Munro affording additional facts as they came to his mind.

Col. Munro was charged with having supplied the Federal Government, for every month throughout the year 1910 with incorrect reports regarding the standing of the Farmers' Bank. These reports are demanded by the authorities at Ottawa, and they go into every phase of the bank's business; their design is to show the relative strength of each bank at the end of every month.

Travers is believed to be the one who perverted the monthly return sent to the Government, sending them along to Col. Munro for the latter's signature. The charge is that Col. Munro wilfully and knowingly signed the returns in question, cognizant at the time that they were false.

"Do you plead guilty or not guilty?" asked the magistrate.

"Not guilty," came from Col. Munro in low but deliberate tones.

"We elect to be tried by you," said Mr. Dewart.

"I am not asking you to do that," interposed the magistrate. "I only purpose investigating the case.

"We would like to have it settled at once," rejoined Mr. Dewart.

"Yes, I know," concluded the magistrate, "but the case will have to go to trial."

Englehart Hospital Opened.

Petrolea, Feb. 2.—The Charlotte Eleanor Englehart Hospital was formally opened Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The hospital itself, a very fine building, is situated on the brow of an incline, and a fine view is obtained of the surrounding country across the stream that runs past the foot of the garden, on the further side of which the golf links stretch. A fine conservatory is attached to the building, and every convenience is provided that could be suggested.

The formal opening consisted of a short service, which Rev. Canon Craig announced, was held at the request of the hospital committee, in accordance with the wishes of Mr. Englehart. The doxology was sung, and after a reading of the Scripture by Rev. Mr. Grimshaw, Rev. Dr. McNair delivered a prayer, following by reading of the Bible by Mr. Knight of the Salvation Army. Rev. Mr. Garbutt then prayed, and the service was closed by Rev. Father Hussey pronouncing the benediction.

Mr. Englehart then made a few remarks and presented Mayor Pollard with the documents by which the town takes possession of the premises. Mayor Pollard read an address of appreciation, in which the town recognized the generosity of Mr. Englehart.

Thunderer Launched.

London, Feb. 2.—The Thunderer, the seventeenth British Dreadnought and the fourth of the super-Dreadnought type was successfully launched from the yards of the Thames Iron Works Co. at Canningtown yesterday. The Archbishop of Canterbury conducted the religious services preceding the christening by Mrs. Davidson.

Fifteen thousand people, many of whom had gone by special train from this city, witnessed the ceremonies and cheered wildly as the great fighter woke to life and plunged into the water.

The Thunderer has a displacement of 22,680 tons, and will be equipped with turbines with a total of 27,000 horse-power. She is expected to make a speed of 21 knots an hour. The vessel is 584 feet in length and is armed with ten 13.5-inch guns, and 24 4-inch guns. She is the largest vessel ever launched so far up the Thames. Three thousand workmen were employed in her construction.

May Talk It to Death.

Washington, Feb. 2.—President Taft's announcement yesterday that the southern tour planned for early next month would be cancelled with the exception of the visit to Atlanta on March 10, started political tongues wagging with rumors that his purpose was to prepare for a possible extra session of Congress, in case the present session fails to enact the reciprocity agreement between the United States and Canada. He has said that he hopes to see it passed before March 4.

Fears have been expressed, however, that the Senate "will talk the measure to death" or kill it in some other way, although it is believed the House, probably with the aid of the Democrats, will pass it.

Fisher Folk Pleased.

St. John, N.B., Feb. 2.—J. F. Calder, Dominion fisheries inspector for the southern part of New Brunswick, says that the proposed reciprocity agreement has brought joy to the hearts of the fisher folk along the Bay of Fundy coast. This joy seemed to be mutual, for in Maine, where he has been, all interested are of the opinion that the fishermen on both sides of the line will benefit.

Fell Forty Feet; Will Live.

Toronto, Feb. 2.—Joseph Maud, a structural steel worker, employed by the Dominion Bridge Co. on the Hobberlin building at Richmond and Yonge streets, slipped and fell 40 feet to the basement yesterday morning. His right hip was fractured.

Calls For Ten Vessels for Navy.

Ottawa, Feb. 2.—The Government has called for tenders for the construction of the ten new vessels of the Canadian navy, contemplated in the initial building program.

CONMEE AGAIN.

Genial Member of Commons Gets Another Set-Back.

Ottawa, Feb. 2.—The proceedings of the House of Commons yesterday were unusually barren of interest. James Conmee tried to get his bill to amend the act respecting the Ontario & Minnesota Power Co. introduced as a public bill, but the Speaker ruled that it was a private bill and must be treated accordingly. He was ruled out of order after he had spoken for two hours on the subject.

Hon. Frank Oliver introduced a bill to amend the Dominion Lands Act. Its object is to render it possible to lease as well as sell school lands. It was read a first time.

Mr. Verville's much amended bill to compel an eight-hour day on public works was talked out.

J. D. Taylor (New Westminster) said that in fairness to the House it should be made clear whether the petitions in favor of the bill related to the original measure, or the bill in its amended form. When Mr. Taylor referred to Prof. Skelton, who compiled information for the eight-hour bill of last session, as the Minister's own witness, Mr. King objected. He said Prof. Skelton, with the approval of the committee, had been engaged by him during the Christmas recess to proceed with the work. Mr. Taylor had endeavored to mislead the House.

There were cries of order, and the Minister withdrew the statement.

In conclusion, Mr. Taylor expressed regret that the recommendations made by Prof. Skelton had not been embodied in the bill.

William Thoburn (North Lanark) said he could not understand the distinction which had been made between men working on public works and on Government buildings. He doubted if the bill would benefit one per cent. of the laboring men of Canada. Mr. Thoburn read a letter he had received from the Trades and Labor Council of Carlton Place, in which the bill was severely criticized, and the Minister of Labor accused of curtailing the measure, in order to bring discredit on Mr. Verville as the representative of the laboring men. He said he would be willing to support a real eight-hour day measure, but not this bill in its present form.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Nine passengers were injured when the C.P.R. Overland Limited was derailed near Gleichen, Alberta. Mr. Robert Taylor of Toronto was slightly injured.

Stamford fruit-growers held a meeting and warmly endorsed the proposed trade arrangement with the United States. No resolution was put, but the sentiment of the meeting was unmistakable.

A group of Ontario capitalists have had forwarded to them photographs and data in connection with a scheme they have to harness the reversing falls at St. John, N.B., to supply power for industries.

Louis Leblanc, employed by a contractor to drive the mail between Yarmouth and Wedgeport, N.S., pleaded guilty and was sentenced to five years in Dorchester penitentiary, for robbing the mail bags of letters.

HOCKEY MATCH WAS FAST AND FURIOUS

The Attendance Was Good and the Ice In Fine Condition—Play Was Fast, but Rough at Times—Belleville Won by Clever Hockey—Score Was 3 to 2

The hockey match between the Belleville and Picton professional hockey teams attracted a good-sized crowd to the Arena last night, despite treacherous walking and a heavy fall of gritty snow, which made the icy surface of the streets all the more treacherous. The conditions were favorable for fast play, the ice being in perfect condition, but the men of both teams were on their mettle—the Bellevilles to retrieve their defeat at Picton, and the Pictons to evidence their superiority. The consequence was that there was a good deal of rough play. Belleville won by the narrow margin of three goals to two, and, on the whole play was very evenly divided.

Both teams had changes in their line-up, the home team having Baker in goal, replacing Tooze, who played the same position for Picton instead of Croft, and Whalen, of Port Arthur, and Carmichael replaced Nichols and Mallen.

Andy Kyle, the well-known point of the Port Hopes, was the referee, which position he filled satisfactorily, his strict interpretation of the rules no doubt preventing much rough play. It was 8.55 when the game was started, and for a short time the play was in Belleville's territory then there was a change, and Picton's goal was in turn attacked. Finally, after about five minutes had elapsed, a long lift from near the centre drifted into Belleville's net and the Picton fans shouted their joy; but it was of short duration, for the home men, by the finest kind of hockey, soon afterwards shot three past Tooze, who had succeeded in stopping many others. At last Picton got another tally by a lucky carom off Lane's leg into the net, and the first period ended—

Picton 2

Although the pace was very fast and the checking heavy, with some slashing, only one man was penalized during the period, and he was a Pictonian.

It would be tedious to describe the play of the second and third periods. It was brilliant, but rough, and many penalties were imposed. At one time Belleville had only five men on the ice but, largely owing to the fine generalship and very clever play of Chipchase, the visitors could not score:

The line-up was as follows:

Belleville—		Picton—
	—Goal—
Baker,		Tooze,
	—Point—
Debeau,		H. Burgoyne,
	—Cover Point—
Lane,		S. Burgoyne,
	—Rover—
Carmichael,		Jewell,
	—Centre—
Chipchase,		Dusty,
	—Right Wing—
Lightfoot,		Crossett,
	—Left Wing—
Whalen,		Dubey,

Referee—Andy Kyle, Port Hope.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Belleville's line-up was not improved by the absence of Nichols and Mallen.

The long wait for commencement of play was far from popular.

Chipchase was the star of the evening for Belleville. His work was very fine.

Baker did splendid work in goal.

Dubeau has been unfortunate in scoring. In the game with Port Hope one of his swift shots struck the goal post, and bounded outside. Last night he fell down when about to shoot a sure goal.

Whalen played a good game, but he went to the fence too often.

Carmichael was effective and made a good impression.

It may fairly be said of the Pictons that they played a strong game, but they slashed a great deal. Jewell was the worst offender in that respect.

Jewell was laid out for a few minutes as the result of a body check by Lane, but he came back and finished the game, despite the threat of Capt. Burgoyne to withdraw his team if Belleville would not put off a man to even up.

CURLING.

Two senior and two junior rinks from the Kingston Curling Club will visit this city this evening and play with similar rinks from the local club. The match will be one of the series for the district championship.

The Toronto Granites won the Ontario Tankard. Lindsay, the runners up, were beaten by five shots.

In the second round of the Governor-General's competition, London Thistles defeated Belleville 45 to 28

The Kingston Standard dilates on the thoroughness of the management of the junior Frontenacs' business affairs. Considering that three players, who were over age took part in several of their matches last year the management was either not thorough enough or too thorough in that respect.

HOCKEY NOTES.

Friday night's match will be a dandy—Belleville vs. Port Hope at the Covered Rink. Come prepared for lots of excitement, for Belleville will be here with a strong team.—Port Hope Guide.

Port Hope has accepted Picton's challenge to play on neutral ice for $200 a side, and the game will take place in Oshawa on Saturday evening.

LITERARY NOTES.

Artistic Homes.

Planning, building, decorating a home is a most fascinating occupation. Every home builder grasps at every suggestion that may give new ideas or better ways. To those and to all who appreciate the charm of well arranged houses, the February number of Canadian Home Journal will give the greatest pleasure. With wide experience and exact knowledge, Mr. Paul Fitzpatrick, the associate editor for this issue, combines a very attractive manner of writing. The special headings are suggestive, "Houses That Fit," the surroundings for different styles; "The Heart of the House," all about fireplaces; "Building a Home," suggestions from experience. There is "Making the Home Decoration Individual" and "Household Decoration," containing suggestions for selection of harmonious curtains, shades, hanging and wall papers, with stencilling designs for the home makers who enjoy the personal work in their homes. The regular household departments are good as usual, and there are well written short stories, and a fine page for the youngsters. In color work, February of this Toronto magazine probably surpasses any previous number. Each new issue of the Journal brings fresh proof of the very high standard of excellence that the publishers have set for themselves. They deserve our heartiest support in building for Canadians a clean attractive magazine of the very best type. To any of our readers who are looking for a home magazine, we suggest they write to the publishers for a sample copy.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Canifton, Ont.—"I had been a great sufferer for five years. One doctor told me it was ulcers of the uterus, and another told me it was a fibroid tumor. No one knows what I suffered. I would always be worse at certain periods, and never was regular, and the bearing-down pains were terrible. I was very ill in bed, and the doctor told me I would have to have an operation, and that I might die during the operation. I wrote to my sister about it and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Through personal experience I have found it the best medicine in the world for female troubles, for it has cured me, and I did not have to have the operation after all. The Compound also helped me while passing through Change of Life."—Mrs. LETITIA BLAIR, Canifton, Ontario.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to suffering women.

OTTAWA, Jan. 31. — The Ottawa Horse Show Association at its annual meeting in the City Hall this evening commenced arrangements for this year's show. Dr. Webster, the president, was in the chair, and there was a large and representative attendance. It was announced that the same circuit as last year had been arranged—the Toronto show on the last week in April, the Ottawa show the first week in May, and the Montreal show the following week. It is intended to have the Ottawa show open on Tuesday evening, May 2, and continue to Saturday evening, and a special show for children with exhibitions on Saturday morning and afternoon.

The Children's Hair

A Little Extra Care Now May Save After Years of Regret

Children play so hard that the head perspires and the hair has a tendency to mat and get sticky on the scalp. Soap and water doesn't seem to remove it, but the hair must breathe to be healthy. Just try Nyal's Hirsutone. Rub it into the roots of the hair with the balls of the fingers. The children like it and will ask you to use it. Hirsutone loosens up the accumulated dust and perspiration and the hair and scalp can then be easily and thoroughly cleaned. After it is dried give another application of Hirsutone. After you have used it for a while you will admit it is the best you have ever used. Your Nyal Drug Store will cheerfully guarantee Hirsutone to do all that is claimed for it.

HONEYMOON BEHIND BARS

Old Turnkey at Court House Had Collection of Brides and Bridegrooms

MONTREAL, Jan. 31.—Two very youthful couples are at present spending their honeymoon in the Court House cells, and both will be sent to jail this afternoon.

The unfortunate brides and bridegrooms are very young, the total of their years being 70, which gives an average of seventeen and a half years for each. The turnkey was kept busy all morning trying to console the unhappy maidens, so sorely and so untimely bereft of their hubbies.

Albert Lachapelle, nineteen years old, and Eva Larocque, his wife of fifteen days, also nineteen years old, are held on a charge of theft. Auguste Doucay, seventeen, and Florence Leduc, fifteen, are wailing for their parents to decide what is to be done with them.

FOOLED BY THE TECS.

The pair went to Rouse's Point, where they were married.

Doucay and his bride could have stayed in the United States and sought extradition, but he is young and inexperienced, so he listened to the good detective who told him he should come back. Now he finds himself facing a charge of abduction. He pleaded not guilty before Judge Bazin this morning. Young Florence Leduc, who has not yet turned fifteen, will be held until her parents decide what to do with her.

STARTED IN BOARDING HOUSE.

Albert Lachapelle and Eva Larocque were married two weeks ago in the Church of Hochelaga. They had not enough money to start housekeeping, so they went into a boarding house. After a few days they moved into another.

In both places the boarders began to miss things and the missing objects were found in the possession of the young people.

Lachapelle pleaded guilty to three charges, but the blushing bride said she knew nothing of the robbery. Both are held till next week for enquete.

OPIUM TRADE IS REVEALED

Federal Inspectors Learn Much of System From the Letters--Police Entangled

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Still more correspondence bearing on the opium trade and other operations of undesirable Chinese in this country was unearthed in the raids made on Saturday by customs officials on Wah Lee's place in West 28th Street; Chong's in Seventh Avenue and Sing Lee's in East 133rd Street.

At the time of the first raids last Wednesday a batch of letters and other papers were found seeming to show a well arranged system of retailing the drug in this country and also of getting Chinamen themselves past the United States officials at the border. Further the correspondence showed that the Chinese syndicate appeared to have excellent connections in the way of police friendship in several of the large cities of the country.

This correspondence is written partly in English and partly in Chinese. The Chinese documents found in the earlier raids have been turned over to an interpreter of the customs forces and when they have been translated will be turned over by Collector Loeb to the United States district attorney.

One thing which the customs officials have found in the correspondence is mention of the Elsie Siegel murder. Just what value the information in this murder case will prove to have will not be known, the customs officials say, until the interpreter has done his work.

The present indications are that the material, already in the hands of the government, is sufficient to reveal rather completely the ramifications not only of the opium traffic but also of the other pursuits of criminal Chinese in this country. Letters from white women play an important part in the total mass of correspondence and may contain revel

ALD. CARSON'S ROAD SCHEME

He Has Secured a Low Price for the Material for Permanent Pavement

The Kingston Whig says of Ald. Carson's scheme for cheap roads:

Ald. Carson had a visit from one of the agents of the company selling the material for the roadway which he is advocating, and which was referred to in the Whig on Saturday.

Ald. Carson says that the material costs twelve cents per gallon at the shipping point, with the cost of freight at two cents per gallon. One and a half gallons will do a square yard, and with thirty cents given as the cost to macadam, brings the total cost of the new road up to fifty-one cents per square yard.

Ald. Carson looks upon the price as very reasonable, and believes that the city will do well to put down these roadways.

TO SETTLE QUEBEC BRIDGE

OTTAWA, Jan. 31.—The Government has appointed Mr. H. W. Hodge of New York, one of the best known engineering experts on the continent, and Mr. M. J. Butler, ex-Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals, and now General Manager of the Dominion Iron & Steel Company, to finally settle the differences of opinion among the board of engineer in charge of the construction of the Quebec bridge. Several designs, involving basic principles of bridge engineering on the record-breaking scale of the new bridge, have been under consideration for months past by Messrs. Modjeska, Vautelet and Macdonald, the engineering experts entrusted with the carrying out of the work. They have been unable to agree on some vital questions relating to the plans for the long central span. The bridge itself is in many respects the largest and most important engineering work of its kind ever attempted. On the decision of Messrs. Hodge and Butler will depend the solution of problems in which bridge engineers the world over are interested.

HILL LETS THE CAT OUT OF THE BAG

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—James J. Hill expects ratification of the Canadian reciprocity agreement. Free wheat would end the Canadian Pacific's long haul to Fort William, diverting western Canadian grain to Minneapolis and other American centres.

Mr. Hill has let the cat out of the bag. In his capacity of funeral director of the Canadian roads, he is natrually pleased. No doubt the anti-reciprocity members in the Canadian House of Commons will make some use of Mr. Hill's observations

TORONO RAILS.

We are a joyous people
And have a joyous time;
We have a street car system
That isn't worth a dime.

We've got to quit the smoking,
And as we enter pay;
We do not pay to leave the car,
But we must leave one way.

We mustn't mind the squeezing
Nor stand too near the door;
Never be rude to motormen
Or at conductors sneer.

To cough or sneeze is shocking form
And emitting bronchial germs;
The winter blast may blight our life,
What nips it with such worms.

Going to work or coming home,
We ought to thank ourselves,
We've got a good old company
That allows us on the cars.

Then hey! for good old Robert,
That protentate sublime,
There's nothing worse than his street cars
And that is "doing time."

The bear did not see his shadow to-day. Hence, expect an early spring.

Every Woman Can Have Beautiful Abundant Lustrous Hair

The clever women of Canada have learned that Parisian Sage possesses the peculiar power to turn dull, lifeless looking hair into lustrous fascinating hair.

And that is why a head of dull appearing hair is a rarity nowadays, for why should any woman neglect the opportunity to make her hair beautiful when it adds so greatly to her charms.

Parisian Sage not only beautifies the hair but it makes it grow abundantly, stops it from falling out and removes every trace of dandruff.

It is the ideal hair dressing for the whole family because it is not sticky or greasy and possesses a refreshing and invigorating quality not found in ordinary hair preparations.

It makes the scalp feel splendid the minute you put it on the head. Sold by J. V. Doyle for 50c. a large bottle or postpaid on receipt of price from the Giroux Manufacturing Co Fort Erie, Ont. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every package.

As unclean hair brushes and combs attract dandruff germs, they should be washed frequently and when possible, dried in the sun.

Ontario Agricultural College Trying to Remove Doubts About Drainage

In July, 1909 the Department of Physics at the O.A.C. prepared a plan of drains for a 52 acre block of land that had never grown a crop—it was too wet. The drains were laid that autumn. In 1910 that 52 acres yielded potatoes and corn to the value of $2250. The farm lies within five miles of the city of London. Why had this land lain useless for generations? Perhaps the previous owners thought it could not be drained—as a matter of fact it was a difficult problem, for this land was very flat and the outlet poor. Perhaps they did not believe drainage would pay—this one crop should convince them. Or perhaps they believed in drainage but did not know just how to undertake such extensive drainage operations.

The Ontario Agricultural College is endeavoring to help those in doubt about drainage. Any farmer in Ontario wishing assistance in his drainage problems may have the same by making application to the Department of Physics, O.-A.C., Guelph. As soon as possible after receipt of the application a drainage adviser is sent to make a survey of the land, after which he makes a complete map showing the location of the drains, the grade, size of tile, etc. When completed the map is sent to the owner, so that he has an accurate guide to follow in putting in his drains. As in previous years, the only outlay to the farmer is the necessary travelling expenses of one man in connection with the survey. The railways give a rate of a cent a mile for this work, so that the travelling expenses are light.

After one survey in each locality a Drainage Demonstration is held right in the field surveyed, to which all the neighbors are invited. At this meeting simple methods are demonstrated of making a drainage survey, finding the fall of a ditch, determining the grade, digging to grade, etc.

Those wishing to make application for a survey should write the Department of Physics, O.A.C., Guelph, whereupon regular application forms will be ent.

BIG CONTEST WAS LAUNCHED IN FULL FORCE LAST NIGHT

Our Method of Taking Care of Votes is Open to the Public, and Will be Explained to Those Who Inquire—Interest In This Great Contest is Increasing Hourly—New Nominations are Coming in Fast

We wish to state now, for the benefit of any who might think that our contest would not be run aboslutely fair, that our system of taking care of the ballots is open to the public at any time during the contest. We have a system that could not be doctored if we inclined to favor any one candidate. Our system is fixed so that the Contest Manager does not absolutely know how many votes the candidates hold back. It would be impossible to run a contest absolutely fair without such a system. We are going to give every one of the candidates an equal chance, consequently the contestants will know that they are treated absolutely fair. Remember that our candidates and their friends are requested to look into our system at any time during the contest.

The Business Courses to be awarded in the Contest were purchased from the Ontario Business College. There will be four Courses given, two for each district. Two $65.00 unlimited Courses, including Business, Typewriting and Shorthand, and two $35.00 Typewriting and Shorthand Courses will be awarded in this grand Contest. The Ontario Business College needs no introduction to the people of Belleville and vicinity, and all contestants in this grand race for the prizes will appreciate the value of these grand business courses. This college is one of the foremost Business Colleges of America. A diploma from this college means much in the business world.

A pleasant time was spent by all who attended.

CURRENT COMMENTS.

The zero list continues to grow. Last night, with its 4 below added one more to the list.

Kingston has sent a deputation to Ottawa to ask for more harbor dredging. Why does not Bellevillle get busy along the same lines? This city needs a deep water wharf, the completion of the channel to the west of the light house and a 14 foot scale of navigation through the bay and the Murray Canal. Why not go after those objects?

Canada only began to grow when it adopted a National Policy of Protetcion for its own industries and its own natural assets. Why seek to destroy that policy by a Reciprocity deal?—Brockville Times.

The government has called for tenders for the construction of the ten new vessels of the Canadian navy contemplated in the initial building programme, viz., four Bristols and six destroyers of the latest improved type.

Mr. Foster has asked the Laurier government why the U. S. keeps a strong fleet of warships upon the Upper Lakes in direct violation of the Rush-Bagot treaty of 1817. He might also ask Sir Wilfrid if he thinks the U. S. will keep the Reciprocity treaty in the same fashion they keep the Rush-Bagot treaty.

The ad misericordiam plea for the farmer put forth by some of the speakers at last night's banquet reminds one of those made by Erastus Wiman in the Commercial Annexation Campaign of 1890-1, namely that his heart bled for the farmers of his native Canada, who were, he averred, "so helpless as to the past, so hopeless as to the future," but there are no more prosperous people in the world than the Canadian farmers. And, be it added, some of thos who were last night the loudest in voicing the alleged woes of those engaged in their occupation are wealthy with rich lands, live stock and implements, modern buildings, most comfortable homes, and money in the banks. Also, some of them have money invested at good interest on A1 security. The farmers are at least as well-to-do as any other class of the community—better indeed, than most.

GRIFFIN'S OPERA HOUSE.

"The Old Homestead" will always rank among the great plays of the American stage, even after it has ceased to be presented and lingers only in memory. It has no plot, no high flown dialogue, no rolling periods, these are all lacking. What it successfully purports to be is a character study, with plenty of light and shade; intrigue is wanting, but in its place is an exquisite representation of honest motives. The present is the twenty-fifth season of Mr. Denman Thompson's famous play and it will doubtless go on for many more years delighting the theatre-goers all over the country. There is scarcely a city large or small, in the country, where "The Old Homestead" has not been seen. The famous quartette of farm hands is still the musical feature of the production. Griffin's Opera House, Wednesday, February, 8. Seats on sale Saturday, February 4 at Doyle's Drug Store.

KINGSTON CURLERS BEAT BELLEVILLE

Last evening at the curling rink two senior and two junior rinks from the Kingston curling club defeated similar rinks belonging to the Belleville Club. In the case of the senior match it was by no means an easily earned victory, as when the required number of ends had been pleyed, namely 18, the score was a tie. Both rinks had to play an extra end each and the Limestone city players were victorious by one shot.

In the case of the junior match there is a different story to relate. The two visiting teams won rather easily, as when the match fas finished they had a lead of 22 shots. Mr. Hampton, who skipped one of the local rinks, was down but 6 shots but Mr. C. J. Symons' rink were rather badly defeated by 16 shots. At the conclusion of the match, which was one of the series in connection with the District Championship, the visitors were provided with refreshments at the club room. The players and scores were as follows:—

LEHIGHS BEAT 15 REGT.

In one of the cleanest games of hockey played this season in Belleville the Lehighs defeated the 15th Regt. by a score of 3 to 0, last night The players were in fine shape and the ice could not have been better for fast hockey. Mr. Connolly refereed and had the players well in hand during the game. The line-up:—

15th Regt.		Lehigh
	—Goal.—
Holton,		Dolan
	—Point—
Carter,		Downey,
	—Cover—
Tuite,		Bedboro
	—Rover—
Storms,		Gerow
	—Centre—
Connolly,		Symons
	—Forward—
Prichard,		Paterson
	—Forward—
Wallace.		Reddick

The boys are to be congratulated on the way the game was played last evening, and it goes to show that there is still a good chance of the city league games being exhibitions of clean, fast hockey instead of rough ungentlemanly games.

The Bellevilles with a strengthened team will play at Port Hope to-night.

Bad Case of Eczema Cured by Zam-Buk

Another case of the healing power of Zam-Buk, in cases of eczema, is to hand from Winnipeg. Mrs. H. Cross, of 176 McIntosh Ave., Elmwood, is the subject, and gives the following facts, with a view to leading other sufferers to a means of cure:

"For five years," she says, "I was terribly afflicted with eczema on my legs and despite all the doctoring and numerous remedies I tried, I seemed unable to get relief. The disease first started with watery blisters, which itched terribly, and when rubbed, burned and smarted very much. The pustules then spread and formed sores. These were irritable and very painful. One blister was no sooner rubbed—or I might say touched—than another started.

"They soon spread over both limbs, and I suffered much inconvenience. It tried various remedies, as they were recommended, but could find no relief. Ordinary salves and ointments seemed unequal to my case.

"At last a friend suggested my using Zam-Buk. I acted on this advice and began the Zam-Buk treatment. A few applications gave me considerable ease, and the burning, smarting pains were reduced. I persevered with the balm, and in the course of a week the disease was under control and the sores healing. From that time forward I continued to improve, and the sores, too, became less and less troblesome, until in a wonderfully short time, considering the seriousness of my case and the long time I had been suffering, Zam-Buk worked a complete cure."

Such is the nature of the great cures which Zam-Buk is daily effecting. Purely herbal in composition, this great balm is a sure cure for all skin diseases, cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, blood-poisoning, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns and bruises. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Refuse harmful imitations and substitutes.

A Malodorous Affair

The Public Accounts Committee turned up a curious case a few days ago, but one quite characteristic with the present Government. It appears that two or three years ago the Public Works Department had some work to be done at the Examining Warehouse in Montreal. It became necessary to purchase some leather belting and the same was purchased from a firm called Lymburger, Ltd. The Government as a large purchaser was entitled to the regular jobber's discount of 60 per cent. and 10 from the list price. Instead of getting this discount they got merely 10 per cent. off the list price, and thus paid $558 more than necessary on an invoice amounting to less than $900. The matter was so outrageous as to provoke general attention. Even Mr. Pugsley for the moment pretended to be shocked.

What followed is interesting: The hero of the Sawdust Wharf and other deals could not but admire the Lymburger, Ltd., having found that its managing director was one H. N. Lymburger, Mr. Pugsley at once appointed him Superintendent of Buildings in the city of Montreal. This brought under his jurisdiction the same Examining Warehouse in Montreal, where the expensive leather belting was placed. He found that some repairs were needed, and at once let the contract therefor to the Lymburger Co., in which he was and still is a stockholder and the director. The little formality of advertising for tenders was dispensed with in this case. Lymburger, as agent of the Government, telephoned two firms—one his own—and, strange to say, his own firm got the job. Everything may be right and above board, but Mr. Lymburger will certainly be slated for promotion in the Public Works Department.

HE CONFESSED TO MANY MURDERS

A St. Petersburg Physician Makes Sensational Admissions at Trial—Count is Implicated—Doctor Killed Baron With Diphtheria Germs For the Sum of $200,000

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 1.— The trial of Count Patrick O'Brien de Lacy and Dr. Pantchenko, for the murder of Baron Vashilli Boturlin which began here yesterday, rivals in interest the recent sensational trials of Mme. Steinheil in Paris for the murder of her husband, and of the Countess Maria Tarnowski in Vienna, for complicity in the assassination of her affianced. It may be mentioned that the Countess Tarnowski is a cousin of the Count de Lacy.

The trial is attracting great crowds and besides the two principals the names of a mistress of the doctor who is a woman in high Russian society, and a male cousin of the Count who expected to benefit financially by the murder are mentioned.

Dr. Pantchenko has confessed that he committed the murder. In fact, he admits that he was a professional, wholesale murderer. Wives who wished to be rid of their husbands and impecunious persons who were anxious to benefit by the death of rich relatives were his customers.. He acknowledges that he has committed scores of murders of this kind. Chief Filipoff of the Russian secret police, says he has traced a series of amazing crimes to the man. The accused says he committed the Boturlin murder while under the hypnotic influence of Count de Lacy. The Count denies all of the doctor's statements, and the trial is likely to last for several weeks.

Baron Vassilli Boturlin was the second son of General Boturlin, a wealthy Russian. The eldest son of General Boturlin had offended his father by marrying a music hall dancer, and it was known that Baron Vassilli would inherit all his father's wealth, estimated at $4,000,000. If the Baron died this money would go to the Countess de Lacy.

Baron Boturlin was taken ill and Dr. Pantchenko was called in. The Baron died suddenly a few days later. The Baroness was suspicious, although Dr. Pantchenko had filed the death certificate stating that the Baron had died of heart failure. She interested her father-in-law, the general, and he had a post mortem examination made. This revealed the fact that the Baron had died from the effects of some subtle poison. The police were notified. Dr. Pantchenko was found, and, after a rigid examination, made a confession. He said that De Lacy wanted Boturlin removed in order that Countess De Lacy should inherit the old general's money. For the murder of the Baron De Lacy promised to give him $200,000. He also agreed to provide enough money for the woman to whom the doctor was attentive to marry another cousin of the murdered Baron. The doctor also confessed to having committed numerous similar murders, and the police chief says he is now on the track of many mysterious crimes of this nature which have heretofore been regarded as unsolvable mysteries.

Dr. Pantchenko's confession, which was read at the trial yesterday ,created a great sensation, although it practically was all known last summer. In it the doctor said that he intended to kill Baron Boturlin by inoculating him with cholera germs, but was afraid this would be discovered. He, therefore, substituted diphtheria germs, which he injected with fatal results.

The Count De Lacy comes from an Irish family which settled in Russia at the beginning of the last century.

CORPORATE EXECUTOR IS IDEAL SYSTEM

Increase in Business of Toronto General Trusts Emphasizes Changing Conditions

The splendid increase in the amount of business confided to The Toronto General Trusts Corporation during the past year and reported to its annual meeting of shareholders this afternoon is an indication that the day is coming when the individual as executor and trustee will be superseded by the corporate executor and trustee just as the private banker has been displaced by the chartered bank. The growth in number of large estates has helped to swell the business, no doubt, but the large number of small estates administered by the trust companies is a sign of the growth of the public preference for the permanency safety and efficiency of the corporate trustee contrasted with the uncertainties attached to the appointment of individuals.

The annual statement of the Managing Director, Mr. J. W. Langmuir, shows that now estates, trusts and agencies to the value of $6,725,047.90 have been received during the year making a grand total in its care at the present time of $11,601,279.63 notwithstanding large payments to beneficiaries.

The Hon. Featherston Osler, in his address as president, an office to which it will be remembered he was elected during the past year, expressed his whole-hearted approval alike of the principles on which the Trust Company is founded, and the efficient manner in which its responsible duties are performed.

The most important feature of the meeting was the repetition of Mr. Langmuir's warning against the danger of trust companies entering into financial operations, which expose their own capital at least to danger of serious loss. The name "Trust Company" has been given by the Legislatures of the Provinces, and the Dominion Government to companies organized for all kinds of financial operations, and at the same time permitted to receive in trust the estates of deceased persons and of minors. This lack of discrimination may easily lead to serious loss, and it is time that some step was taken to prevent any further increase of such companies.

MIRACULOUS RESULTS IN DUNVEGAN, C.B.

GIN PILLS Brought Relief

"I suffered untold misery even when under treatment from the best doctors for over ten months, and nothing seemed to do me any good or relieve my painful condition. My trouble was Inflammation of Kidneys and Bladder.

I finally determined to go to the Victoria Hospital, Halifax ,for treatment.

Two days, however, before my intending departure, a neighbor called and happening to have a GIN PILL in his pocket, insisted on my taking it. I did so and six hours after taking it, the results and benefits I derived were simply nothing more or less than miraculous. Instead of going to the hospital, I sent for a box of GIN PILLS with the result that I am a cured man. I recommend GIN PILLS to everyone suffering from Kidney Trouble."

ROBIN WAS SANE SAYS THE JURY

Although Five Alienists Had Declared the Man to be Crazy—His Dealings Did Not Show That His Mind Was Affected—Strong Remarks by His Counsel

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Joseph G. Robin, alleged wrecker of banks, must stand trial on eight indictments charging larceny in the first degree. Although five alienists testified that in their opinion he is crazy, a jury before Judge Swann in the Court of General Sessions thought otherwise and returned a verdict of "sane" late this afternoon. William Travers Jerome, unwillingly acting as counsel for Robin, under court appointment, declared that there had been a great miscarriage of justice. Judge Swann on the other hand congratulated the jury for their verdict, contrary to expert opinion.

Robin himself spent more than an hour on the stand to-day and gave a rambling account of his affairs and beliefs, ranging from alleged attempts on his life to a declaration that he bribed A. M. Hutchins, chief examiner of the State Banking Department to pass upon securities covering loans held in 1907 by the Riverside branch of the Northern Bank of New York, one of Robin's Institutions.

As a proof of this statement he exhibited a cheque for $4,000, dated May 1, 1907, 'made poyoble to Mr. Hutchins and endorsed with what purported to be Hutchins' signature.

Mr. Hutchins, when seen this afternoon, first declined to comment on a statement which he atributed to a crazy man, but to-night he issued a written statement giving his side of the case. He said that in 1907 Frederick D. Kilburn, then state superintendent of banks, suggested that he could obtain stock in the Fidelity Development Company, a newly organized real estate concern, of which Mr. Kilburn was president. On this advice he said he raised $3,000 among himself and relatives and purchased 45 shares of the preferred stock.

"After owning this stock for about three months," continues the Hutchins' statement, "I learned for the first time that Joseph G. Robin was dominant in the affairs of the company." With this knowledge, Mr. Hutchins goes on, he decided to sell out and so informed Mr. Kilburn. "Afterwards" says his statement, "Robin came to me and said; 'I learn from Mr Kilburn that you want to sell your Fidelity Development Company stock. Upon my replying in the affirmative he asked me what I would take for it and I told him $4,000. He thereupon called up Babylon, Long Island, on the telephone, and, after talking to some one, said he would take the stock if delivered at the office of the Fidelity Development Co on the following morning. The next morning my son Claude took the certificates to the office of the company and received a cheque for $4,000.

Doctors Allan McLean Hamilton Smith D. Jeliffe, Charles L. Dana, Austin Flint and Pearce Bailey all testified that to their belief Robin was insane. Dr. Bailey admitted on cross-examinaion that the prisoner's memory was reasonably clear and that it is possible to feign insanity, but the other alienists were amphatic in their statements that Robin was unfit to confer with counsel.

In the face of this testimony Mr. Jerome was almost swept off his feet by the verdict. "This thing is a farce," he exclaimed. "I say this man is not in a state of mind to advise his counsel and I decline to enter a plea."

"The verdict vindicates the jury system over the expert," said the court, smilingly. "If this man is not to be tried we may as well turn out every man in the city prisons."

Mr. Jerome continued his protests and remarked that the execution of Guiteau, Garfield's assassin, was "cruel, judicial murder," and that the trial of Czolgosz was a disgrace to the bar of the state.

The Profit and Loss Statement herewith submitted shows the net profits after payment of all expenses of management at the Head Office and its Branches, and after making allowance for every ascertained loss, to be $178,074.01 This amount, together with the balance of $54,770.94 brought forward from last year, enabled us to bring down for distribution the sum of $232,844.95, which your Directors have appropriated as follows:—

Two half-yearly Dividends, No. 57 and No. 58, at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum	$ 80,000.00

The new building in course of construction for the Corporation on the corner of Bay and Melinda Streets is sufficiently advanced to show the exterior design, which has been very favorably commented upon. Your Directors have pleasure in announcing that the Honorable Featherston Osler, K.C., late a Judge of the Court of Appeal for Ontario, was appointed a director and subsequently accepted the Presidency of the Corporation in the place of Dr. John Hoskin, K.C., LL.D., who resigned in the early part of the year.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

AUDITORS' CERTIFICATES.

We, the undersigned, beg to report that we have made a full examination of the books, accounts, and vouchers of The Toronto General Trusts Corporation to the 31st December, 1910, and find same to be correct and properly set forth in the above statements of Profit and Loss, and Assets and Liabilities. We have examined, and find in order, all the mortgages, debentures, bonds, and scrip of the Corporation, as well as those negotiated for the Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario, and Trusts, Estates, and Agencies in the Corporation's hands, and we have checked same with the mortgage and debenture ledgers and registers. The bankers' balances, after deducting outstanding checks, agree with the books of the Corporation.

We have also examined the reports of the auditors of the Winnipeg and Ottawa Branches, and find that they agree with the Head Office books.

R. F. SPENCE, F.C.A., "(Can."
GEO. MACBETH,
Auditors.

Toronto, January, 30th, 1911.

The President, Hon. Featherston Osler, made the following remarks following the report:

During the few months in which I have had the honor of being connected with the Corporation, I have had many opportunities of observing the general character of its business and the system adopted by it in relation to investments and the administration of estates.

To the general body of shareholders I would say that as to the former what at once struck me was the absence of anything that could be described as merely speculative in its nature, the funds entrusted to it under the agency and guarantee side of its transactions being invested, as trustees are required to invest them, upon securities approved by trained and experienced valuators and passed upon by the Board. Properties are examined and inspected from time to time, and re-valued upon any extension of a loan, and the securities accepted are closely scrutinized at short intervals by an Inspection Committee, and every care is thus taken that valuators and others continue to perform their duties.

Of the administration of the estates under the care of the Corporation I cannot speak too highly. This is done by an experienced staff of officers, and results in a promptitude of winding up and economy of administration which contrasts favorably with similar administration by individuals.

I need hardly say that it is in the interest of the shareholders that each of them should be, as he can be, a centre of influence for incerasing the business of this important Corporation.

The Managing Director, Mr. J. W. Langmuir, in presenting the financial statements of the Corporation for the year, said:—

The statements which have just been read to you showing the operations of the Corporation for the past year, and the financial results of such operations, should, I think, be satisfactory, not only to the Shareholders of the Corporation, but also to the several thousand persons who are interested in our work as beneficiaries of estates and trusts under the management of the Corporation. With the exception of 1905, when an Executorship of over five millions fell into the Corporation, the past year brought us the largest aggregate volume of new business since our establishment in 1882. Not only has the annual amount of new business largely increased, but the net profits are, as the result of such increase, in excess of any previous year in the history of the Corporation.

I think I am quite warranted in assuming that the continued success of the Corporation is largely attributable to the public appreciation of the Corporation's determination to eliminate from its transactions all business of a speculative character and confining itself exclusively to the management of estates and trusts, and the investment of funds under the terms of the Trustee Investment Act, unless otherwise provided by Wills or Trust Deeds.

The Assets and Liabilities sheet shows the residuum of assets remaining under the management of the Corporation at the close of 1910, after large distribution to beneficiaries, to be $41,601,297.63, as compared with $37,881,113.53 in 1909; $35,161,646.79 in 1908; $32,909,902.68 in 1907; $31,408,279.39 in 1906, and $29,096,478.11 in 1905, thus showing an increase in assets of over $12,000,000 in six years.

The Profit and Loss Account shows net profits for the year of $178,074.01, which, added to the balance of $54,770.94 brought forward from the preceding year, leaves $232,844.95 at the credit of that account for distribution. Out of this amount your Directors have declared and paid two dividends at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, amounting to $80,000; have carried $100,000 to Reserve Fund, thus increasing that fund to $600,000, and have brought forward to the credit of Profit and Loss Account $52,844.95. It will thus be seen that our paid-up Capital, Reserve Fund, and Undivided Profits as at 31st December, 1910, amounted to $1,652,844.95.

The Profit and Loss exhibit for 1910 is the more satisfactory when I state that we have been obliged to realize from our Capital investments, funds to the extent of $336,637.39 for the purchase of the new site on which our building is being erected, and for payments made to the construction contractors, thereby reducing our earning power, until the building is ready for occupation. We have not, as is frequently done, charged interest against our building account during the process of construction, as such a charge would only add to the cost of the building.

In the matter of the earnings of the Corporation for the year, I am sure, having regard to the fact that we have now in our hands for management assets of over forty million dollars, that it must be conceded by everyone that our profits are exceedingly moderate. This statement should be all the more interesting to our clients, as well as to those having under consideration the employment of the Corporation, when it is remembered that, notwithstanding the expert service and experience required in the administration of estates comprising assets of almost every description, our total management expenses and all charges for rent, advertising, etc., were for the year just closed approximately only 2-5ths of 1 per cent. on the volume of business in hand. I am confident that this rate will be found to compare most favorably with other companies and, indeed, with loan companies, notwithstanding the fact that a trust company business is necessarily much more complex.

Our new investments in mortgages amounted during the year to $3,147,206.85, and in municipal debentures to $335,975.90, these latter securities being purchased for estates where the Corporation is directed under the wills to invest in such securities; the policy of the Corporation being, as far as possible, to place the trust funds under its care in first mortgages on improved real estate as authorized under the terms of the Trustee Investment Act. Reference to our statement of Assets and Liabilities will indicate that out of total investments of over $20,000,000 made by the Corporation for Trust and Guaranteed accounts over $15,000,000—or 75 per cent.—is invested in first mortgages on real estate; and I might add that nearly 20 per cent. of the investments in debentures were made under directions contained in wills or deeds of trust.

I am pleased to state that the supply of applications for loans on mortgages has been well maintained during the year, and that the close of the year finds our available trust funds practically all invested.

Respecting the collection of interest on mortgage investments, you will no doubt be interested in knowing that of the interest which fell due prior to October 1st last over 96 per cent. was paid before the end of the year. With the short crop of the past year, in some sections of the North-West, we cannot, however, expect as prompt payment of interest this year.

Reference is made in the report to our new building now in course of construction on the corner of Bay and Melinda streets. We hope that this building will be ready for occupation not later than the 1st of September next, and I am sure, when completed, it will be not only a credit to this Corporation, but also to the city, and, I trust, will bring a reasonable return on the amount of capital invested therein. We purpose making a very prominent feature of the Safe Deposit Department, which is being constructed and equipped up to the very highest standard that obtains in the largest cities in the United States. The entire basement, seventy-four by ninety-one feet, will be utilized in this branch of work, including the storage of all kinds of valuables. In the large cities of the United States efforts are being made, with considerable success, by companies operating safe deposit vaults, to rent to every family, even to those of moderate means, a compartment for the safe keeping of securities, life insurance policies, deeds, etc., and there is no reason—provided excellent accommodation is furnished in the way of waiting and writing rooms, apartments for examination of papers, and for the holding of meetings of committees, companies, or beneficiaries of estates, who have securities under their care—why this class of business should not very largely increase in the City of Toronto.

The Board of Directors have had under consideration for some time the opening of a Branch of the Corporation in Vancouver, B. C., and authrity has been received, subject to proper arrangements being concluded, to proceed with the establishment of a Branch to be located in that city. The Corporation has also opened up during the year an office at Saskatoon and agencies have been established throughout the Province of Alberta, such office and agencies being under the supervision and direction of the Advisory Board of the Winnipeg Branch.

The shareholders will be pleased to learn that it has been decided by the Board of Directors to pay quarterly dividends instead of half-yearly. The stock of the Corporation is held by about four hundred shareholders, the very large majority of whom reside within the Province of Ontario.

The shareholders of the Corporation and its many clients were doubtless glad to learn that the Board had secured the services, as Presideent of the Corporation, of the Honorable Featherston Osler, K.C., who retired from the Bench in the early part of the year. Mr. Osler brings to the performance of his duties not only the highest legal qualifications, but a large and varied experience extending over thirty years on the Bench. In the selection of Mr. Osler as successor to such eminent lawyers as the Honorable Edward Blake and Dr. John Hoskin, the Board has practically concluded that it is in the best interests of a Corporation having charge of a large volume of estates and trusts in respect of which legal points are constantly presenting themselves for settlement, to have as its President one who has been a prominent member of the legal profession.

I would feel that I had neglected my duty to the shareholders and the general public if I did not again refer to the apparent want of discrimination that exists, both by the Parliament at Ottawa and the Legislature of Ontario, in granting charters to organizations designated "trust" companies, empowering them to speculate in the purchase and sales of real estate, underwrite industrial bond issues, act as holding companies and other work of a more or less uncertain character, and, at the same time, authorizing them to become executors, trustees, administrators, and to deal generally with the estates of deceased persons. I am convinced that the time will come when the Governments issuing such charters will have cause to regret the lack of discrimination between companies of this kind to which I have just referred applying for charters and companies strictly confining themselves to the management of estates and agency work.

It cannot be logically argued that because in Canada, so far, there has been no apparent loss occasioned through speculations on the part of Corporate Trustees, this country will in the future be exempt from such losses, for American Trust Companies in the United States have lost enormous sums by speculation. In this connection I would also include as trust funds not only the estates of deceased persons and minors, but also what is recognized as guaranteed funds which, in so far as this Corporation is concerned, are invested in mortgages and other securities that come within the terms of the Trustee Investment Act. With funds that are received under the guarantee principle by trust companies and are invested in this way, while the net earnings may not be so large, yet, on the other hand, the trust company's liability under its guarantee is reduced to a minimum. I take even stronger ground, and say that trust companies having care of trust funds should not even hazard their capital and reserve funds in speculation, but that the investment even of these funds should be made within the terms of the Trustee Investment Act, so as to leave their capital intact as a guarantee for the proper administration of the trust funds that have been committed to their care, and which may remain in the hands of a company for future generations.

I am well aware that more money has been and is being made by trust companies engaging from time to time in transactions that may be termed more or less hazardous than by being strictly confined to the performance of the duties of an executor and trustee. That kind of an argument should, however, have no weight with a trust company having trust funds under its control. One must look to the future, and, as far as is humanly possible, provide against a series of years when, because of crop failures or general trade depression, values of real estate, and particularly of industrial stocks and bonds, may be very seriously depreciated.

In a recent number of the "Trust Companies" Magazine published in New York, I find an article by Oliver C. Fuller, President of the Wisconsin Trust Company, Milwaukee, and President of the Trust Company Section of the American Bankers' Association, treating on this very subject to which I have referred, and in speaking of the services rendered by the Committee of the Trust Company Section of the American Bankers' Association he says in part: "The Protective Committee of the Trust Company Section is accomplishing very valuable results in securing laws safe-guarding the title of 'trust company' and discouraging the indiscriminate organizing of so-called 'trust companies' for speculative purposes, a condition which has prevailed in a degree in some States where the banking and incorporation laws are lax."

In this connection, in order that I may not be misunderstood, I wish to say that I am only pleading that a distinction should be made between companies organized for the administration of estates and trusts and the investment of funds under the Trustee Investment Act, and companies whose charter provides that while they may engage in this class of work, gives them also the additional privilege of entering into many other fields more or less hazardous or uncertain. I do not wish it understood that I am opposed to the existence of companies that act in capacities such as I have outlined, I only ask that they be confined in their operations to the investment of funds subscribed by shareholders or investors for these particular purposes, and that they be prohibited from handling the funds of deceased persons and minors.

So far as this Corporation is concerned we have for twenty-nine years strictly confined ourselves to estate and trust work, and now that we have over forty millions of estates, trust and agency assets in our hands, we certainly will not deviate from the rule adopted at our initiation, and this Corporation will confine itself, no matter how moderate the profits may be, to a legitimate trust and agency business.

In closing I have pleasure in expressing my appreciation of the very faithful and efficient services rendered by the staff of the Corporation during the year both at the Head Office and its Branches.

The report of the Inspection Committee was adopted as signed by the Hon. J. J. Foy, Sir Aemilius Irving, and Mr. Frederick Wyld.

The following shareholders were elected Directors for the ensuing year: W. H. Beatty, John L. Blaikie, W. R. Brock, Hamilton Cassels, K.C., Sir Wm. Mortimer Clark, K.C., LL.D., Hon. W. C. Edwards, Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., M.P.P.; Hon. J. M. Gibson, K.C., Arthur C. Hardy, John Hoskin, K.C., LL.D., Sir Aemilius Irving, K.C., Hon. Robert Jaffray, J. W. Langmuir, Thomas Long, J. Moved by John A Holgate, seconded by G. M. Campbell and I. G. WATCH MADE OF FLOWERS

The French President is to pay an official visit to Berne, the capital of the Swiss Confederation, and among the presents he will receive is a Swiss chronometer, which is said to be the most wonderful watch in the world. The dial is six feet in diameter. The face is a circular flower bed, in which nothing can be seen but anemones, pansies, violets and asters. The Roman figures on the dial are marked in flowers, and the hands are narrow beds of flowers. They duly revolve and point the hours. All the flowers in the wonderful clock are growing in mould in boxes of the required shape. Those containing blossoms forming the hands naturally revolve on pivots. The flower chronometer will be placed in the garden of the Palace of the Elysee.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

SURPLUS IS HANDSOME

Col. Matheson Shows $3,404.59 in the Treasury.

It Could Have Been Made to Appear Much Larger By a Little Skilful Juggling of the Books, Says Treasurer—T. & N. O. and Hydro Electric the Big Items—Assets Are Two and a Half Millions to the Good.

Toronto, Feb. 3.—Clear in statement and serious in tone, was the budget speech, delivered by Hon. Col. Matheson, Provincial Treasurer, before the Ontario Legislature yesterday afternoon. The serious tone was owing entirely to the crisis in regard to the trade of Ontario and the Dominion caused by the projected reciprocity agreement with the United States.

Hon. Col. Matheson congratulated the Legislature and province upon another very successful year. The current account showed receipts of $8,891,004.67; expenditures, $8,887,520.09, leaving a balance of $3,404.59. This balance might have been made considerably larger by a little bookkeeping.

The receipts had exceeded the estimates, except subsidies which are fixed and the T. & N. O. Railway. Others were much in excess of the estimates. The increases aggregated $690,000, while the decrease in the T. & N. O. of $205,000, left the increases an aggregate of $485,000 over the estimate.

It was very satisfactory to note the promptness with which executors had paid the succession duties.

In spite of the spread of local option the brewers licenses fees amounted to $5,800.

The decrease in the net earnings of the T. & N. O. Railway were accounted for by the large additional amount expended in connection with maintenance of railway. This outlay of $164,000, the wage schedule was also increased to correspond with that of the Grand Trunk and the C.P.R.

The charge against the T. & N. O. for the current year was for the Porcupine extension. It would be from 30 to 40 miles in length, and would cost $15,000 a mile. There was already a very large traffic going out from Kelso.

Negotiation were in progress with the Grand Trunk Railway, by which, when the extension north was completed the T. & N. O. would share in the G. T. R.'s northwest traffic. If these expectations were not disappointed by the reciprocity agreement the T. & N. O. would pay its way in two or three years.

According to such leading C.P.R. officials as Mr. Whyte of Winnipeg, under the proposed agreement the tendency of the northwest traffic would be southward. That would divert the northwest traffic from Ontario and would result in great loss to Ontario and Quebec by trade going by Minneapolis and Chicago.

In re-building the west wing of the Parliament Buildings the Government had provided an additional 52 rooms. The 18,000 square feet of extra floor space, figured at $1.50 a foot rental as is charged for good office buildings, providing light and heat, should be considered a good investment.

The new north wing and library cost $500,000 and provided 41,000 square feet of floor space.

"Two million one hundred thousand dollars had been spent on the Hydro-Electric system. In some respects it has cost more than was estimated on the original plan, but I am told that the whole original scheme will be built within the estimates given to the municipalities and the municipalities will get the benefit of the rates promised. From all over the province come requests for the extension of the service, and down in the eastern part of the province and in Port Arthur district extensions will be made.

"The whole system, without striving to drive out the other power companies, has compelled them to reduce their prices to a more reasonable figure."

Col. Matheson declared it was odd that the Dominion Government had not given the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners power to regulate the prices which power companies should charge.

"The only real and supreme test as to whether we have done well or not is to be noted in the development of the province. The Government has opened the north country, completed the T. & N. O. Railway, and have practically completed the Hydro-Electric system.

"We show $24,500,000 assets against $22,000,000 of liabilities. Of those assets, more than $23,000,000 is interest-bearing."

The Provincial Treasurer again referred to the danger to Ontario of the reciprocity pact. He urged the members of the House as patriotic Canadians to make their voices felt against the ratification of the agreement, to stand true to Canada not to give the trade of the Dominion to a foreign country.

The main and supplementary estimates for the fiscal year ending Oct. 31, 1911, aggregate $10,222,785. These expenditures are $578,005 less than the estimated revenue.

A prolonged and tumultuous applause followed the conclusion of the budget speech, and it was several minutes before D. J. McDougall, Ottawa East, lieutenant of Hon. A. G. MacKay, Opposition leader, could make his voice heard. After a few words of congratulation upon Col. Matheson's recovery from his injury, Mr. McDougall lavished his criticism. Mr. Matheson, he said, had different methods of calculating the finances at the present time than he had in his first term. Then he was very emphatic that the receipts from crown lands should be charged up to the capital account and not put into the current account. There was a very different treatment of these accounts now, when the honorable gentleman proposed that all revenue from crown lands be placed to the current account. Also, the Provincial Treasurer had then criticized an annual expenditure of $5,000,000 in ten years of Liberal rule. Now, after five years in power, the present administration was expending $10,000,000. "His prunning down has resulted in doubling in five years what we spent after ten years," said Mr. McDougall.

The speaker made a plea for conservatism. "What benefit are we to derive by selling our timber if we are to lose our forests? There should be a policy of reforestry, as in Germany. The problem is so important that a commission should be appointed to investigate the whole great subject."

T. W. McGarry, South Renfrew, replying to the previous speaker, drew attention to the fact that $1,035,000 in royalties had been received from mines, which would never have been if the Opposition had had the reins of Government. He believed that the position taken by Col. Matheson on reciprocity was the right one. He did not think that the treaty of reciprocity would ever become law.

Snow Delays Trains.

Toronto, Feb. 3.—Fierce storms have been raging in western Canada for the past forty-eight hours, and this has had the usual effect upon the railway traffic. C.P.R. train No. 94 from Winnipeg, due here at 3.30 yesterday afternoon, arrived at 5.30 this morning. No. 86 from Sudbury, due here at 8.20 yesterday morning, steamed into Toronto at 11.15 last evening, covered with snow.

A man named James Ferguson, who was stalled for four hours on his way down from North Bay, claims that the delay means a loss of $50,000 to him through his not reaching Boston in time.

The snow in the northern part of the province is ten feet deep in some places, according to Chairman Englehart of the T. & N. O. Commission. For the first time this winter snowplows have been at work on that line and the large quantity of freight moving into the northland has been held up on account of the snow.

The Triple Alliance Alive.

Paris, Feb. 3.—Several of the French newspapers have been insisting almost daily that the triple alliance between France, Russia and Great Britain is almost a dead letter.

M. Pichon, Minister of Foreign Affairs, in the Senate yesterday said that the entente was never so complete or productive of results as it is to-day. It was charged, he said, that Russia had left her ally in the dark with regard to the historic interview between Emperor Nicholas and Emperor William at Potsdam last November. This, he said, was untrue. Russia not only informed France before hand of the subjects which were to be discussed, namely, Persia and the Turko-Persian railroad, but kept France posted daily on all that transpired at the meetings.

M. Pichon, in conclusion, said he could affirm from the point of view of the interests of France and international peace that France had nothing to regret in the matter of this interview.

A Formidable Indictment.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 3.—The Douma committee on national defence has drawn up a formidable indictment, charging the Ministry of Marine with diverting the credits voted in 1908-09 for torpedo boats and submarines for the Black Sea, and with disregarding the naval program approved by the Emperor, and neglect of Russia defensive needs.

The report dwelt on Turkey's naval developments in the Black Sea, and raises a warning of possible disaster, the consequences of which cannot be foreseen.

Ordered to Remove the Poles.

Montreal, Feb. 3.—Judge Charbonneau yesterday refused to allow the Dominion Light & Power Co to erect poles in the city alongside of the poles already there. He then ordered all the poles erected by the company in the city to be removed within fifteen days. This judgment forms a precedent.

HAD LOTS OF WARNING

Government Well Advised of Farmers' Bank Affairs.

Numerous Letters and Telegrams Were Sent by Prominent Officials of the Bankers' Association Telling the Department of Finance of Shakiness of the Bank, But the Authorities Did Nothing to Stop It.

Ottawa, Feb. 3.—A voluminous return was presented to Parliament yesterday by Mr. Fielding at the request of Mr. Foster, composed of correspondence which reached the Finance Department relating to the transactions of the Farmers' Bank. The return refers to the warnings given as to the methods adopted in organizing the institution. The later letters deal with various transactions of the bank.

On Oct. 8, 1906, Leighton McCarthy wrote to Mr. Fielding that a number of subscribers to the shares of the Farmers' Bank would dispute the bona fide character of the subscriptions. "Grave conditions have arisen," he said, "which require careful consideration before the Treasury Board grants any certificate for the organization of this bank." In a subsequent letter dated Oct. 19, Mr. McCarthy again wrote the Minister of Finance, formally asking that the Treasury Board stay any action on the application of the Farmers' Bank for a certificate.

To this Mr. T. C. Boville, Deputy Minister of Finance, replied that when the application was made by the Farmers' Bank for a certificate, the representations made in Mr. McCarthy's letter would be laid before the Treasury Board. On Oct. 31, however, Mr. Boville again wrote to Mr. McCarthy, asking whether the latter still wished the protest contained in his letters brought before the Treasury Board. Mr. McCarthy replied that his client's claim had been settled by the transfer of their stock to parties interested in the bank, the return of their money and of the notes which they had signed. "The objections which I made on their behalf to the issue of the certificates are therefore withdrawn," he concluded. On Nov. 27, 1906, W. R. Travers applied for a certificate for the bank, enclosing the required declaration and a list showing that $579,200 of subscribed stock and $291,310 as the amount paid up.

Mr. Boville thereupon referred the application to E. L. Newcombe, Deputy Minister of Justice, and the latter replied that the statements in the statutory declaration of Mr. Travers were sufficient—if they were accepted—to show compliance with the statute, and that the evidence thus offered was such as the Treasury Board might lawfully accept and thereupon issue to the bank a certificate. However, Mr. Fielding wrote on Nov. 30 to Mr. Travers, stating that in a previous case there had been an evasion of the intention of the Bank Act, and that subscribers for stock had given their notes instead of paying in cash. He asked for an assurance that nothing of this kind had taken place in connection with subscriptions for stock of the Farmers' Bank. Mr. Travers replied: "I have to say in that in the case of the Farmers' Bank of Canada the provisional directors did not raise money in the way mentioned by you."

This statement was apparently accepted as true, for a certificate was issued to the bank on Nov. 30, $245,000 was returned to the bank, and the remaining $5,000 of the deposit was placed to the credit of the bank in the circulation redemption fund.

On the very day that the certificate was issued, Sir Edward S. Clouston, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, wrote to Mr. Boville stating he had reason to believe that the money lodged at Ottawa as stock subscriptions could not be regarded as paid up capital.

"Permit me to request," said Sir Edward, "that if only for the protection of the public the Treasury Board will exercise its right to refuse to issue the certificate until a thorough investigation has been made."

Mr. Boville replied that the certificate had been issued, and enclosed a copy of Mr. Travers' letter to Mr. Fielding.

Further information reached Mr. Boville on April 17, 1907, in a letter from G. Van Koughnet, manager of the Milton branch of the Farmers' Bank. Mr. Van Koughnet asked an opinion respecting some of the transactions.

Mr. Boville thought this matter of sufficient importance to warrant further enquiry, and asked for copies of any of the notes. On May 2 he wrote to Travers, under the direction of the Minister, asking for a special return showing what part of the $375,473 paid up capital, as shown in the monthly returns to the Finance Department, was represented by promissory notes or other obligations of shareholders, for which the bank was really liable. Mr. Travers made a return showing that $50,110 of the paid up capital was represented by promissory notes of the shareholders held by the bank. On Dec. 3, 1908, Mr. Boville again asked for a special return giving details as to the subscribers and the amounts paid in cash by each in connection with the increase in capital stock of the bank to $1,000,000.

Mr. Travers informed the Deputy Minister of Finance that the subscriber capital of one million dollars was paid up to the extent of $541,881. He also commented upon Mr. Boville's "rather strange request."

Secretary John Knight of the Bankers' Association, wrote to Mr. Fielding on Dec. 7, drawing attention to the fact that a deposit receipt, issued by the Farmers Bank in its own favor, for from $100,000 to $150,000, was being offered for sale in New York.

Apparently no reply was made to this, but on Dec. 21 Mr. Boville, in response to a telegram from Mr. Knight, said that he had several conversations with Mr. Burns, vice-president of the Bankers' Association.

On Dec. 23, Mr. Boville drew attention to the fact that the monthly bank statement for November showed that in the case of the Farmers' Bank the proportion of cash reserved to immediate liabilities to the public, and also the total liabilities was something over two per cent., while the average for all the banks was something over ten per cent. Mr. Boville said: "It seems to the Department that a cash reserve of between two and three per cent. of immediate liabilities is very small compared with what is usually held."

Mr. Travers replied that there were two special items in return of assets totalling over $200,000, which could be immediately converted into cash, thus making the reserve over 15 per cent. of the total liabilities.

WHOLESALE MURDERER.

St. Petersburg Doctor Confesses to Forty Crimes.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 3.—There was an unusual occurrence at yesterday's session of the trial for murder of Count O'Brien de Lassy and the notorious poisoner, Dr. Pantchenko, the latter being called upon to plead a second time. He pleaded guilty as before.

The police say the doctor has killed at least forty people for various sums paid him to commit murder.

The count is accused of having employed the doctor to murder his brother-in-law, Count Vassilli Bouturlin, the heir to estates of an estimated value of $3,000,000, in order that the property might be inherited by Countess de Lassy.

Pantchenko confessed his guilt but set up the defence that he committed the crime while under the hypnotic influence of the count. As the trial progressed he wavered in matters of detail and his lawyers were quick to strengthen his original defence by declaring to the court that their client was still under the influence of the count to such an extent that he was little by little retracting the vital points of his confession.

Yesterday the public prosecutor took cognizance of the situation and after referring to the proximity of the prisoners in the dock made a motion that the cardinal question of his guilt or innocence be proposed again to Pantchenko. He said that the replies of the poisoner had been unsatisfactory throughout his examination. The court granted the motion and the formal question of the indictment was again read.

Once more the aged physician replied that he was guilty of Bouturlin's death.

His examination was then continued. Asked whether he had administered poison to his victim, Pantchenko demurred, saying that he would answer that question after the data of the medical experts who had made the post mortem had been presented in court. He explained that he did not sterilize his hypodermic syringe after he had sent some one on the way to the grave, because the spermo preparation diminished in effectiveness when the syringe was sterilized.

The whole empire is interested in the case because of the wholesale confession made by Pantchenko. Every mysterious death of recent years is recalled and there are rumors that the prisoner may have been engaged to cause the death of members of the royal family. He has admitted that he made a business of killing for hire, heirs, rivals in love, insistent creditors, and in fact, any undesirable person whose enemy was prepared to pay liberally for their sudden taking off.

The poison doctor, according to the police, has admitted some forty deaths, his fees running as high as $250,000 for single assassination. His method was to innoculate the patient with cholera bacilli, after he had been called to the bedside in his professional capacity. Ordinarily it was necessary that the proposed victim should be caught while indisposed, and some ruse adopted to bring about Pantchenko's attendance. He is now credited by some with having originated the cholera epidemic of a few years ago.

Calls Trial Illegal.

Paris, Feb. 3.—Edward H. James, the editor of The Liberator, whose article was the basis of the suit against Edward Mylius, convicted in London on Wednesday of libelling King George, yesterday issued a statement declaring that the trial of his British agent was illegal and the proceedings "whitewashing."

The statement proceeds: "The trial was illegal because Mylius was not indicted, but was tried under an 'information ex-officio,' which is used only in charges of sedition. It was a whitewashing because the crown had no right to call witnesses to disprove charges, when the defendant had refused to offer evidence proving the charges. Mylius having refused to substantiate that bigamy was practiced, the case ended immediately."

Manitoba Boundaries.

Ottawa, Feb. 3.—Premier Roblin and Hon. Robert Rogers of Manitoba had a conference last evening with Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. W. S. Fielding on the question of the extension of boundaries of Manitoba. The conference lasted for two hours and was adjourned until this afternoon. After the conference, Mr. Roblin stated that they had discussed the old proposed delimitation of the boundaries and the financial consideration, but had not reached an agreement.

Nominations In West Middlesex.

Mount Brydges, Ont., Feb. 3.—The Conservatives of West Middlesex yesterday afternoon nominated James Coffan of Middlemiss as their candidate for the Federal House, and Dr. H. A. Wilson of Wardsville for the Provincial House. Mr. Coffan is a prominent stock dealer, and Dr. Wilson is a dentist. Dr. Wilson is a graduate of Toronto University and an active temperance worker.

A Notable Achievement.

Pau, France, Feb. 3.—Eight passengers, with a combined weight of 1,116 pounds, flew yesterday in a four-seated Bleriot monoplane over the Pau aerodrome. This establishes a new record for the number of passengers carried.

RIVER MUST BE CLEAR

Long Sault Dam Proposals Are Warmly Discussed.

Judge Doherty Brings Forward the Ashburton Treaty, Which Says That Navigation on the St. Lawrence Must Not Be Interfered With—Mr. Pugsley Tries to Evade the Issue—Says No Damming of River Asked.

Ottawa, Feb. 3.—There was a revival in the House of Commons yesterday of the discussion on the proposal to dam the Long Sault rapids on the St. Lawrence. On the motion to go into supply, R. L. Borden arose to draw the attention of the Government to the present situation of the matter. A bill, he said, was before Congress in which a company sought power to build a dam at this point. He pointed out that under the Ashburton treaty the channels of the river from shore to shore were to remain open for navigation for ever to the vessels of both countries. The country was startled last year by an application to dam the Canadian side of the river.

The bill proposed to dam the channel and build a lock on the American side, and complete the dam across both channels to the Canadian side.

Mr. Borden declared that the navigation of the St. Lawrence was of such a supreme importance that the control of it should not be allowed to go into the hands of a private company, and an alien corporation at that.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier differed from Mr. Borden's view regarding the purpose of the Canadian bill last year. He assured him, however, that before the Government would agree to the damming of the St. Lawrence from shore to shore there would be a full discussion of the project. His understanding was that by international law a country had the right to put on its shores of the stream all works which would not affect navigation, and which was deemed for its own advantage or for the advantage of its citizens.

Mr. Pugsley took the first opportunity to deny a statement that the bill of last session was to permit the power company to dam the St. Lawrence. The application was simply for a power transmission equipment.

Mr. Graham declared, amid cheers, that the interests of navigation were paramount along the St. Lawrence and nothing could or would interfere with this. If power from the south Sault could there be produced without harm to navigation, and without damage to the Canadian side of the river, he favored permission being given.

Judge Doherty (St. Annes) taking up the Ashburton treaty, showed a specific clause which referred to the channels at this particular spot, which declared that the river would be free and open to navigation by vessels of both countries forever. Those who framed the treaty foresaw just such a contingency as has arisen. Canada had a strong case to present at Washington.

At the evening session, F. D. Monk (Jacques Cartier) moved an amendment to the motion to go into supply, calling upon the Government to take steps to enquire into the cause of the mergers which have become so prominent in the commercial life of the country.

He said that in the course of the last two decades at least 20 of these mergers had been formed, having an authorized capital stock issue of $214,750,000, of which $168,075,000 had been issued.

Hon. Mackenzie King said he would like to know just what sort of investigation Mr. Monk had in mind in reference to his motion.

Mr. Monk: A royal commission composed of competent men would, I believe, be the proper way.

Mr. King said there was no need for a commission to get the facts concerning mergers in Canada, for Mr. Monk himself had given an admirable exposition of the subject. He did not think the commission idea of investigation of last session, the Combines Investigation Act, was the ideal method of investigation for matters of this sort.

Found Dead In Bed.

Colborne, Feb. 3.—At two o'clock yesterday afternoon Mrs. George M. Teasdale, wife of the proprietor of the Bristol Hotel, Colborne, was found dead in her bed by her son.

This is the hotel in which Josephine Brimacomb was recently strangled to death. The proprietor is now in jail for selling liquor illegally. It is a strange coincidence that Mrs. Brimacomb, a sister-in-law of the murdered girl, slept Wednesday night with Mrs. Teasdale, but she is not under suspicion.

Wednesday, Mrs. Teasdale visited her husband in Cobourg. She was apparently in good health when she returned. Yesterday morning her son looked into the room and his mother was apparently sleeping. At two o'clock yesterday afternoon he found her dead.

The coroner is now at the hotel, and an inquest will be held.

ENERGY—THE HUMAN POWER-HOUSE.

5. The distance between the eyes and their dynamos is short, thus offering little resistance to the transit of energy.

These are our reasons for claiming that perfect vision may exist under excessive anatomical defects. A patient says, "Oh, there is nothing the matter with my eyes. I can see perfectly." He really means there is nothing wrong with his vision. A cashier robs a bank and becomes rich; he lives in princely fashion, but the depositors and stockholders suffer the loss of their funds. In some cases it is under the most perfect vision that the most destructive brain-strain exists, compared with which manifest visual defects and their consequences are trival.

The same identical foot-pounds of energy may be used in anger or utilized in a laugh, may be exhausted in hate or expended in love, according to the dictates of the mind.

HOLSTEIN BREEDERS DINED TOGETHER

The Banquet Was a Pleasing Affair—A Long Toast List and Many Speakers—Governments Censured for Not Doing More for the Farmers—Technical Education Wanted—Mr. John Elliot Gave Good Counsel

All the fine qualities possessed by the celebrated Holstein cow were extolled last evening when the first annual banquet of the Belleville District Holstein Breeders Club was held. It proved to be a most pleasant and profitable affair. It was held at the Anglo-American Hotel, and mine host, J. Hart, provided a most tempting and sumptuous repast, which was liberally partaken of by the large number present.

Mr. A. D. Foster, of Bloomfield, President of the club, occupied the chair.

Mr. F. R. Mallory, Hon. President of the Association, was the toast master of the evening and in a fitting manner proposed the following toast list:

OUR COUNTRY.

"Our Country,"—Mr. Jas. R. Anderson, of Ameliasburg, was the first speaker to this toast. The Holstein breeders, he said, had every reason to be proud of the club. In speaking of the Holstein cattle Mr. Anderson said that that breed of cattle was increasng in price, giving examples where large prices were being paid for this class of cattle. The question of producing more milk and cream and finding a market in the U. S was referred to. The speaker found fault with the Provincial Government owing to the opinions of some of the Cabinet Ministers, who had made statements in regard to the recent reciprocity arrangements which he (the speaker) contended was against the best interests of the farmers of this country. He was in favor of the farmers being put on an even footing with the other classes of citizens, which they were not.

Mr. J. L. Smith, of Toronto, said that our country is the finest country under the sun. At the present time there seemed to be a peril coming to this country. We had millions of acres of land untilled, and there was reason to believe that there would be a great influx to this country and many will be aliens of this country. This great mass of aliens may in the interests of great corporations assist materially in forming and making the Government of this country. The farmers should have the control of the country and not the masses. In order to do this the farmers must organize He referred to the great army of farmers who recently waited on the Government, and good, he claimed had been accomplished. These clubs and farmers' institutes were good, but other organizations were necessary. The farmers had not got from the Ottawa Government what was their just dues. If the recent reciprocal arrangements were carried out by both countries it would, he claimed, be at least 25 per cent. better for the farmers of this country. We had a great heritage in this country, which should be preserved for future generations.

Mr. G. A. Kingston, of Campbellford, spoke to the toast in an appropriate manner. In speaking of the recent reciprocal agreement between Canada and the United States, the speaker repudiated the statement which had appeared in some newspapers that it would tend to wean Canada away from the mother land The speaker spoke at some length on educational matters generally in this country, contending that technical education would prove beneficial even to the farmers. He was convinced that in future the children in the rural parts of the country would be taught in the public schools something about farming.

OUR OPPORTUNITIES.

"Our Opportunities in the Dairy Industry,"—Mr. J. Elliott, Manager of the Standard Bank in this city was the first speaker to the above toast. It was a pleasure to him to be associated with the farmers. The speaker spoke of the good the Ontario Government was doing at its London, Eng., office in promoting emigration to this country and especially to the Province of Ontario. In endeavoring to get a market in the United States Mr. Elliott said it should not be secured at a disadvantage to the mother country. If this is done Canada will lose that market and that will mean much and possibly cannot be regained Other countries are getting into the market of the mother country. Canada has lost its butter trade, being supplanted by Germany. New Zealand has the sheep trade and he advised that Canada should not lose the cheese trade. Canadian cheese has a high reputation in the mother land, and by all means keep that reputation. It might be that if we had reciprocal relations with the United States there might be a time in the near future that the United States would close their doors. Where would Canada be then. By all means keep the old country market. In conclusion Mr. Elliott dwelt upon the fact of retaining the market of the mother land.

Mr. H. B. Cowan, of Peterboro, said with the increase of farming produce more than a local market was needed and hence markets were sought abroad. What the farmers need in this country to-day is co-operation for the betterment of their condition. The farmers are to-day increasing the milk supply in consequence of the demand for the same. He congratulated the farmers upon the success which had attended the great farmers' gathering at Ottawa The speaker spoke at some length on the subject and the benefit he claimed the farmers would derive by having the U. S. market.

Mr. Geo. Anderson advocated the taking down of every stone in the tariff wall between Canada and the United States. He was in favor of the tariff changes as proposed by the two countries if we cannot get more.

Mr. John Joyce, of Napanee, spoke briefly, but appropriately to the toast

OUR ASSOCIATION.

"Our Association and Organization,"—Mr. B. Mallory, of this city ex-President of the Holstein Friesian Association, of Canada, spoke to the toast and in his opening remarks referred to the work of the Association which was organized some years ago and had increased to such an extent that the membership is about 1,000. That there was value in organization he had no doubt. The idea of the local Holstein club was that those who are desirous of purchasing Holstein cattle may be assisted in procuring such cattle. He wished the local club every success.

Mr. A. D. Foster, of Bloomfield President of the club, spoke to the toast. In the eye of the public today, the speaker said, the Holstein cow was at the top as official tests had placed her there. We as an Association had reason to be proud of the success of the club. He was proud of the Holstein cow, and one thing she wanted was proper food and sufficient of it, and also good care. If this is done she will prove to be a profitable animal.

Mr. A. D. Foster, Reeve of Elzevir Township, spoke to the toast, referring to the fact that he was a breeder of Holstein cattle and he was not sorry that he had such cattle, as they had proved to him to be a profitable investment.

Mr. A. D. McIntosh, who is conducting the agricultural class at the Stirling High School gave a brief but practical address, promising to do all he could to help the dairymen of the county of Hastings.

Mr. A. P. McVannell, of Picton, who is the Government instructor for the County of Prince Edward was called upon and spoke generally on Associations such as the Holstein club and the good they were accomplishing. The agricultural classes which had been recently established should be largely attended, and he had no doubt but that would result.

Mr. Duncan, of Port Hope, District Government Representative, spoke strongly in favor of farmers co-operating in order to promote their interests in every department of farm life.

THE HOLSTEIN COW.

"The Holstein-Friesian Cow,"—This toast was spoken to by several present, all of whom spoke in a eulogistic manner of the Holstein Cow. The speakers were Messrs. C. A Brethour of Norwood, Richard Haney S. J. Foster, of Bloomfield, E. Terrill of Northumberland county, L. F. Bogart, of Adolphustown, Geo. Sharpe of Stirling, B. L. Leavitt, of Bloomfield, J. Hambly, of Napanee, G. Mallory, M. Maybee, of Northumberland, W. Dawson, M. Tait, of Lakefield, and F. A. Comberford, of Hastings county.

"The Press,"—Responded to by J. O. Herity and P. Harrison.

OUR VISITORS.

"Our Visitors,"—Messrs. J. Wallbridge, N. Montgomery, and D. J. Fairfield did credit to this toast.

"Our Host,"—This was appropriately acknowledged by Mr. Hart.

TRADE RELATIONS.

Mr. G. W. Anderson moved, seconded by Mr. E. Terrill, the following resolution:

That this meeting of the Belleville District Holstein Breeders Club desire to place themselves on record as cordially approving of the tariff agreement recently made between Canada and the United States, an agreement which we believe will tend to the more natural advantage of this country.

The resolution was adopted, but by no means by a unanimous vote.

Mr. Elliott moved and Mr. J. E. Anderson seconded a vote of thanks to the toastmaster which was responded to by Mr. F. R. Mallory.

S. S. CLASS HAD PLEASANT EVENING

Last evening, Feb. 2nd, a very pleasant function took place at the home of Mr. F. S. Deacon, Queen St. when his Sunday School class of young men assembled for the evening.

Games of all descriptions were thoroughly enjoyed, and about 10.30 the odor of coffee told the boys that refreshments were on the way, but such refreshments are seldom seen—as one could easily tell by the illumination of the faces present.

After the refreshments had disappeared more games were indulged in.

At a late hour, before breaking up, the boys heartily responded to a vote of thanks, given by one of their number, to the host and hostess for their kindness and hospitality. Before leaving "For he's a jolly good fellow" was sung, perhaps weakly, but it was due to being too full for utterance.

WAS CAPTURED BY ESKIMOS

Far Northern Savages Have The Missing Explorer Caldwell

OTTAWA, Feb. 1.— That C. F. Caldwell, the missing Ottawa explorer, who has not been heard of since 1907, is a captive in the hands of wild people in the unexplored far north, is the belief of many of the Eskimos in the Hudson Bay region This statement was made by Mr Harry Ford, interpreter among the Eskimos, who arrived in Ottawa after a 800-mile tramp from the northern wilds. Mr. Ford, by the way, is the greatest living authority among white men on the Eskimo people.

In view of the fact that the disappearance of Mr. Caldwell was most mysterious, the theory that the Eskimos have about him will be a cause of interest to his friends in Ottawa.

The belief, too, of the Eskimos, that wild, savage people of their own kind exist in the far north is strikingly novel. They say that the wild folks saw Mr. Caldwell, a white man for the first time, and, believing that he would be inimical, decided to deprive him of his freedom. They think that the two Eskimos who went as attendants to Mr. Caldwell on his exploration trip are also held captive.

Personally, Mr. Ford does not consider the theory of the Eskimos to be the correct one. He thinks that Mr. Caldwell and his two Eskimo attendants were upset in a canoe while going over a rapids and so were drowned or else perished in a snow storm. Mr. Ford was one of the white men who last saw Mr Caldwell just before the latter started off into the wilds.

Mr. Caldwell left Ottawa in the summer of 1906 in the employ of the Government to exploit the resources of the far north. He had previously had much experience in the north country, having been with Commander Low on the Neptune in 1903-1904 and having gone there again in 1905. He was wrecked while in the north in 1905 and had to walk 800 miles from Fullerton on snow shoes to get back to civilization. Two months after his arrival here from that trip he started off on the journey in which he mysteriously disappeared.

Arriving at Fullerton he engaged two natives to accompany him, in the persons of Ahtungahla and Billy The party was well equipped when they started off farther north to get to the Mackenzie River. They reached Schultz Lake, at the head of the Baker Lakes, early in 1907, and from that time Caldwell sent a letter to his friends in the east. The letter reached them about September 1907. From that time to the present there have been no tidings of the party

The wives of the two Eskimos have waited in vain ever since for the reappearance of their husbands. The women are destitute and depend largely on the bounty of the Mounted Police and the whalers to help them out, and think the Government will take up their case. They would be satisfied to some extent if they only knew in what manner their husband had come to the death.

Mr. Ford states that many of the Eskimos say that there is absolutely no hope of ever hearing of Caldwell or his two Eskimos again.

Another statement that some of the natives have made is that in the fall of 1907 a white man and two natives were seen mending a canoe away off in the wilds, but Mr. Ford does not take any stock in the theory.

Ahtungahla, one of the natives who accompanied Caldwell, was the man who travelled 500 miles some years ago to bring in the news of the effecting of the north-west passage by a Swedish navigator. On one occasion he was brought to Winnipeg by a well-known author, who had been gathering material in the far north. The Eskimo could not stand the heat of Winnipeg and was kept from getting sick only by living in an icehouse for about a month.

A peculiar thing about Mr. Ford's belief that Mr. Caldwell was drowned lies in the fact that Caldwell always had a peculiar dread of being on the water. He had often times been heard to say that if he should be upset in a canoe and could not reach shore with his rifle and ammunition he would just as soon be drowned, as being cast away in a wild country without the means of securing food would mean death by starvation anyway.

LAID TO REST

The funeral of the late Wm. Van Blaricom took place yesterday from his former home on Grove St. In accordance with his requests the service was conducted by the congregation of the Centenary Methodist Church, Sidney. Owing to the illness of his former pastor, the Rev. Wm. Dafoe of Bayside, Dr. Bishop of Bridge St. Methodist Church officiated. The bearers were: Messrs. W. Eggleton, Wm. Vandewater, A. Parks, P. Goldsmith, W. J. Radford and J. Thrasher. The remains were laid in the family plot, White's Cemetery, Front of Sidney.

SHE WAS SURPRISED

When Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Cured her Chronic Liver Complaint

Mrs. R. Smith, of Winnipeg, Man., tells an interesting story of relief from almost intolerable sufferings:

"I can hardly tell you how great my sufferings have been. Chronic liver complaint accompanied by biliousness were a daily source of trial to me. Every day I experienced the sickening effects of these ailments. I longed for some medicine that should permanently drive them away.

Hearing of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, I thought they were worthy of a trial. My surprise was indeed great. From the very first I experienced relief. Continuing with them I found my troubles were slowly but surely leaving me, and before long I once more knew what it was to be free from the harassing effects of the ailments that had long sickened and weakened me. So great is my faith in Dr. Morse's Indian Pills that I shall never on any account be without them."

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cure Bowel and Kidney as well as Liver troubles, and keep you healthy. 25c a box at your dealer's. 34

"PAID IN FULL" WAS WELL PRESENTED

At Griffin's Opera House last evening a large house greeted Eugene Walter's great production, "Paid In Full," and were amply rewarded for the long and tiresome wait caused by the non-appearance of the company owing to their unavoidably being detained on the road by a snow blockade. It was not until near ten o'clock when the curtain rose for the first act, but in the meantime the enterprising manager of the theatre put on the motion pictures and kept the audience from becoming impatient. As to the show itself, the cast was an exceptionally clever one, the different roles being delineated in such a finished manner as to stamp the performers as finished actors. W. L. Heath, as Joe Brooks, portrayed this part in a masterly manner. Miss Elizabeth Talmage as Emma Brooks, his wife, was superb. She has a splendid stage presence, and her work throughout the evening was faultless. Selmar Romaine as James Smith was popular with the audience, his acting being worthy of special mention. Walter Fredericks made a capital Capt. Williams and was a typical South Pacific trader. His acting could not have been improved upon. Gertrude Graham as Mrs. Harris, mother of Mrs. Brooks, and Lidalee Gilyard as her daughter, were both good in their respective roles.

Her Secret

Why She Always Looked So Young

Everyone refers to her as one of the most attractive women in town. It wasn't her features, for while regular, they were not unusual. But the charm lay in the head of splendid, vigorous hair that made a veritable crown. It had that peculiar lustre and the sun gave it an added brilliance—you couldn't look at her without unconsciously commenting on the beauty of her hair.

When asked how she kept it so beautiful she replied that it was no secret, simply proper shampooing, regular combing and the conscientious use of Hirsutone. She admitted it had not always been in that condition, but that she found Hirsutone the best thing she ever got for the hair. It gave the scalp such a cool, refreshed feeling, and the hair was so much easier to dress after its use.

There are plenty of heads that would be just as attractive for Hirsutone soon brings the hair and scalp into good condition.

Your Nyal Drug Store will cheerfully guarantee Hirsutone to do all that is claimed for it, and every woman owes it to herself to try it.

NEARING INSANITY

Goderich Man Who Beat Child to Death is on the Verge of Mental Collapse

(Intelligencer Special.)

GODERICH, Feb. 4.—George Vanstone, who beat his little son to death some weeks ago, is believed to be fast approaching insanity. An investigation by doctors has disclosed the fact that a large number of his relatives died of Huntingdon's chorea, a nervous disorder, or have been confined in asylums. The family is scattered all over the province and four generations show the taint. Vanstone's grandfather died of this disease, as did six of his children, one of whom is now in the London asylum.

SUFFRAGETTES' THREAT

(Intelligencer Special.)

LONDON, Feb. 4.— The militant suffragettes have issued warning through the press that they will hold a demonstration against the King on Monday, unless the speech from the throne promises consideration for their cause.

WILL NOT SUPPORT LABOR MEMBERS

LONDON, Feb. 3rd.— The labor Conference at Leicester has decided by a large majority to abandon its pledge to contribute to the support of its members of Parliament, which a majority of judges which gave the famous Osborne judgment declared to be illegal and contrary to public policy.

The extremists in the conference including James Keir Hardie, put up a fierce opposition, declaring that the abandonment of the pledge was a surrender to the House of Lords and submission to the dictation of the Government, but the representatives of 1,054,000 workmen swamped the opposition, representing 306,000 workmen.

REGARD PENALTY AS A LIGHT ONE

New York Press Comments Upon Conviction of King George's Slanderer

NEW YORK, Feb. 3rd.—Under the head of "Libelling a King," the World this morning says editorially: "A British subject has been sentensed to a year's imprisonment for circulating a libel upon King George and the fact has numerous aspects of interest.

"That Royalty should apply to the Courts for redress against a commoner is not so notable a proceeding as that the commoner when found guilty of seriously impugning the character of the monarch should get off so lightly. In a day of greater royal prerogatives he would have been lucky to escape being hanged, drawn and quartered or locked up in the tower for life, according to the usage of the time. As it is, he is punished no more severely for reflecting on a King's good name than if he had circulated the same report about John Doe or any other fellow subject. The penalty in the present case may be cited as an exhibit in the evolution of popular rights. The divine right at least as concerns constitutional monarchs no longer confers any extraordinary privileges."

The Tribune, under the caption, "The Royal Libel Case," editorially says: "The prompt conviction and sentencing of the scribbler who had uttered a gross libel on King George will be generally regarded with satisfoction, not so much because of the well-deserved punishment which is thus inflicted upon the culprit as because of the principle which is involved in the protection and vindication of a head of a State against calumny, and the warning thus given to reckless sensationalists who look for immunity in the eminence of the objects of their attacks."

SEVERAL NEW CANDIDATES ENTERED CONTEST TODAY

If Your Name or the Name of Your Favorite is Not in the List See That It is Sent to the Intelligencer at Once—Every One Has an Equal Chance for the Valuable Prizes Offered

Many new candidates have entered the race for the prizes in the great Popularity Contest. It is evident that the contestants already entered in this grand struggle for the prizes will take full advantage of their opportunities and will forge to the lead in this great race at once. As all know, the first entered have the best chance for the best and most coveted prizes. New entries will come in daily, and the coming week will witness a grand struggle for the leadership.

SOME FIGURES TO THINK ABOUT.

If any of our contest girls collect a year's subscription to The Intelligencer from any subscriber (old or new) she gets 10,000 votes for it in the big contest. If she collect two years' subscription from any subscriber (old or new) she gets 30,000 votes. If she collect three years' subscription from any subscriber (old or new) she gets 50,000 votes to her credit. And if she collects a five years' subscription from five subscribers (old or new) she gets a credit of half a million votes to her name in the vote column.

My! girls; isn't it worth your while to work on these generous terms? While the rivalry between the contest girls is sharp and spirited, it is of the most friendly nature, and has been from the very start.

The contest girls are girls of spirit and pride, and they all wish to win, but if they can't win, they wish to make a handsome showing—and they all will.

The showing you make in the vote column will be the thing that counts, so see that you better your position at once; do it now—to-day—and be a leader. Wide-awake girls never had better inducements than The Intelligencer has provided for them. Just think! One Thousand Five Hundred Dollars' worth of prizes to be distributed free. Now, the question is, Who will be the winners? If you are to win, it is best for you to start to collect your votes now. The Contest Manager will explain anything you don't understand; that's his business; telephone or see him at The Intelligencer office, or if you prefer, drop a line and it will be promptly answered.

In all cases where vote certificates are issued, subscriptions must be paid in advance. The full amount of money must be sent direct by mail, paid to the contestant, or brought to this office.

LOST CITIES OF ATLANTIS

German Finds Traces of Ancient Urban Civilization in West Africa

BERLIN, Feb. 3.—Dr. Leo. Frobenius claims to have discovered one of the lost cities of Atlantis of the ancients in Southern Nigeria. He is an Atlantis enthusiast who has long been convicted that the lost kingdom was not mythical, but was located in West Africa. Letters from Dr. Frobenius, who is in West Africa, bearing various dates in December and January, have been received by friends here, declaring that he has proved the correctness of his theory. He says:

"I have made an incredible discovery. I have found in West Africa traces of a high and extremely ancient urban civilization. I have unearthed wonderfully worked quartz pillars, remains of granite figures, burned clay portraits of classic beauty, and vessels and fragments of pottery, splendidly overlaid with magales of various colors. My chief discovery was the hollow bronze cast of a head covered with fine tattooing. I have thus proved in the broadest sense that my Atlantis theory is correct."

Dr. Frobenius makes a bitter attack on the local English officials who, he asserts, seized his finds on the ground that the natives had stolen them and that it was illegal for unauthorized persons to make excavations or remove ancient works of arts. They confiscated the bronze head and most of the other things, but Dr. Frobenius buried the clay heads. Learned men here withhold their opinions of the discoveries.

BAD INDIAN GOES TO CENTRAL

John Maracle, who is a member of the Mohawk tribe, is a bad Indian. This morning he was up before Judge Deroche and was convicted of no less than four offences. He assaulted his wife, using her in a shameful manner. For this offence he was sentenced to 5 months in the Central Prison. For hitting a man named Munro with a stone he was given 3 months in the Central and on the other two charges of assault, 2 months each in the Central Prison, making 1 year in that penal institution. Moracle is a middle-aged man.

A FLARE-UP AS TO BULLYING

Daring Dredging Enquiry—Crockett, M.P., Made a Remark Which Riled Dr. Pugsley

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—The Dalhousie, N. B., dredging case was before the public accounts committee this morning. This was the case where a telegram sent by the Public Works Department to authorize work at "Bathurst" read "Dalhousie" when it was received, and the contractors, H. and R. Loggie continued work, costing the department $30,000.

Geoffrey Stead, district engineer of the department, examined by W. S. Crockett, said that on March 25 he received instructions to appoint Louis Alain as an inspector at Dalhousie. Early in July he learned that the work was to be gone on with. On Aug. 4th he was instructed to inform A. R. Loggie that the work was not authorized. On Sept. 24th he was ordered to forward accounts, and the work continued until Nov. 2nd.

WHO'S A BULLY.

Mr. Crockett suggested that Stead had "got a tip" as to how to answer, and Hon. Mr. Pugsley claimed that the witness had been insulted. Mr. Crockett resented this, and Mr. Carvell said he would not allow the witness to be bullied, as last year.

W. D. Smyth, sitting behind Carvell, warned him that he was the biggest bully around, and that they intended to have no more of his tactics. All the committee wanted was the truth.

Stead said he took the letter of Sept. 24 as cancelling the telegram of August 4, and so the work went on until the end of the season. Louis Alain, the inspector appointed by order of Mr. Pugsley, could not write, and had to have his reports made out by someone else.

The Belleville's, presenting the same line up as in Wednesday night's match with Picton, were beaten last night at Port Hope by 5 to 3.

At Peterboro last night the Trenton Intermediates were beaten 15 to 4. This leaves the teams a tie for the district and they will play a sudden death game at Belleville on Monday night.

CURRENT COMMENTS.

The County Councillors in other counties are following the example of Hastings in raising their pay to $5 per day. York is the latest.

The provincial finances are in a healthy condition. The total estimates for the year are $11,394,361, and the total estimated expenditures, including $2,644,900 on capital account, are $10,283,787.

William Robertson told a Chicago judge the other day that he had spent 32 of the 67 years of his life behind prison bars, 26 of them in Joliet. He had no friends and no home. Joliet was a comfortable place and he wanted to go back; and he had broken a $175 plate glass window to secure his readmission.

Belleville is asking the C. N. O. R to locate their divisional point here, but Belleville's Council are doing their utmost to prevent the possibility of such being done by trying to prevent the completion of the road through the city and thus needlessly antagonizing the company.

As the newspapers wake up to the political meaning of the Government's reciprocity propositions there is an increase in the strength of the contention that Canada's tariff should be made in Canada for Canada, and that outside intervention in the work is not advisable. There are growing chances that before the business is ended Sir Wilfrid Laurier will find that Canada is more of a nation and has more national feeling than he thought.—Montreal Gazette.

There is a strong and well-defined sentiment in Canada for a straight appeal to the country on the question of the reciprocal trade with the United States, before such an agreement is constituted, forcibly suggests the Peterboro Review; let the people at large pass on it. In importance to the national life of the country, it is far greater than the creation of a navy, and if a reference to the people was desirable in that case, in this instance it is doubly so.

Dr. L. H. Holt, the well-known specialist in pediatrics, is authority for the statement that of 125,000 babies born in New York City annually, 16,000 die before they are a year old, 8,000 of them because of lack of proper food. At his suggestion the New York Board of Health is to open 60 additional stations for the distribution of germless milk furnished by private parties at cost to poor mothers. Why should this expense be borne by private beneficence? And has bad housing not much to do with the high infant death rate in great cities?

DISTINGUISHED VISITOR TOMORROW

At 4.15 a mass meeting of the Sunday School Workers of the city will be held in the Baptist church and this Saturday evening at 8 o'clock Mr. Glassford has also been asked to meet Sunday School officers and teachers in the Y. THE ALBERT COLLEGE BANQUET

Students Had Pleasing Function Last Night—Feasting Has Replaced Hazing

The eleventh annual Student's Banquet of Albert College was held on Friday evening, February 3, 1911, and was voted by all as being the best banquet in the history of the institution.

It is interesting to remember what the purpose and origin of this banquet was. Previous to its institution a most objectionable and serious system of hazing was in vogue in the college by which the lives of freshmen were made a burden, and which caused very bitter feelings between the old and new students. At last both the students and faculty became tired of this practice and in the year 1901 it was mutually agreed to cease all hazing, and to have instead a banquet every year. In consequence of this agreement, hazing has been practically done away, and its place taken by the most enjoyable event of the college year.

The menu of last evening, consisting of seven courses, was one that would have satisfied the most fastidious. The programme, presided over by Rev. Dr. Bishop and Rev. B. Greatrix, consisted of the usual number of toasts and speeches: The King, Canada, Alma Mater, Freshettes, Freshmen, Graduating Class and the College Societies being proposed and responded to in the most fitting manner. The Girls' and Boys' Glee clubs convulsed the company with laughter by their songs and Mr. James Dyer, also sang in his usual good form.

The programme was followed by a series of promenades, during which the events of the evening were chatted about and laughed over.

At last, as all things come to an end, the time came when the students must say good-night and seek their several apartments.

Those students who will return to Albert College to complete their studies next year, will eagerly look forward to this event, while those who next June must say good bye to this grand old institution, will bear with them the memory of one of the most enjoyable evenings spent within its walks.

GRIFFIN'S OPERA HOUSE.

Other plays may come and go but "The Old Homestead," like Tennyson's brook, is destined, apparently, to "go on forever." At any rate it does not yet show any signs of falling off in public favor. Twenty-four years of service for the play have not dulled the interest nor diminished in the slightest degree its fine qualities which make for its popularity. It appeals strongly to the human heart it leavens all classes. Rich and poor; good or bad, young or old, find in it a well-spring of joy and inspiration, a sermon of faith, hope and charity, of honest manhood and simple, unalloyed righteousness. Those City Lots

Mr. L. W. Marsh, a former Mayor of this city, has published a document in which he offers a defence of himself and City Treasurer Price in the sale of city lots, and prefaces it by an attack on ex-Mayor J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., in connection with sales of tax lots while he was in office. In justice to Mr. Marsh it may be stated that he does not accuse Mr. Johnson of selling lots at most profitable prices to his relatives.

We will not at present discuss the attack on Mr. Johnson further than to say that it is of so disingenuous a character as to condemn the whole production at a first glance.

If Mr. Marsh will furnish the following information, we and the public will be placed in a position to discuss his lucubration in the light of day.

1.—The correspondence between Messrs. Marsh and Price and their relatives as to the latter making speculative investments in tax lots in Belleville.

2.—The dates at which offers from parties other than said relatives, were received.

3.—The amounts which were offered by others than the relatives.

4.—The dates of sales to said relatives.

5.—The date at which the sales were made on behalf of said relatives by Messrs. Marsh and Price.

6.—The dates of the powers of attorney given to Messrs. Marsh and Price respectively.

After this information has been given, the field will be clear for full discussion of the subject.

The Railway Bridge

Does the City Council want the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway to run through Belleville, and that at the earliest possible time, or does it not?

In face of the fact that the Railway Commission has twice issued an order giving the company authority to proceed with the construction of their bridge, the Railway Committee of the Council has passed the following resolution:—

"That it be recommended to the Council that the Government of Canada be petitioned to dredge the river both below and above the site of the Canadian Northern Railway bridge, and that the Harbor Commissioners be requested to co-operate with the corporation in the matter; That the dredging be done before the bridge is built, as recommended by the Government engineer."

It is a fact that only a small portion of the shoal in question can be dredged, as, from a short distance north of the site selected for the bridge, it is of rock overlaid with a foot or two of gravel covered by a foot or two of water, making a depth of not over four feet to the rock. As no dredge can work in less than 5 ft. 6 in. of water, or dig up solid rock, it follows that the shoal must be removed by blasting, as was the case on the western side several years ago, where a channel was cut through it toward the lower bridge.

Now blasting is a very slow process, and it would require, at the very least, a year to perform the necessary work.

Why the Government should be petitioned to the effect stated, after the matter has been passed upon by the Railway Commission, which has full power in the premises, we are at a loss to understand. And still less is it understandable why the construction of the bridge should be delayed until after the "dredging" shall have been done.

Is that what the Council desire to accomplish, namely to cause a delay of a year or more in the construction of the bridge, which the company designed to have finished and their road in operation from Toronto to Sydenham early in the fall?

If so, they will pass the motion in its entirety. If not, they will eliminate the final paragraph before doing it.

There can be no harm in asking the Dominion Government to do the necessary dredging and blasting to clear the mouth of the river, but to prevent the construction of the bridge until after that work has been done would entail serious and totally unnecessary loss to Belleville.

JEROME AND THE JUDGE

Magistrate Swann Threatened the Irate Lawyer With Prison Bars

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.— William Travers Jerome, former district attorney of New York county, one of the foremost criminal lawyers in the country, confronted in court to-day Edward Swann, the judge whom he called last night "a half-baked judge who holds office by the grace of Charlie Murphy." He did not repeat his characterization, although the court repeatedly invited him to do so, with full guarantee that his language would be held privileged. He acknowledged however the subject of his criticisms, refused to retract them and would not plead guilty or not guilty for his client, Joseph G. Robin, the indicted banker, when the court directed him to do so. It was the question of Robin's sanity which precipitated the controversy. Judge Swann explained his attitude after court adjourned. "If it can be shown to me," he said, "that Jerome knew a reporter was present and taking notes with the intention of publishing his speech last night before the Academy of Medicine, I will act so swiftly that I am ashamed to tell you what will happen. There won't be any time but I'll give you his cell number.

"It's not contempt of court to abuse a judge outside of the court. This has been held by the higher courts particularly by the Court of Appeals in the case of William Barnes, jr. In that case it was held that the denunciation of a judge may be libellous, but that it does not come within the statutes describing contempt.

"I have requested the newspaper in which the report of his attack was published to inform me if Mr. Jerome knew a reporter was present to take down his speech when he made it. He said that he did not."

The encounter between the former district attorney, and Judge Swann was awaited with great interest by many lawyers as well as a large crowd of non-professionl spectators among them the twelve jurors whom Jerome in the same speech last night had called a "rag-tag" jury, because they found counter to the opinion of all alienists and declared Robin sane. Judge Swann had complimented the jury on their verdict for their "horse sense," and it was this commendation that drew down the wrath of Jerome, Robin's counsel.

Mr. Jerome told Judge Swann today that he felt "deeply and bitterly" over the court's assurance that it had been "aided sufficiently by the evidence," when he (Jerome) had submitted but five out of the twelve alienists he had in readiness. "I hold that the court was derelict in not calling all the witnesses possible when it was in his power to do so," he said.

On Jerome's refusal to repeat the remarks credited to him in a morning paper to-day, the court directed Robin to plead. Jerome refused on the ground that Robin was incompetent whereupon the court directed the district attorney to enter a statutory plea of not guilty and the case was set for to-morrow.

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Lower—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—Prospects of a fair increase in the visible supply this week put a finishing touch to-day to weakness in wheat. At the corresponding time a year ago there was a decrease of 839,000 bushels. Closing prices were ⅛c to ¼c under last night. The end of the session left corn ⅛c to ⅜c up, oats at an advance of a shade to ⅛c and provisions 2½c to 5c down. There was much unloading of wheat by longs, who had bought on the idea that the southwest would develop a crop scare. As a matter of fact the weather in that section turned mild instead of developing the cold wave which had been looked for. The Liverpool market closed to-day ⅜d to ½d lower than yesterday for wheat, ⅛d to ½d lower for corn. Paris closed unchanged to ⅛c higher for wheat. Berlin and Antwerp were unchanged.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Feb. 2.—Business in Manitoba spring wheat over the cable was quiet. Bids were unchanged, but the demand was poor. In sympathy with a further decline in oats in Winnipeg, an easier feeling prevailed in this market, but in the absence of any business of importance prices showed no material change. All western colored stock cleaned up. Eggs fairly active. Potatoes strong and prices have advanced 2½c to 5c per bag. Supplies of Green Mountains are small, for which the demand is good at 90c to 95c per bag in car lots.

Returned Only to Die.

London, Ont., Feb. 24.—For years the family of Albert Smith have wondered where he had gone. They had about come to the conclusion that he was dead. Thursday Robert Smith of the third concession was surprised by having his long lost brother walk in on him.

The usual greetings of a long lost relative took place. The brother had been all over the West. He was reviewing his travels to his brother and family when suddenly he fell over. Medical aid was called, but he was dead.

The brother was a cripple and has been troubled with hip disease.

Appeal to Privy Council.

Winnipeg, Feb. 4.—Leave to appeal direct to the Privy Council, instead of going to the Supreme Court of Canada, was granted the city yesterday, in its case with the Winnipeg Electric Railway Co.

One of the principal points to be decided arises over the provision in the bylaw which says:

"The company shall place and keep within the city limits all its engines, machinery, power houses, repair shops and any construction shops it may have."

Negro to Be Electrocuted.

Trenton, N.J., Feb. 4.—John Sears, the negro convicted of the murder of Rev. and Mrs. Amzi L. Armstrong near here last November, was yesterday sentenced by Justice Reed to be electrocuted during the week beginning March 13.

Mrs. Rachael Sears, mother of the condemned man, who was held by the police in connection with the double crime, will not be prosecuted.

Former Oate at a concert, during the performance of a duet, remarked to his friend: "D'ye ken now Tammas, it's got to ten o'clock, they're singing two at a time to get done sooner?"

THROUGH TEN FEET OF SNOW

Passenger Trains Delayed-Grand Trunk Forced to Cancel an Important Train from Montreal

Snow is bossing the railway traffic, says the Toronto Telegram of yesterday, in nearly every district and the officials are unable to cope with the situation, especially east of Tweed and Belleville. It was nearly three o'clock this afternoon before a train reached the Union Station from Montreal to-day. The Grand Trunk No. 3, due at 6.30, was cancelled and No. 5 did not arrive until 3.15 p.m.

The C. P. R. express could not get out of Montreal until 6.10 this morning and therefore could not reach here until after 6 p.m. It was sent out with only three cars, a baggage and two sleepers.

The Grand Trunk from Montreal, due here at 10 p.m., Thursday, did not arrive until 3 a.m. Friday.

A DAY LATE FROM THE WEST.

The reports from Winnipeg are that the western travellers, due here at 3.30 this afternoon, will not arrive until late Saturday. The reports from the Montreal storm-bound district state that the trains are pushing their way through banks of snow ten and twelve feet deep.

ON ITS WAY TO OTTAWA.

It was also indicated that Ottawa would be the centre of the storm before night, and snow ploughs, flanges and gangs of men with shovels were rushed to different points ready to do battle with Canada's beautiful.

"We must keep the line open," said one of the road officials. "If we don't there won't be a wheel turn for days in some districts. Freight trains are all cancelled in the storm district.

"We have had nothing like this storm since the winter of 1907," said an engineer from the north, when he pulled into the Union Station this morning and viewed his snow-clad locomotive. "And they say an engineer earns his money easy. I tell you it is rough, and the people in coaches have no idea of what risk they are taking in travelling in this kind of weather."

ARRESTED FOR THEFT.

Wm. Bentley was arrested this afternoon and pleaded guilty to stealing clothing from the Queen's Hotel and was remanded to next Saturday.

THROWING AWAY PEOPLE'S MONEY

Sensational Disclosures Made at Ottawa--In Public Works Department

There have been startling developments at the session of the Public Accounts Committee. The firm of S. R. Loggie was instructed by the Public Works Department engineer to commence dredging at Bathurtt. Loggie said the telegram instructed him to start work at Dalhousie and proceeded there accordingly. When, at the end of a month he presented a bill for $5,000, they were instructed to stop as the work had been ordered for Bathhurst, but Loggie went right on until the bill amounted to $40,000, which the Hon. Pugsley ordered paid as the work was in the public interest.

Loggie also proceeded with the work at Bathurst and got $60,000 out of the government altogether.

The revelations made a distinct sensation with both sides of politics here. Pugsley is alleged to be interested in the Dalhousie Lumber Company in front of whose wharf the dredging took place.

TORONTONANS ARE STINGY CHRISTIANS

Deficit on Evangelists' Services Reaches $4090--Fund To be Raised

At the close of the Chapman-Alexander evangelistic campaign in Toronto, the deficit in the funds amounted to $4,060, according to an announcement made on Thursday. The total expenses reached approximately, $18,000, and the cash received from offerings at meetings and special contributions reached $8,940.

It is expected that a considerable portion of this deficit will be received from the co-operating churches. All the churches that co-operated in the campaign were expected to give a contribution or take up a collection for the expenses, and only a few of them have yet responded.

MYLIUS DISGUSTED WITH CONVICTION

PARIS, Feb. 2.—Edward H. James the editor of the Liebrator, whose article was the basis of the suit against Edward Mylius, convicted in London yesterday of libelling King George, to-day issued a statement declaring that the trial of his British agent was illegal and the proceedings "a whitewashing."

The statement proceeds:

"The trial was illegal because Mylius was not indicted but was tried under an 'information ex-officio,' which is used only in charges of sedition. It was a whitewashing because the Crown had no right to call witnesses to disprove charges when the defendant had refused to offer evidence proving the charges. Mylius having refused to substantiate that bigamy was practiced, the case ended immediately.

"Mylius refused to proceed because the King refused to testify. If the King had gone on the stand and sworn that the marriage had not occurred, I would be glad to apologize in the Liberator, which under the circumstances can only attack the trial as a violation of almost every principle of English law, evidence and liberty."

Montreal building permits in January aggregated $366,820.

ENERGY—THE HUMAN POWER-HOUSE.

5. The distance between the eyes and their dynamos is short, thus offering little resistance to the transit of energy.

These are our reasons for claiming that perfect vision may exist under excessive anatomical defects. A patient says, "Oh, there is nothing the matter with my eyes. I can see perfectly." He really means there is nothing wrong with his vision . A cashier robs a bank and becomes rich; he lives in princely fashion, but the depositors and stockholders suffer the loss of their funds. In some cases it is under the most perfect vision that the most destructive brain-strain exists, compared with which manifest visual defects and their consequences are trivial.

The same identical foot-pounds of energy may be used in anger or utilized in a laugh, may be exhausted in hate or expended in love, according to the dictates of the mind.

CHINESE DIE BY HUNDREDS ON ROADS AND IN DITCHES

Children Sold in Vain Efforts to Stave off Famine—Fever Adds to Terrors of Situation—Relief Difficult

NANKING, China, Feb. 2.—Children are being sold by hundreds of Chinese families in their struggle for food, said missionaries returning today from the famine districts in Kiang Su and Anhui Provinces. Tales of suffering almost unbelieveable in their shocking details are recounted by those engaged in relief work.

More than 100,000 families are without food, shelter or clothing, it is estimated. Two and one-half millions are affected by famine, with the certainty that conditions will grow worse for several months.

In the rural districts, the unburied dead line the roadways. Families are sleeping in mud and water in the inundated river lands, all with little or no clothing. Besides actual starvation, famine fever, a most loathsome disease, has appeared and is adding to the death roll.

The famine is due to the flooding of the valley of the Hawai River and its tributaries. No crops were gathered last summer and fall. Even the simplest, coarsest food is lacking.

The natives first pawned their furniture, then their clothes and finally sold the very timbers of their rude houses, and now the babies are being sold. The girls are sold as slaves or bound out for a long term of years, while the boys are brought by well-to-do families who have no sons, or by employers.

Relief is extremely difficult, as the most of the stricken area is inaccessible by railroad. Water still covers much of the land.

Thousands of families are migrating, moving south in an effort to find food. Men are leaving their families to almost certain death by disease or starvation, while they wander in search of employment.

The government is doing what it can to give aid, while foreign subscriptions are being expended by relief committees operating from this city and Shanghai. The money thus far is but a drop of what is needed, say those directing the work.

Those of the natives successful in getting out of the affected districts into the cities are being fed daily by the authorities. A sort of gruel, made from mouldy rice, is served to all who apply. In the stricken regions, however, not even this disease-breeding ration is available to the starving thousands.

NO CHANCE THIS SESSION DECLARES SENATOR ROOT

Speaker Cannon Satisfied Reciprocity Agreement Will Have to Stand Over for New Congress

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3rd.--Senator Root, of New York, declared at the White House to-day that he believed it impossible to get Canadian reciprocity legislation at this session of the congress. Senator Root has just left the president. He does not frequently make predictions so his remarks to-day aroused much interest.

"I do not believe," said Mr. Root, "that Canadian reciprocity legislation will pass the Senate at this session. Short sessions are primarily for matters of appropriation and appropriation bills will consume most of the remaining time.

"The great amount of legislation," continued the Senator, "which is now before Congress will cause such congestion that it will impede the passage of any single bill. It will be very much like a crowd trying to leave a theatre; everybody pushes and nobody gets out."

Senator Root has refused to comment on the probability of a special session.

There was a lot of interest to-day on the attitude of Speaker Cannon toward Canadian reciprocity legislation. The Speaker at a banquet late last night said that to legislate the agreement with Canada at the present session would be like "hopping skipping and jumping into something of which we know very little."

The Speaker said that he was still for protection. Reciprocity as suggested by President Taft, said Mr. Canon, may not be the best thing for the people of the United States.

"It is questionable," said he "whether reciprocity with Canada will work to the good of the country. If it will, that remains to be seen. There may come a time when those who are in such haste to reach this reciprocity agreement may be assailed for being the authors of it. I don't think it is a matter about which we should be too hasty. We should not hop, skip and jump into this legislation. We have only a few weeks more in which to consider this matter. Congress, as you know, is very busy at this time, and with the short time ahead of it, I consider it would be most inopportune to attempt to move this important question."

THE CANADA LIFE'S REPORT FOR 1910.

Shows a Prosperous Year.

The annual report of the Canada Life which is printed elsewhere in this issue shows that the Company enjoyed a most satisfactory year in all that goes to insure strength and permanent progress. From the present report, and others that have appeard for many years past, it is evident that the Company aims for a safe and steady growth along the lines that mean security and profit to its policy-holders.

The continued reduction in the expense ratio, the increased interest earnings and the lower mortality rate all go to prove that the management of this instituion places the greatest importhnre upon economy, upon care in selection of insurance risks and upon the careful investment of its large assets of $40,820,856.00. These are the essential things that make for surplus, and insure stability, and are of far greater importance to the policy-holders than any rapid increase in new business figures.

In 1910 the immense sum of $4,789,000.00 was paid to its policy-holders, a larger amount by over one and a half millions of dollars than has been paid during the year in the Company's history. Over $2,000,000.00 in profits alone were allotted to policy-holders last year.

Notwithstanding such large disbursements on policy-holders' account the Assets increased by $1,134,793,00. The surplus earned, $1,233,163.00, was the greatest in the Company's history of 64 years.

The new paid-for business amounted to $10,838,384.20 bringing the total assurances in force up to $128,274,973.00.

The record shown for 1910 is along the line of the substantial advances made by the Canada Life in its progress from year to year.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

TO REGULATE STORAGE

Mr. Lewis Brings Bill Before the House of Commons.

He Proposes That Food Kept In Cold Storage Plants Be Destroyed, If Kept Longer Than a Year, and Game If Kept Longer Than Six Months—Spending All the Time on Works Estimates.

Ottawa, Feb. 4.—Safeguards for the proper cold storage of food and a mild protest from Mr. Foster that the information given by the Finance Minister as to the correspondence received by the Government on the subject of reciprocity was not sufficiently illuminating, furnished most of the bill of fare of the House of Commons yesterday. Dr. Reid (Grenville) protested against the public works' estimates blocking the way to the consideration of those of other Departments equally important.

E. N. Lewis (Huron) introduced his eighth bill for the session re the cold storage of food. He said the bill did not attempt to cover the entire subject, but it would be sufficient to call the Government's attention to the matter. American legislators had devoted much attention to the subject, which had also of late been to the fore through the destruction in Montreal of a hundred thousand dollars' worth of storage eggs. The high prices were sometimes attributed to lack of storage regulations.

Mr. Lewis proposed that food kept over a year in storage should be destroyed. He admitted that some foods spoiled in storage quicker than others, and the bill provided that game, for instance, could not be kept more than six months.

Thomas Chisholm (E. Huron) said the matter was one of regulation of storage. Some foods required different temperatures than others. When all foods were kept together at one temperature, there was bound to be deterioration. He recommended that legislation should compel different foods in storage to be kept separately. The bill was read a first time.

A desultory discussion arose over the tariff information and the nature it should take. Mr. Fielding, in answer to Mr. Foster's questions, told how the American pamphlets he had requested, would be here in a day or so.

When at four o'clock the House went into committee on the estimates for the balance of the day, Dr. Reid (Grenville) protested that the Government was not following the best course in voting estimates. Some years ago the House used to take up several Departments' estimates alternately, and this was of value as the items were sometimes entwined. The House had been in session three months, he said, and nothing but the works' estimates had been taken up.

The result would be that at the end of the session the other Departmental estimates would be rushed through in a few days. He thought that estimates concerning the interior and agriculture departments might even have more value from a public standpoint than the cost of public buildings.

Mr. Pugsley remarked that the sooner his estimates were voted the sooner the others would be got at.

A return moved for by Hon. Geo. E. Foster, and laid on the table of the Commons, contains copies of communications which the Government has received for and again reciprocity with the United States.

Those in favor of reciprocity are: Winnipeg Fruit and Vegetable Jobbers, Forest Grange, Calgary Liberal Association, and Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association.

Those against reciprocity are: The Boards of Trade of Welland, Deseronto, Brampton, Sault Ste. Marie, Cobalt, Manitou, Seaforth, Perth, Brockville, Galt, Vernon (B.C.), Port Hope, market gardeners of the Province of Quebec, malleable iron founders of Canada, Central Farmers' Institute of Victoria (B.C.), employes and mechanics of the Barrie Tannins Co., the Dominion Suspender Co., and the Niagara Neckwear Co. of Niagara, Quebec Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association (with 31 members), London shoe manufacturers and 14 shoe manufacturers in various parts of the country.

The Kingston Board of Trade petitioned for the placing of iron ore on the free list.

Dragged Fifty Feet.

Brockville, Feb. 4.—David White of Toronto, G.T.R. passenger conductor, running between that point and Montreal, was injured yesterday as No. 2 express, west bound, was pulling into the station. As he prepared to step off, the collar of his coat caught in a corner of the step, and he was dragged a distance of fifty yards before the train came to a standstill. When picked up blood was flowing from a gash in his head. He was also bruised about the body. He was able to leave for home last night.

New Salary Scheme.

Brantford, Feb. 4.—The Public School board has adopted a new salary scheme for kindergarten teachers. Directors will receive $400 to $550, with $50 increase at the end of the first year, and 10 increases thereafter of $25 until the maximum is reached. Assistants who are normal trained first year receive $300, second $350 and third $415; assistants not normal trained, $250.

Archbishop Ryan Better.

Philadelphia, Feb. 4.—The vitality shown by the Most Rev. Patrick J. Ryan has completely puzzled his physicians. Notwithstanding that a bulletin issued stated the aged prelate would probably not live through the night, he awoke yesterday refreshed by several hours of sound sleep.

Last night his condition was more satisfactory than it had been for nearly a week.

ALBERTA BEATEN.

C.P.R. Gets Decision In Big Suit Before Privy Council.

London, Feb. 4.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council yesterday handed out its decision on the appeal of the Province of Alberta vs. the C.P.R. from a decision of the Canadian courts on the question of taxation of C.P.R. lands in the province which the railway had secured by its charter from the Dominion. The Canadian courts had decided in favor of the company's contention that the lands were not taxable.

The Privy Council yesterday dismissed the appeal without costs. It held that unoccupied C.P.R. lands are not taxable until twenty years after the actual grant of letters patent, even if there be delay of many years in taking the letters out. It also held that C.P.R. land sold on the instalment plan is untaxable until all the instalments are paid.

Millions of dollars in taxes were involved in the case, which was heard last summer. The case was divided into two parts, the first regarded the taxation of unoccupied lands and depended on the interpretation of the phrase "twenty years after the grant of lands" in the C.P.R. charter.

The C.P.R. contended that this meant after the patent was granted, and the Province of Alberta contended that it meant after identification.

The second point hinged on the interpretation of the word "sold" in reference to lands granted by the Dominion to the C.P.R. in the taxation of which the province was interested.

Brought Body 150 Miles.

North Bay, Feb. 4.—The body of Homer Wilson, the unfortunate young prospector who was frozen to death in the Gowganda wilds, was brought to North Bay by his brother, and taken on to Lake Linden, Michigan, where the parents reside. The brother had a very hard trip, driving a distance of 150 miles over the indifferent and bad trails. Mrs. Wilson, the young widow of the unfortunate prospector, had to be left behind at Gowganda, as she is suffering greatly form her terrible experiences of exposure in the northern bush, having both hands and feet frozen. She is being treated by a physician at Gowganda, and it is hoped that amputation will not be necessary.

Wilson, in going to visit some traps, went through the ice, and, upon getting out, his wet and frozen garments prevented him making the return trip to the shack, and he died from exposure. The wife, becoming alarmed for her husband's safety, started out in search of him, but made little progress in the deep snow, and had great difficulty making the return trip to the shack, where, wet and cold and unable to build a fire, she was found in a frozen condition by the rescue party.

Recognition of Commissioners.

London, Feb. 4.—At the opening of Parliament on Monday Lord Strathcona will wear his peer's robes, while the other high commissioners will wear levee dress. Seats to the right of the throne have been assigned them near the ambassadors.

The London Daily Mail says: "This is a recognition of the width of the Empire and possesses a significance which it is impossible to overlook. It throws open the essential ceremonies of Parliament to the Dominions as well as to the United Kingdom.

English Opinions.

London, Feb. 4.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Morning Post, publishing the text of the proposed reciprocity agreement, complains that, though the same was communicated from Canada at the end of last week, no intimation was given to the press here that it was available, several papers do not contain the text. The Morning Post says: "American influence over Canadian thought and action will rapidly expand with this link binding the daughter nation and the Mother Country growing steadily weaker."

Tore Hole In His Neck.

North Bay, Feb. 4.—M. McCartney, C.P.R. employe of Chalk River, was unloading steel at a small station about eight miles east of North Bay, when a heavy piece of metal fell on a pinch bar which he was using, snapped the heavy iron bar through the air striking McCartney and making a jagged hole in his neck, from which the blood gushed in a torrent. The injured man was rushed on a freight engine to North Bay Hospital. His chances of recovery are good.

Cable Rates.

London, Feb. 4.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Morning Post in an article on cable rates complains of the dilatoriness of the Government. Ignorance and misunderstanding are inevitable, it says, while the rates remain so high. Surely the Ministers might show the cable interests to help the promotion of a community of thought of the English-speaking peoples.

Toronto Man Dead In B. C.?

Nelson, B.C., Feb. 4.—The provincial police received a report yesterday that the body of a man had been found on the shore of Arrow Lake, four miles above Renata. Hon. A. G. MacKay Asks Questions About C.N.R.

He Wants to Know If Any Lands Have Yet Been Set Aside — Two Consolidation Bills Are Advanced a Stage—A. A. Mahaffy Desires to Amend the Justices of the Peace Act—To Place Fire Responsibility.

Toronto, Feb. 4.—Two consolidation bills were advanced through the committee stage at the Ontario Legislature yesterday afternoon.

Hon. Dr. Pyne explained in reference to the bill respecting the profession of architects that in placing the witness fee for architects at $5, while that for doctors was at present $4, it was not intended for the difference to continue, as both would be made alike.

Hon. F. Cochrane gave various technical explanations of the consolidation bill respecting the cutting of saw-logs.

Notice was given by Hon. A. G. MacKay of a series of enquiries respecting the construction of the Selwood and Port Arthur branch of the Canadian Northern.

This branch was authorized with the usual land grant in 1908. The time set for its completion was Sept. 1, 1910.

Hon. Mr. MacKay's questions are as follows:—

Has any application been made by or on behalf of the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway Co. for an extension of time under the provisions of 8 Edward VII., c. 47 s. 7?

If so, what extension has been granted?

Has the Government any information showing the number of miles of railroad which have been completed by the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway between Selwood Junction and Port Arthur?

If so, what number of miles have been completed between said towns by the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway?

Have any lands within the districts of Algoma and Thunder Bay been set aside and appropriated to the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway Co. under the provisions of 9 Edward VII., c. 7?

J. Ewing (West Wellington) gave notice that he would move for an order of the House for a return of copies of correspondence between any official of the Government and the Standard Insurance Co. during the years 1907, 1908, 1909; a copy of any reports made by the inspector who inspected the books of the Standard Insurance Co. during the same years; copies of all correspondence between any official of the Government and the liquidator of the Standard Insurance Co.

A. A. Mahaffy (Muskoka) gave notice of a bill to amend the justices of the peace act.

It is understood that a bill to define the individual responsibility for fires caused by defective work in electric wiring will be introduced by Hon. Col. Hendrie.

The date for receiving private bills has been extended for two weeks. W. H. Hoyle (North Ontario) was elected chairman. Seventy-two private bills have been received by the private bills committee yesterday for the seventh time.

Threw Loot Overboard.

Windsor, Feb. 4.—A most daring robbery occurred yesterday afternoon, when Ross Simpson and Fred Beers of Detroit robbed an intoxicated man in the Herenden Hotel of $200 and a gold watch, and then made a dash for the Windsor ferry.

The police reached the dock just as the ferry was ready to pull out for Detroit. The boat was held while the officers searched for the men.

In an effort to get rid of the evidence of the deed, the men threw the money and watch overboard. Three five dollar bills were rescued by a customs officer, who recovered the money by means of a row boat. The men will appear before Magistrate Legatt to-day.

Hydro In Hamburg.

New Hamburg, Feb. 4.—New Hamburg citizens are congratulating themselves upon the advent of Niagara power. Yesterday the current was turned on here by the hydro-electric commission, and the town is brilliantly lighted.

The local plant has been entirely reconstructed in an up-to-date manner under the supervision of E. B. Merrill, electrical engineer of Toronto, and Contractor George Thomas of Windsor, Ont.

A University Pastor.

Kingston, Feb. 4.—That not over forty per cent. of the students at Queen's attend church regularly and not over twenty per cent. have definite church home, is a statement made in a circular issued at the university. The solution offered is the appointment of a university pastor. An active campaign will be undertaken in an endeavor to ascertain the working of the scheme, which will be assured by a financial guarantee.

Jewel Robbery.

North Bay, Feb. 4.—Thieves smashed the plate-glass window of Philip Adams' store about four o'clock in the morning and abstracted about $200 worth of jewelry. An old man named Joseph Moss, a stranger, was arrested with some of the loot in his pockets, which he claims to have found on the sidewalk. Moss was sent to the prison camp at Matheson for two months. The most valuable of the jewelry is still missing.

Woman Missing.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 4.—Chas. Clobesk returned home to Guelph last night broken-hearted after searching in vain for his daughter, Annie, here. The woman was injured when she stepped off a moving train at Clifton Junction, near here, Thursday night. She was taken to the hospital, but left yesterday before her father called there. No trace of the woman has been found.

Abdul Kills Two Wives.

Salonika, Feb. 4.—Abdul Hamid, former Sultan of Turkey, has gone violently insane, has killed two of his wives and is to-day confined in irons.

The murder of the two women who were among those who accompanied Abdul Hamid from Constantinople when he was exiled by the Young Turks, was particularly cruel. He choked one of them to death with his own hands and dashed the other so violently against the wall that she died a few hours later, according to one of the men who have been guarding the deposed ruler at his villa where he is spending his last days.

The ex-Sultan was subdued only after a fierce struggle in which he was severely injured.

Abdul Hamid is confined in a dungeon beneath the villa Allatine which, while set apart for him as a residence, is in reality his prison. He was sent there in April, 1909, when the Turkish revolution brought about by the Young Turk party was finally completed and Sultan Mohammed V. ascended the throne.

Abdul Hamid had reigned for thirty years up to that time, had deluged his empire in blood and had kept 200,000 spies to betray their fellow citizens. He was noted for having shocked the diplomats of all Europe, and from time to time shocked the world by his sensuality and crimes.

When Abdul was sent to the villa here his suite, which was allowed to accompany him, was composed of three Sultanas, or full wives, four Cadines, or inferior wives; five Halfas, or lady housekeepers privileged to go out of the harem, two princes, his daughter, and nine servants. This really gave him the allowance of twelve wives.

A Novel Scheme.

Montreal, Feb. 4.—At the annual meeting of the diocese of Montreal next week, Mr. J. M. Fisk will put forward a motion which authorizes the delegates of the synod to bring before the general synod the following resolutions:

"This synod, recognizing the advantage that would accrue to the various parishes of the Church of England in Canada, by forming a mutual fire insurance union to co-operate in carrying the risk on all church property, such as cathedral, churches, rectories, personages and their outbuildings, colleges, church schools, halls, etc., throughout the various diocese of the Dominion of Canada (or such dioceses as may desire such union), shall bring the subject before the general synod at their next meeting with the view of forming such a union.

Hanlan Wright Committed.

Windsor, Feb. 4.—Hahlan Wright, "the Harrow bandit," was given a preliminary hearing before Police Magistrate Leggatt here yesterday and committed for trial. The principal witness against young Wright was his uncle, William Wright, a wealthy farmer of Harrow, from whom the young man attempted to obtain $5,000 by threatening him with death. He told the court that for four days he had been forced to barricade himself inside his house, fearing his nephew would shoot him on sight, as he had so often threatened to do.

Popularity of Measure.

London, Feb. 4.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The London Daily Mail, in an article on reciprocity, says: "The action of the Canadian Conservatives in leaving their representatives free stands is the strongest testimony to the popularity of the agreement." Amongst the methods of preserving Canada for the Empire, The Mail suggests free trade in manufactures, a constant stream of British emigrants and the investment of English capital, creating business there, and not merely financing.

Tramp Steamer Wrecked.

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 4.—The Norwegian tramp steamer Titiana, 2,315 tons, heavily laden with British Columbia coal for Acapulo, Mexico, was wrecked yesterday morning on Stuart Point, Sanjuan Island, in American waters, at the southern end of the Gulf of Georgia. She carried a crew of 26 men.

The "Absolute Life."

Chicago, Feb. 4.—Evelyn Arthur See, founder of the "absolute life," was indicted yesterday on serious charges, the penalty for which is imprisonment for one to twenty years. Several girls were witnesses before the grand jury.

THEY ASK COMMISSION

Farmers' Bank Shareholders Wait on Premier.

Sir Wilfrid's Answer Is That He Will Take the Matter Under Consideration, But It Seems Very Unlikely That Probe Will Be Applied—Wm. Laidlaw, K.C., Acts as Spokesman For the Deputation.

Ottawa, Feb. 4.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. W. S. Fielding heard a deputation representing the shareholders of the Farmers' Bank yesterday afternoon, headed by Wm. Laidlaw, K.C., and supported by a number of members of Parliament.

The object of the deputation was to press upon the Government the need of appointing a royal commission to investigate the affairs of the bank, with the view of disclosing those irregularities antecedent to the failure of the bank which court proceedings would not bring into the limelight. Mr. Laidlaw made a forcible and pathetic speech. He pointed out to the Ministers that some consideration should be given to the Halton farmers who had retained him to look after their interests. These men were ruined. He thought that some redress should be given and that by way of a special act exempting these men from the operation of the double liability clause in the Bank Act.

Judging from the reply of Sir Wilfrid and the gossip around the corridors, it is evident that no royal commission can be hoped for.

Among the deputation were Messrs. Wm. Laidlaw, K.C.; J. W. Elliott, K.C., Toronto, and the following members of Parliament: David Henderson, Major Sam Sharpe, Col. Sam Hughes, George Gordon, E. W. Nesbitt, J. J. Donnelly, Uriah Wilson, M. Schell, Major Beattie, Major Currie, Haughton Lennox.

Messrs. Sharpe, Henderson and Lennox spoke in the same strain as Mr. Laidlaw, and asked the Government to provide relief for the victims. The Premier promised consideration.

Flipping the Meter.

New York, Feb. 4.—The mystery of "flipping the meter," known only to initiate chauffeurs, has been unwittingly explained by an offending adept to the chief of the city bureau of licenses, and as a result he set departmental machinery in motion which will compel the taxicab companies to take down 400 meters, with permission to assemble them again only when they have been so altered that crooked chauffeurs cannot swindle the public by their aid.

While Chief Oliver was riding in a taxicab the other night he saw the chauffeur jiggle the flag above the meter, whereupon the hand on the dial jumped from $2 to $6.40. The astonished chief investigated and learned that the practice has been general among the unscrupulous experts, and is known as "flipping the meter."

Shipping Is Well Organized.

Washington, Feb. 4.—The Humphrey bill, giving the Government power to exclude from American ports any foreign ships that enter into pools or agreements to control freight or passenger rates, or to shut out competition, was favorably reported to the House yesterday by the committee on merchant marine. "It is a matter of common knowledge," said Representative Humphrey, "that more than 90 per cent. of the trans-oceanic commerce of the country to-day is carried on foreign ships that belong to pools, conferences and combines. Freight and passenger rates are fixed by agreement. The rates charged are unjust and exorbitant.

To Stamp Out Bubonic Plague.

Washington, Feb. 4.—Plans have been made to put the public health and marine hospital service into the field in China to stamp out the bubonic plague, if the Chinese Government request it.

It was learned yesterday that informal exchanges of views on the seriousness of the situation have been made between some of the European powers and the possibility has been discussed of having the marine hospital service join with the army medical forces of some of the European nations having spheres of influence in China.

Will Appeal Against Tariff.

St. Catharines, Feb. 4.—County Clerk Clench yesterday afternoon had notice served on him by H. H. Collier, K.C., on behalf of E. J. McIntyre of Niagara Township, that legal proceedings will be instituted if County Treasurer Wismer pays over to the Niagara Peninsula Fruit Growers $500 voted Thursday night towards the expenses of the protest deputation relative to tariff changes on fruit. McIntyre is a grower and large buyer of apples.

Export of Whisky.

Kingston, Feb. 4.—The Corby Company of Belleville sought the advice of U. S. Consul Johnson here relative to a shipment of whiskey, confiscated at Buffalo. Whisky can be shipped into United States only in barrels containing 100 gallons each. The Corby Company shipped 100 gallons, but in casks, containing small quantities. The matter will be appealed to the Department at Washington.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL

Vol. 44 BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY FEBRUARY 4, 1911. NO. 87

Prizes in Our Great Popularity Contest

The first Grand Prize, and most valuable of all the prizes in this great Contest, is a handsome $400.00 Ionic Heintzman Piano. It was purchased from W. B. Riggs and can be inspected at his store. Here is what the manufacturers have to say about this grand instrument:—Pianos are like men, they have character; likewise, too, this character is reflected in every detail of construction. It is the cumulative value of little things in the making of a piano that in the end will secure the symmetrically developed instrument. We want the details of this instrument to be inspected because we know they will be creditable to the makers. The Heintzman Piano Co. is composed of men who have built up an industry on a solid foundation, who have distinct ideals in their undertakings. We invite the inspection of this grand instrument at Mr. Riggs' store.

2ND GRAND PRIZE.

The second Grand Prize is a beautiful $300.00 Kohler & Campbell Piano. This piano is conceded by experts to be the best value on the When we decided to offer the ladies of Belleville and vicinity the chance to win prizes in a popularity contest, we took great pains to select prizes that would be of value to them. We thought of trips to Europe and a great many other things, but after due consideration decided on the prizes we are giving, because they are prizes anyone will be proud to win, and at the same time many of them are prizes that will last a lifetime. Everyone understands that the circulation of a newspaper is the foundation on which a newspaper stands, the stronger the foundation the better the newspaper. We are able to take care of a great many new subscribers, thus accounting for our decision to put on a big popularity contest. The prizes to be given away are as follows:

1ST GRAND PRIZE.

market at this price. It is truly a grand instrument, and is fully guaranteed by Mr. W. B. Riggs, from whom it was purchased.

DISTRICT PRIZES.

There are ten other prizes, which will place five in each of the two districts, making a total of six valuable prizes for each district, including the Grand Prizes. They are as follows:

Two beautiful $100.00 Diamond Rings. The gems are perfect in every respect. They were purchased from Angus McFee and can be inspected at his store.

Two handsome $75,00 Bedroom Suites; one purchased from S. B. Sills & Co.; the other, a beautiful Brass Bedroom Suite, purchased from W. Thompson & Co. Both of these suites can be inspected at the above dealers.

Two $65.00 complete Business, Shorthand and Typewriting Courses in the Ontario Business College. This includes a complete unlimited course.

Two $35.00 complete Shorthand and Typewriting Courses in the Ontario Business College.

Two Ladies' beautiful Gold Watches. These watches were purchased from Mr. McCurdy and are fully guaranteed by him. They will be on display at his store.

THE WAY THE PRIZES WILL BE AWARDED.

The contestant receiving the largest number of votes in the whole contest territory, that is in both districts combined, will be awarded the 1st Grand Prize, the beautiful $400.00 Heintzman & Co. Piano.

The contestant receiving the largest number of votes in the remaining district after the award of the 1st Grand Prize will receive the $300.00 Kohler & Campbell Piano. One piano will be awarded to each of the two districts.

The third highest candidate will have her choice of the remaining five district prizes.

The fourth highest will have her choice of the remaining prizes, and so on down, after the other higher candidates have selected their prizes. This applies to both districts.

Every one has an excellent chance to win one of these valuable prizes. Just think, there are fourteen regular prizes and special prizes will be added from time to time during the term of the contest.

Any young lady who desires to enter this great contest and win one of the magnificent prizes offered should see that her name is sent in to the Contest Manager. All that is necessary to win a prize is to receive the largest number of votes, according to conditions mentioned elsewhere in this announcement.

A nomination coupon is printed in this paper, which, when sent in to The Intelligencer office with the prospective candidate's name and address, is good for 1,000 votes. Only one nomination blank for each nominee.

The easiest and quickest way for a candidate to win is for the candidates to ask their friends to pay and prepay their subscriptions in advance. It costs the subscriber nothing extra to do this, and they have saved the annoyance of weekly and monthly collections. By so doing the candidate receives a special vote voucher, which is good for votes, according to the schedule, and will count at any time during the contest.

Any young lady residing in the territory mentioned is eligible to compete in this contest. Any one who desires to vote in this contest may do so by ballots cut from the paper, or by special vote coupons by subscribing for The Intelligencer.

The coupons secured by subscribing to The Intelligencer may be held as long as desired and voted at any time up to the close of the contest, but the ballots cut from the paper are only good for a few days from the time of publication and wil not be counted after date printed on ballot.

This affords the girls of Belleville and outside territory an excellent opportunity to receive valuable prizes with very little effort on their part.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR VOTING.

Enter the name of the young lady whom you wish to secure one of these valuable prizes in this contest at once. Better still, get the young lady to enter her name and then vote for her. Those who get in at the start have the best chance of winning, so it is desirable that the names be entered at once. Candidates who enter this contest do not necessarily have to be subscribers to this paper. Enter your name and your friends will do the rest.

The first announcement as to who are the young ladies competing in this contest will be made Thursday, Feb. 2nd. We will then publish the names and number of votes each one has to her credit. After the first announcement of candidates the votes will be published daily.

Any person has the privilege of nominating one or more candidates.

Nominations should be mailed to the Contest Manager before Feb. 2nd. Candidates can be nominated after that date; but it is of great advantage for each candidate to have her name in the first list published, so that her friends will not agree to work for some one else before knowing who are entering the contest. It costs absolutely nothing to nominate a candidate. In all cases where ballots are issued subscriptions must be paid. The full amount of money must be sent direct by mail, paid to the contestants or brought to this office.

A NEW HAVEN CHILD

RESTORED TO HEALTH BY VINOL—CASE INTERESTS MANY PARENTS.

"My little daughter ever since her birth had been frail and sickly, and was a constant source of worriment. Several months ago I secured a bottle of Vinol and commenced to give it to her. I immediately noted an improvement in her health and appearance. I gave her three bottles of Vinol, and from the good it has done her I can truly say it will do all you claim, and I want to recommend Vinol to any one who desires to build up a weakened, run-down system."—J. Edmund Miller, New Haven, Conn. (We guarantee this testimonial to be genuine.)

This child's recovery was due to the combined action of the medicinal elements of the cods' livers,—aded by the blood making and strength creating properties of tonic iron, which are cotained in Vinol,—and the strongest evidence that Vinol will build up and strengthen delicate children, old people, and the weak, run-down and debilitated, is our willingness to return the purchase money in every case where it fails to give complete satisfaction. J. S. McKeown.

CHARGERS FOR THE ARMY

English Veterinaries Are Making Purchases in Austria

Two English veterinary surgeons, of the highest standard, are now on their way to Austria with $50,000 to spend on the purchase of 210 chargers for the Army and Naval tournament, which is to tour the British Isles this spring and summer. In the case of horses for the officers over $300 will be given per animal. It has been decided to purchase horses of Hungarian breed, because they are docile, very intelligent, and can stand sea voyages better than do English or Irish animals. The Hungarian breed is three parts Arab, and the Austrian cavalry has proved what superb chargers they are. The uniforms for the tournament, which have just been delivered, are exact counterparts of those used by the British Army save for the buttons and badges.

You want Newbro's Herpicide, the remedy that has been tried, has stood the test of time and now has more satisfied users than all other similar preparations combined. Herpicide kills the dandruff germ and prevents falling hair. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

It may be claimed that other hair remedies will do the same things, but Herpicide really does them. Its years of success prove this.

GENEROUS SOUL IS JOHN BULL

The British Public Has Given Millions for the Relief of Those in Distress

On the appeal of the Mayor of Bolton for funds in the recent Pretoria Mine disaster no less than $350,000 was subscribed in a week! That alone is enough to show that John Bull is a generous soul.

The first time that he publicly helped the miners was in 1878, when nearly $150,000 was raised on behalf of the sufferers from a mine explosion in Wales. Since then every colliery disaster has found the British public to aid the widows and children left behind.

Mansion House Funds

The Britisher is as generous to his fellow-beings abroad as he is to those at home. When the Seine rose and caused such widespread damage a year ago the British public, through the medium of a Mansion House Fund, sent over nearly $350,000 for the help of their Continental neighbors.

Strange to say, the first Mansion House Fund was inaugurated to relieve Paris. This was for the relief of the sufferers in the siege by the Germans in 1871. Over $630,000 was collected and sent to Paris, partly in money and partly in clothing, food and other necessaries. The Parisians did not want money so much as food, for money was fairly plentiful, and John Bull responded to the appeals of the starving by sending over sixty-eight tons a day or two after the siege was raised. Since that first fund the Mansion House alone has received nearly $30,000,000 out of the pockets of the generous Anglo-Saxon.

When the terrible earthquake at Messina startled the world with its dramatic suddenness and its consequent misery Great Britain was the foreign country that contributed most to the relief of the refugees. Over $600,000 was rapidly collected and dispatched to Italy, Germany coming next with $400,000, and France with $300,000. Newspapers all over the country opened their columns for the receipt of money from their readers, and the appeal thus made was not in vain.

Famous Famine Records

In 1878 the Mansion House opened a fund for the great Indian Famine. In response to the appeal of the Lord Mayor, the huge sum of $3,450,000 was extracted from the pockets of the nation. In 1897 another fund was organized to aid the Hindus, over two and a half million being sent to India. Altogether England has sent $10,000,000 in one way and another to relieve our fellow-subjects in India. Such figures are a splendid tribute to the generosity of the British Public.

During the Boer War, however, Britain really rose to the occasion and showed what she was capable of in emergencies. The Mansion House left all its glorious records far behind when it raised $5,659,300 for the Transvaal War Fund. In addition to this, $850,000 was given to the fund for the Transvaal refugees and $585,000 for the C.I.V.'s. That was the Mansion House alone, and when it is recalled that there were three other funds of a similar kind in existence at that time one is astonished at the capacity of John Bull's pockets. Altogether nearly $20,000,000 was subscribed during the days of the war. Britain paid generously for the magnificent help that her soldiers and sailors gave her.

An Unpopular Appeal

The greatest individual sum ever given to a fund, apart from the permanent charitable organizations, was the $125,000 given by Sir Thomas Lipton to the Poorest of the Poor London Jubilee Dinner Fund in 1897.

Practcally only once has the British public refused to give, and give handsomely. On April 13th, 1882, the Lord Mayor of London announced that he wished to receive funds to help the unemployed to emigrate. In twelve days only a few paltry pounds were collected, and, as a result, the Lord Mayor was compelled to close the fund and to return the few amounts that had been sent.

The British Public are, as a rule, however, only too willing to subscribe, and the names of a few funds will show how wide are their sympathies: Princess Alice disaster, Hungarian floods of 1879, Relief of Persecuted Russian Jews, Iceland Famine, Egypt Cholera, Gordon Memorial, Ottawa Fire of 1901, and the St. Vincent volcanic eruption of 1902.

A ROYAL DEBUTANTE

Princess Maud Will be Introduced at the Courts of the Coming Season—Duke of Fife's Daughter

Pretty Princess Maud, the younger daughter of the Princess Royal and the Duke of Fife, will be one of the most interesting debutantes at the coming season's Courts. She is two years younger than her sister—tall, fair-haired Princess Alexandra—who came out, not at a Court function, but at a ball given by Lady Farquhar for the late King and Queen Alexandra. To King Edward Princess Maud was much devoted, and was a great favorite with his Majesty. She is clever, and can speak fluently in French, German and Italian. In disposition she is lively, adventurous, fearless, and full of initiative; and if at one time she was always getting her sister into trouble, she was always getting her out of it again. It was merry Princess Maud who called her mother, who is extremely retiring, "Her Royal Shyness." The presentation of a Royal Princess is always of great interest. She is not, of course, formally presented, but enters the Throne room where the presentations are made, with the Royal party, and sits behind their Majesties while the Court is in progress with other members of the Royal family. After her debut, she usually appoints a lady-in-waiting, who escorts her to any social functions she may attend.

HOW KING GEORGE PAYS HIS BILLS

His Majesty Has a Detailed Statement of Household Accounts Made Out Every Half Year

A keen business man, King George, although he never sees his regular household accounts, has a detailed statement of these made out every half year, and submitted to him for approval. These accounts are kept by the clerical staff in the department of the Master of the Household, and are paid by the Keeper of the Privy Purse. The household accounts are paid once a month, and all the servants' wages are paid monthly, but His Majesty's private accounts are settled every quarter.

The clerk in charge of them makes out a statement of the accounts, which is submitted to the King, who then gives his cheque for the total amount to the clerk, by whom they are discharged. It may be mentioned, says the "Tatler," that the King never bargains about the price of anything he purchases. If the price charged is exorbitant, the tradesman loses the Royal custom; but this, however, rarely or never happens.

While household accounts for food, etc., are paid once a month, some articles are supplied by contract, such as coal. A great deal of work is also done at Buckingham Palace by contract, such as window-cleaning, chimney-sweeping, and carpet-cleaning, and the glass frames of a number of pictures are also cleaned under contract.

With reference to the private accounts of His Majesty, it is interesting to note that he is scarcely so extravagant as his father. The late King rarely wore the same suit of clothes more than half-a-dozen times, and often only once or twice, whilst King George frequently wears a suit three or four dozen times before it is removed from the Royal wardrobe. As a matter of fact, King George spends a trifle less than $450 a year on clothes, which is four or five times less than the late King's expenditure in the same direction. Of course, the cost of His Majesty's uniforms amounts to a considerable sum, and His Majesty is an excellent customer to his bootmaker. For some of his walking boots he pays as much as five guineas a pair, and his bootmaker's bill runs to about $300 a year.

MRS. MONTAGUE ELIOT

LORD KITCHENER

He May Prefer a Quiet Life in the Country to a Military Appointment

Sundry scribes are again interesting themselves in the question of employment for Lord Kitchener, but it is by no means certain that he is so anxious for an active post as it would appear. He recently purchased Broome Park, a fine old place near Canterbury, with the intention of making himself a home, and it is quite possible that he might prefer the quiet life of a country gentleman in a lovely part of the country where can can indulge in his hobby to the fullest extet, to accepting an appointment which could bring him no more honor than he has already obtained.

PROVIDING FOR THE WORKPEOPLE

Invalidity Insurance in England Will Not Conflict With Old Age Pensions

The English people are beginning to realize the vast importance of the Liberal Government's scheme of invalidity insurance, which is now being eagerly discussed in ever yfactory and workshop, mine and quarry, in the servants' hall of West-End mansions, and humble farm kitchens. The invalidity insurance, as proposed by the Government, is quite a thing apart from old age pensions and unemployment insurance. There is no idea of changing the basis of old age pensions as at present administered. Invalidity insurance is an extension only. Old age pensions of $1.25 a week will still be granted on a non-contributory basis to qualified persons over the age of seevnty. For this reason, the insurance scheme will come to an end at seventy, and there will be no overlapping. Contributions to invalidity insurance will begin at an age not lower than sixteen years and not higher than eighteen years. Again, invalidity insurance is quite distinct from unemployment insurance as outlined by the Board of Trade. Unemployment insurance is intended for men and women who are able and willing to work but cannot find a job. Invalidity insurance is meant for men and women who are debarred from working through continued ill-health. Unemployment insurance will be compulsory only for the building, shipbuilding, and engineering trades—that is, for two and a half million workers. Invalidity insurance will be compulsory and universal for all persons between the ages of sixteen or eighteen and seventy whose income is less than $800 a year. Unemployment insurance supplements the work of trade unions; invalidity insurance supplements the work of friendly societies. The details of the invalidity insurance are still secret. On November 4 Mr. Lloyd George handed a draft of it to Mr. Barnes, the Grand Master of the Manchester Unity of Odd-Fellows. The documents kere, however, communicated on Cabinet terms, and Mr. Barnes was forbidden to make them public. Contributions to the scheme will, as in the case of unemployment insurance, be derived from the worker, the state, and the employer. The amount of the combined contribution is unknown, and the proportions to be paid by the three parties respectively is also not known. Conjecture has set one-half for the insured person, one-quarter for the employer, and one-quarter for the state.

BLACK SNOW

A Remarkable Phenomenon in Emmenthal Valley

Black snow has fallen in the valley of Emmenthal and on the surrounding mountains to a depth of 15 inches in the valley, covering the white snow which lay on the ground and giving the district a dismal appearance. The first flakes were of a grey color, as if mixed with ashes, but as the downfall increased the snow took the hue of soot, and now it lies frozen on the ground black in color. Swiss scientists attribute the phenomenon to the volcanic dust thrown into the air by the recent eruption of Mount Etna and carried by the wind over the sea and Alps into Switzerland. The incident, though rare, has been experienced in this country on previous occasions, when "red" snow and "grey" rain fell, after volcanic eruptions in various parts of the world.

WHO WAS THE BEST JOCKEY

The Earl of Coventry Gives Fordham First Place

The Earl of Coventry, who has been connected with the Turf for over half a century, has been giving some of his impressions to the "Standard." With regard to jockeys, he says:—"The best that has ever been, to my thinking, was George Fordham. He had perfect hands and a sound knowledge of pace. I would certainly put him by himself, and I think him the best rider I ever saw. Fred Archer was another wonderful jockey. I have seen him win by sheer determination. The win of his on Ben d'Or at Epsom was a rare piece of determined horsemanship. As to the American system of riding, I was always very much opposed to it, but I am afraid it has come to stay."

SELL BIG ESTATE

Duke of Bedford Has Decided to Sell His Property

With the prospect of a long political life still ahead of Mr. Lloyd George, English Dukes and noblemen of lesser degree are no longer anxious as before to hold on to their landed estates, and this is the reason why the Duke of Bedford has decided to sell his whole Tavistock estate, rather than face the disgraceful possibility of having to pay taxes on it. Practically the entire town of Tavistock will be included in the sale. The local authorities are taking time by the forelock, and negotiations are now proceeding between them and the Duke for the purchase by the town of valuable properties. These include the markets, market rights, and tolls, slaughter-house, the buildings which adjoin the markets, including the town hall, the Council buildings, swimming bath, wharf south of the canal, meadows, pleasure ground, and frog meadow adjoining it, waterworks and water supply.

UP TO DATE MORALS FOR ALL

Elephant's Favor the Hare's Undoing. Melancholy Fate of the Unsatisfied Turtle—The Peasant's Blunders—Iceman Haled to Court Puzzles the Judge.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.]

ONE day a Hare, who was being pursued by a Fox, came upon the Elephant and paused to exclaim:

"Alas, if you do not extend your aid I shall be caught and devoured!"

"So Reynard is after you, eh?" queried the Elephant. "Well, no one shall appeal to me in vain. As the Fox cannot climb trees, you will be eminently safe on a limb. Up you go."

With his trunk the Elephant carefully picked up the Hare and as carefully placed her on a bough twenty feet above his back, then started away with the feeling that he had done a good action and would some day be rewarded for it. As for the Hare, she called out that, having no claws to cling with, she must soon fall to the ground, but she was unheard, and down she fell just in time to be snapped up by the arriving Fox.

Moral.—In seeking to aid us our friends often prove our undoing.

Sage, Lobster and Turtle.

As the Sage was taking his daily walk on the seashore a Lobster came out of the water and complainingly said:

"O Sage, I am wretched and cast down and was thinking of suicide as you hove in sight."

"Is it Wall street?" asked the Sage.

"Far worse, O wise man."

"Case of love, or hast thy wife eloped?"

"O Sage, it is that I am a Lobster! Behold me! See what an ungainly body! Notice my claws! People look at me and shrink aside and then exclaim in admiration at the sea Gull. You will say that nothing can take the place of broiled lobster and lobster salad, but remember to furnish them I must be boiled alive."

FATE OF AN UNSATISFIED LOBSTER.

"And wouldst thou be a Gull?"

"If it can be so it would delight me."

"Well, you can try it for awhile. Away you go."

As a Gull the Lobster found that he had even more enemies than before, and after a hunter had shot away his tailfeathers he asked that he might become a Turtle. The Sage winked at himself and ordered the change, but only a few hours had passed when the Turtle desired to be changed into a Shark. Being pursued by man and having only just escaped with his life, he begged to become a Whale.

"Anything to accommodate," answered the Sage, and the thing was done, but in plowing his way along the shore the big fish grounded and became the prey of some fishermen.

The Peasant and the Robber.

The Peasant was awakened at night by his wife, who told him that she heard the footsteps of an intruder. The man at once arose and opened the door and called a welcome.

"Thou hast money in the house!" cried the prowler.

"I hast."

"Give it to me at once or I will take it by force!"

"Thou needst not exert thyself. Here is the coin—the only one I possess. Take it and fare thee well. I wish it were for twice the amount."

The prowler pocketed the coin and disappeared into the night, and next moment the Peasant's wife railed out:

"Moses Jones, you are the greatest fool in America!"

"Oh, I dunno," he replied.

"But I do. You invite a robber to come into the house and despoil us. Whoever heard of the like?"

"Peace, woman! I had but a single coin, and it was a counterfeit."

"Then you were a fool for getting stuck with it."

"Peace again! I found it on the highway."

"Then you were a fool for the third time for not trying to pass it. It might have bought me a pair of stockings."

"Once more, peace! There are other footsteps. It is an officer of the law coming to arrest me for having counterfeit money in my possession. I have none. He must be convinced of my innocence."

"But the coin could have been tossed out of the window," protested the faultfinding wife. "For the fourth time thou hast made a fool of thyself!"

"And for the fourth time I say peace. Knowest thou not that our despoiler was Sam Andrews, our neighbor, with false whiskers on his chin. Ere this he has hidden the whiskers and could prove an alibi, but the coin is still in his pocket, and the officer will find it there. Neighbor Andrews is ever ready to lend his plow, but the double charge that will lie against him will rid us of a good neighbor and a bad man.

Moral.—A man may be four times a fool and still be wiser than a sage in some things.

The Peasant and the Tree.

In going to and from market the Peasant passed a tree which was not only a thing of beauty, but in season it was always loaded with delicious fruit. So much was he interested that he finally went to the Nurseryman and bought one and set it out on his own land. When two or three years had passed a Wayfarer who came that way saw the Peasant cutting the tree down and exclaiming in indignation against the dishonesty of mankind.

"What hast made thee angry, and why hast cut down such a valuable tree?" was asked.

"I went to the Nurseryman to buy a crabapple tree, and he assured me on his honor that this was one. I have cared for it for several years only to find out that he swindled me."

"Why, man, it is a Bartlett pear tree!"

"And what of that?"

"Its fruit is ten times as valuable as the crabapple. Instead of his swindling you he was the loser by much. As it is now, you have neither crabapples nor pears, and neither can you make a shade tree of that you have cut down."

Moral.—It was the mule who kicked the blacksmith that fell on the icy road going home and broke a leg.

The Iceman and the Judge.

A Citizen who was being supplied with twenty-five pounds of ice per day for a stated sum, but who found the weight short every day, had the delinquent brought into court and there stated his case. Not at all abashed, the Iceman pleaded that it was all the fault of the sun. He started to bring in twenty-five pounds of ice all right, and if the sun melted five pounds in transit the loss could not be justly charged to him. The summer sun was something beyond his control.

"It does seem as if your excuse had reason behind it," replied the Judge, "but still it leaves the plaintiff paying for what he does not get. It is so many pounds of ice for so much money. If the sun melts your ice it is no more than right that it also shrivels up the money he is to pay."

"But, O Judge, how can money grow less because of the sun?" protested the defendant.

"That's so—that's so."

"And, O Judge," put in the plaintiff, "how could his ice melt if he delivered it only after the sun had set?"

Moral.—That and similar cases have arisen that the world may not be barren of food for philosophical thought.

Hereditary Talent.

From the postoffice steps Freeman Davis watched Professor Lane cross the road and enter the wheelwright's shop on the opposite side.

"Goes in an' out free as you or me," Mr. Davis remarked to Jabez Sewall, "an' nobody knows how many letters he's entitled to write after his name."

Jabez nodded. "But what I can't just make out is how he come by all his smartness. Far's I know none of his forbears ever amounted to much in a lit'rary way."

"What you talkin' about?" Mr. Davis demanded warmly. "You know's well's I do that his father could spell Nebuchadnezzar quicker'n any other boy in school."—Youth's Companion.

A Novel Pet.

Let him whose homely mind is set
On taking to himself a pet
As facile as a fairy
Go get a little lamb with wool
Like that small beast who went to school
Each day with little Mary.

For me I like a little fun
And read my Lamb when day is done,
And, just to make it vary,
I take another kind with peas,
Because I find the meat agrees
With my own little Mary.

SALVATION ARMY SOCIAL CONGRESS

Representatives from the Army's Colonies All Over the World to Attend London Meeting

General Booth is arranging for this year one of the biggest things he has yet attempted. He has decided to hold in London in May an international Social Congress, to be attended by responsible representatives from nearly all the foreign and colonial territories, in addition to those of Great Britain and Ireland. The climax of the Congress will be a huge demonstration of the results of social work, with the Albert Hall as the stage, on Tuesday, May 9th.

"The Congress will be as representative as possible of every branch of the social side of the Salvation Army's work," said Major Perry, of the International Headquarters Staff. "Of course, there are some portions of our work of which we cannot give an ocular demonstration, such as the work among the lepers, the inebriates, and the fallen women. But many of the results of our foreign work and some of the most striking character will be demonstrated, and officers attending the Congress will have all the benefit of conference with each other, from which they will learn much of the varying methods employed in different countries."

"We shall demonstrate," he added, "how we have dealt with the famine children of India, the tramp and the unemployed in England, the use of the 'elevator' for the submerged, and the emigration office for the friendless. We shall show how we have taught the natives of India the art of weaving, and the criminals of the Dhom tribes how to earn an honest livelihood. Representatives from India will show how the children of the very poorest are being educated, and South African workers will show how the occupants of the native kraals have been changed."

SPORT IN AUSTRALIA

"Champagne in the Air," Said Sir George Reid, in Speaking of Health and Recreation

"Nature has been very generous to Australia in the way of climate," said Sir George Reid, the High Commissioner for Australia in a recent interview with a newspaper representative. "I was there for 57 years, and I may say that it often seemed to me that there was some sort of champagne in the atmosphere.

"The health and strength-giving qualities of the climate have been brought home to you by the performances of our cricketers and other champions in the arena of sport. The Australians excel in outdoor sports just as the people of the Mother Country have always done, and this in connection with their more serious exploits in the realms of industry shows, I think, not only that the people are right physically, but that they are a young people possessed of strength and grit and mental quickness and those other qualities which make for success in the more serious affairs of life.

"It is sometimes said that the Australians are too fond of sport, that they go in too much for play. But you must not forget that we are in the years of our national youth, and that we display the fondness of youth for amusements. We are rapidly approaching the stage of manhood, and rapidly developing our powers for the more serious strain which must be faced as our national life and responsibilities increase."

JAPAN'S FIGHTING PRINCE

Fushimi Will Attend the Coronation of King George

Prince Fushimi, of Japan, who is to represent the Emperor at the forthcoming Coronation of King George, will in all probability occupy the same quarters at York House as in 1907, when he came to this country to return the visit which was paid by Prince Arthur of Connaught, the head of the Garter Mission which had visited the Japanese capital in the previous winter. As an officer of the Imperial Army, Prince Fushimi took a notable part in the war with Russia, devoting his attention in the main to the question of transport and commissariat; and he also greatly distinguished himself in the war with China.

The New York owners of the condemned eggs at Montreal secured an injunction preventing the city destroying them until the case is argued to-morrow.

TERRIBLE NERVOUSNESS AND SICK HEADACHES

DOCTORS TREATED HER FOR YEARS

And Pronounced Her Case Incurable

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" RESTORED HER TO PERFECT HEALTH

The human body is the most wonderful machine in the realms of created things. Every part is related to every other part, all bound together by the marvellous Nervous System, which connects every organ to the brain. When anything goes wrong with any part of the body, the nerves carry the message of trouble and what we call "pain" is the result. Nervousness is not a disease in itself, but is the result of one or more of the really vital organs becoming diseased. It is the vain effort of the nerves, signalling for help, that weakens them and causes the excessive nervous attacks with which so many women suffer.

What glad news it will be to such women to read Mrs. Gadke's letter and learn that they can cure themselves of the dreadful Nervousness and Sick Headaches.

MRS. FRED GADKE.

LAKELET, ONTARIO, MAY 12th, 1910.

"Kindly publish this letter of mine if you think it will benefit other women who might be afflicted with the diseases I have had in the past, but am now, thanks to "Fruit-a-tives", completely cured of. It is my firm belief that every woman should take "Fruit-a-tives" if she wants to keep herself in good health.

Before taking "Fruit-a-tives", I was constantly troubled with what is commonly known as "Nerves", or severe Nervousness, and this Nervousness brought on the most violent attacks of Sick Headache, for which I was constantly taking doctor's medicines without any permanent relief.

Constipation was also a source of great trouble to me and for which the Doctors said "I would have to take medicine all my life", but "Fruit-a-tives" has banished all these troubles and I am now a well woman.

When I started taking "Fruit-a-tives", I took four at a time, but have reduced the dose so that it is only necessary for me to take one in a week, and that one dose every week keeps me well. I am glad to recommend "Fruit-a-tives" whenever the occasion presents itself and cheerfully authorize the publication of this letter as well as my photo". MRS. FRED GADKE.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the ideal medicine for women's use. Being made of pure fruit juices, the action is mild and the taste extremely pleasant. "Fruit-a-tives" not only regulates the bowels, tones up the stomach and purifies the blood—but also acts as a splendid tonic for both the nerves and the general system.

50c a box—6 for $2.50—trial size, 25c. If your dealer cannot supply you with "Fruit-a-tives", send regular retail price to Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

IMPERIAL PREFERENCE

Mr. Balfour, writing to a correspondent, says he is rather surprised at the information the latter seems to have received with regard to an impression which prevails in Canada as to the attitude of the Unionist party towards preference. This, Mr. Balfour declares, he could assure his correspondent has undergone no change, and, so far as he was concerned, the development of the commercial treaty system throughout the world had strengthened his conviction that Imperial preference is a necessity.

DANCING AND LONGEVITY

The Paris correspondent of the "Standard," discussing the question of dancing and longevity, points out that the celebrated Vestris died at the age of 80, and his son is now 102, with a cousin 90 years old. Petitpa lived to the ripe age of 80, and his brother reached 95 before dying at St. Petersburg in 1898; and the brother of Mermute, an old favorite of the Paris Opera, recently expired at Rouen at the age of 102.

WIRELESS ON BATTLESHIPS

A very complete system of wireless telegraph and telephone apparatus has just been installed on the French battleships Verit and Justice. The two battleships are to proceed to Algeria, and from there will be made various experiments between the Algerian and Tunisian coasts, Corsica, and France. Owing to the high power of the new apparatus, we may expect to see some interesting results. Lieutenants Collin and Jeance, whose new wireless telephone method we have illustrated, are actively engaged in this work.

SURE SIGNS

OF KIDNEY TROUBLE.

If your back is constantly aching and your kidneys are out of order. If your urine is thick and cloudy or your passages frequent, scanty, and painful, your kidneys and bladder are out of order. Neglect quickly brings on rheumatism, diabetis, lumbago, sciatica and etc.

Mrs. John Wagner, of 110 Hollis St., Halifax, N. S., says: "Dull, shooting pains would catch me across the small part of my back and extend into my shoulders and neck, often causing me to suffer with severe headaches and spells of dizziness. Spots would dazzle before my eyes and everything would turn black. I would fall to the floor and be unable to get up again without assistance. A friend told me of Booth's Kidney Pills and I began their use. The first box gave me relief and now I am well and strong."

All druggists sell Booth's kidney pills, 50c a box with a guarantee to relieve or your money back. They are greatest specific for kidney and bladder trouble.

VALUABLE PEARLS HAVE BEEN FOUND

And Discovery Will Revive Interest in the Australian Fisheries

Messages were received by cable in Maiden Lane telling that three large and valuable pearls have been found near Port Hedland on the coast of West Australia, and are now on the way to Paris. Dealers from New York are invited to go to Paris and inspect the pearls, and there is likely to be spirited bidding by collectors from all parts of the world for their possession.

The only detailed description of the pearls thus far received is that the largest weighs 56 grains, and the smallest is valued at $35,000.

The finding of a perfect pearl of more than 50 grains in weight is a rare occurrence, one of the leading dealers said, and the finding of three highly valuable pearls at one time and in one place is unusual. There is a system, he said, of fixing the prices of small pearls by means of what is called the basic or multiple price a grain. In this way the basic price a grain is multiplied by the square of the weight expressed in grains. For instance, on a 5-grain pearl the basic price of $4.50 a grain is multiplied by the square of 5. But the basic price gets higher on the larger pearls and has been ranging from $8 to $11 on pearls of 10 to 15 grains, these higher prices being also multiplied by the square of the number of grains. But above 15 or 20 grains in weight a pearl breaks away from all rule and goes upward in price even faster than by geometrical progression.

That is why, the dealer thought, the finders of the three new pearls have estimated the value only of the smallest of the three gems. He said the size of the largest of these pearls weighing 56 grains, has been exceeded in several instances, and prices as high as $50,000, and even $75,000 have been paid for a single pearl, but only for the most celebrated of all the pearls that have ever been found.

Importers here long have been trying to get fine large specimens of Australian pearls, but the supply has been failing of recent years. One of the importers has what is conceded to be the most valuable string of Australian pearls in the world, and this necklace represents years of work. The owner of this necklace said the central pearl cost him about $20,009. He has not put a price on the entire string. As to the new pearls just found he saw no reason for thinking the estimated value of the smallest of the three was exaggerated.

It would be impossible, the importer said, to obtain pearls finer or more perfect than those in his necklace, although larger pearls may be found. The pearls in his string are so exactly graduated as to size that he did not believe any additions could be used to advantage, but he, or a representative, will examine the new pearls when they arrive in Paris.

Interest in the Australian pearl fisheries will be revived by this discovery of fine pearls, the dealers say. Of late the India and Ceylon fisheries have furnished the world with most of the fine pearls, and it has been feared the Australian fisheries were dying out, although much was hoped from them a few years ago.

Eat and Get Thin

This is turning an old phrase face about but modern methods of reducing fat have made this revision possible.

If you are overfat and also averse to physical exertion and likewise fond of the table and still want to reduce your excess flesh several pounds do this: Go to your druggist or write to the Marmola Co., 1181, Farmer Bldg. Detroit, Mich. and give him (or send them) 75 cents. For this modest amount of money the druggist will put you in the way of satisfying your ambition for a nice trim slim figure. He will hand you a large case of Marmola Prescription Tablets (compounded in acordance with the famous Marmola Prescription) one of which you must take after each meal and at bedtime until you begin to lose your fat at the rate of from 12 to 16 ounces a day. That is all. Just go on eating what you like, leave exercising to the athletes, but take your little tablet faithfully and without doubt that flabby flesh will take unto itself wings, leaving behind it your natural self, neatly clothed in firm flesh and trim muscles.

Most people are content—while asleep.

Reunited

A Kidnaping Leads to a Happy Christmas

By ANDREW D. MORTON

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

I have a faint recollection of stockings hanging to the mantle, a lovely face over my crib and a lady taking me up and kissing me passionately. I remember distinctly that she was weeping. Then she put me down on my pillow, and I went to sleep.

This is all I remember of a Christmas for many years. I was brought up by my father and had no knowledge of my mother. The Christmas season, which was so enjoyable to other children, never brought happiness to me. As it approached my father grew gloomy, and I was sent away to spend Christmas day at some other home.

When I became old enough to wonder why I did not have a mother like other boys I wished to know, yet dreaded to ask.

One day—it was the last day of study before Christmas, when I was eight years old, coming from school—a carriage drew up at the curb beside me, the door opened, and a lady beckoned to me to come to her. I did so, and, taking my hand, she gave me a very sweet smile and drew me into the carriage. Then she shut the door and ordered the coachman to drive on. Her expression was so lovable and loving that I had no fear.

"I HEARD MY FATHER'S VOICE."

The streets were full of shoppers making their last purchases before Christmas. There were children peering into the windows at the display of toys, which were already beginning to be lighted artificially. Sitting by the lady, remembering the many dull Christmas days I had spent and another dull one before me, I felt a comfort, a pleasure, I had never experienced before. How I wished that she could go home with me to make a Christmas for me! She, too, seemed to me to be thinking of the same thing. She said nothing to me, only held my hand in hers. I longed to throw my arms about her neck and ask her if she would not be my mother.

It was between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon when I was taken up, and as it was winter, when the days are short, it soon began to grow dark.

"I'm afraid," I said to the lady, "that papa will be worried about me. He always expects me to go home direct from school."

The only response I received was a pressure of the hand she held. In a few moments I said again, "I think I will get out here and go home."

She replied to this by putting her arm about my waist. There was something in the act that indicated an intention on her part to prevent my leaving her. For the first time it occurred to me that I was being kidnaped. I thought of my father waiting for me and wondering why I did not come home, and this troubled me, but it did not occur to me that I should meet with any harm at the hands of the lady.

Presently the carriage drew up in front of a dwelling house. The lady got out and, still holding my hand, drew me after her. She took me up to the house and into a pretty room where a bright fire was blazing on a hearth.

"You are very kind," I said, "to take me to ride and bring me to your house, but I'm sure papa will be troubled about me. Unless I'm to go home at once I think you had better let me send a message to him. Have you a telephone?"

She thought a moment, then said: "Certainly. Telephone by all means."

She took me to the telephone, looked in the address book, found my father's number and instructed the central office to call it up. Then when the connection was effected she placed a stool before the phone and handed me the receiver, standing beside me as I talked.

"Is that you, papa?" I asked.

My father was evidently relieved to hear my voice and asked me at once what had happened and where I was. I told him that a beautiful lady whom I had never seen before had taken me to drive and then to her home.

"Tell him," said the lady, "that you are to spend Christmas with me."

I did as she bid me and added at her request that she intended to make me some slight atonement for the many Christmases that I had been deprived of the pleasures common to other children.

There was silence for a few moments; then my father asked me to describe the lady. I did so, and he asked me if I could give him the street and number, but I could do neither. Then the lady told me to say to him that she was Cornelia; that I would be carefully guarded and he needn't worry about me at all. Then she hung up the receiver and led me back into the room with the fire on the hearth.

Now, the name Cornelia at once arrested my attention. A year before when I had entered the third grade at school my father had brought down a desk from the garret for my use. I was to keep my books and papers in it, and it was to be my study desk in the evening. In clearing it out I had looked over several old papers that were in it, and in one I had seen this name Cornelia. More than this, the contents of the paper had impressed me. I could not remember the name signed to it, but it was a woman's name. She was evidently very ill and very penitent about some sin she had committed.

Now that my father knew I was safe I sat down on a sofa beside the lady and before the cheerful fire. She put her arms about me and rested her cheek against mine. I was very happy.

"So you are Cornelia," I said.

"What do you know about Cornelia?" she asked quickly. "Have you heard your father speak of me?"

"No, papa never mentioned the name; I saw it on a paper—a letter, I think."

"What paper. What letter?"

"One I found in a desk papa had the butler bring down from the garret for me to use for a home school desk."

"What was written on the paper?"

"Somebody was very sorry for something she had done to Cornelia. She said she was very sick."

"Who was very sick?"

"Why, the person who wrote the letter."

"Who wrote it?"

"I can't remember the name."

The lady asked the last few questions feverishly. She eagerly asked another. Would I know the name if I heard it? I replied that I thought I would. Then she asked if it was Amy.

"Yes," I replied; "that's it, Amy."

The lady gave me a fierce hug, then asked tremblingly what I had done with the letter. I told her that I had put all the papers I had found in the desk together and given them to the housekeeper to put away.

"Come with me," said the lady. "I wish you to tell your father something." She drew me to the telephone, called up my father, then, placing me in position to talk, told me what to say.

"Papa, ask Mrs. Crimmins for the papers I took out of my desk. You will find one among them signed Amy, with something in it about Cornelia. I will hold the wire till I hear from you."

I heard a click and knew that my father had gone to do as I had indicated. Cornelia awaited another call with feverish anxiety. Ten minutes had not elapsed when there was a ring. Then I heard my father's voice saying:

"I have read Amy's letter. Since all is explained I see no reason why your location should remain a secret. Tell the lady that if you give it to me I will come to join you immediately."

I received permission to give the street and number, and within twenty minutes there was a sharp ring at the doorbell. My father entered. He and the lady stood regarding each other for a few moments; then he knelt before her and said:

"Forgive me."

He rose, and they were clasped in each other's arms.

But I, having no mind to be left out of these transports, running up to them, said:

"Won't you take me in too?"

My father took me up and held me in his arms, while the lady put hers about me also, covering me with kisses.

"To think," she said, "that you should have been the means of bringing this matter to light!"

"I have been a fool," said my father, "to believe anything that fiend said;" then to me:

"My boy, this is your mother. Prompted by a malicious woman who wrote a confession which she had not either the courage or sufficient time before her death to send, I treated mamma very cruelly."

"Are you the lady," I asked of my mother, "whom I remember taking me up from my crib one night when you were crying and kissing me?"

"That was a goodby, though you were too young to know it. I left you suddenly on Christmas eve."

"And I have a faint remembrance of stockings hanging from the mantel."

"Everything was ready for your first Christmas—that is, the first you could appreciate—when—when"—

"I listened to a she devil," said my father angrily, "and caused all this suffering."

"It is all past now," my mother interposed. "Another Christmas is before us. When I kidnaped our boy I did not dream I was to bring about a reunion for us all."

At that moment dinner was announced, and my mother proposed that we should all sit down together. But father would not hear of it. He had a carriage at the door and insisted that we should go to the home from which mother had been driven a decade before and make the reunion complete under our own rooftree.

Never can I forget that Christmas. My mother in a short time made great preparations, but it was not these that were a delight to us all—it was that we were a reunited family.

TAXES ON TITLES TOTAL $16,350

What the Recent New Year Honors Cost—Money Goes to Inland Revenue Fund

Should the exigencies of the political situation bring about the creation of five hundred new Peers a nice little sum would be added to the nation's revenue in the way of fees. Indeed, it has been suggested at times that the Chancellor of the Exchequer, when endeavoring to make up a deficit on the Budget, might do worse than follow the example of James I., who, when desperately hard-up, created, on the suggestion of the Earl of Salisbury, a couple of hundred baronets, each of whom paid $5,000 for the dignity. Fees have been considerably reduced, however, since "the wisest fool in Christendom," as Sully described James I., invented the order of baronets in England. Nowadays the granting of letters patent to a baronet costs only $500, payable to the Board of Inland Revenue. There were nine baronets in the list of New Year's honors, and six Privy Councillors, twenty-five knights, nineteen recipients of Colonial honors, fourteen recipients of South African honors, and fifteen recipients of Indian honors, each of whom will have to pay $150. The Inland Revenue authorities will thus receive $16,350 altogether.

These amounts do not include the stamp duty incurred in taking out a coat of arms, nor the charges of the Heralds' College for the using of letters patent. For designing a coat of arms and granting letters patent for its use the Heralds' College charge $338. Assuming that the eighty-eight recipients of honors all decide to take out letters patent to the right of armorial bearings the whole cost of the New Year's honors will be over $50,000.

The absence of any peerages in the new honors list makes a considerable difference to this form of revenue, for a duke has to pay $1,750, a marquess $1,500, an earl $1,250, a viscount $1,000, and a baron $750. Then, again the Knighthood of the Garter entails $1,000 in fees. It may be remembered that Lord Roberts objected to paying a bill for $3,750, which was presented to him after accepting an earldom in 1901, and complained still more when he found that his acceptance of the Garter entailed a total expenditure of close upon $5,000.

Even this, however, was not quite such a costly distinction as being made a Scottish baronet in the time of Charles I., who compelled every man so honored to pay $15,000. As a set-off to this heavy fee the patents down to 1638 included a grant of specified land in Nova Scotia. Unfortunately, this grant did not prove of much advantage, for long before 1633 the colony had passed into the hands of the French.

Holy Rood Palace Has Been a Royal Residence Since James IV.'s Reign

Soon after the Coronation the King and Queen will visit Scotland and hold a Levee and a Court in Holyrood Palace. The date of the visit is not yet fixed, but it is possible that it will take place during July. It is expected that the King and Queen will reside in the Palace during their stay in Edinburgh. It will be remembered that in May, 1903, nine months after their Coronation, King Edward and Queen Alexandra went to Scotland and held a Levee and a Court at Holyrood—for the first time for 80 years. Their Majesties did not, however, take up their residence in the Palace, but occupied Dalkeith House, which was placed at their disposal by the Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch. Holyrood Palace has been a Royal residence since the days of James IV. Portions of it were destroyed by fire in 1544 and in 1650, and were rebuilt, on the second occasion by Sir William Bruce and Robert Mylne, the King's Master-Mason for Scotland. It continued to be the home of the King of Scotland until James VI. succeeded to the Throne of England. After James VI. came to England Holyrood was only used occasionally as a Royal residence. In August, 1860, and again in 1881 the Queen held reviews of Scotish Volunteers at Holyrood. King Edward and his brother, the Duke of Edinburgh, lived in the Palace while attending Edinburgh University.

Coins found a few weeks ago in a Roman vase in a field upon a farm at Edwinstowe, Nottinghamshire, comprise 309 denarii dating from 69 to 192 A.D. Although these coins must have been buried for seventeen centuries, they are in a perfect state of preservation.

A QUERY ON HER MIND.

Things Mr. Henpeck Said Causes His Wife to Surmise.

"Mme. Cavalieri says she doesn't care for money," said Horace Henpeck.

"Well," his wife answered, "would you care to be married to such a woman as she is?"

"No, my dear, I assure you I shouldn't. Still, it seems to me that too many women nowadays think money is the only thing that is worth while."

"Do you mean to insinuate that I am sticking to you merely because I want the money you are able to give me?"

"I didn't wish to convey any such idea, my love."

"Oh! Then I suppose you are egotistical enough to think your charms of person and manner are sufficient to make me crazy about you!"

"I had hoped you might care for me for my good points."

"Your good points? What do you mean by that?"

"It would be pretty hard to explain if you don't understand. I suppose there are women who love men because of their fine manhood."

"Their fine manhood! Ha, ha, ha! I should like to see the woman who could get enthusiastic over your fine manhood. Don't flatter yourself that any such women exists. Have you had the idea that I was enthusiastic about you because of your fine manhood?"

"No, sweetheart," he answered as he began to stealthily move toward the door; "my idea is that you are sticking to me because you feel that I should at once pine and die if I were to lose you."

After he had escaped she indulged for several minutes in deep thought and then, with a worried look upon her face, said to herself:

"I wonder if it is possible that he can be leading a double life."—Chicago Record-Herald.

AN UNREAD REPORT.

The Methods of Barney Barnato In His Mining Ventures.

Barney Barnato before the tragic termination of his career was widely known because of his large fortune won in mining ventures. His rapid accumulation of wealth was popularly attributed to luck, but luck of the persistent variety usually rests upon a more solid basis than mere chance. An insight to Barnato's methods is afforded by an incident recently related by A. A. Blow, an American engineer once in Barnato's employ. After an exhaustive examination of a mine whose purchase was under consideration Blow prepared an elaborate and voluminous report. It was accompanied by maps and selections and was a piece of work of which the engineer felt that he could be justly proud. When it was handed to Barnato to read, however, the latter laid it aside unopened.

"Tell me about it," he said.

Blow proceeded to make an oral report.

Barnato dozed. Finally he exclaimed:

"I employed you because I think you know something about this business, and I do not. Now, I do not want to hear all of this scientific rot about this mine. All I want you to tell me is whether it is good business?"

Blow told him "No."

"Then that settles it," said Barnato. "You are willing to accept the responsibility of turning down this property at the price offered?"

"Yes," was Blow's reply, "but I want you to examine the reports, maps, assays, plans, etc., and see the reasons I have for my conclusions."

"Why should I do this?" Barnato inquired. "You tell me that it is not 'good business.' And as I cannot understand your report why should I waste my time on anything that is not good business?"—Moody's Magazine.

THE RED YEAR

A Story of the Indian Mutiny

—By—

LOUIS TRACY

CHAPTER I.

The Meshes of the Net

On a day in January, 1857, a sepoy was sitting by a well in the cantonment of Dum-Dum, near Calcutta. Though he wore the uniform of John Company, and his rank was the lowest in the native army, he carried on his forehead the caste-marks of the Brahmin. In a word, he was more than noble, being of sacred birth, and the Hindu officers of his regiment, if they were not heaven-born Brahmins, would grovel before him in secret, though he must obey their slightest order on parade or in the field.

To him approached a Lascar.

"Brother," said the newcomer "lend me your brass pot, so that I may drink, for I have walked far in the sun."

The sepoy started as though a snake had stung him. Lascars, the sailormen of India, were notoriously free-and-easy in their manners. Yet how came it that even a low-caste mongrel of a Lascar should offer such an overt insult to a Brahmin!

"Do you know, swine-begotten, that your hog's lips would contaminate my lotah?" asked he, putting the scorn of centuries into the words.

"Contaminate!" grinned the Lascar, neither frightened nor angered. "By holy Ganga, it is your lips that are contaminated, not mine. Are not the Government greasing your cartridges with cow's fat? And can you load your rifle without biting the forbidden thing? Learn more about your own caste, brother, before you talk so proudly to others."

Not a great matter, this squabble between a sepoy and a Lascar, yet it lit such a flame in India that rivers of blood must be shed ere it was quenched. The Brahmin's mind reeled under the shock of the retort. It was true, then, what the agents of the dethroned King of Oudh were saying in the bazaar. The Government were bent on the destruction of Brahminical supremacy. He and his caste-fellows would lose all that made life worth living. But they would exact a bitter price for their fall from high estate.

"Kill!" he murmured in his frenzy, as he rushed away, to tell his comrades the lie that made the Indian Mutiny possible. "Slay and spare not! Let us avenge our wrongs so fully that no accursed Feringhi shall dare again to come hither across the Black Water!"

The lie and the message flew through India with the inconceivable speed with which such ill tidings always travels in that country. Ever north went the news that the British Raj was doomed. Hindu fakirs, aglow with religious zeal, Mussalman zealots, as eager for dominance in this world as for a houri-tenanted Paradise in the next, carried the fiery torch of rebellion far and wide. And so the flame spread, and was fanned to red fury, though the eyes of few Englishmen could see it, while native intelligence was aghast at the supineness of their over-lords.

One evening in the month of April, a slim, straight-backed girl stood in the veranda of a bungalow at Meerut. Her slender figure, garbed in white muslin, was framed in a creeper-covered arch. The fierce ardor of an Indian spring had already kissed into life a profusion of red flowers amid the mass of greenery, and, if Winifred Mayne had sought an effective setting for her own fair picture, she could not have found one better fitted to its purpose.

But she was young enough and pretty enough to pay little heed to pose or background. In fact, so much of her smooth brow as could be seen under a broad-brimmed straw hat was wrinkled in a decided frown. Happily, her bright brown eyes had a glint of humor in them, for Winifred's wrath was an evanescent thing, a pallid sprite, rarely seen, and ever ready to be banished by a smile.

"There!" she said, tugging at a refractory glove. "Did you hear it? It actually shrieked as it split. And this is the second pair. I shall never again believe a word Behari Lal says. Wait till I see him. I'll give him such a talking to."

"Then I have it in my heart to envy Behari Lal," said her companion, glancing up at her from the carriageway that ran by the side of the few steps leading down from the veranda.

"Indeed! May I ask why?" she demanded.

"Because you yield him a privilege you deny to me."

"I was not aware you meant to call to-day. As it is, I am paying a strictly ceremonial visit. I wish I could speak Hindustani. Now, what would you say to Behari Lal in such a case?"

"I hardly know. When I buy gloves, I buy them of sufficient size. Of course you have small hands—"

"Thank you. Please don't trouble to explain. And now, as you have been rude to me, I shall not take you to see Mrs. Meredith."

"But that is a kindness."

"Then you shall come, and be miserable."

"For your sake, Miss Mayne, I would face Medusa, let alone the excellent wife of our Commissary-General, but fate, in the shape of an uncommonly headstrong Arab, forbids. I have just secured a new charger, and he and I have to decide this evening whether I go where he wants to go, or he goes where I want to go. I wheedled him into your compound by sheer trickery. The really definite issue will be settled forthwith on the Grand Trunk Road."

"I hope you are not running any undue risk," said the girl, with a sudden note of anxiety in her voice that was sweetest music to Frank Malcolm's ears. For an instant he had a mad impulse to ask if she cared, but he crushed it ruthlessly, and his bantering reply gave no hint of the tumult in his breast. Yet he feared to meet her eyes, and was glad of a saluting sepoy who swaggered jauntily past the open gate.

"I don't expect to be deposited in the dust, if that is what you mean," he said. "But there is a fair chance that instead of carrying me back to Meerut my friend Nejdi will take me to Aligarh. You see he is an Arab of mettle. If I am too rough with him, it will break his spirit; if too gentle, he will break my neck. He needs the main de fer sous le gant de velours. Please forgive me! I really didn't intend to mention gloves again."

"Oh, go away, you and your Arab. You are both horrid. You dine here to-morrow night, my uncle said?"

"Yes, if I don't send you a telegram from Aligarh. I may be brought there, you know, against my will."

Lifting his hat, he walked towards a huge pipal tree in the compound. Beneath its far-flung branches a syce was sitting in front of a finely-proportioned and unusually big Arab horse. Both animal and man seemed to be dozing but they woke into activity when the sahib approached. The Arab pricked his ears, swished his long and arched tail viciously, and showed the whites of his eyes. A Bedouin of the desert, a true scion of the incomparable breed of Nejd, he was suspicious of civilization, and his new owner was a stranger, as yet.

It left her rather flushed and breathless.

"I like Mr. Malcolm," she confided to herself with a little laugh, "but his manner with women is distinctly brusque! I wonder why!" [illegible]

The Grand Trunk Road ran to left and right. To the left it led to the bazaar, the cantonment, and the civil lines; to the right, after passing a few houses tenanted by Europeans, it entered the open country on a long stretch of over a thousand miles to Calcutta and the South. In 1857 no thoroughfare in the world equalled the Grand Trunk Road. Beginning at Peshawur, in the extreme north of India, it traversed the Punjab for six hundred miles as far as Aligarh. Here it broke into the Calcutta and Bombay branches, each nearly a thousand miles in length. Straight, well made and tree-lined throughout it supplied the two great arteries of Indian life. Malcolm had selected it as a training-ground that evening because he meant to weary and subdue his too highly spirited charger. Whether the pace was fast or slow Nejdi would be compelled to meet many varieties of traffic, from artillery elephants and snarling camels down to the humble bullock-cart of the ryot. Possibly, he would not shy at such monstrosities after twenty miles of lathering ride.

The mad pace set by the Arab when he heard the clatter of his feet on the hard road chimed in with the turbulent mood of his rider. Frank Malcolm was a soldier by choice and instinct. When he joined the Indian army, and became a subaltern in a native cavalry regiment, he determined to devote himself to his profession. He gave his whole thought to it and to nothing else. His interests lay in his work. He regarded everything from the point of view of its influence on his military education, so it may be conceded instantly that the arrival in Meerut of an Oudh Commissioner's pretty niece should not have affected the peace of mind of this budding Napoleon.

But a nice young woman can find joints in the armor of the sternest-souled young man. Her attack is all the more deadly if it be unpremeditated, and Frank Malcolm had already reached the self-depreciatory stage wherein a comparatively impecunious subaltern asks himself the sad question whether it be possible for such a one to woo and wed a maid of high degree, or her Anglo-Indian equivalent, an heiress of much prospective wealth and present social importance.

But money and rank are artificial, the mere varnish of life, and the hot breath of reality can soon scorch them out of existence. Events were then shaping themselves in India that wer destined to sweep aside convention for many a day. Had the young Englishman known it, five miles from Meerut his Arab's hoofs threw pebbles over a swarthy moullah, lank and travel-stained, who was hastening towards the Punjab on a dreadful errand. The man turned and cursed him as he passed, and bowed with bitter venom that when the time of reckoning came there would not be a Feringhi left in all the land. Malcolm, however, would have laughed had he heard. Affairs of state did not concern him. His only trouble was that Winifred Mayne stood on a pinnacle far removed from the beaten path of a cavalry subaltern. So, being in a rare fret and fume, he let the gray Arab gallop himself white, and, when the high-mettled Nejdi thought of easing the pace somewhat he was urged onward with the slight but utterly unprecedented prick of a spur.

That was a degradation not to be borne. The Calcutta Brahmin did not resent the Lascar's taunt more keenly. With a swerve that almost unseated Malcolm, the Arab dashed in front of a bullock-cart, swept between the trees on the west side of the road, leaped a broad ditch, and crashed into a field of millet. Another ditch, another field, breast high with tall castor-oil plants, a frantic race through a grove of mangoes—when Malcolm had to lie flat on Nejdi's neck to avoid being swept off by the low branches—and horse and man dived headlong into deep water.

The splash, for more than the ducking, frightened the horse. Malcolm, in that instant of prior warning which the possessor of steady nerves learns tod use so well, disengaged his feet from the stirrups. He was thrown clear, and, when he came to the surface, he saw that the Arab and himself were floundering in a moat. Not the pleasantest of bathing-places anywhere, in India such a sheet of almost stagnant water has excessive peculiarities. Among other items, it breeds fever and harbors snakes, so Malcolm floundered rather than swam to the bank, where he had the negative satisfaction of catching Nejdi's bridle when that disconcerted steed scrambled out after him.

The two were coated with green slime. Being obviously unhurt, they probably had a forlornly comic aspect. At any rate, a woman's musical laugh came from the lofty wall which bounded the moat on the further side, and a woman's clear voice said:

"A bold leap, sahib! Did you mean to scale the fort on horseback? And why not have chosen a spot where the water was cleaner?"

Before he could see the speaker, so smothered was he in dripping moss and weeds, Malcolm knew that some lady of rank had watched his adventure. She used the pure Persian of the court, and her diction was refined. Luckily, he had studied Persian as well as its Indian off-shoot, Hindustani, and he understood the words. He pressed back his dank hair, squeezed the water and slime off his face, and looked up.

To his exceeding wonder, his eyes met those of a young Mohammedan woman, richly garbed, and of remarkable appearance. She was unveiled, an amazing fact in itself, and her creamy skin, arched eyebrows, regular features, and raven-black hair proclaimed her aristocratic lineage. She was leaning forward in an embrasure of the battlemented wall. Behind her, two attendants, oval-faced, brown-skinned women of the people, peered shyly at the Englishman. When he glanced their way, they hurriedly adjusted their silk saris, or shawls, so as to hide their faces. Their mistress used no such bashful subterfuge. She leaned somewhat farther through the narrow embrasure, revealing by the action her bejewelled and exquisitely molded arms.

"Perhaps you do not speak my language," she said in Urdu the tongue most frequently heard in Upper India. "If you will go round to the gate—that way—" and she waved a graceful hand to the left—"my servants will render you some assistance."

By that time, Malcolm had regained his wits. A verse of a poem by Hafiz occurred to him.

"Princess," he said, "the radiance of your presence is as the full moon suddenly illumining the path of a weary traveler, who finds himself on the edge of a morass."

A flash of surprise and pleasure lit up the fine eyes of the haughty beauty perched up there on the palace wall.

"'Tis well said," she vowed, smiling with all the rare effect of full red lips and white even teeth. "Nevertheless, this is no time for compliments. You need our help, and it shall be given willingly. Make for the gate, I pray you."

She turned, and gave an order to one of the attendants. With another encouraging smile to Malcolm, she disappeared.

Leading the Arab, who, with the fatalism of his race, was quiet as a sheep now that he had found a master, the young officer took the direction pointed out by the lady. Rounding an angle of the wall, he came to a causeway spanned by a small bridge, which was guarded by the machicolated towers of a strong gate. A ponderous door, studded with great bosses of iron fashioned to represent elephants' heads, swung open—half reluctantly it seemed—and he was admitted to a spacious inner courtyard.

The number of armed retainers gathered there was unexpectedly large. He was well acquainted with the Meerut district, yet he had no notion that such a fortress existed within an hour's fast ride of the station. The King of Delhi had a large hunting-lodge somewhere in the locality, but he had never seen the place. If this were it, why should it be crammed with soldiers? Above all, why should they eye him with such ill-concealed displeasure? Duty had brought him once to Delhi—it was barely forty miles from Meerut—and the relations between the feeble old King, Bahadur Shah, and the British authorities were then most friendly, while the hangers-on at the Court mixed freely with the Europeans. His quick intelligence caught at the belief that these men resented his presence because he was brought among them by the command of the lady. He knew now that he must have seen and spoken to one of the royal princesses. None other would dare to show herself unveiled to a stranger and a white man at that. The manifest annoyance of her household was thus easily accounted for, but he marveled at the strength of her body-guard.

He was given little time for observation. A distinguished-looking man, evidently vested with authority, bustled forward and addressed him, civilly enough. Servants came with water and towels, and cleaned his garments sufficiently to make him presentable, while other men groomed his horse. He was wet through, of course, but that was not a serious matter with the thermometer at seventy degrees in the shade, and, despite the ordinance of the Prophet, a glass of excellent red wine was handed to him.

RRR
RADWAY'S READY RELIEF

RHEUMATISM, SCIATICA

Strong Testimony of Emigrant Commissioner the Hon. George Starr, as to the Power of Radway's Ready Relief in a Case of Sciatic Rheumatism.

Van Ness Place, New York.

Dr. Radway—With me your Ready Relief has worked wonders. For the last three years I have had frequent and severe attacks, sometimes extending from lumbar regions to my ankles, and at times to both lower limbs. During the time I have been afflicted I have tried almost all the remedies recommended by wise men and fools, hoping to find relief, but all proved to be failures. I have had various kinds of baths, manipulation, outward application of liniments too numerous to mention, and prescriptions of the most eminent physicians, all of which failed to give me relief. Last September, at the request of a friend (who had been afflicted as myself), I was induced to try your remedy. I was then suffering fearfully with one of my old turns. To my surprise and delight the first application gave me ease, after bathing and rubbing the parts affected, leaving the limbs in a warm glow created by the Ready Relief. In a short time the pain passed entirely away. Although I have slight periodical attacks approaching a change of weather, I know now how to cure myself and feel quite master of the situation. Radway's Ready Relief is my friend. I never travel without a bottle in my valise. Yours truly,

GEORGE STARR.

The Silver Bridge.

One of the customs observed at a Bohemian marriage feast is that of making the bride cross a silver bridge. The bride's father-in-law lifts her on to the table, where she walks on two rows of silver coins, at the end of which her husband stands and receives her into his arms. The silver bridge typifies the wealth with which her bridegroom hopes to smooth her path in life.

Uncle Sam's way of testing eggs is to drop them into a 10 per cent salt solution. The strictly fresh drop immediately to the bottom, while those that are stale float gayly over the surface.

The Real Townsend

A Complication That Was Born of a Blunder.

By MOLLIE K. WETHERELL.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"For the Effinghams," I said to the elevator boy as I handed him my card.

I was in a New York apartment house for a call on some old friends of mine. The elevator boy handed my card to the telephone boy, who announced to the Effinghams that Mr. Townsend had called.

I stepped on the elevator and was soon ushered by a maid in a black dress and a white ruffled apron into the drawing room of an apartment on the sixth floor. There was no one in the room, which surprised me, for I was very intimate with the Effinghams and supposed that at the announcement of my name the whole family would be waiting to greet me.

It was fully ten minutes that I sat waiting when I noticed that the light shining through a keyhole in a door opening into an adjoining room suddenly gave place to darkness.

"One of the girls," I said to myself, "is spying on me. That's a game two can play at."

I got up from my seat, strolled about the room, looking at the pictures on the wall as if to kill time while waiting, and when I reached the door in question quickly turned the knob and threw the door open.

There, kneeling so as to bring an eye opposite the keyhole, was a young lady I had never seen. Her face was crimson, and after looking at me for a moment she covered her face with her hands.

I saw at a glance that not only one mistake had been made, but several. There might be fifty families in the building, and there were probably more than one named Effingham. I had doubtless got into the wrong flat. But why was the girl peering at me through the keyhole? Perhaps there had been a double coincidence of names, she knowing some one by the name of Townsend, or she did not know any one by that name and was anxious to reconnoiter the visitor before appearing. My curiosity being aroused, I resolved not to spoil my chance of enlightenment by giving anything away. I proposed to listen, not to talk.

The girl arose and, still blushing to the roots of her hair, came forward.

"I am mortified beyond measure," she said, "at being caught in such a position, but you must admit that before receiving a call from the man I am to marry I would naturally desire to see him unobserved myself."

"The most natural thing in the world," I replied, repressing a start on learning that I was to be the girl's husband.

"I received your note," she continued, "saying you would call yesterday, and later your telegram that you had suddenly been called away. Then when you were announced just now I was taken quite by surprise, having expected that our meeting would not take place for some time yet."

"I decided not to go."

"My act is certainly not calculated to give you a favorable impression of me, I admit. Just think of a man calling for the first time on a girl he is to marry, whom he has never seen, and finding her peeping through a keyhole. It's simply dreadful!"

"But becoming. To my taste, a girl never looks so well as when blushing."

"But there is no necessity for us to stand. Be seated." She sank on a sofa, I on an easy chair. "I have fought against such a marriage, but my guardian, who has certain views for my property, has finally worn me out. Besides, he tells me that you are as much interested from that point of view as I. Nevertheless I have told him that after seeing you if you were repulsive to me the matter should not go any further. And that is the reason why I was endeavoring to get a peep at you before meeting you. I intended if you were disagreeable to me even in appearance that I would after all decline to receive you."

"Knowing this, I'm sorry I didn't leave you free to make a decision."

"I should have decided to meet you," she replied to this, casting down her eyes.

"Thank heaven!"

"You mean that you are pleased that these schemes for the development of our properties are to be carried out," she said archly.

"I assure you," I replied, with an injured look, "that these property schemes have nothing to do with my satisfaction at finding you in every way so much more attractive than I had hoped for."

There was a blush at this, not of mortification, but of pleasure.

"Now, I beg of you," I continued, "not to speak further of this matter of property interest that has brought us together. Let us consider our projected union one of inclination alone. Yet before doing so I would like to get one matter out of the way so that it may not influence us. Please write on a bit of paper what you consider the amount of your possessions, and I will do the same. We will exchange these papers and will both know what we are to expect primarily from each other."

Now, I flatter myself this was very foxy on my part. I was not sure but that I would like to win this girl, and I did not care to do so, rendering myself liable to a charge of deception other than in permitting her to continue in a mistake. We exchanged the slips, and it turned out that my possessions were double hers.

"Why," she exclaimed on looking at the amount on my slip, "Mr. Markney did not tell me that there was such an inequality as that. I don't understand why you who had never seen me should have desired me simply on account of a property consideration, mine being but one-half yours."

"I said to you just now before this interchange of information that after it had been made the sordid part of this transaction should be dropped. Now let us talk of other matters."

By skillful management I learned that the man I had been mistaken for had gone away to be absent several weeks and that no communication was likely to take place between him and Miss Effingham until his return. At first I permitted myself to drift on into the false position carelessly, but now and again twinges of conscience would come to me and, more than all, a distaste for the denouement that was sure to follow. At the end of this our first meeting it was evident that we were mutually pleased with each other, and if we continued to be so the wishes of the lady's guardian would be carried out. What these wishes were or how far they would tend to her enrichment I didn't care. When I arose to go she said:

"But you are not going before seeing my stepmother and my half sisters. They are my only relatives."

"Pardon me," I replied. "I am rather shy of meeting strangers, especially under the present circumstances. How would it do for them to get a sight of me the way you did—through the keyhole?"

"If you ever mention that again you may consider the matter broken off between us forever. After all, I think it as well that you should meet them during a later visit."

"I'm sure of it. How often do you think you can endure a call from me?"

"As often as you like."

I wondered whether Miss Effingham considered that we were engaged and would grant me an engaged man's privilege or, rather, expect me to take it. I didn't wish to presume so far on a mistaken identity and was going away without a kiss. The lady must have considered herself engaged, for she made it plain that no such cold departure would please her. I took the kiss, and, though it was intensely enjoyable, I felt that I had received that to which I was not entitled.

When I stepped out of that apartment house into the open air I was fairly overpowered by the change which had come over me since I had entered it. There were pleasurable sensations confused with horrible anticipations. What would I do during the next few weeks while this other Townsend was away? Was I to try to win the girl? I conned over the question as to whether or no it would be honorable for me to do so. There were several points in my favor. In the first place, I was twice as well fixed in worldly possessions as the other fellow. In the second, I had found favor in Miss Effingham's sight, and she had yet to see him. She might on meeting him take a great dislike to him. I secretly hoped she would. I took pleasure in depicting him in my mind's eye as a red headed, freckled, snub nosed chap with the forehead of an orang outang.

I went straight home, sat down in an easy chair and tried to think of some plan whereby I might come out of the matter with eclat instead of contempt, but failed to find one.

What would have been the outcome had I not been pierced with an arrow shot from the little god I don't know. It would probably have been far different from what it was. I vowed to keep away from Miss Effingham and the consequences of my first visit to her. I kept my resolution by calling the next day, and the next and the next, for two weeks, every day intending a confession and never making one. Meanwhile the matter between us was a case of desperate love.

I went to see my sweetheart one day and learned that the sword suspended over me had fallen. I found her in the room where I had first met her, talking in an excited state to a man who, as I entered, looked at me scrutinizingly. Miss Effingham, as if to shut us both from her mind, sank on a sofa and concealed her face with her handkerchief.

"Who are you, sir?" I asked. "The lady does not seem inclined to introduce us."

"I am Edward Townsend."

"And I am John Townsend."

"I am the Townsend, sir."

"Edith," I said, "it's all out. You mistook me for this gentleman, and I permitted you to continue in your mistake. All that remains to be done is for you to decide between us."

"Leave me, both of you," she wailed.

The other Townsend and myself naturally obeyed and at the same time. It was an embarrassing walk through the corridor and a miserable ride down the elevator. I was much put out to discover that the real original Townsend was a far better looking man than myself. When we parted at the outer door we both raised our hats politely, scowling at each other, and went in different directions.

Within a week a little note came to me addressed in a woman's hand. I tore it open. It read:

Dearest, come to me.

Then I knew I was the real Townsend.

SHOULD YOU PET YOUR HUSBAND?

"'Tis an old maxim in the schools
That flattery's the food for fools;
Yet now and then your men of wit
Will condescend to take a bit!"

Truly, flattery and petting walk hand-in-hand, and the wise and happy little wife is a past mistress in the art of administering both. The old proverb that to "feed the brute" was the surest way to secure matrimonial felicity is all wrong. "Pet the darling" is a far better prescription, and one equally easy to follow.

It is true that the tenderest of caresses would scarcely atone for constant bad housekeeping; but as the most subtle form of petting consists in care for his creature comforts, it naturally follows that a petted husband is a well-fed one.

Petting is an art that ought to be taught in the schools, so magical a sweetener of married life is it.

It doesn't seem a great deal to have the house door open when the breadwinner comes home, and a bright-faced welcome behind it; for his slippers to be toasting at the fire, tea or supper waiting, and a little listener who has forgotten all her own personal cares, and is ready to smooth away with tender sympathy the frets and jars of the outside world. It doesn't seem much, yet it is just such petting that makes all the difference between a contented husband, whose home is just the one spot in the world, and the man who comes to regard it merely as a somewhat expensive shelter wherein he spends his nights.

"Men are but children of a larger growth," says the philosopher, and, although it would be a hopeless task to lure any one of them on to confess the fact, yet like very children they crave for petting—the little proofs of love that loving women love to give; for if men are but grown-up children, women are born mothers, and it is mothering men want all their lives, the soft touches and softer words and looks that surrounded their infancy.

The girl who starts life with a natural bent for pretty, caressing ways and speeches is sure of masculine love and admiration to her life's end. Whether Dame Nature has been lavish in other directions or not, there is a persuasive eloquence in a small, soft, loving hand greater far than that proverbial hair by which Beauty is said to drag mankind, and there are no lengths to which a sweet, pleading voice may not lead a husband in the right direction.

The husband who fails to get a fair share of petting deteriorates rapidly, and, six months after the waning of the honeymoon, becomes more or less of a bear. A bear, too, without a bear's one redeeming feature; for if he gets no embraces, somehow a married man rapidly forgets that embracing the wife of his bosom seemed once upon a time the greatest of possible joys!

Compared to the keeping of a man's love, the winning of it is, by comparison, quite an easy matter.

Petting goes far; but even petting is unsuccessful unless applied with tact. To rush at a tired man and smother him with kisses, talk baby-talk to him, and expect him to respond in kind, is, to put it mildly, inadvisable.

Pet, but pet tactfully, at the proper season, or peting, instead of charming a husband, will merely irritate him.

Of course, it may be said that all this is merely advocating husband-spoiling—that the peting should be round the other way, and all the rest of it. But when a delightful task has such blissful results, what happy little wife is likely to agree?

IRONING BOARD CLIP

Cloth Quickly and Easily Affixed and Just as Easily Removed

An ironing-board clip that fills a long-felt want in our best laundry circles has been devised by an Ohio man. It enables the laundress to attach or remove the cloth to and from the board in a few minutes. Hitherto it has been necessary to tack the cloth fast, and as it was something of a nuisance to take it off, it did not get washed as often as it should, not to mention the way it was mutilated in the process of removal. The clip here shown, which is to be used in a series of five or six, consists of a piece of spring metal, about six inches long and half an inch wide, with downwardly projecting spikes at the ends. There is a hole in the centre for the insertion of a screw by which it can be fastened to the lower side of the ironing-board. When the cloth is to be fastened it is drawn tight around the board and the spiked ends of the clips pressed through it till they engage the wood. As can be understood, the removal of the cloth is equally simple.

And we have grown from a small beginning to be one of the largest proprietary manufacturers in this country.

Here then is proof that we have in Psychine a preparation with abundant and demonstrated effectiveness, more so than any other preparation we, or any one else, ever heard of.

Here then is the reason of our unalterable confidence in Psychine, that it is in fact the greatest preparation of its kind in the world.

Here then is why we have inaugurated a policy of actually buying hundreds of thousands of bottles of Psychine to give to those who should use.

To those who are blindly groping in the dark for relief from their misery, who may perhaps be using wrong methods to recover their health and their strength.

LAGRIPPE.

The greatest and most effective agents for the bodily health are the white corpuscles, phagocytes.

These white corpuscles eat any germ of disease that gains an entrance to the body, when they're in large enough numbers and sufficiently strong.

When they're not sufficiently strong, the disease germs devour them and disease holds the body.

* * *

For centuries almost, herbs, nature's own remedies, have been the most efficient foe to disease.

We have not known very definitely just how.

But now science tells us that certain of these herbs increase the number of the white corpuscles and their strength.

These certain herbs are incorporated in Psychine.

We go to the ends of the earth for these herbs—to Arabia, to South America, to China and to Japan.

They are compounded in the most costly chemical appliances in this country.

And the result is Psychine—for a third of a century the most effective vitality-builder the world has known.

The one preparation that has cured many thousands of the following diseases:

La Grippe
Bronchitis
Hemorrhages
Sore Throat
Anaemia
Female Weakness
Indigestion
Poor Appetite
Chills and Fevers
Sleeplessness and Nervous Troubles
Bronchial Coughs
Weak Lungs
Weak Voice
Spring Weakness
Early Decline
Catarrhal Affections
Catarrh of Stomach
Night Sweats
Obstinate Coughs
Laryngitis and Dyspepsia
After-effects of Pleurisy, Pneumonia and La Grippe

Now we don't ask you to take our word for the tremendously beneficial effect of Psychine. Fill out the coupon below, mail it to us and we'll give your druggist an order (for which we pay him the regular retail price) for a 50-cent bottle of Psychine to be given you free of cost.

LONG FLIGHT FOR AERONAUTS

The Aviation Meet to be Held in England Next Summer Includes a Thousand Mile Contest

Practical interest is already shown across the Channel in the international aviation contests, which are to be held in England during the coming summer. Most of the leading French flying men and aeroplane manufacturers have made arrangements to be present, including M. Louis Bleriot, who, although not a competitor, will attend both the Gordon Bennett Cup Race and the 1,000 miles contest round England. In each race M. Bleriot will have ready two or three gangs of mechanics, with full equipment, to assist all the competitors, independent of their nationality, who will ride Bleriot monoplanes. For the Gordon Bennett Cup flight the task will be easy enough, as the competition takes place in an aerodrome. As regards the 1,000 miles race, the gangs of mechanics will travel, alternately, twelve hours in advance of the competitors to each town on the itinerary, so as to be ready to make any repairs on the spot, and with the utmost dispatch.

FIVE CENTENARIANS

A Wonderful Old Lady Who Had 170 Living Descendants—Remarkable Longevity

At Leicester Workhouse Infirmary the death has occurred of Mrs. Elizabeth Jarrom, in her 101st year. When the old lady celebrated her 100th birthday, on March 13th last, there were great rejoicings in the workhouse—a birthday party—and a big birthday cake, which Mrs. Jarrom took great interest in cutting. She had a family of eleven children, of whom six survive, the eldest being a son of 72 years and the youngest 62. Her descendants include 48 grandchildren, 108 great-grandchildren, and eight great-great-grandchildren, making a total of 170. Mrs. Jarrom smoked a clay pipe regularly, and was the proud possessor of a handsome silver tobacco-box, presented to her by Dr. Ellis on the occasion of her 100th birthday.

Mrs. Kate Sykes Waters, who lived at Milton, Sittingbourne, with a son aged 82 and his wife aged 80, is dead at the age of 101. She could see to read and thread a needle without the aid of glasses.

Mrs. Clementine Edwards, Queensborough, passed away in her 101st year. She was the mother of eleven children, of whom only a daughter, who is in receipt of an old-age pension, survives. Except for being rather deaf, Mrs. Edwards retained the full possession of her faculties.

Few would dread the approach of old age if it came to all as gently and lightly as it has done to Mrs. Bacon, of Burghclere, Hampshire, whose hundredth birthday was marked by a letter of congratulation from the King. This wonderful old lady leads a life that many a man or woman thirty years her junior might envy. Each morning she comes down to breakfast at 8.30, and fills her day reading the newspapers and writing to and receiving her many friends and relations. When it is fine she goes driving in a donkey-chaise. "I am not a very good walker now," she said, as she stepped out of the low carriage and went briskly to the house. At luncheon and dinner she sits at the head of her table and carves or helps the various dishes, and in the evening, when tired of reading—she wears no spectacles—she plays bezique or some other game till ten o'clock, when she goes to bed.

Mrs. Ann Speed, who celebrated her 101st birthday at the village of Heighington, near Lincoln, received letters of congratulation from all quarters of the globe. Almost every Friday morning Mrs. Speed carries her basket of eggs to market at Lincoln. She attends to her poultry herself, and still bakes her own bread.

MILITARISM AND WAR

The British Labor Party will Consider a Strong Resolution on the Subject

At the annual conference of the British Labor party next month in Leicester the following resolution will be submitted: "That this Conference, believing that militarism and war are subversive to civilization and national well-being, protests strongly against the heavy and growing burden of armaments, which arrests social reform, and endangers international solidarity, good-will, and peace.

"It further affirms that militarism, while profitable to certain financial interests, to the activities of which not a little of our scaremongering can be traced, imposes a needless tax on the lives and the wages of the workers, and threatens to inflict on Great Britain the evils of compulsory military service.

"The Conference, therefore, declares that disputes between nations should be settled, not by brute force, but by reason and arbitration, and urges the workers of this country to take organized action with their fellows in Germany and other lands in counteracting the influence of scares and in bringing about an understanding between all nations to secure international peace and to advance social justice."

FIRST SUBMARINE.

The American Turtle Was Tried Out at New York In 1776.

GAVE THE BRITISH A SCARE.

Her Attempt to Blow Up the English Frigate Asia Didn't Succeed, but the Enemy's Ships Fled In Terror—Her Second Escapade Sealed Her Fate.

The American Turtle deserved a better fate. It was the first submarine war vessel of the United States. It was tried out in 1776 in New York harbor. Its inventor and builder was David Bushnell of Connecticut, of whom little is known. The man who went under water with it and in New York bay tried to blow up the British frigate Asia, under General Washington's orders, was Colonel Ezra Lee.

The Turtle was built at Saybrook, Conn. After its vicissitudes of being captured, sunk and resting for years at the bottom of the East river it was raised and taken back to its birthplace. There, after more years, it was taken to pieces. Its metal went into grandfather's clocks, which are still ticking in the hallways of New York and New England homes. Its oaken, pitch smeared timbers were put to structural uses and all trace of them lost. Bushnell did not get even a tardy reward for his inventiveness. The council of safety of Connecticut in 1777 directed that he be paid £200 for his services in "annoying ships," but there is no record that he ever got the money.

Here is the story of the American Turtle's first exploit as it is told in the quaint phraseology of the yellowing manuscript where it was set down long ago:

"When the British fleet lay in the North river, opposite the city of New York, and while General Washington had possession of the city he was very anxious to be rid of such neighbors. David Bushnell of Saybrook invented a submarine curiosity called the American Turtle, which received General Washington's approval for that purpose. A brother of the inventor was to operate the machine, but on trial he declined to hazard his service. Colonel Lee, distinguished for his courage and patriotism, volunteered his services, and after practicing with the machine to discover its powers a night was fixed upon for the attempt.

"General Washington and his associates in the secret took their stations upon the roof of a house on Broadway, anxiously awaiting the result. Morning came, but no intelligence of the bold navigator. While the anxious spectators were about to give him up as lost several barges were seen to start suddenly from Governors island, then in possession of the British, and move toward some object near the Asia, ship of the line, and as suddenly they were seen to put about and steer for the island with springing oars. In two or three minutes an explosion took place from the surface of the water, resembling a waterspout, which aroused the whole city. The enemy's ships took the alarm, cut their cables and proceeded to the Hook with all possible dispatch, sweeping their bottoms with chains and with difficulty preventing their affrighted crews from leaping overboard.

"Colonel Lee, coming to the surface during this scene of consternation, was obliged again to descend to avoid the enemy's shot from the island. After forcing his machine against a strong current under water he landed safe at the Battery amid a great crowd, General Washington expressing himself as much pleased that the object was effected without the loss of life.

"Colonel Lee had been under the Asia more than two hours endeavoring to penetrate her bottom, which, being sheathed with copper, resisted all attempts to attach the magazine to the ship."

Apparently the American Turtle made one more attempt to "annoy the enemy's shipping" before she ended her career. Another old diary preserved by a Connecticut family mentions this incident. It seems that the Turtle, manned by some nameless hero, perhaps again by Colonel Lee, though the chronicler does not state, made an attempt to blow up a British ship in the East river. By this time the British appear to have discovered what nature of craft it was that had essayed to destroy the Asia and so were on the lookout for anything suspicious that disturbed the surface of the water. At any rate, the American submarine was discovered before she had made any progress on her second mission of destruction.

The British boats gave chase. Considering that the maximum speed of the Turtle was three miles an hour, the pursuit could not have been a very long one. At any rate, an American vessel, probably some small schooner, was waiting for the submarine, and the Turtle fled thither for protection. Hastily the odd looking craft was hoisted aboard, sail was set, and the American boat tried to show a clean pair of heels to her pursuer, but it was in vain. She was sunk by the English guns.

For a long time the Turtle lay in the submerged vessel's hold. After the war was over, however, the ship was raised and the Turtle was recovered and carried back to Saybrook. If every one else had forgotten her and her achievements by that time the people of her inventor's native town still held the Turtle in affectionate remembrance.—Thaddeus S. Dayton in Boston Post.

HOW TO AVOID DENTIST BILLS

Decay Easily Prevented—People Do Not Know How to Use Brushes, Says a Dentist

A dentist who was working recently on the teeth of a suffering woman and trying to distract her attention from the pain said:

"I wouldn't have half as much business if women would only give the simplest attention to their teeth in time. By 'time' I mean before any damage can be done. For prevention is one of the certain ways of preserving a good set of teeth. Ill health is often given as the reason for poor teeth, when many times it is frequently the result of neglect.

NOT NUT CRACKERS.

"Understanding the formation of the teeth may help to do for them as they should be done by. That hard outside that frequently does duty as a nut cracker, thread cutter, and the rest, is thin; nothing more than an enamel of paper thickness. Under this the tooth structure is soft and porous. Therefore when the enamel is cracked or broken any moisture seeps through settles in the porous substances, and decay is inevitable. That is one way the tooth goes.

ACIDS IN CANDIES.

"Another thing is allowing to cling to it such matter as will weaken the enamel. Acids will do this. This is why immediately after eating any fruit the mouth should be rinsed with a solution of bicarbonate of soda, a teaspoonful to a half glass of water. Soda counteracts acids and is needed as a wash always after eating fruits or candies, too, for sweets left on the teeth create acids. These acids eat the enamel.

"In my opinion rinsing the mouth often with soda or lime water would save a woman many dentist's bills.

HOW TO BRUSH.

"Next to these mouth washes, a correct way of brushing will do much towards preservation," he continued. "Rubbing the brush to and fro only polishes the middle of the surface; just as the nails would be affected if a woman rubbed her chamois buffer over the top only. I notice some women turn their fingers sideways when they polish them, so that every part of the nail may be made to shine. She can't turn her teeth, naturally, but what she can do, and what other women can do is to adapt the brush to the teeth. The brush should be held across the teeth, and placed at the top of the gums of the upper jaw. Then the bristles must be drawn down to the bottom of the teeth following the space between. The lower jaw is treated by beginning at the gum and drawing the brush up toward the top. Chances are that particles will be eliminated in any event the edges of the teeth have been cleaned.

"And, of course dental silk should be used after each meal, drawing it between the teeth to remove any bits of food. If they remain, they will certainly make the teeth decay."

A CHRISTMAS VAMPIRE.

A fool there was, and he made a gift
(Even as you or I).
He bought it with taste and care and thrift
And when he gave it the lady sniffed
(Even as you or I).

Oh, the judgment and taste and time we waste
On the gifts at Christmastide,
Which we give to the lady who isn't pleased
(And now we know she could never be pleased
And never be satisfied)!

A fool there was, and he gave his check
(Even as you or I)
For a necklace of pearls without a fleck
(And it didn't the least suit the lady's neck),
And she never thanked him a single speck
(Even as you or I).

Oh, the chink we lose and the think we lose
On the things we buy with pride
To give to the lady who never is pleased
(And now we know she can never be pleased
And never be satisfied)!

The fool was fleeced to his last red cent
(Even as you or I).
She threw him aside when his gold was spent
(And nobody cared where the lady went),
And the fool gave way to loud lament
(Even as you or I).

And it wasn't the loss, and it wasn't the dross,
The reason that same fool cried.
It was coming to know that she never was pleased (Seeing at last she could never be pleased
And never be satisfied).

Mollie Knew.

Little Mollie, the daughter of a popular physician, has a most vigorous imagination. Indeed, it is such a very vigorous imagination that it runs away with Mollie's honesty, to her parents' great dismay.

The other day her mother overheard her telling a story to Bobby Davis, a neighbor. It was a very interesting story. It related, with every appearance of truth, the adventures of Mollie on an airship. Now, Mollie's mother knew very well that the child had never seen an airship in her life, so she called her away from Bobby Davis and began to talk to her.

"Mollie, don't you know that you make mother very unhappy by telling such awful stories?" she asked. Mollie hung her head and said nothing.

"Don't you know what happened to Ananias and Sapphira?" the mother continued. And Mollie looked up brightly.

"Oh, yes," she said. "I know all about them. They were struck dead for lying. I saw them being carried into the corner drug store."—Chicago Journal.

SHUNS HUSBAND GONE FOR YEARS

MUNCIE, Ind., Feb. 2.—The Enoch Arden "stunt" did not appeal to Mrs. Mada W. Finn when her husband, William, appeared at the home sixteen years after he had deserted her and her two children and three years later after she had been married to Henry Phillips, on the supposition that Finn was dead. Instead of greeting the wanderer with open arms, Mrs. Finn told him he might as well depart, because she was through with him. He left.

Then she instructed her second husband also to leave until she could obtain a divorce from husband No. 1. Phillips did so. Judge Frank Ellis heard the story, and a divorce was promptly granted. Mrs. Finn will now re-marry Phillips.

A Good Idea in Hair Treatment.

The trouble with most women's hair is that they won't take the time to give it proper treatment. If you want your hair to have that look of lustre and vitality, you must take care of it.

You cannot expect to have splendid hair if you simply run a comb through it in the morning—give it a dab on the outer edge with a brush—throw it into a braid—switch it around the head—jab in a few hair pins—and let it go at that.

Hair is like any other growing thing—it needs attention—it needs care—it needs thorough grooming regularly—not only the hair but the scalp.

If you have the time and patience you won't need any hair tonic—but most women haven't. The next best thing is Nyal's Hirsutone. It is the best thing offered to take the place of hours of combing and brushing.

It tones up the roots, brightens the color, improves the texture and makes it stay gracefully where it is put.

Hirsutone literally revitalises the neglected hair.

In artistic bottles $1.00 and 50c.

KING OPENS PARLIAMENT

Streets Were Thronged--Suffragettes Abandoned Their Demonstration

(Intelligencer Special.)

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 6.— King George opened his first Parliament to-day with all the traditional rites. The weather was foggy, but immense crowds of people thronged the streets and cheered Their Majesties during their drive to the Parliament buildings. The suffragettes abandoned their proposed demonstration.

ELPASO, Texas, Feb. 6.— Martial law was proclaimed in Juarez, Mexico to-day by Colonel Robago, who last night cut his way through the revolutionists' lines and entered the city. The Federal troops will now take the offensive and the city is now believed to be safe from capture. The dead in yesterday's fighting are placed at ten

WIDOW SUFFERS; HUSBAND DEAD

Pathetic Story Of A Young Couple's Experience in The North

NORTH BAY, Feb. 3.—The body of Homer Wilson, the unfortunate young prospector who was frozen to death in the Gowganda wilds, was brought to North Bay by his brother and taken on to Lake Linden, Michigan, where the parents reside. The brother had a very hard trip, driving a distance of 150 miles over indifferent and bad trails. Mrs. Wilson, the young widow of the unfortunate prospector, had to be left behind at Gowganda, as she is suffering greatly from her terrible experiences of exposure in the northern bush, having both hands and feet frozen. She is being treated by a physician at Gowganda, and it is hoped that amputation will not be necessary.

The couple were married in Chicago last October, and the young wife, with no experience in the bush, insisted on accompanying her husband into the wilds. Wilson, in going to visit some trap, went through the ice and upon getting out his wet and frozen garments prevented him making the return trip to the shack, and he died from exposure. The wife, becoming alarmed for her husband's safety, started out in search of him, but made little progress in the deep snow and had great difficulty making the return trip to the shack, where, wet and cold and unable to build a fire, she was found in a frozen condition by the rescue party.

ECHOES OF THE CONTEST ARE NOW COMING IN FROM BOTH DISTRICTS

Many Young Ladies are Actively Engaged in Securing Votes That Will Win the Grand List of Prizes—All are on the Alert for Subscriptions to the Intelligencer, Which Means Votes, and Votes Will Win the Prizes

Many changes are being made in the vote column of The Intelligencer's great popularity contest daily, and it is evident that many young ladies that have entered in this grand race have their friends working for them and decided to go out and win one of the valuable prizes. Considerable skill is shown by some of the contestants in the general planning of their forces, and were the Contest Manager permitted to tell some of the plans the fair ones "have up their sleeve" some of The Intelligencer readers would be surprised at the wisdom shown. Many girls realize the fact that organization will greatly help them in vote getting, and many are organizing their friends to help them secure votes.

The Contest Department will have some important announcements to make soon, and all contestants should keep their eyes on the daily contest news. Keep posted. Watch the standing of the candidates daily. The Contest Manager desires to request all to send in their ballots without folding of rolling them. With thousands of votes to be counted each evening, much time is wasted in unfolding them. All ballots reaching The Intelligencer office by 5 p.m. will be credited in the vote column the next day.

As every girl has a large number of friends, there is just as good a chance for those that start late as for the early entries, for the friends of the late ones will be just as willing and anxious to come to their aid as were the supporters of the ones who are now advanced in the contest. Do not forget it is never too late to start—never too late to win. It is the largest number of votes that will count. Because a contestant has a lead at this time does not signify that she will continue to hold her lead until the end of the contest.

Do not overlook the fact that many young ladies of Belleville and vicinity have their eye on one of the beautiful and valuable prizes. Many of them are now busy among their circle of friends, and may take the lead at any time.

The Contest Manager is ready and willing to give assistance and any information he can to any contestant calling at this office, or if you wish, use the 'phone. Do not neglect to collect all the coupons you can; they are good for 10 votes each, and every one helps to boost your standing in the vote column.

HOW BALLOTS ARE SECURED.

In all cases where vote certificates are issued, subscriptions must be paid in advance. The full amount of money must be sent direct by mail, paid to the contestant, or brought to this office.

The animals were cut to pieces. Dr. Harvie had a few minutes before the horses started left the cab to enter a cafe leaving his instrument bag inside This led to a story that the doctor had been killed. The team was worth $500.

AGED WOMAN ALIVE IN COFFIN

GLASGOW, Ky., Feb. 4.—Stretching out her hands in mute appeal toward those who had assembled about her coffin, Mrs. Jane Pitcock, an octogenarian, caused a panic at her funeral at Gamaliel, Monroe County, Ky., yesterday. The funeral sermon had been preached and the lid of the coffin was removed to permit friends and relatives to take a last look at the body.

It was then that Mrs. Pitcock regained consciousness. She remained alive for several hours, her death following at night. Several physicians examined the body and announced Mrs. Pitcock dead before the body was again placed in the coffin.

BRITISH LACE FOR CORONATION

Queen Mary is Employing Services of a Small School In Devonshire

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Queen Mary, following up her expressed hope that all clothes and adornments worn on the occasion of the Coronation shall be of British manufacture as far as possible, has now brought into prominence a little seaside lace school at the Village of Shaldon, in South Devon. Up until the present this little industry has been practicaly unknown, but the Queen, who is an expert in lace and herself an accomplished needlewoman, was quick to realize the beauty of the lace made by those villagers, who work under the superintendence of Miss Flora Lancaster Lucas, daughter of the late General Sir Alfred Lucas, and has ordered a large quantity of lace for her Coronation robes, an example which has been followed by others of the Royal family. The lacemakers of Shaldon are now enjoying the happiest and busiest period of their resistence.

But everything required for the Coronation in the way of decorations will not be made in England. Germany will have a share in it, too. Some of the king's most loyal subjects will proclaim his Coronation by decorating their houses with Union Jacks made in Germany. Many English firms are refusing to buy flags from the Germans, who are turning out Union Jacks and Royal Standards in large numbers from their factories, but others are finding such a patriotic spirit too expensive for them to emulate. There is a large class of people who will have the cheapest articles, even in flags, and most tradesmen cannot afford to supply British goods at the same price as the German variety they can purchase for less money.

CURRENT COMMENTS.

The zero list continues to grow Last night with 4 below forms another addition to it.

The Canadian bee men have joined in the buzz of anger against the proposed tariff agreement.

The students of Albert College did a wise thing when they substituted dining together for hazing—an example which it would be well for other colleges to follow.

Mr. Price, our City Treasurer, has been acting in the triune capacity of trustee for the city, agent (under power of attorney) for his relatives, and physician (in the case of Mr. Ackerman last year.) In this respect he has never been excelled since the time of the immortal Seth Pecksniff "Architect, Aritst and Man."

Mr. Marsh boasts in his circular of the amount received for the sale of tax lots in 1910— observe, 1910 only But, had not those vulture-eyed powers of attorney, surveying the field of speculation from their perches at Hawkesbury on the east, and Saskatchewan on the west, swooped down at opportune moments, would not the city have received about $1600 more than was paid into the treasury ?

The consideration heretofore over looked is that under the Fielding-Taft agreement the Dominion gives away much more than the United States, remaks the Toronto News. In lowering its duties to this country the republic lowers them to no other In reducing the tariff to the United States the Ottawa Government automatically reduces it to nearly a dozen ithers, including Argentina and Australia, from which stronger competition in frozen meats and other articles may be expected without any quil pro quo.

The case that was opened by Lawyer Shorey yesterday afternoon at the Palace was certainly full of facts. After some good, bright singing in which all the boys joined, Mr. Smith rendered a cornet solo. The meeting was opened with Judge Deroche leading in prayer. Mr. Hess then introduced Lawyer Shorey who was to handle the case and as the commandments in picture form were thrown upon the screen, Mr. Shorey presented such strong points on the case that it did not take long for the verdict to be given namely: "That whereas all have sinned in breaking the commandments, all should strive in the future with God's help to be true to Him and to keep His laws."

GOOD DEBATE ON WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Belleville Won After a Close Contest With the Trenton T. A. S.

One of the most interesting and best contested debates of the series now being held by the T. A. S. debating league was held in St. Michael's Academy last night between representatives of Trenton T. A. S. and St Michael's T. A. S. of this city. The Belleville boys, Messrs. C. C. St Charles and C. T. Dolan upheld the affirmative side of the following resolution : "Resolved that the Manhood Suffrage Should be Extended to Women." Their opponents were Messrs Frank Regan and John Gallagher, of Trenton.

Col. Ponton acted as judge and after summing up the arguments in an able manner, awarded the decision by the Belleville men.

Mr. C. J. Peppin, president of the Society made a most excellent chairman.

THREE INTRUDERS IN SHIRE HALL

On Saturday evening word was received at the police station that some parties were in the vacant part of Shire Hall, in that part of the building formerly occupied by Cal Lazier, Master in Chancery. Two of the police visited the place and found three men who were evidently prepared to remain in the place all night. They were W. E. Herrington, Jacob Richett and John Smith. All were placed under arrest and charged with being vagrants. The parties belong to the city and have previously appeared before the magistrate on similar charges.

The parties when brought before the magistrate this morning pleaded guilty to the charge of vagrancy. Owing to the fact that they had been before the magistrate very recently on similar charges, His Worship was not prepared to deal leniently with them and in each cas he imposed a sentene at 6 months in the Centra lPrison at hard labor.

The police court proceedings were brief and it was well for the officials and others that such was the case. Evidently the janitor of the city building had not time to attend to attend to fires owing to other multifarious duties, as to use a well-known expression, the police court room was "like a barn."

MRS. PHILLIPS BURIED

Yesterday afternoon the funeral of the late Mrs. Wm. Phillips took place from the family residence, 3rd concession of Tyendinaga township, and was largely attended. An impressive funeral service was held in the Salem Methodist church, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Kemp. The church was filled with sympathizing relatives and friends. The interment took place in the Salem burying ground. The bearers were Messrs. J. E. Cooley, F. Swain, J. Robinson, R. Sherman, J. Beatty and J. Cole.

BRIGHT AND HAPPY SLEIGHRIDE PARTY

Drove to Chatterton and Had a Pleasant Time At Mr. Bert Lott's

Our 6th Concession, Sidney correspondent writes: A very bright and happy sleighride party arranged by Mr. and Mrs. George Thompson of this city, accompanied by a great majority of the young ladies and young men of the Ontario Business College, drove out near Chatterton last Friday evening, a distance of about 12 miles and spent the evening at Mr. and Mrs. Bert Lotts' residence.

On arriving, the bountiful table was spread, arranged by the hostess, where all did more than justice. Then the time was devoted to playing games and singing.

The guests were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. George Thompson, Mr. J. F. Hinchey, Miss Ena Ritchie, Mr. C. L. Nicholls, Miss Florence Young, Mr. Ritchie Thompson, Miss Eleanor Humphries, Mr. G. Walls, Miss Lena Bean (Toronto), Mr. J. G. Waddell, Miss Minnie Minns, Mr. S. Prest, Miss Stella Ayers, Mr. T. B. Lebow, Miss Lou and Mary O'Donoghue.

When midnight came, oysters were served much to their surprise and justice done again.

On the verge of leaving our worthy friend, Mr. J. F. Hinchey took great pleasure in moving a vote of thanks for their hospitality and excellent entertaiment, which was seconded by his worthy friend Mr. Ritchie Thompson. Then three cheers were given on behalf of the hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Lott, and the college yell of the students.

As the happy "family" drove off, all joined in singing, Oh! He's a Jolly Good Fellow. All reporting a good time.

The Cement Merger

As there are many of our readers who are shareholders in the Cement Merger, the following statement of its earnings, which we clip from the Montreal Herald of the 1st inst., will prove interesting.

If the Company can pay 1% upon its $1,000,000 of common stock, better named "watered," and 7% upon the preferred stock, there is no good reason why the preferred stock should be selling on the market at 87 and 88.

The following is the statement of its earnings and general financial position.

The financial report of the Canada Cement Company for year ended Dec. 31, 1910, has been issued. The company has not given shareholders a great deal of information in a general way, though it has presented a report which will prove satisfactory to shareholders. The amount earned on the common stock is $142,697.84, which is less than one per cent. on the stock, or to be exact, .75 per cent.

The company's profit and loss statement shows net profits for the year of $1,177,697.84. After bond interest of $300,000 and preferred dividends of $735,000, the surplus for the year was $142,697.84. With $75,296.39 brought forward from 1909, the amount of surplus now totals $217,994.23.

A feature of the report is the great strength in cash and current assets. Cash is shown at $916,169.90, and currents assets at $2,633,450.12. This compares with $539,546.50 of current liabilities.

The property account is shown at $27,134,786.92.

Depreciation..	$100,000
Extraordinary repairs and renewals..	50,000
Cotton sacks outstanding..	10,000
	$160,000

Profit and loss statement follows:

To Keep Canada Loyal

The London, England Daily Mail according to a telegram dated February 3rd, suggests, as a means of keeping Canada loyal, free trade in manufactures, a constant stream of British emigrants, and the investment of English capital in creating business there, not merely financing it.

Some of those London editors are funny fellows—unconsciously so, perhaps, yet very funny. The idea of the free admission of British manufactures into the Dominion as a means of "keeping Canada loyal," is worthy of a high place among Joe Millerisms.

To destroy many lines of manufacture in Canada, as would be the inevitable result of free trade with Britain in manufactures, would hardly conduce to loyalty, in which Canada has never been lacking. Had Britain been as loyal to Canada under Radical rule as Canada has ever been to Britain the ties which bind us to the mother country might have been made even stronger than they are now by Britain granting a reciprocity in preference.

Canadian loyalty does not require any stimulus, and is not in need of any at the present any more than it has done in the past.

STOCK WATERING AND MERGER

Mr. J. W. Johnson M. P. P. Has Introduced a Desirable Measure

Mr. J. W. Johnson, the member for West Hastings, has introduced in the Legislature a bill to prevent stock watering. His object is to protect the public against the burden of having to pay such prices for the necessities of life as will earn dividends on inflated capitalizations. True for once to its academic theories, The Globe says: This purpose is based on the unstable assumption that a large issue of fictitious capital enables a corporation to extract higher prices. A corporation may multiply its capital to any extent, but cannot thereby obtain higher prices or greater profits. Nor would the writing-off of capital force the acceptance of lower prices. If a company could pay ten percent on a million it could pay twenty per cent. on a half a million of five per cent. on two millions Limiting capitalization can afford no relief.

This position cannot be successfully maintained. A company with a large capitalization pleads the necessity of paying dividends on that capitalization, and the plea is largely influential in justifying almost any scale of charges which the management can exact from the public. Particularly is this the case with public utility corporations. A board of directors that for fear of arousing popular indignation would not dare to pay 20 per cent. in dividends on a half a million dollar capital would add another half million of water and distribute 10 per cent. on a million dollars of stock. The chief evil of the modern Canadian or American or international merger is the method by which the professional promoter takes into a combine at speciously inflated valuations a number of lesser concerns, and then proceeds to crush out rivals, limit production and overcharge the consumer in order to share profits on a grossly extended stock issue. Sometimes the thing is overdone, and even the resort to the most unscrupulous methods fails to realize the sanguine expectations of the inflaters as regards earnings.—Toronto News.

TO SELL JOHN BUNYON'S BOOK

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Since 1841 a copy of Fox's "Book of Martyrs," which belonged to John Bunyan during his famous imprisonment in the old county jail of Bedford, has been in the possession of the Bdford General Library, and it is now proposed to dispose of it in order to replenish the funds of that institution, notice having been give of an intention to call in a mortgage on the premises.

The book is in three folio volumes and was printed in London for "The Company of Stationers" in 1641. It is in black letter, and there are several pictures of martyrs suffering at the stake. At the foot of each title page is written in ink in capital letters the name "John Bunyan." In the third volume after the name is the date, 1162, which corresponds with the second year of Bunyan's imprisonment.

The writing on the title pages has been compared with Bunyan's hand-writing in the church books of the Bunyan meeting house at Bedford and is considered genuine. The history of the volumes can be traced back to the year 1780.

The book has been valued at eight thousand pounds ($40,000).

STOMACH LIVER LUNGS

Each of the chief organs of the body is a link in the Chain of Life. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, the body no stronger than its weakest organ. If there is weakness of stomach, liver or lungs, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition, the result of weakness or disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases and weaknesses of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the weak or diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also.

The strong man has a strong stomach. Take the above recommended "Discovery" and you may have a strong stomach and a strong body.

GIVEN AWAY.—Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, new revised Edition, is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 50 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

ARE TO BE DEPORTED

Encampment at Eglington, Including Four Bears Broken Up

A band of Gypsies who have been encamped around Eglington, near Toronto, for some time, was taken in charge by the Dominion Immigration Officers, assisted by Police Officer Lundy and Patrol Sergeant Brown, and removed to the livery of W. G Cross, 77 King street west last night, preparatory to being deported to the United States to-day. The encampment consisted of a number of men, women and children, four wagons, several horses and four brown bears, which had aroused the apprehensions of the residents of the locality. Officers of the Children's Aid Society recently visited the band and found several children running out in the snow barefooted.

The band has also been complained of as a general nuisance. Among other habits their persistent begging was a matter of objection.

BIG PRICES FOR TROTTERS

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The spirited bidding and the high prices paid for light harness horses on the last day of the mid-winter sale at Madison Square Garden yesterday augur well for the future of the trotter and the ppacer. Senator Bailey's lot of forty brought $48,645, an average of $1,215 a head. This average has never been equalled for so large a number even when the light harness horse ruled the turf world, and horsemen vied with one another in purchasing the best.

The top price of the day was $8,000 L. V. Harkness paid this for Ellen Hale, a six-year-old trotting mare by Prodigal—Red Silk. She held the world's two year old record of 2.13 1-4 three years ago, but since that time has been kept for a brood mare Sibyl Knight, a full sister to Ellen Hale, also went to the Walnut Stock Farm. Although Sibyl is two years younger than her sister, she is considered quite as fast. Mr. Harkness gave $3,000 for her after some spirited bidding.

The dam of these two young mares was next offered for sale. Although she is nearly 20 years old he evidently considered her worth $2,700, for that is the price he was compelled to pay for her.

CURLING.

LATEST NOTES AND NEWS OF HOCKEY

Port Hope Guide — Port Hope continues to win. Last night in a strenuous game they defeated the Trenton team, of Belleville, here by a score of 5 to 2. It was fast hockey all the time and the locals had to travel at top speed to hold the Easterners in check Every man on the Port Hope line up played hockey and the supporters received full value for their money. Although Port Hope held the lead all through the game the result was always in doubt and the spectators were given a very exciting sixty minutes F. C. Waghorne, of Toronto, refereed the game and kept the players well in hand.

The attendance was very small enough to discourage the management. Port Hope clamored for hockey early in the season and the statement on all sides wass"get a good team and we will support it." The management gathered together a speedy septette, yes, the fastest in Ontario, and now evidently because they are trimming everything in sight the enthusiasm is becoming luke warm. There might be some excuse if the team were losing but with a winning team putting up the brand of hockey they are, it is a shame the patronage they have received on the last two occasions. Here is Peterboro playing to crowded houses and it is safe to say that five of the Port Hope team would defeat the Peterboro team with ease.

It is certain that Port Hope will win the championship in the east and it was their intention to play off with the winners of the west for the Provincial championship. If this is carried out the team must have better support. They have turned down many good offers from towns to play their games there so Port Hope should brace up and give them the support they deserve.

Peterboro Examiner :— Hockey has its perils as well as its pleasures. It was responsible last night for an accident that is serious and may possibly prove fatal to Patrick Shannon of the Campbellford hockey team which was playing a game with Havelock in that place. During the progress of the game Shannon stumbled over another player, tripped and fell his head striking the ice with such violence as to render him unconscious and to cause blood to flow from his ears. This morning he regained consciousness.

A despatch from Havelock to the Examiner says :

"In the Campbellford-Havelock hockey match last night Patrick Shannon, playing rover position, for Campbellford, was seriously injured, receiving a fracture at the base of the skull. Three doctors are in attendance and it is not expected he will recover. He is still at the Armstrong House. The occurence was purely accidental."

Those who have been following hockey for the past three or four years may have noticed a little trick employed on the ice whereby the man carrying the puck drops it behind him crashes into the player of the opposing side, who is bent on blocking the way. In the meantime the derelict puck is picked up by a skater from behind and frequently carried into the defence unmolested. At first it looks like interference, but no referee can or will stop the play. It is known as the "skidoo pass" and originated from the brain of that great player Hod Stuart, whose brilliant hockey career was so abruptly terminated three years ago. —Ottawa Free Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—The ten-round fight between Johnny Marto, of New York and Phil Knight, the Kansas City cyclone, at the National Sporting Club of America to-night was a disappointment. The bout was tame all the way, with Marto doing all the work and the "Cyclone" covering up in every round except the eighth, when he swung and rushed Marto, but got both eyes closed before the end of the bout.

What Has Dandruff Got To Do With Baldness ?

You see the statement every day that the one cause of baldness is dandruff. But is it?

True, dandruff often precedes the departure of the hair.

It is equally true that you know men with a shock of hair you can hardly pull a comb through, who have carried around a dandruff laden collar as long as you have known them.

You have also seen men whose scalp was kept as clean as a baby's whose hair was surely departing.

That dandruff talk sounds well and convinces a good many of us, but let us not fool ourselves.

Of course dandruff isn't a good thing to carry around, but it is only an indication.

The same trouble that causes the hair to fall out usually causes dandruff, so if you get at the cause and arrest the loss of hair, you will stop dandruff too.

Those who use Nyal's Hirsutone find it the most satisfactory hair healer and hair dressing they have ever used.

It does stop the hair from falling out.

It will also stop dandruff.

was made in Western Town Property during the year 1909

Did you participate in these huge profits or did you "pigeon-hole" the propositions submitted to you by your western friends for future consideration? In short, are you the man who made a profit or the unfortunate one who had the chance but did not possess sufficient judgment to recognize the opportunity or sufficient courage to close a deal? The man or woman entitled to sympathy is the one who says: "Five or ten years ago I had the chance to buy this or that property at $100 or $500, and now it is worth $10,000." The average persons sneers at the person who makes such a statement and says: 'I would have bought and made that money."Are you going to say five years from now that you had a chance to buy a lot at Poe, Alta., at from $50 to $100 each, or are you going to be the man who will have from $1,000 to $10,000 in cash as a result of having bought property in this town in this year of grace, 1911?

POE A COMING COMMERCIAL CENTRE.

Poe is located on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Edmonton and Saskatoon. It is located in one of the finest farming districts in Western Canada. The surrounding country is settled by a progressive type of farmers and consequently will become the market centre for Northern Alberta. Poe district possesses rich coal mines, is close to rivers and lakes and large forests are easily accessible from this point. These natural resources insure for the residents of the town, first, low cost of living, and second, great commercial activity, two essentials in the upbuilding of a large town, thus creating valuable real estate.

POE AS A MANUFACTURING CENTRE.

This townsite and contiguous territory has the requirements outlined by large manufacturing concerns for the location of large factories or lareg enterprises of any kind employing large numbers of people. The rivers and lakes furnish water, the coal fields and forest furnish fuel and cheap building material, the fine farming lands furnish farm products, enabling the residents to live at a low cost.

The town is located on the main line of a transcontinental railway, assuring the necessary transportation facilities. These combined conditions will furnish cheap labor, one of the most important features of a manufacturing centre.

Poe townsite was recently placed on the market and already over 200 lote have been sold, and many of these lots have already changed hands at a substantial increase in price. Most of these lots were purchased by representative business men throughout Canada, who are now profiting by their foresight.

The townsite is high and dry and very suitable for building purposes.

OPPORTUNITY

is useless unless you possess the courage to act. You might possess great wisdom, you might read a good deal or travel much and thus see all kinds of opportunities to make money, but unless you have the courage to act on your judgment and wisdom all of these desirable qualities are entirely useless.

Lots in Poe are a good investment at present prices. The town is bound to grow rapidly. Owing to the easy terms of payment you have the ability to buy and if you do not buy now it is because you are lacking in courage, and the chances are you will never be like the man you now admire most, rich courageous and wise.

TORRENS TITLE

Poe townsite is held by us under the Torrens system of title. Under this system the title is guaranteed by the Government, therefore absolutely safe.

PRICES AND TERMS.

Prices of lots range from $50 to $100 each, and they can be purchased on terms of one-tenth cash, balance in eighteen equal monthly payments; or quarter cash, balance in six, twelve and eighteen months.

We have issued an attractive circular giving full information pertaining to the town and its prospects, together with map showing lots for sale. If you wish to receive this attractive circular cut out and fill in the attached coupon and mail it to us to-day.

ALL DRUGGISTS

CHICAGO TO HAVE FINEST SUBWAYS

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—Chicago is to have the most elaborate subway system of any city in the world, if plans drawn by the city's traction expert are adopted.

Complete details of the plans which will revolutionize the transportation business of the city have been worked out by Bion J. Arnold and will be submitted to the city council Monday.

Warned by the experience of New York, which found its subway facilities overtaxed a few months after it was opened for traffic, Mr. Arnold has provided for tunnels that will extend clear from building line to building line, instead of from curb to curb.

By utilizing the space under the sidewalks, not only is provision made for the housing of public utilities, but four and in some streets six tracks are to be laid.

The bottom of the subway will be 40 feet below the street level, at its greatest depth. It will be constructed on two levels so that there will be no grade crossings below the ground.

On April 1 the special traction fund available for the subway scheme will be $6,000,000.

The first section of the system which will be recommended will be run from the vicinity of Chicago Avenue and Wells Street to Twenty-second and State Streets, a distanc of about two and one-half miles.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT DISCOVERIES

A discovery of vast importance for Biblical history is reported from Berlin by the Telegraph.

It appears that Professor Reesner, who has been carrying out the excavations on the site of the Israelitish capital in Samaria, has unearthed a hundred clay tables covered with inscriptions, which are believed to form a portion of the archives of King Ahab, a contemporary of the prophet Elijah.

These inscriptions are written in old Hebraic characters, with the intensely black ink found on the Egyptian papyri, between one thousand and two thousand years before Christ.

One of them is a letter to Ahab, from the King of Assar, who, Dr. Yahuda believes, was either Assurbanipal or his son, Salmanesser II. Another table contains a detailed inventory of the furniture in the Royal Palace.

The find is evidently destined to provide convincing confirmation of certain phases of the Old Testament history, which some of the modern critics have been in the habit of treating as altogether mythical.

RUPTURE BETWEEN RUSSIA AND FRANCE

PARIS, Feb. 3.—The Potsdam interview between the Czar and the Kaiser amounted to a rupture of the alliance between Russia and France, according to a public statement issued to-day to M. Delahaye, a leading member of the Chamber of Deputies.

It was this conference that resulted in the agreement between Russia and Germany regarding the Bagdad Railway that Germany is to build through Persia. This agreement and subsequent events have convinced Delahaye that Russia and Germany have sinister intentions in Persia, which are in contradiction of Russia's alliance with France. He announces that he will make a demand in the Chamber for an explanation from the offending nations.

"I hesitate to take this step," Delahaye said, "because I know the situation is grave. But as no one else will voice a protest, I have decided to do so myself."

THE STRENGTH OF A CHAIN

Is that of its Weakest Link. Father Morriscy's No. 10 Forges it Anew.

The chain of the physical system is only as strong as its weakest link. When that link breaks, the chain breaks, and serious illness followed by death often results. The weak link with many people is the throat and lungs. In fact, statistics show that over twenty-five per cent of all deaths can be directly traced to diseases of these most important respiratory organs. Weakness here is very dangerous.

During his long and successful practice, Father Morriscy, the learned priest-physician, was often called upon to treat bronchial and pulmonary affections. He soon found that it was not enough to make temporary repairs on the "link," but that it had to be forged anew, in order permanently to strengthen the chain.

After much study, he succeeded in devising a prescription that would secure this result, by not only giving prompt relief but also by rebuilding and strengthening the delicate cells and membranes of the throat and lungs.

This prescription, Father Morriscy's Lung Tonic, or No. 10, has cured thousands. It is absolutely free from any dangerous drug, being compounded from Nature's own roots, herbs and balsams.

No. 10 stops the cough, relieves the soreness and strengthens and fortifies the system against future attacks. Even in the early stages of consumption it has proved helpful, but the wise plan is to take it in time, and avoid serious disease.

In our climate it is well to have a reliable and tested remedy like No. 10 always on hand. Take it at the first appearance of a cold, and keep the chain of life strong and capable of resistance.

Trial size 25c. per bottle. Regular size 50c. At your druggist's or from Father Morriscy Medicine Co., Ltd., Chatham, N.B. 96

THE CANADIAN MAGAZINE.

A most entertaining and romantic historical sketch by Miss Clare Giffin takes first place in the Canadian Magazine for February. The author is a Nova Scotia lady, and the subject of her sketch is "Stormont: A Town Unbuilt." It is the story of a town which from the first seems to have had the seal of misfortune set against it. The illustrations are from actual photographs of this interesting spot in Nova Scotia. "The Magdalen Islands" are described by Mr. W. Lacey Amy, in the first of two articles on this subject, and "Coiffe and Sabot in Brittany," is the title of a most attractive and splendidly illustrated article by Miss Emily P. Weaver. There is an article with illustrations on "Plays of the Season," by John E. Webber and Prof. George Herbert Clarke contributs the first installment of a learned appreciation of Browning's great epic, "The Ring and the Book." Other articles are: "The Voice from the Soil," by George Fisher Chipman; "A Varsity Election in the E'ghties," by J. H. Bowes; "A Traveller in Upper Canada in 1837," by Miss Ida Burwash; "A review of Lord Rosebery's Life of Lord Chatham," by Newton McTavish, with short stories by J. H. Shaw, Isabel Ecclestone MacKay, Georgia Davis Carroll C. Aikins, and Charles Woodward Hutson.

Mrs. Desmond Humphreys of London, Eng., who spent two months in Washington, New York and Boston—in her new book declares America is a land of licensed rudeness, where the people are taxed heavily, ruled despotically and blackmailed systematically.

She then hits at the American husband, saying he is "neither better nor worse than any other husband making money for his wife and giving too little of his time for quarreling."

Her photograph of the American man is:

"When young he is so badly dressed that he affronts the critical eye. When he is middle aged he is corpulent and unhealthy looking."

Clerics After Col. Hughes.

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—Local Protestant clergymen are up in arms, so to speak, against the slashing verbal attack made in the Commons a few days ago by Col. Sam Hughes upon Rev. J. W. H. Milne of this city, in reply to some pulpit criticism of members of Parliament, who take advantage of their privileged position to attack private citizens.

A meeting of the Ministerial Association of Ottawa has been called for to-night, at which the matter will be dealt with, and it's expected a resolution condemning Col. Hughes will be submitted.

Several leading Protestant clergymen, in interviews here on Saturday, condemned the speech, which they characterized as unnecessarily abusive and low tactics, tending to cast reflections on the ministry as a whole.

Duke Boosts Rent.

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—Capitalizing a duke, or the landlord and the rent, is the latest problem confronting the residents of Ottawa.

It is scarcely a week since the announcement was made that the Duke of Connaught would be Canada's next Governor-General, and rents are already beginning to show a tendency to rise. In fact some agents are quite frank in stating to holders of leases maturing shortly that a renewal cannot be had except at an advance.

Smallpox at Maxville.

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—An outbreak of smallpox has occurred at Maxville, Ont., where 12 cases have developed within a few days. Although there have been no deaths, a Maxville physician yesterday described the disease as of being a virulent type. Effective quarantine regulations have been established. Rumors of a similar outbreak at the village of Chesterville were denied over long-distance telephone by a physician there on Saturday.

Sudden Death.

Huntsville, Feb. 6.—Mrs. J. Youngson of this place had just returned from church, and sat down on a chair, when she suddenly expired from heart failure. She is survived by her husband, and five children, a son and daughter aged 12 and 14 respectively. She was a sister of H. W. Van Every of Toronto.

Outbreak In East Indies.

Batavia, Java, Dutch East Indies, Feb. 6.—There has been a serious outbreak among the Chinese on the island of Billiton. The capital, Tanjung Pandan, was looted and burned, and the chief administrator and others murdered.

Troops have been sent to the scene.

THE RED YEAR

A Story of the Indian Mutiny

—By—

LOUIS TRACY

Copyright by McLeod & Allen

But he saw no more of the Princess. He thought she would hardly dare to receive him openly, and her deputy gave no sign of admitting him to the interior of the palace, which loomed around the square of the courtyard like some great prison.

A chaprassi recovered his hat, which he had left floating in the moat. Nejdi allowed him to mount quietly; the stout door had closed on him, and he was picking his way across the fields towards the Meerut road, before he quite realized how curious were the circumstances which had befalen him since he parted from Winifred Mayne in the porch of her uncle's bungalow.

Then he bent forward in the saddle to stroke Nejdi's curved neck, and laughed cheerfully.

"You are wiser than I, good horse," said he. "When the game is up, you take thing's placidly. Here am I, your supposed superior in intellect, in danger of being bewitched by a woman's eyes. Whether brown or black, they play the deuce with a man if they shine in a woman's head. So ho, then, boy, let us home and eat, and forget these fairies in muslin and clinging silk."

Yet a month passed, and Frank Malcolm did not succeed in forgetting. Like any moth hovering round a lamp, the more he was singed the closer he fluttered, though the memory of the Indian Princess's brilliant black eyes was soon lost in the sparkle of Winifred's brown ones.

As it happened the young soldier was a prime favorite with the Commissioner, and it is possible that the course of true love might have run most smoothly if the red torch of war had not flashed over the land like the glare of some mighty volcano.

On Sunday evening, May 10th, Malcolm rode away from his own small bungalow, and took the Aligarh road. As in all up-country stations, the European residences in Meerut were scattered over an immense area. The cantonment was split into two sections by an irregular ravine, or nullah, running east and west. North of this ditch were many officers' bungalows, and the barracks of the European troops, tenanted by a regiment of dragoons, the 60th Rifles, and a strong force of artillery, both horse and foot. Between the infantry and cavalry barracks stood the soldiers' church. Fully two miles away, on the south side of the ravine, were the sepoy lines, and another group of isolated bungalows. The native town was in this quarter, while the space intervening between the British and Indian troops was partly covered with rambling bazaars.

Malcolm had been detained nearly half an hour by some difficulty which a subadar had experienced in arranging the details of the night's guard. Several men were absent without leave, and he attributed this unusual occurrence to the severe measures the colonel had taken when certain troopers refused to use the cartridges supplied for the new Enfield rifle. But, like every other officer in Meerut, he was confident that the nearness of the strongest European force in the North-West Provinces would certainly keep the malcontents quiet. Above all else, he was ready to stake his life on the loyalty of the great majority of the men of his own regiment, the 3rd Native Cavalry.

In pushing Nejdi along at a fast canter, therefore, he had no weightier matter on his mind than the fear that he might have kept Winifred waiting. When he dashed into the compound, and saw that there was no dog-cart standing in the porch, he imagined that the girl had gone without him, or, horrible suspicion, with some other cavalier.

It was not so. Winifred herself appeared on the veranda as he dismounted.

"You are a laggard," she said, severely.

"I could not help it. I was busy in the orderly-room. But why lose more time? If that fat pony of yours is rattled along we shall not be very much behindhand."

"You must not speak disrespectfully of my pony. If he is fat, it is due to content, not laziness. And you are evidently not aware that Evensong is half an hour later to-day, owing to the heat. Of course, I expected you earlier, and, if necessary, I would have gone alone, but—"

She hesitated, and looked over her shoulder into the immense drawing-room that occupied the centre of the bungalow from front to rear.

"I don't mind admitting," she went on, laughing nervously, "that I am a wee bit afraid these days—there is so much talk of a native rising. Uncle gets so cross with me when I say anything of that kind that I keep my opinions to myself."

"The country is unsettled," said Frank, "and it would be folly to deny the fact. But, at any rate, you are safe enough in Meerut."

"Are you sure? Only yesterday morning eighty-five men of your own regiment were sent to prison, were they not?"

"Yes, but they alone were disaffected. Every soldier knows he must obey, and these fellows refused point-blank to use their cartridges, though the Colonel said they might tear them instead of biting them. He could go no further—I wonder he met their stupid whims even thus far."

"Well, perhaps you are right. Come in, for a minute or two. My uncle is in a rare temper. You must help to talk him out of it. By the way, where are all the servants? The dog-cart ought to be here. Koi hai!"

No one came in response to her call. Thinking that a syce or chaprassi would appear in a moment, Frank hung Nejdi's bridle on a lamp-hook in the porch, and entered the bungalow.

wrath was due to a statement in a Calcutta newspaper that a certain Colonel Wheler had been preaching to his sepoys.

"What between a psalm-singing Viceroy and commanding officers who hold conventicles, we are in for a nice hot weather," growled the Commissioner, shoving a box of cheroots towards Malcolm when the latter found him stretched in a long cane chair on the back veranda. "Here is Lady Canning trying to convert native women, and a number of missionaries publishing manifestoes about the influence of railways and steamships in bringing about the spiritual union of the world! I tell you, Malcolm, India won't stand it. We can do as we like with Hindu and Mussalman so long as we leave their respective religions untouched. The moment those are threatened we enter the danger zone. Confound it, why can't we let the people worship God in their own way? If anything, they are far more religiously inclined than we ourselves. Where is the Englishman who will flop down in the middle of the road to say his prayers at sunset, or measure his length along two thousand miles of a river bank merely as a penance? Give me authority to pack a shipload of busy-bodies home to England, and I'll soon have the country quiet enough—"

An ominous sound interrupted the Commissioner's outburst. Both men heard the crackle of distant musketry. At first, neither was willing to admit its significance.

"Where is Winifred?" demanded Mr. Mayne, suddenly.

"She is looking for a servant, I fancy. There was none in the front of the house, and I wanted a man to hold my horse."

A far-off volley rumbled over the plain, and a few birds stirred uneasily among the trees.

"No servant to be seen—at this hour!"

They looked at each other in silence.

"We must find Winifred," said the older man, rising from his chair.

"And I must hurry back to my regiment," said Frank.

"You think, then, that there is trouble with the native troops?"

"With the sepoys yes. I have been told that the 11th and 20th are not wholly to be trusted. And those volleys are fired by infantry."

A rapid step and the rustle of a dress warned them that the girl was approaching. She came, like a startled fawn.

"The servants' quarters are deserted," she cried. "Great columns of smoke are rising over the trees, and you hear the shooting! Oh, what does it mean?"

"It means, my dear, that the Dragoons and the 60th will have to teach these impudent rebels a much-needed lesson," said her uncle. "There is no cause for alarm. Must you really go, Malcolm?"

"Go!" broke in Winifred with the shrill accents of terror. "Where are you going?"

"To my regiment, of course," said Frank, smiling at her fears. "Probably we shall be able to put down this outbreak before the white troops arrive. Good-by. I shall either return, or send a trustworthy messenger, within an hour."

And so, confident and eager he was gone, and the first moments of the hour sped when, perhaps, a strong man in control at Meerut might have saved India.

SIX KILLED IN WRECK

Mogul Engine Crashes Into a G.T.R. Passenger Train.

Collision on Goderich and Buffalo Line Results In Injury to Several—Five of Dead Are Employes and One Is a Passenger—Fire Destroys the Bodies of Two—Engine Should Have Stopped at Drumbo.

Brantford, Feb. 6.—The lives of six men, including five trainmen and one passenger, were lost and several injured in a terrible catastrophe on the Buffalo and Goderich line of the Grand Trunk Railway, which happened at 9.20 Saturday night, three and a half miles west of Paris, and midway between Paris and Drumbo. The catastrophe was the result of a head-on collision between the westbound passenger train, running from Buffalo to Stratford, and a mogul engine in charge of Engineer Robert Errett of Sarnia, running light from Stratford to Fort Erie.

Following in the wake of the collision came a terrible, devastating fire, which incinerated the bodies of a couple of the victims, and made an easy prey of the three splintered coaches of the train. The fire left nothing but the bare trucks and wheels, and a mass of twisted iron and charred ruin.

The dead are: A. Turner, engineer, Stratford; leaves a wife and grown up family. J. D. Smith, fireman, Stratford; leaves a wife and family. Peter McFarland, baggageman, Goderich; married, no children. John Whitelaw, express messenger, Goderich, formerly of Whitby; wife suffering from shock. William Tye, mail clerk, Goderick; leaves wife and grown up family. D. J. Crozier, passenger, Drumbo.

The list of injured includes the following: W. J. May, mail clerk, Hamilton, severely scalded; W. T. Henderson, city solicitor, Brantford, back injured; William McIntosh, customs clerk, Brantford, back injured; Geo. Hunt, Brantford, shaken up; Robert Errett, engineer, minor bruises and sprains.

The ill-fated train left Brantford 17 minutes late, and was running in charge of Conductor Ausbrook, with full right of way. None of the crew were aware of the approaching engine, which, it is understood had running orders to its destination and "to avoid regulars." The engine should have stopped at Drumbo, but instead, proceeded on to Paris, colliding halfway with the passenger train. Had the latter been on time the two would have met at Drumbo. Whether the crew of the engine had forgotten about the passenger train, or whether orders were mistaken, is a matter which could not be learned out of the usual railway reticence here yesterday. Trainmaster Forrester and Supt. U. E. Gillen conducted an investigation and Coroner Staples has ordered an inquest this afternoon at Princeton, where the charred bodies of Peter McFarland, J. D. Smith and William Tye were yesterday conveyed.

When the crash occurred the passenger train was traveling at about 35 miles an hour, according to the Brantford passengers. The engine must have been going much faster, as it struck with such impact that the baggage car was completely telescoped, and the mail end of the smoking car driven in, where the passengers were buried in flying splinter and glass.

Darkness immediately enveloped the train and its struggling occupants, the excitement and confusion being greatly enhanced by the fire, which rapidly spread from the old coal oil lamps in use on the train.

The wreck of the baggage car was complete, and neither of its occupants, Baggageman McFarland or John Whitelaw, express messenger, escaped. McFarland was rescued from the flames, but was so seriously injured that he died early Sunday morning at Scott's farm house.

A pitiful story is told by eye-witnesses concerning Whitelaw, who was pinned within the rapidly burning debris, unable to move. The flames gradually crept around his limbs, and with death merely a matter of a few minutes of prolonged agony. Whitelaw is said to have drawn his revolver and ended his sufferings. At any rate, a revolver shot was heard, and the charred remains of the express messenger were recovered yesterday as well as the revolver. Whether the discharge of the revolver was due to the heat of the fire may never be known, but the sad plight of Whitelaw being unable to release himself from the ravaging fire is an established fact.

The crew of the mogul engine practically escaped unhurt. Engineer Errett only being slightly injured, when he jumped with the others from his cab. The crew is from Sarnia, and is not well known on this division. They must have seen the approach of the passenger train first, as all appeared to clear the wreckage.

The victims are all well known. Mail Clerk Tye had seen nearly forty years service and was about to retire on a pension. Engineer Turner was well known from Buffalo to Goderich. Johnny Whitelaw was a popular Canadian Express Co. messenger, and was well known in and around Hamilton. R. M. Crozier, the only passenger to meet death, was a turnip buyer for Wood Bros., Brantford, and resided with his family in Drumbo. His knife, recovered in the wreck, was one used by him in cutting turnips for inspection. J. D. Smith was comparatively a young fireman out of Stratford. Baggageman McFarland was an old Grand Trunk man.

Trainmaster Forrester lent heroic assistance in the work of relief, arriving quickly with special train from Stratford headquarters and working all night at the scene of the wreck. The catastrophe occurred at an out of the way place on the line, and this impeded the assistance sent by the survivors, who worked heroically for the release of the imprisoned ones, Family Feud In Italy.

Naples, Feb. 6.—A family feud at Nicotera, in the Province of Catanzaro, has resulted in scenes in the streets of that town not unlike those of the Sidney street drama in London.

Giuseppe Brancia, a student belonging to a good family, was attacked in the open street by two brothers, Michele and Amedeo Gelanze, belonging to the hostile family. After a few shots had been exchanged, young Brancia fell dead. Roused by the shots, a crowd assembled. Among them were the parents of the dead youth, two of their sons, and a friend of the family, all armed with revolvers.

The two assassins fled. One reached his home, but the other, struck in the knee, fell to the ground. His brother, his father, and others in the house fired from a window on the members of the Brancia family, who returned the fire. In the battle more than 200 shots were exchanged. The fight only ceased on the arrival of carabineers, who entered the house of the Gelanze family and arrested the original assassin as he was firing from the window. They also arrested the elder Brancia.

Several members of both families were wounded. A girl named Angelina Ferraro, who was watching the battle from a doorway, was shot in the stomach.

Name Stricken From Rolls.

London, Feb. 6.—The name of Lt. Frederick Fermor-Hesketh of the Ninth Lancers, who strangely dropped out of sight last fall, was, on Friday, stricken from the rolls of the British army because of absence from duty without leave.

The lieutenant is the second son of Sir Thomas George Fermor and Lady Fermor-Hesketh.

A world-wide search for the lieutenant, instituted soon after his disappearance, failed to discover any clue as to his whereabouts. He is 28 years of age and was educated at the Royal Military College at Sandhurst and Trinity College, Cambridge. He is described as a handsome man and of a pleasing personality. He left his mother's residence at Easton Neston Tewcestern, on the afternoon of Oct. 29, after saying that he would return soon for dinner. The last seen of him was on the following morning when he landed from a steamer at Kingstown, Ireland. It has been suggested that he sailed for America. The family can offer no explanation.

Honors For McCurdy.

Havana, Feb. 6.—With practically the entire population of Havana looking on, J. A. D. McCurdy, who recently nearly crossed the Straits of Florida in a bi-plane, made a magnificently spectacular flight yesterday from the drill grounds of Camp Columbia to Morro Lighthouse, which he encircled twice, and returned.

The official time was 16 minutes 12 seconds. The estimated distance is 11 miles. The machine used by McCurdy was a 50-horsepower biplane, and the prize for the flight was $3,000, offered by the city. This, however, is open to competition until Feb. 28.

Officers For the Navy.

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—A number of regulations in regard to the naval service are contained in this week's issue of The Canada Gazette.

Candidates for the positions of naval instructors for the instruction of junior officers are required to be British subjects and to have lived in Canada for two years. They should not be over 27 years of age and should possess an honor degree in mathematics.

The rates of pay range from $4 per day on entry to $10.50 per day, received by a captain-director of naval instruction. Traveling allowances of officers in the naval service are increased and the rates of pay of electrician and chief electricians in the service are revised.

Chinese Whisky Seized.

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—The celebration by the local Chinese colony of the New Year last night, was somewhat marred. License Inspector Enright made three seizures on Saturday night, embracing 25 half cases of Chinese native whisky from local storehouses. The patrol was filled, and it required an express wagon to carry all the goods to the police station. Three cases were seized at the store of Huom Quong, one of the Chinese M.P.'s from Canada. The whisky will be sent to Toronto for analysis, and if it is over

WILL NOBLEMEN BALK?

Proposed Creation of Peers Interests Great Britain.

Asquith Is Said to Be Bent on Putting the Veto Measure Through Before the Coronation Ceremony—Plural Voting and Payment of Members May Have to Wait—No Session In the Autumn.

London, Feb. 6.—The King's speech excites no curiosity this year. Its outlines were available at the Government and Opposition dinners last night, but outsiders attending the reception in Downing street and at Lansdowne House did not need cues respecting its contents. The fact that Cabinet meetings have been few in number and have broken up early proves that there is no dissension over the veto bill, and that no other important legislation, apart from financial business, will be undertaken.

"Full steam ahead" will be the Prime Minister's order, and the coalition will hold together and carry the measure through the Commons before the coronation. The Easter and Whitsuntide recesses will be shortened, and the holidays will be extended to three weeks at coronation time. These were open secrets when rival receptions were held at Mrs. Asquith's and Lady Lansdowne's after the Prime Minister's, Lord Crewe's and Lord Beauchamp's dinner on one side, and Lord Londonderry's on the other.

There are no signs of high temperature in the Commons. The Liberals are in gay spirits and easily amused. There are loud guffaws of laughter whenever a fortunate member is convicted of having brought a new motor car or a fur overcoat, for he is at once congratulated on his chance of becoming a puppet peer. The pulse is lower on the Unionist side, where everybody professes to be bored with politics and in favor of a benevolent despotism. Strenuous resistance to the veto bill is considered necessary, since the Opposition members were elected for the purpose of fighting it; but there is a cynical indifference to the development of constitutional questions, couple with a lack of faith in the ability of the Unionists to do anything beyond retarding the progress of the measure in the Commons.

The signed pledge has been dropped by the Labor members, because it is evident that there can be no reversal of the Osborne judgment this year. The necessity for avoiding an autumn session in view of the King's departure for India is generally recognized, and it is doubtful whether the bills for the payment of members and the abolition of plural voting can be passed.

There is, indeed, only one mystery in the near future. This relates to the reception of the veto bill by the Lords and the necessity for the creation of hundreds of peers if no compromise can be effected before or after the coronation.

It is understood that King George's speech at the opening of his first Parliament to-day, will be a brief one, referring to the coronation, the Imperial conference and the Duke of Connaught's inauguration of the political move of the union of South Africa, and outlining the legislative program, which will include the veto bill and measures for dealing with workmen's insurance, plural voting, the payment of members of the House of Commons, and, possibly, an amendment to the Aliens Act, as the outcome of the Houndsditch affair.

A notable absentee from the House to-day will be Chancellor Lloyd-George who is now in Naples, where he probably will remain for another fortnight and perhaps longer. His throat trouble is proving unexpectedly obstinate.

The Unionist leaders have held several conferences, but it is still unknown what attitude they will adopt towards the veto bill. It is believed that the Lords may accept it as it is and should the Prime Minister advise the creation of a few hundred new peers, the King cannot constitutionally withhold his sanction. It is understood Lansdowne will almost immediately introduce a bill in the Lords for the reform of the Upper House, along the lines indicated in the Lansdowne-Rosebery measure.

Austin Chamberlain will move a tariff reform amendment, with special reference to the reciprocity agreement. Another amendment to the address will deal with the aliens' question.

National Grange Opposes.

New York, Feb. 6.—The machinery of the National Grange, an organization claiming membership of 1,000,000 farmers in thirty states, has been started to defeat the ratification by Congress of the Canadian reciprocity treaty. The legislative committee of the grange at a special meeting at the Hotel Manhattan, adopted a resolution protesting against the enactment of the reciprocity bill, calling upon the membership to exert pressure upon the Congressmen from their various districts to vote against the measure and decided to go to Washington to map out a campaign there.

"We are not opposed to a general reduction of the tariff," Mr. Atkeson said, "but we are opposed to any agreement which will make fish of one industry and flesh of another.

"Remove the tariff on steel and iron and manufactured articles along with farm products, and we won't object."

Fears Spies Among Aviators.

Berlin, Feb. 6.—It is stated in military quarters that the strategists of the German general staff have some misgivings about allowing the German part of the Paris Journal's Paris-Berlin-Brussels-Paris $50,000 aeroplane competition to be flown next summer.

It is feared that the competitors, especially the skillful French aviators who are expected to participate, may even unwittingly cross German forts or fortified territory, a knowledge of

WANTED TO AMEND IT.

Chairman Payne Says Tariff Treaty Cannot Be Changed.

Washington, Feb. 6.—The Canadian reciprocal agreement must stand or fall as a whole in the House, declared Chairman Payne of the ways and means committee during the progress of the hearings that occupied the entire day. A proposal of Representative Fordney in the morning for an amendment to the lumber schedule and another reference in the afternoon to the possible amendment of the item making barley free were met by the unequivocal answer of the chairman that the committee would sanction no change of any item.

Notwithstanding this fact the pressure brought to bear on the committee has resulted in the granting of hearings to all persons who appear in Washington prior to 5 o'clock next Thursday afternoon, Feb. 9. This date was fixed to permit Pacific coast lumbermen to reach Washington and make statements.

Farmers, lumbermen, barley raisers and manufacturers of barley malt were given hearings yesterday. The spirit of the committee was such, however, that the witnesses had difficulty in making a serious impression in presenting their arguments against the Canadian agreement.

The malting interests claimed that the peculiar conditions of the trade were such that if barley is admitted free Eastern Ontario would supply the product and Western New York the malting houses, so as practially to control the market.

Representative Geo. Malby of New York attacked the reciprocity agreement because of its agricultural items and its lowering of duties on lumber and wood pulp and paper. He declared that the tariff board had spent months accumulating all facts bearing on the paper-making business, but that paper was put on the free list by this treaty without any reference to what the tariff board had found out.

Taft's Speeches.

Washington, Feb. 6.—Reciprocity will be the theme which President Taft will discuss in most of the speeches he will deliver between now and the time Congress adjourns. Secretary Knox will help along the administration's campaign in this district by delivering an address on the reciprocity question at a banquet to be held in Chicago on the night of Feb. 15 by the Association of Commerce of Chicago. Both at Columbus, Ohio, corn exhibit, where the President will speak next Friday and before the Illinois Legislature on the following day, he will talk reciprocity. It is likely, also, it was stated at the White House yesterday, that at the Lincoln dinner at Springfield next Saturday night he may touch on the same topic.

Will Pass House Soon.

Washington, Feb. 5.—President Taft's reciprocity agreement with Canada will probably be reported favorably by the ways and means committee before the end of the week. Its passage by the House almost certainly will follow without delay.

This is the situation notwithstanding the attempts of the enemies of the agreement to discredit it by declaring that the print paper and wood pulp provisions will not hold and that substantial amendment will be necessary.

It became known Saturday that the agreement itself is perfectly satisfactory to the State Department.

Recognizing that the people of the country are demanding this legislation, the Democrats of the House are preparing to hold a caucus early this week, probably to night, and give to it their official endorsement. A poll of the Democrats by Representative Champ Clark, the next Speaker, has disclosed the fact that 95 per cent. of them will cast their votes for the agreement.

Pleadings Against Reciprocity.

Quebec, Feb. 6.—Preaching from the text "This land shall be your possession before the Lord," Rev. Canon Scott, the well-known Canadian poet, said last night that there were times of criticism in the national life when the usual reticence of the pulpit with reference to things political should be broken. Such a time was the present. The fate of Canada was hanging in the balance. If this were the last sermon he should ever preach, his voice would still be raised in the warning that should come from every preacher's lips, that this grave step would lead inevitably to the denationalizing of Canada, and its final absorption in the American Union.

Niagara Fruit Men Angry.

St. Catharines, Feb. 6.—So intense is the feeling against the reciprocity proposals throughout the fruit belt between this city and Hamilton that a monster deputation is being organized to go to Ottawa on Friday of this week and protest to the Government. It is stated that in numbers it will rival the deputation of western grain growers that invaded the capital in December last.

The fruit growers are alarmed over a possible reduction in the tariff on the ground that it will destroy the land values that enterprise, and industry have created at Grimsby, Winona and other points. They claim that the benefit of the early market will be denied them by reason of the importation of southern fruit, which, by reason of cheap labor in those parts, will undersell the home-grown product.

Millions are invested in the fruit industry in the Niagara peninsula, and the men who have nurtured the industry take it as a hardship that the work of years should be destroyed at a moment. They take credit for the quality of the product, and take the position that profits now have been reduced to a minimum, and further competition would spell ruination.

It is stated that deputations from other parts of the province will join with the fruit growers.

In Command of "B" Battery.

Kingston, Feb. 6.—Saturday Major D. I. V. Eaton, Ottawa, took over the command of B Battery, R.C.H.A., filling the place of Major Henri Panet, ordered to Aldershot, England, for a year, to be attached to a horse

GENERAL CRONJE DEAD

The Famous Boer Commander Passes Away Aged 76.

The Leader, Who Was Captured by the Royal Canadian Regiment at Paardeberg, Was an Officer In the War of 1880 and Fought at Majuba Hill — Was Sent to St. Helena—Toured the United States.

Klerksdorf, Transvaal, Feb. 6.—Gen. Piet A. Cronje, the noted Boer general, who was captured by the Royal Canadian Regiment at Paardeberg in 1900, died on Saturday.

Piet Arnoldus Cronje, the famous Boer general, was born in 1835. He was of Huguenot descent. In the war of 1880 with the British he commanded a division of his countrymen at Doornkop and Majuba Hill, and led the Boers who besieged Potchefstroom, where, keeping the garrison ignorant of the fact that a general armistice had been signed, he forced its capitulation (1881). It was he who frustrated the Jameson raid at Krugersdorf (1895), and when in 1899, the Transvaal declared war with Britain, Cronje, appointed commander of the western army of the South African republics, unsuccessfully attacked Kimberley, but (November 28) repulsed the British under Lord Methuen at the Modder River, although later his flank was turned, and again (Dec. 11) at Magersfontein, raised the Boer siege at Kimberley.

On Feb. 15, 1900, Cronje retreated. Intrenched in the bed of the Modder River at Paardeberg, he surrendered with his whole army of 4,069 men, with six guns, on Feb. 27, the anniversary of Majuba. He was sent (April, 1900) to St. Helena, but returned to the Transvaal after the conclusion of peace. In 1904-5 he appeared with various amusement enterprises in America.

Canadian Concern Loses Suit.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 5.—Announcement was made here on Saturday that any claims against Telamon Smith Cuyler, the Atlanta broker, by the Canadian Cottons, Ltd., of Montreal, will be adjusted by arbitration and a suit against Cuyler in the nature of an attachment to recover about $40,000 on a cotton transaction, has been dismissed. Cuyler is confined in a private sanitarium.

Presentations to Archbishop.

Kingston, Feb. 6.—In order to prepare for the ceremony of his enthronement as head of the capital soon, Archbishop Gauthier will leave Kingston Feb. 15. On the evening of the 14th, at St. Mary's Cathedral, the congregation of the parish will present him with an address and $2,000 in gold. A pectoral cross in gold will be presented by the priests of the diocese.

Well-Known Business Man Dead.

London, Ont., Feb. 6.—Gavin Rowat, one of the best known business men of Western Ontario, died in Victoria Hospital yesterday morning, aged 66. He was at one time head of the firm of Rowat, McMahon and Granger, wholesale dry goods, and with William Lind, who died last week, founder of the Western Ontario Commercial Travelers' Association.

BRAIN STRAIN.

In the long history of the past, glasses were resorted to for the purpose of correcting imperfect vision only. More especially during the later years it has been observed that glasses now and again have relieved nervous disorders, and the more closely we have studied and observed the effects of properly adjusted spectacles in disease, the more convinced we have grown that eye strain is the cause of many serious disorders, and that its correction will in a great measure relieve troubles that have theretofore baffled the skill of the medical profession.

When evidence comes from here and there of the cure of diseases that have always been considered fatal, it awakens, at first, incredulity, but if we are able to offer good and logical reasons why eye strain has such a powerful influence over

Evangelists Who Dishonor God

God Not Negligent, but Mindful of Man — Pastor Russell Criticises "Tommyrot"

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Feb. 5.—Pastor Russell addressed a large audience at Brooklyn Academy of Music to-day on God's Mindfulness of Man, from the text, "What is man that thou art mindful of him?" (Psalm vii, 4). He was sorry that he could not fully endorse the Chapman-Alexander "REVIVAL." He would not object to the fervent men carrying away Twenty-Five Thousand Dollars as a result of a few weeks' work if the results could be expected to justify it. It was not his business what these and other evangelists might do with their goodly sums of earthly treasure. He presumed that many support them sincerely. Such will undoubtedly have a reward for their good intentions. Others, however, thoroughly out of harmony with the unreasonable and unscriptural teachings of the evangelists, nevertheless stifle their convictions and assist in the misrepresentations of the Divine character and Plan. Such partakers of evil deeds and false teachings can hope for no reward, but may surely expect Divine disapprobation.

Pastor Russell expressed his sympathy with every movement for the uplifting of humanity. But he did not believe that anyone is really benefitted by doctrines which traduce the Divine character and misrepresent the great Creator, the God of Love, as vengeful, unjust, unsympathetic, toward his creatures. Those influenced by such teachings are, he believes, seriously injured. The misconceptions given them of God and of the teachings of the Bible will with many of them for years, to their damage.

Love Divine should be preached—a love which has made a provision for Adam and every member of his race to come to a knowledge of the Truth, and, by obedience, to attain eternal life, either on the spirit plane, as sharers in Messiah's Kingdom, or on the blessings of the "times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all the holy prophets"—to follow the Second Coming of Messiah and the establishment of his Kingdom, for which we still pray, "Thy Kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven." It should be preached that now is the time for securing a place amongst the "elect" on the spirit plane by walking in the footsteps of Jesus—presenting our bodies to him and his service as living sacrifices. It should be preached that with the beginning of Messiah's Kingdom of glory Paradise Lost will begin to return and eventually be world-wide, and human perfection and harmony with God, likewise.

"Whatsoever man soweth that shall he also reap" applies to everybody—to those who now come to a knowledge of the "high calling," to saintship and joint-heirship with Christ as God's "elect," and also to the world in general, the non-elect. Every wilful disobedience, every violation of conscience, means just so much of Divine displeasure and chastisement to be experienced before recovery is made. Only the weaknesses and frailties which have come down to us from Father Adam, and which hinder us and distress us at every turn, are forgivable sins, because only for such Adamic condemnation does the great Redeemer make satisfaction. Such as sin wilfully against full light shall perish in the Second Death without hope of recovery.

But, alas! many of the teachings of our day have their roots in the darkness of the past. Sometimes these teachings are plainly stated and those who refuse to join one or another party or sect are either directly or indirectly given to understand that their fate is eternal torture. Surely neither the Scriptures nor reason support such theories, which the Apostle styles "doctrines of devils" (I Timothy iv, 1). Indeed, too, the majority of ministers freely confess, in private, that they do not at all believe the doctrines of the eternal torment of all humanity except the saintly few among Church members.

Pastor Russell declared that such preaching not only slanders the Creator but dishonors human reason and common sense, as well as the Bible. He knew that money-getting is only one of the motives leading up to such a misrepresentation of the God of all grace. Another motive is the adding of membership to churches and the easier moving of the work along financial lines. Still a third motive, and the best of all, is a desire to uplift mankind from sin and selfishness.

However, Pastor Russell claimed, first, that the dishonoring of the Creator is too high a price to pay for the social uplift of those who would be claimed as converts; second, he claimed that the same persons could be much better influenced by the proclamation of the Truth. He considered it a reflection against human intelligence for a request to be made for all preferring an eternity of bliss to an eternity of torture to indicate their preference; and then to say that such are converted, in the Scriptural sense. He longed to see the zeal thus misapplied in a way so dishonoring to God and to human intelligence turned toward the proclamation of the Truth—the length and breadth and height and depth of the love of God.

God declares that as the heavens are higher than the earth, so his ways and plans are higher than man's (Isaiah iv, 9). How we rejoice in this! Instead of leaving mankind to go down to eternal torture for forty-one hundred and fifty years before Christ, and all but a saintly few since Christ's sacrifice—God has been working out a glorious plan of salvation for all who will accept it on the Divine terms of obedience. God intimated this plan through the sacrifice of Christ when he covered the nakedness of our first parents with skins, each of which cost a life. He intimated it again in the declaration that the "seed" of the woman would bruise the serpent's head. He repeatedly taught it in the types of the Jewish Law. During this Gospel Age he has been preparing the Royal Priesthood, of which Jesus is the Head and Chief Priest. Soon these "elect" will be completed—"then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the Kingdom."

The "election" of the Church is only God's preparation for the blessing of all the non-elect—the world of mankind—Adam and all of his children.

Messiah's Kingdom will not only restrain evil and overturn it, but it will usher in righteousness and the full knowledge of the glory of God, to every creature.

If God were honored by the proclamation of the Truth, which the angels proclaimed, great will be the blessing to men. Love will melt more cold and stony hearts than can fear. The angelic Message, "Fear not, we bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be unto all people," rightly, plainly understood, is much more forceful and helpful than all the appeals to fear and all the portrayals of an eternal torture which, fortunately, sane minds do not take seriously.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN VISITS COMMONS

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, accompanied by his son Austen Chamberlain, and Lieut.-Col. Arthur H. Lee, was sworn in as a member of the House of Commons yesterday. A pathetic touch was given to the ceremony by the fact that the Birmingham apostle of protection was so weak that he was only able to touch the pen and his son signed his father's name.

Mr. Chamberlain's mind seemed bright, but his voice was very weak. He wore the customary orchid in his buttonhole, but eyeglasses instead of the familiar monocle.

The speaker and other members expressed delight at the presence of the veteran statesman, who feebly returned thanks and then was accompanied from the chamber by his son and his friends.

MASKED ROBBERS LOOT "L" STATIONS

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Masked highwaymen held up ticket takers at two widely separated stations of New York Rapid Transit Lines before daybreak today and relieved them of their night's receipts, with the assistance of loaded revolvers.

At the One Hundred and Fortieth Street Station of the Eight Ave. "L" the agent was compelled to give up early $30 in small silver, nickels and coppers. At the Forty-Seventh St. Station of the Third Ave. "L" $25 was obtained in a similar manner. Both robbers disappeared before the police could get into action.

The robber at One Hundred and Fortieth St. Station used not a single word in accomplishing his work. Silently he appeared like a spectre in front of the ticket agent's booth, his mask covering almost his entire face and his revolver poked significantly through the brass work of the cage. Silently he pushed his left hand through the opening, scooped up the neatly piled change and backed out into the shadow of the dark stairway.

The Forty-Seventh St. robbery partook a little more of opera bouffe. A gaudy red bandanna handkerchief was the visitors mask and his revolver was a huge wapen of antique design suited to the equipment of a modern Capt. Kidd.

"See the gun" asked the man as he appeared at the window.

"Yes," said the agent.

"Hand out your cash, then; put it in this bag."

The visitor threw a regulation cash bag stamped with the name of a Wall St. bank, in front of the agent.

"Are you fooling?" asked the latter, hoping that it was all a crude joke.

"Now, look here," was the answer, accompanied with a long string of oaths, "I'm not fooling. See this cartridge? Well, there are seven of these in this gun and you will get every one of them unless you shell out quick. Be fast, there is a train due in a minute."

The agent reluctantly poured the coins in the bag and topped them with five or six bills of small denomination.

"Now, don't try to make a yell," called back the robber, as he disappeard through the doorway. "I'm going to stay near enough to shoot you if you make a noise."

A moment later a train pounded into the station and three policemen who were on board vainly searched the neighborhood for the thief.

THE MODERN NOVELETTE

Camilla stood facing the window, and did not see him when he entered the door, but she felt the proximity of the man, whose gaze was fairly burning holes in her gown. Prompted by an unaccountable uneasiness and a desire to save that gown, she wheeled suddenly, and her eyes fell upon him. They were light, and did not hurt the stranger at all.

"Merciful heavens!" she exclaimed, her eyes dilating wildly. "Do the dead rise!"

She leaned heavily upon a chair, and trembled so violently that the entire castle shook. The stranger thought it was an earthquake, and looked about uneasily.

"Considering your question from a theological standpoint," he said, calmly, "I think it can be answered in the affirmative."

Camilla struggled for composure like a person wrestling with an epileptic fit.

"I read your name in the list of the lost," she stammered, "and I thought you dead."

He laughed in a low, rasping voice which removed the varnish from some of the furniture.

"After you had scuttled the ship," he said, "I was rescued and taken ashore. I began at once to search for you. I have looked among the best families of Europe and the American heiresses, for I did not know in what guise I might find you. I find you quite comfortably settled here."

"What do you want of me?" gasped Camilla.

"Why," he replied, "I had thought something of going in for housekeeping again, and—"

"Never!" shrieked Camilla, her proud lips curling in scorn, and without the use of curling-irons. "I will never go back to you!"

The stranger remained perfectly calm, but the sarcastic smile on her face deepened. When he again spoke his voice could have been used for a nutmeg grater. His eyes were again burning holes in everything they rested upon.

"You forget, my dear Camilla," he said, "that I am your husband."

There was a momentary silence, so still that the firing of a cannon three rods away could have been heard distinctly.

"I wish that newspaper had told the truth," sobbed Camilla, "and that your name had been McGinty."

"Why, of course you do," the stranger replied. "Then you could pursue your plans without hindrance."

"Then you mean to betray me?" said Camilla, changing her position and her tactics at the same time without losing her balance.

"That depends on you," he said, with a shrug of the shoulders he had learned in Paris and was using this season with great success. It had brought down the house on several occasions.

In their excitement the two had not heard the grating of the carriage wheels on the drive in the courtyard of the castle. Camilla was staring at the man in indescribable rage, mingled with fear and anxiety. He was smiling scornfully, when the door opened and Count von Halfakeg entered.

"Aha!" he exclaimed, striking an attitude and speaking in a tone of mingled sarcasm and police inquiry. "What have we here?"

"All is lost!" exclaimed Camilla, throwing her hands to her head with such violence that she felled herself to the floor. Then she sat up and looked wildly about her. The stranger explained that she was his wife, that he had come to get her. The count thought he heard a tone in the man's voice that had a silvery ring to it. He felt in his pockets and then addressed the stranger.

"How much do you want?" he asked. "What sum is necessary to buy your silence and ensure your absence from the castle for ever?"

"Well, I hardly know," replied the stranger, meditatively. "How would one-and-sixpence strike you?"

GYPSY QUEEN'S ROMANCE

Millionaire's Beautiful Daughter Renounced Wealth to Marry Gipsy

Jessie Haversham Michele, known all over the United States as the "Gipsy Queen," has just died at Cincinnati.

Only twenty-five years old, and a very beautiful woman, she was the daughter of Mr. A. W. Haversham, a millionaire, of Baltimore, and left her home a few years ago to marry the head of the gipsies.

As the daughter of a millionaire she was brought up in great luxury. She was a descendant of Francis Scott Key, who wrote "The Star Spangled Banner," a great-granddaughter of Mrs. Mary Key, one of the most famous beauties of the South.

She first met the gipsies when she was about fourteen, and began to study their language, becoming interested in Romany ways and customs. On a visit to Europe she met a Hindu who taught her fortune-telling, and twice ran away from home, following the irresistible call of the wandering life.

When she finally left home it was thought that she had been kidnapped, and all the detective machinery that her father's wealth could buy was put into motion to find her. The whole country was scoured, but it was not for several months that her father learned that she had married Jorgas Michele, the gipsy chief. She never went home again, and, though she had been the belle of Baltimore society, she declared that she was tired of leading such a life, and had made her choice, and was supremely contented.

BABES DEAD IN CUPBOARD

MONTREAL, Feb. 3.—Mrs. George Marlow went to a moving picture show this afternoon, leaving her two children, Donalda and Anne, six and seven years of age, in the flat occupied by the family on Chatham Street. Boys playing in a yard in the rear noticed smoke pouring from the windows, and summoned the firemen. A few dashes of water extinguished the blaze. The children had taken refuge in a cupboard off the kitchen, and were both dead when the firemen managed to gain access to the place.

Chief of Police Campeau stated tonight that it was his intention to see if criminal proceedings could not be instituted against the mother for leaving such small children alone. There was too much of that sort of thing going on in the city, in his opinion.

Refused to Sign Verdict.

Montreal, Feb. 6.—Mrs. George Marleau, mother of the two children suffocated by smoke as a result of a fire that broke out in the Marleau home, 100 Chatham street, while the children were alone in the house on Friday afternoon, was exonerated of criminal responsibility at the inquest held at the morgue Saturday morning.

When the jury retired to consider their verdict, eleven of them were of the same mind as the coroner, but Wildrod Lesard, who is the father of six children, said he thought Mrs. Marleau should be held criminally responsible, and refused to sign the verdict.

CHILDREN SHOT WHILE AT PLAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Seven-year-old Thomas Kennedy died early to-day in Cumberland Street Hospital in Brooklyn from a bullet wound. Five-year-old Joseph Britton is in a critical condition at the same institution as the result of a wound made by the same bullet. Locked up in the Children's society is a terrified eleven-year-old girl, Marian Riddle, who is accused by the police of having fired the fatal shot. She tearfully protests her innocence, but the detectives who have questioned her say that she has admitted having had the revolver in her hand. Little Joe Britton says Marian shot him.

The accident, for the authorities agree that the shooting was an accident, is directly traceable to the shooting of a strike-breaker in Brooklyn yesterday. The man who did the shooting is believed to have thrown his revolver into a vacant lot, where it was found by the Riddle girl while at play. There was a pile of sand in the lot. Late yesterday the two boys, Marian Riddle and ten-year-old Josephine Kennedy were playing a game—Mamma and Papa—and the two boys ran away. The girls went in search of them, and a few minutes later a pistol shot was heard. The Britton boy, with blood streaming down his face from a wound in his head, ran to his home. He gasped out that Marian had shot him and collapsed. The Kennedy boy was lying in the street. At the hospital two wounds were found in his neck, where the bullet had entered and passed out, lodging in the Britton boy's head.

The two girls were arrested, and although they denied they had had the revolver, they told conflicting stories. The Riddle girl, however, admitted seeing the weapon lying in a vacant lot, and she was sent to the Childrens' Society to await the action of the coroner.

MAN CUT OPEN TO WIN SUIT

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 4.—Judge Houser, of the Superior Court had a glimpse of the inside workings of Henry Christie, a wealthy business man, when Christie was taken to the Angelus Hospital to-day and cut open to prove that Dr. Rea Smith had been guilty of malpractice in a former operation.

This method of obtaining evidence in a lawsuit was hitherto unheard of but Judge Houser accepted the proposition when Christie's lawyer made it. Later the Judge tried to hedge at least, he gave Christie an opportunity to forego the operation if he chose, but Christie insisted. The most prominent surgeons of the city had been arrayed against each other in the case.

Dr. Smith insisted that Christie had cancer and he sewed up the patient's intestines and made an artificial opening in his side after he was under the influence of an anaesthetic for a supposed appendicitis operation.

Drs. W. V. Severance, and E. S. Pillsbury, Christie's witnesses, performed another operation to-day under the critical eyes of Dr. Smith and his witnesses. Christie has suffered for thirty years with a chronic complaint which made the operation a daring one. The operators staked their reputation on the outcome.

Before being put under the anaesthetic Christie was asked if he had changed his mind.

"Not on your life," he replied emphatically, "I insist on it."

For two hours and forty-five minutes the surgeons worked over him. When they had finished they had closed the false opening made by Dr. Smith and restored Christie's inside apparatus to its normal condition had not found any cancerous growth of the size of which Dr. Smith and his experts had testified. The case will be resumed in court on Monday.

CURE OF LOCKJAW NEW AND SIMPLE

Said To Have Been Successfully Tested by Several Doctors

MANKOTA, Minn., Feb. 4.—Doctors in this city who have been experimenting with lockjaw and cures for it have discovered a simple injection of Epsom salts into the spinal column what is believed to be a prompt and speedy cure for tetanus.

Because of their professional ethics the doctors have not allowed their names to be used in connection with the remarkable cures which have been effected, but a case this week which came to light proves almost conclusively that the new remedial agent works and can be depended on quite generally.

Herman Mattion of Amboy lost one of his fingers in a corn-sheller, and following an operation lockjaw set in from which it was not thought he could recover. The two doctors in question were appealed to as having conducted many experiments with tetanus and administered their Epsom salts treatment, at the same time giving out their secret, which has hitherto been unpublished, although several cases had been successfully handled previously. This case was the most pronounced in which a speedy cure was effected.

According to medical men there have been but eleven cases of tetanus cured in the United States.

SATURDAY NIGHT.

Five for market and five for clothes,
And that is the way that the money goes;
Some for cigars, to keep us alive
In the little rest-places the while we strive.
Some for candy, that all must eat
To keep them happy and keep them sweet
Three for the servant, and ere it's spent,
A share saved by for the monthly rent.
Saturday night, and away we go,
Helping each other divide the "dough;"
Some for the child asleep above,
And all for the dream that we dream of love!

Meat and groceries, and light and coal.
Some for Sunday, to save the soul;
The life insurance, the doctor's bill,
The milkman's can and the baker's till;
Butter and eggs and rolls and cheese.
Fish and oysters or what you please.
Every cent as it comes must go
Back to the stream to the world may flow.
Saturday night, and we're counting up,
How we shall measure the way to sup;
Some for music and some for art,
And some for the child with the laughing heart!

Some for papers and some for books,
Some for keeping our happy looks,
While year by year in the weekly round
On Saturday night at home we're found
Helping each other divide the "dough,"
Figuring out how it ought to go,
Some for living and some for tax.
And some for clothing the children's backs.
Saturday night, and we're off again
Unto the market of merry men;
Home with our basket and home to pray
That God still helps us to earn the pay!

Woven woollen garments which have become too thin in places to support the extra strain of an ordinary darn can be treated in the following manner. Soak a piece of net till quite soft and when dry tack on to the thin place on the inside of the garment. The needle should be woven in and out of the net, and a firm foundation being thus made for the darn the mending will be found to be quite satisfactory.

It is a great saving to gas mantles if they are soaked in vinegar before using. Put a long pin through the little loop at the top, and dip the mantle in a jar of vinegar till well soaked. Lift out gently and place across another jar to drip and dry thoroughly. When dry put on the burner and burn off the stiffening in the ordinary way. By this device the mantle lasts twice as long, gives a better light, and will even stand a good breeze from an open door or window.

RECORDING MUSIC ON NEW MACHINE

Instrument Invented That Is of Great Help to Composer—No Notes Will Be Lost Now

A famous critic once made the rather sweeping statement that "more masterpieces were lost to music than were ever gained." Strange as this remark may at first appear, there was a good deal of truth in it. He meant, of course, that many wonderful passages which must have been played by great composers while idly fingering the piano were lost forever. The brain of the genius is notoriously fitful, and while working out one idea a dozen others might subconsciously be communicated to the fingers, and their value not appreciated until too late. Such tragedies must be frequent.

Now, however, by the aid of a new invention with the rather formidable name of the "Automusicograph," nothing need be lost to music in the future. This ingenious apparatus, which can be attached to any piano, records on a roll of music paper every note that is played whether good, bad, or indifferent. Many an amateur can compose melodies in his head, and play them but few can write music as it should be written. Now this little machine does that part of the work.

It takes the form of a small cabinet with a glass front, and is fixed over the reading desk. A paper roll, marked with different colored lines, is placed inside and the clockwork machinery set going. As it revolves, every note that is touched is marked upon it in typewriter fashion. When the sheet of paper is detached after playing, a graduated gauge is placed by the side of it which determines the exact position of the note.

Don Angelo Barbitri, the inventor, claims for it that it is not only accurately reproduces the notes played, but also the time. The value of the device, therefore, to every composer who extemporizes will be enormous.

HATS FROM PARIS

Present Large Picture Creations the Most Artistic Yet Seen

A hat from Paris! Show me the woman who is not attracted by such a bait. In the French capital to-day $100 is regarded as a comparatively low price to pay for one of the popular hats of automobile-tire dimensions, and having but the slightest apology for trimming in the way of a tiny cord or band of fur or a single rose. But why so dear? may be asked. Well, it is all because of the line, the cut, if one may so term it, as a leading milliner expressed it the other day.

Truly, the present large picture hats are the most artistic headgear seen here in many years. During the summer season when Paris is supposed to be dead the designers for great milliners spend many an hour in the Louvre or the Carnavalet galleries, or studying the wonderful collection of the National Library, and the result of which can be easily seen in this year's hats, many of which are copies of the Directoire and Louis XV. and Louis XVI. styles. These large hats are chiefly for afternoon wear, it may be explained.

The winter models are so varied and becoming that there will be no difficulty of selection. The poise of an aigrette or a bunch of plumes suited to the individual face, will entirely change what looks like an impossible-becoming toque into the most chic and becoming headgear.

MANUEL TO LIVE IN THE OPEN AIR

The Ex-King's Health Is Said to Have Been Shattered by Recent Exciting Incidents

If ever there was a happy woman, comparatively speaking, it is the Queen mother of Portugal, who, with her son, Manuel, escaped from Lisbon with their lives when that city was seized by the revolutionists. The agony and terror in which this poor woman has lived for more than two years is beyond description, according to one of her ladies-in-waiting who has just arrived in Paris from London. The life of the fallen queen has been one of long suffering, for she realized only too well the hopelessness of the situation so far as the permanency of the Portuguese monarchy was concerned. She tried in vain to stem the current of reckless extravagance, as friends in Paris in whom she confided, well know. Then three years ago, came the horror of witnessing the assassination of her husband and eldest son, while being able to save the life of her youngest son only by her personal intervention. What she has gone through no human being can conceive, nor realize, and it is a great relief to know that at last the strain is over and that she can rest peacefully at the country residence of the Duc d'Orleans. She is soon to make a protracted visit to France, where the Orleans family still possess a magnificent chateau. It is said in Paris that it has been definitely settled that the deposed king, Manuel, will live much in the open air for many months, for, as a result of a not altogether quiet life, his health is far from good, while his nerves have been shattered as a result of the events of the last few weeks. Steps will be taken to hinder any attempt on his part to renew his friendship with the French actress, Gaby Deslys, with whom he was greatly taken, and who has improved the opportunity of the loss of his throne to bring public attention to the fact that he was one of her admirers.

FELL TO DEATH IN WATERS

Young Hamilton Man Was Drowned While Attempting to Cross Trestle

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 5. — Jolted from an insecure footing on a trestle while attempting to make his way along the ends of the ties beside a stalled frieght train, Allen Payne, aged 21 was thrown into the Youghiogheny River last eveing and drowned. He was hurrying homeward to his bride who, less than two months ago, left her home in Hamilton,Ont., to marry him. Payne also came from Hamilton, where his father, E. J. Payne, is a prominent real estate dealer. His wife was Miss Kavanaugh.

Payne started across the trestle, but was caught midway by the freight. He reached one safety platform, but at- to the next, when the train stalled. Midway the train started and a box car grazed Payne's shoulder. It was sufficient to unbalance him. He plunged into the icy waters beneath, but struggled vainly to reach the shore. Two small boys were the only witnesses. They saw him reach the pier and try to secure a hold. He failed and then started shoreward. Soon he sank, his hip boots and heavy coat proving too great a burden.

Meanwhile the young wife waited in vain for his coming. She sought Robert Hill, of the Hill Construction Company, by whom Payne was employed, but Mr. Hill had heard no word of the young man. Investigation developed the fact that a man was reported to have been drowned earlier in the evening and later it was learned that it was Payne.

The Connellsville police began dragging the river early this morning, and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon the body was recovered. It will be shipped to Hamilton for burial.

RED FLAGS BORNE BEHIND COFFIN

Immense Crowd at Funeral of Noted Socialist in Berlin

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—About 150,000 persons to-day followed the body of Paul Singer, the noted Socialist, to the grave. The lookers-on probably numbered half a million. It was a demonstration of immense impressiveness, organized with the skill and completeness for which the Socialist party is famous. Everything moved smoothly. The police did not interfere in any way. There was no disorder. Even red flags and banners bearing mottoes were allowed to be carried, the only condition being that they must be muffled with crepe.

Of funeral pageantry there was very little. A pair-horsed hearse, simply decorated with flowers and a red silk flag, left the office of the Vorwaerts, the Socialist organ, at noon, bearing the body to the cemetery, which was reached five hours later. Included in the procession following the hearse were the Socialist members of the Reichstag and numerous provincial and foreign delegates.

Five bands in different parts of the procession alternated in playing funeral marches and revolutionary airs. Two thousand enormous wreaths were carried by the paraders. About one-sixth of the paraders were women. It was noticeable that a large percentage of the men wore tall hats, many of which were of ancient pattern and bore the look of heirlooms. Addresses were made at the graveside.

HANDICAP OF CANDIDATES AMOUNTS TO LITTLE IN INTELLIGENCER CONTEST

The Little Start That Early Entrants Have Counts but Little Against Late Comers, as a Six Months or Year Subscription Will Put Any of the Candidates Among Leaders

The Intelligencer contestants are still climbing, some steadily and certainly, some by leaps and bounds, but many are climbing. The spirit of the contest seems to be getting hold of the contestants and all are busy in an endeavor to get to the top. Just a word here about the fairness of this contest. Over a month ago when the contest manager visited The Intelligencer office seeking to close a contract to put on a big voting contest, he was told that if The Intelligencer took up the proposition, the whole matter from start to finish must be run absolutely on the square—that no unfairness would be permitted in any shape or form. The contest manager agreed with us in every respect, and to-day we firmly believe that no contest was launched on a fairer basis to all concerned. Every contestant can rest assured of the backing of The Intelligencer management that she will receive the fairest kind of treatment—that only straight, legitimate votes will be permitted—that all the young ladies interested will have nothing to complain of in any particular. The system used for taking care of candidates, the careful counting and checking over of votes could not be improved upon. As The Intelligencer has said many time before, the books of the contest department are open to inspection by anyone who wishes to take the trouble of visiting The Intelligencer office. The contest manager will cheerfully explain any detail about which there may be any doubt. Most of the candidates who reside in the city and many of those living in outside districts have visited The Intelligencer office to investigate the manner in which their votes are being registered, and one and all express themselves as satisfied that they will receive fair treatment. No contestant is receiving more votes than she earns and no contestant is getting any less than she turns in. Every vote brought into The Intelligencer office is carefully registered and the credit given to the candidate who sends or brings the votes.

HOW BALLOTS ARE SECURED.

In all cases where vote certificates are issued, subscriptions must be paid in advance. The full amount of money must be sent direct by mail, paid to the contestant, or brought to this office.

RESCUED FROM LIVING TOMB

LONDON, Feb. 5. — The two men, Groult and Bellenger, who have been buried in a marl pit near Rouen for nearly thirteen days, have been rescued. The squad of engineer soldiers who had been working night and day, driving a shaft parallel to the one which collapsed, reached the imprisoned men at one o'clock in the morning.

Bellenger was taken out first and hurried on a stretcher to the mairie. Groult was then brought to the surface. They were both in fairly good health and spirits. Of the food let down to them they had still two ten-pound loaves of bread. Four candles remained, and they had never been in darkness. They had suffered chiefly from thirst and cold, as the cider lowered down to them had given out some days ago. They had to quench their thirst with the few drops of water which trickled through the marl.

In order to keep themselves warm they had started to dig their way through the marl and had taken out thirty cubic metres. Unfortunately they had dug in the opposite direction to that from which assistance was coming, so that their efforts did not aid their rescuers.

They had completely lost count of time. They were of opinion that they had only been a week under ground, while in reality it was nearly thirteen days.

MISSIONARIES IN CHINA MENACED BY NATIVES

Danger of Murder by Hunger Maddened Mobs Cause For Alarm

SHANGHAI, China, Feb. 6.—Great alarm for the safety of American missionaries in the famine districts and Anhui and Kiangsu provices is expressed to-day by members of the relief committee and efforts are being made to get into communication with those in the outlying districts.

It is feared the missionaries may have become the victims of their charity, as numerous instances of hunger-maddened mobs attacking and murdering persons known to possess even insignificant supplies of food are reported by field agents. Orders have been issued that no relief be given by missionaries as individuals but only as representing the organized relief bodies.

Two million lives at $1.50 each was the estimate of their task made to-day by officers of the famine relief committee. For one dollar and a half, they declared, they could save one person from starvation until spring.

Six Relief Stations At Work.

Relief stations have been established by the foreign and missionary committees of Linwaikwan, Hwaiydan, Menchen, Nanhsiuchow, Lingpi and Kuchen. Gruel is dispensed to all who apply.

In the famine districts the streets are peopled with unburied dead and beggars. The well to do keep within their homes, fearing if they go out they will be surrounded by scores of starving men pleading for food. The prosperous fear if they give aid to a single famine sufferer they will be besieged by the rest of the population.

At Shaun Chien, a mob of desperate famine sufferers in the early stages of the famine sacked the town killing a large portion of the inhabitants. The remainder, in fear of summary punishment by the authorities, have made their escape from that district.

Gen. Pietrus Cronje, the famous Boer commander, who captured the Jamieson raiders and was himself captured with four or five thousand men at the Modder River after a stubborn resistance, died on Sunday at Klerksdorp, in the Transvaal. He was what the Scotch call "a bonnie fechter."

"We need an open market for the necessaries of life and we need a greater market for machinery, tools and the multitude of articles which Canada buys of our manufacturers," says the Philadelphia Ledger. It is much better that Canada should buy those things of us in this country where they are created by our own capital and labor, than that a few smug combinations should be encouraged to erect huge mills in Canada with American capital, so that inordinate prices may be maintained on both sides of the line."

GRIFFIN'S OPERA HOUSE.

"The Old Homestead," ever old and ever new, is a coming attraction here, and with it the ever popular Uncle Josh, whose joys and sorrows, failures and successes, so invariably interest an audience and arouse its sympathies. Joshua Whitcomb is the New England farmer to the life, and seeing him portrayed one loses sight altogether of the idea that it is a dramatic counterfeit rather than the genuine Yankee, who apparently steps from his hayfield to the barnyard of the Whitcomb homestead nestling amid the New Hampshire hills. Verily, the old play, but rather, increases in favor as the years wear on. Mr. Thompson promises an excellent cast, including the famous quartet and a complete scenic outfit. MAYOR ACKERMAN REPLIES TO MR. MARSH

He Offers Physician's Certificate As To His Condition on Sept. 16th

Belleville, Ont., Feb. 6, 1911.

Dear Sir:

Will you permit me space in your valuable paper to make a short reply to Mr. Marsh's circular.

I do not ask the public to accept my word as to my condition on Sept. 13th, but if anyone has any doubt as to whether I was able to sit up on that date or answer the telephone on Sept. 16th, they can have those doubts removed by calling on Dr. Gilbert, who was called to attend me on Sept. 12th, or Nurse Edwards, who was called in attendance on Sept. 15th, 1910.

Now I could say a few things regarding Mr. Marsh's acts as Mayor, that perhaps would not be to his credit, but I refrain from doing so, as I do not believe the interests of the city will be advanced by continuing the controversy.

Yours sincerely,

H. W. Ackerman.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. F. R. LINGHAM

Respected Lady Fell Dead in Her Home This Morning

That in the midst of life we are in death was strikingly examplified in this city this morning, when the spirit of Mrs. Frederick R. Lingham was, without a moment's warning, ushered into the Great Beyond. The lady, in question, who resided on John St., arose as usual this morning and was apparently as well as ever. At about 9.30, while about the house, she made a complaint that she was apparently suffering from an attack of indigestion. A few minutes later she fell to the floor and immediately expired. Heart disease was given as the cause of death. No lady in this city was better or more favorably known than Mrs. Lingham. She was a lady of exceptional ability and tact, and this was strikingly demonstrated in the interest she manifested in educational matters. In the year 1903 she purchased the fine property known as Elmpool, situated on Bridge Street, the old homestead of the late Hon. Billa Flint, and afterwards owned by Col. and Alexander Brown, and founded St. Agnes' School. Her idea was to have a school wherein young ladies could be prepared for the duties and responsibilities of life by careful training along lines of broad intellectual culture. She was the Directress of this institution and was eminently qualified as the head of such an institution.

The late Mrs. Lingham, whose maiden name was Agnes Weller, was born near Consecon, Prince Edward County, some 58 years ago. The greater portion of her life was spent in this city, although, with her husband, she had travelled extensively, visiting many foreign countries. Deceased was a most affable and christian lady, ever ready to assist in any beneficial act. She was a member of St. Thomas' Church and an ardent worker in church matters. Her demise is sincerely regretted by a host of friends, and her memory will be ever held sacred by those who were her intimate friends. In addition to the husband, one daughter, Mrs. S. D. Lazier, of Vancouver, B.C., survives. To those suddenly bereaved will be extended the sincere condolence of all citizens.

MRS. CASSIDY DEAD AT GOOD OLD AGE

Two weeks ago Mrs. Christopher Cassidy, who resided near Stoco, in Hungerford township came to the city to see her daughter, Mrs. A. Burgoyne, Pinnacle street. She was taken ill, and passed away this morning. Deceased, who was 73 years of age, was born in Hungerford township, where she had resided all her life. Mrs. Cassidy was a devout member of the R. C. Church and a lady highly esteemed by all who knew her. Some 20 years ago Mr. Cassidy preceded her to the tomb. Surviving is a family of four sons and four daughters. The sons are,—W. J. of Picton; Frank of Marlbank, George of Hungerford, and Jos. F. of Alberta. The daughters are,—Mrs. A. Burgoyne, of this city; Mrs. A. Sinnot, of Peterboro, Mrs. Peter Irwin, and Mrs. Dennis of Hungerford.

Montreal Snowed Up.

Montreal, Feb. 7.—Five thousand men and 1,500 carts are now engaged by the city to remove the snow from the streets. The city engineer states that it will take over a week before the snow is all cleared away from the streets where there are car tracks.

RESULTS OF FOOD.

Health and Natural Conditions Come From Right Feeding.

Man, physically, should be like a perfectly regulated machine, each part working easily in its appropriate place. A slight derangement causes undue friction and wear, and frequently ruins the entire system.

A well-known educator of Boston found a way to keep the brain and the body in that harmonious co-operation which makes a joy of living.

"Two years ago," she writes, "being in a condition of nervous exhaustion, I resigned my position as teacher, which I had held for over 40 years. Since then the entire rest has, of course, been a benefit, but the use of Grape-Nuts has removed one great cause of illness in the past, namely, constipation, and its attendant evils.

"I generally make my entire breakfast on a raw egg beaten into four spoonfuls of Grape-Nuts, with a little hot milk or hot water added. I like it extremely, my food assimilates, and my bowels take care of themselves. I find my brain power and physical endurance much greater and I know that the use of the Grape-Nuts has contributed largely to this result.

"It is with feelings of gratitude that I write this testimonial, and trust it may be the means of aiding others in their search for health." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

RAILWAY STATISTICS

Canada Beats the World in Railway Mileage in Proportion to Population

Canada has the greatest railway mileage in proportion to population of any country in the world, and the total has increased in forty years from 2,521 to 21,104 miles, a gain of 854 per cent. This result is shown by statistics compiled by The Canadian Engineer. The capitalization of the Canadian lines averages $55,638 per mile, the lowest of any national record. This includes both bond and share capital, which average, respectively, $28,345 per mile in stocks and $27,293 per mile in bonds. The nearest approach to the Canadian average of capitalization is $109,788 per mile in Germany, Austria follows with $112,879 per mile, and Italy with $124,730. The highest capitalization is on the British railways, which average $275,610 per mile. It is evident that the Dominion has been extremely generous to her railways when they have been able to build and equip on such small capitalization. Russia leads as to mileage with 26,257 miles, but is lowest in proportion to population, having one mile of railway for every 2,941 inhabitants. Germany, with 36,012 miles, is second as to mileage, but has one mile for every 1,586 inhabitants. France has 30,029 miles of railway and Austria-Hungary 25,836 miles. Great Britain is next with 23,089 miles, and Canada follows with 22,966 miles. Italy although next in proportion to mileage, has only 10,306 miles of railway.

While Canada has one mile of railway for every 300 of the population, Italy has the lowest proportion, one mile for every 3,119 inhabitants. Great Britain has a mile of line for every 1,912 inhabitants, about the same ratio as Spain, and slightly below the average of Germany, France and Austria-Hungary. During the past fifty years the greatest proportionate increase in mileage has been in Russia, with Sweden second, and Canada third. These figures do not include the mileage of the Grand Trunk Pacific, and in the average capitalization of government lines, which have no capital, are omitted. Statistics for the world down to 1908 show a grand total of 611,478 miles of railway, a gain of 61,505 miles, or 11.2 per cent., since 1904. The United States alone has more than the entire continent of Europe and about one-third of the world's total. Canada is in the midst of a great railway-building era, and her record will materially change the relative proportions calculated two years ago.

GIRL DIES OF BROKEN HEART

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 6.—Just six weeks after the date set for her marriage to a Philadelphian, Miss May Thomas, of Oxford, Pa., died of a broken heart. She had prepared a wedding trousseau and, attired in her bridal costume and veil, she awaited the coming of her betrothed. A hundred guests had assembled at her home. After waiting two hours Miss Thomas smiling said, "I'm afraid he's jilted me," and invited the guests to partake of the wedding supper.

Miss Thomas was taken ill that night, and never rallied. The physician who attended the young girl says she died of a broken heart.

A Fair Offer

The following, from the Brockville Times, is very much to the point and has our hearty endorsation:

"The Brockville Times has received a friendly circular letter from the Lecturer-in-chief of the Government Annuities Service inviting this newspaper to advertise and boom, without charge, a meeting here to be addressed by the Lecturer-in-chief in the interests of the annuity system. The Lecturer-in-chief also says he hopes 'to have the honor of meeting you personally.' We also hope to have the honor and pleasure of meeting the Lecturer-in-chief when he comes to Brockville, but fail to see why we should donate our valuable space, which is our stock in trade, to the Government Annuities Service. According to the veracious statements of the Laurier Government they have plenty of money in the Treasury. We have not. And we need it much more than the Government. However, in order that there shall be no hard feeling, we shall be much pleased to exchange advertising space with the Government for the price of an annuity which will enable the editor of this widely read and influential newspaper to spend his declining years in peace.

"'Business is Business,' as the late Hon. J. I. Tarte said. This is a fair offer. It is now up to the Laurier Government to rise to the occasion and put the deal through.

A Liberal Protest

The Windsor Record (Liberal) has this comment on the reciprocity agreement:

Uncle Sam is shrewd in a dicker. He is dead willing to admit pulpwood free provided the Canadian Provinces most concerned will take the embargo off its export in a raw state, and provided, further, that the Dominion will take the duty off print paper.

This is a capital arrangement—for Uncle Sam. In the United States the pulpwood supply is nearing exhaustion, but Canada as yet has an abundance. Uncle Sam will make the pulpwood into paper and sell the finished product back to Canada.

They need the pulpwood, but Canada doesn't need the paper, unless it be to keep down the home price, and only the publishing interest will benefit by the arrangement. The removal of the United States duty on print paper will not benefit the Canadian makers of paper, for Uncle Sam has the pulpwood, don't you see?

No wonder the United States press was unanimous and hysterical in its demand for reciprocity.

It does appear as if the bars had been thrown down and the hogs admitted to the Canadian cornfield. In fact, certain gratified porcine grunts from the enclosure indicate that such is the fact.

Mr. Taft's smooth message will bring a deal of satisfaction to his own people, but less comfort to Canada. Free lumber, he says, the United States must have, because they have wasted their own resources and they have the boon cheerfully accorded by Canada's resources. On this side, however, expert authorities say that Canada has no timber to give away—that the time is at hand when export must be absolutely prohibited. So with the pulpwood forests. That resource is about exhausted in the United States and they must get access to Canada's wealth.

It is hoped that Ontario and Quebec will both resist this proposed exploitation of a valuable resource that in a few years would reduce Canada to a condition of like poverty.

CLEAR STATEMENT BY MR. SOLMES

His Negotiations With Treasurer Price for City Lots—The Price Asked

To the Editor of The Intelligencer.

Sir: Will you allow me space in your columns to reply to an article in the Editorial Column of the Ontario of Saturday's issue of Feb. 4th of a few denials made by Mr. David Price re in connection in trying to buy some of those noted City Lots. The editor in closing his editorial, asks me to come out like a man and give a statement of the facts, which I have done, and wish both papers to print same in the public interests. During the latter part of October, 1909 I went to Mr. Mikel's office and enquired about city lots, where situated and at what price they could be obtained, he told me that I could not buy them to speculate on but if I would improve them by building thereon I could procure them at a very low figure, practically my own price.

We went down to the Treasurer's office and I took the numbers of some six lots, with the object of looking them over. After viewing said lots I went to Mr. Price and asked for prices. He told me to call the next day, I did so, but he was so busy that he had no time to calculate the price. I called the second day after, but got no figures, as he had not seen the Mayor and it was pay day. I called again within a few days with no result, and when I did get his figures it was just three weeks and three days from the time I asked him first. The price quoted to me on four of these lots was $275.00 each or $1,100.00 for the four and $250.00 each of the two others. I told Mr. Price that I considered the price high, as I understood they had sold some on the west side of Blecker Ave., better lots at $55.00 each and that I was not purchasing these lots for speculation but would give the city a bond for an unstated amount that I would build a house on each of said lots within fifteen months. During our conversation I told him I thought it would be far better for the city to sell these lots at a reasonable price and have an assessed valuation on each of about $2,000.00 than have them lying there at a loss to the city. Mr. Price's answer to me was that if I wanted those lots I would have to pay that for them. I did not make any offer for the lots, as I thought that when a resident tax-payer came forward and offered to the city officials such a proposition as I did and then have them charge such an exorbitant price when they were asking citizens to help meet the coming demand for houses for the G. T. Ry. men who had to make this place their home. I decided then not to buy and have never asked or made an offer since for any lot or lots.

Now, Mr. Editor, this is a statement of facts relating to the part or connection with any city lots and would be pleased to have you publish, and for which I am prepared to make an affidavit.

Worry and Hurry

are the two greatest foes to digestion—and very few people reach the age of forty without falling a victim to indigestion in some form or other.

Undigested food is a serious menace to health and is the cause of head-aches, sleeplessness, flatulency, gas and distress in the stomach, despondency, nervousness, bad breath and impure blood.

In such cases Vinol has a marked beneficial result. It seems to go directly to the seat of trouble, strengthens and tones up the tired, weakened nerves of the stomach, enabling one to digest with ease the very foods that once caused distress.

A case has just come to our attention in Barre, Vt. Mr. Samuel Wheeler suffered with a stomach trouble for years and had taken all kinds of medicines without relief, and at last found a cure in Vinol. He says Vinol was worth five dollars a bottle to him. (We guarantee this testimonial to be genuine.)

If you suffer from any form of stomach trouble, try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. J. S. McKeown.

MR. HENRY FOSTER DIED SUDDENLY

Many were the expressions of regret heard upon the street this afternoon, when it became known that Mr. Henry Foster had passed away. The end came shortly before 1 o'clock this afternoon at the mother's home on Dundas Street. Pneumonia was the cause of death. "Hank," as he was familiarly called, was a son of the late ex-Ald. D. Foster, and was born in Thurlow Township 42 years ago. For the greater portion of his life he had resided in this city, where he had a host of friends. For years he followed the occupation of a wine clerk and was exceedingly popular. His fatal illness was of short duration. An aged mother, three brothers and two sisters survive. The brothers are W. E., assistant solicitor of the G. T. R. at Montreal; Bertram A., of Montreal, and Fred, of Chicago. The sisters are Mrs. A. Gillen and Mrs. Frith-Jeffers, of this city. The sympathy of many friends will be extended to those who have been called upon to mourn the loss of a beloved one.

BRIDGE STREET EPWORTH LEAGUE

At the meeting last evening of this league the Pastor, Dr. Bishop, led, and in his address he urged upon those present the necessity for more earnestness in winning souls for the Master's Kingdom. That should be their life's work, and to do it they should watch for opportunities for service and use them faithfully. Several of the members offered short prayer's for God's guidance and help in this great work.

BLIZZARD FILLED COUNTRY ROADS

The city and vicinity was last night visited by a fair sized blizzard, and in consequence the country roads in places were rather badly drifted, but not to such an extent as to hinder the stages from arriving here as usual, but somewhat behind time. The wind blew strong and a considerable quantity of the beautiful fell.

CURLING.

Two senior rinks from the local curling club went to Napanee this afternoon to play a match, being one of the series for the district cup. The skips were Messrs. F. Dolan and B Iler.

A club match was played last night between rinks skipped by Messrs. B Iler and H. J. Morgan. The former won 12 to 8.

Didn't Know His Own Wife.

When T. Coleman, a Brantford traveller, left on a six weeks trip his wife was a yellow faced, fagged out looking woman. When he returned he didn't know her. Her eyes were bright, her skin clear, cheeks rosy and her step light and buoyant. Merrill's System Tonic did it, and it will do the same for any tired out woman who is losing her strength, her plumpness and her beauty. Cures female troubles, dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation and regulates the kidneys. All Druggists sell Merrill's System Tonic. PUCK-CHASERS BATTLED FOR OVER THREE HOURS

Belleville was fortunate in being selected as the place for the sudden death game between the Trenton and Peterborough Intermediate hockey teams for the championship of the district, as the game was one which will go down in history. It was the hardest fought and most evenly contested game, with possibly one exception in the annals of the O. H. A. and will never be forgotten by those who witnessed it, as the well-trained athletes struggled for almost three hours, with, of course, the necessary intermissions, before a decision could be reached. There have been many more artistic games of hockey played in Belleville than that of last night, but never one in which the teams were so evenly matched, and in which the players had to strive so long for victory.

THE PRELIMINARIES.

It was like old times in the rotunda of Hotel Quinte—the times when Belleville's famous Intermediates were besting everything in sight. There was a big crowd, to which Peterborough and Trenton had contributed about equal numbers, a buzz of conversation and quiet offers of bets at odds of 10 to 8 on Peterborough, which found ready takers. It was argued on the one hand that the Peterboroughs, having beaten Trenton 15-4 they could not lose, but, on the other hand, the Peterboroughs, having lost the services of Denison and Trenton having gained those of A. Armstrong, the balance had been thereby turned in favor of our nearest neighbors. By and by a numerous contingent from Peterborough, who had arrived by special train, thronged in and soon all adjourned to the Arena, in which the contest was to take place.

The rink was crowded—the attendance being about the largest of the season, and sympathy seemed to be about equally divided. Peterborough had sent down, as stated above, a big crowd, but so had Trenton, every available vehicle in that town having been brought into requisition and packed to capacity. Many were provided with buzzers and other noisemakers, and used them industriously, while cheers and counter-cheers rang through the vast building.

The Trentons were the first to show up and exhibited some fast and skilful work, which boomed their stock in the opinion of the betting men, but a long interval was passed in waiting for the Petes, during which there was much animated discussion as to the probable outcome of the encounter.

THE GAME.

At last, shortly before 9 o'clock, they appeared for their preliminary and were vociferously greeted. They found the ice in perfect condition and showed a lot of speed. Finally, after Referee Whitehead had lined them up, the puck was dropped between the sticks at 9.07 and the game was on. It was do-or-die with both teams, and swift work, hard checking and fairly skilful stick handling characterized the play, which was very equally divided and remarkably clean under the exciting circumstances. As to speed, there was little or no choice, while combination cut virtually no figure, the checking being too close for that, but it was observable that Trenton had by far the most shots on goal. For twenty minutes there was nothing doing in the way of scoring; then Armstrong netted a nice shot, and the Trentonians sent up a great shout of triumph. But their delight was not of long duration. The play had become rougher and several players were sent to the fence, among them two Trenton men, in whose absence Peterborough scored. Two minutes later Trenton tallied once more, but after an equal interval Peterborough evened up, and the score was:

Trenton	2
Peterborough	2

The second period was barren of result, although Peterborough claimed a goal which was not allowed, and Trenton's goal was several times in danger.

EXTRA TIME.

As the tie had to be played off, the wearied puck-chasers now had to play five minutes each way, which they did without result. Then they played another similar period, but without scoring, both goal-men making many sensational stops. They then retired for a rub-down and a rest, and again they faced each other for another ten minutes' play. There was again nothing doing in the first five minutes, but about two minutes before time was up, and as the clock struck midnight, Palmer made a fine rush and a swift shot, and Trenton secured another goal. No further scoring was done, and Trenton, amid the loud cheers from the great throng, were hailed the victors by the following score:

Trenton	3
Peterborough	2

The great interest taken by the crowd in the game was manifested by the fact that of all the big crowd not more than twenty-five left before the finish, which was about 12.05 a.m.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Mr. Whitehead was a thoroughly efficient referee and his good work was warmly praised.

Dean Armstrong accompanied the players from Trenton.

Mr. Sproule, of Toronto, O.H.A. referee, was among the spectators.

Fletcher, Palmer and Armstrong starred for Trenton. The former is very little, but very fast and with any amount of staying power.

Kelly, a stout colored boy, played a desperately hard game for Peterborough.

The public verdict was that the honors were worthily won for Trenton by superior shooting.

WALLBRIDGE.

Mr. A. McClatchie and family have the deep sympathy of their many friends in their sad bereavement.

The Rev. B. Greatrix, of West Belleville church will occupy the pulpit in Wallbridge Methodist church on Sunday eve., Feb. 12th.

Dr. and Mrs. Palmer, who have been visiting at the home of the latter's parents, left on Saturday for Toronto, where they will visit the former's sister and other friends before returning to their home in the West.

Mr. and Mrs. Grey and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie, all of Queensboro, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Nicolson last week.

SURPRISE AND PRESENTATION.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Caverley, when 111 of their friends and neighbors stepped in and took possession of their house on the 31st of January. After a few hours were spent in friendly intercourse Mr. Geo. Geo. Nicolson was chosen chairman and he called the friends to order and invited Rev. E. B. Cooke and Mr. and Mr. Geo. Frost, Mr. Milton Seward Miss Leah Frost and Mr. Fred Phillips, who presented the articles. Rev E. B. Cooke then read the following To Mr. and Mrs. Caverley, and Family:

Dear Friends,—We who have been privileged to enjoy your association during the past years have met together to spend a pleasant evening in your home, and thereby add another link to the chain of events that has so agreeably bound us together up to the present time.

Being apprised of your intended departure from our midst, we feel we cannot allow you to go without expressing our deep regret for the loss we are to sustain in your removal from the vicinity. The type of life which throughout has characterized every member of your family, has raised a standard for others and proved an incentive to all in the struggle to reach the supreme goal of life This unconscious influence has been more far reaching than words can reveal, and for you to know this now must be a source of great satisfaction as it has been to us in the past a source of blessing. To the social life of the community you have ever given your kindliest thoughts, your warmest sympathy and your most efficient services.

Every good and noble work and worthy cause coming within your reach have received an added impetus because of your fidelity to the qualities that make for the highest type of citizenship. In the church with which you have been directly identified, you have, one and all, endeavored to be earnest laborers, and to harmoniously further the great cause of truth and righteousness; and in this service your life has been so generous that all have been impressed with the fact that your creed was as broad as Christianity itself.

As a family you will be greatly missed, and your absence will be keenly felt. If in the course of events directed by a wise Providence, you in the near future, find yourself again forming a part of our community, you may be assured of a warm welcome and a glad reception.

As a further expression of our appreciation we ask you, Mr. Caverley to accept this chain and charm, and Mrs. Caverley this silver dish, and Miss Caverley this fountain pen, and we also wish you to convey this fountain pen to Mr. Wm. Caverley.

Signed in behalf of your friends,
George Frost.
Milton Seward.
Fred B. Phillips.

Mr. and Mrs. and Miss Caverley replied very feelingly.

Luncheon was served by the ladies and the rest of the evening was spent in vocal and instrumental music. All professed having a good time and adjourned to their homes feeling that they had only done their duty.

THE RED YEAR

A Story of the Indian Mutiny

—By—

LOUIS TRACY

Copyright by McLeod & Allen

CHAPTER II.

A Night in May

Winifred, quite unconsciously, had stated the actual incident that led to the outbreak of the Mutiny. The hot weather was so trying for the white troops in Meerut, many of whom, under ordinary conditions, would then have been in the hills, that the General had ordered a Church Parade in the evening, and at an unusual hour.

All day long the troopers of the 3rd Cavalry nursed their wrath at the fate of their comrades who had refused to handle the suspected cartridges. They had seen men whom they regarded as martyrs stripped of their uniforms and riveted in chains in front of the whole garrison on the morning of the 9th. Though fear of the British force in the cantonment kept them quiet Hindu vied with Mussalman in muttered execrations of the dominant race. The fact that the day following the punishment parade was a Sunday brought about a certain relaxation from discipline. The men loafed in the bazaars, were taunted by courtesans with lack of courage, and either drowned their troubles in strong drink or drew together in knots to talk treason.

Suddenly a sepoy raced up to the cavalry lines with thrilling news.

"The Rifles and Artillery are coming to disarm all the native regiments!" he shouted.

He had watched the 60th falling in for Church Parade, and, in view of the action taken at Barrackpore and Lucknow—sepoy battalions having been disbanded in both stations for mutinous conduct—he instantly jumped to the conclusion that the military authorities at Meerut meant to steal a march on the disaffected troops. His warning cry was as a torch laid to a gunpowder train.

The 3rd Cavalry, Malcolm's own corps, swarmed out of bazaar and quarters like angry wasps. Nearly half the regiment ran to secure their picketed horses, armed themselves in hot haste, and galloped to the gaol. Smashing open the doors, they freed the imprisoned troopers, struck off their fetters, and took no measures to prevent the escape of the general horde of convicts. Yet, even in that moment of frenzy, some of the men remained true to their colors. Captain Craigie and Lieutenant Melville Clarke, hearing the uproar, mounted their chargers, rode to the lines, and actually brought their troops to the parade ground in perfect discipline. Meanwhile, the alarm had spread to the sepoys. No one knew exactly what caused all the commotion. Wild rumors spread, but no man could speak definitely. The British officers of the 11th and 20th regiments were getting their men into something like order when a sowar clattered up, and yelled to the infantry that the European troops were marching to disarm them.

At once, the 20th broke in confusion, seized their muskets, and procured ammunition. The 11th wavered, and were listening to the appeal of their beloved commanding officer, Colonel Finnis, when some of the 20th came back and fired at him. He fell, pierced with many bullets, the first victim of India's Red Year. His men hesitated no longer. Afire with religious fanaticism, they, too, armed themselves, and dispersed in search of loot and human prey. They acted on no preconcerted plan. The trained troops simply formed the nucleus of an armed mob, its numbers ever swelling as the convicts from the gaol, the bad characters from the city, and even the native police, joined in the work of murder and destruction. They had no leader. Each man emulated his neighbor in ferocity. Like a pack of wolves on the trail they followed the scent of blood.

The rapid spread of the revolt was not a whit less marvelous than its lack of method or cohesion. Many writers have put forward the theory that, by accident, the mutiny broke out half an hour too soon, and that the rebels meant to surprise the unarmed white garrison while in church.

In reality, nothing was further from their thoughts. If, in a nebulous way, a date was fixed for a combined rising of the native army, it was Sunday, May 31, three weeks later than the day of the outbreak. The soldiers, helped by the scum of the bazaar, after indulging in an orgy of bloodshed and plunder, dispersed and ran for their lives, fearing that the avenging British wer hot on their heels. And that was all. There was no plan, no settled purpose. Hate and greed nerved men's hands, but head there was none.

Malcolm's ride towards the centre of the station gave proof in plenty that the mutineers were a disorganized rabble, inspired only by unreasoning rancor against all Europeans, and, like every mob, eager for pillage. At first, he met but few native soldiers. The rioters were budmashes, the predatory class which any city in the world can produce in the twinkling of an eye when the strong arm of the law is paralyzed. Armed with swords and clubs, gangs of men rushed from house to house, murdering the helpless inmates, mostly women and children, seizing such valuables as they could find, and setting the buildings on fire. These ghouls practised the most unheard-of atrocities. They spared no one. Finding a woman lying ill in bed, they poured oil over the bed clothes, and thus started, with a human holocaust, the fire that destroyed the bungalow.

They were rank cowards, too. Another Englishwoman, also an invalid, was fortunate in possessing a devoted ayah. This faithful creature saved her mistress by her quick-witted shriek that the mem-sahib must be avoided at all costs, as she was suffering from smallpox! The destroyers fled in terror, not waiting even to fire the house.

It was not until days later that Malcolm knew the real nature of the scene through which he rode. He saw the flames he heard the Mohammedan yell of "Ali! Ali!" and the Hindu shriek of "Jai! Jai!" but the quick fall of night, its growing dusk deepened by the spreading clouds of smoke, annd his own desperate haste to reach the cavalry lines, prevented him from appreciating the full extent of the horrors surrounding his path.

Arrived at the parade ground, he met Craigie and Melville Clarke, with the one troop that remained of the regiment of which he was so proud. There were no other officers to be seen, so these three held a consultation. They were sure that the white troops would soon put an end to the prevalent disorder, and they decided to do what they could, within a limited area, to save lifea nd property. Riding towards his own bungalow to obtain a sword and a couple of revolvers, Malcolm came upon a howling mob in the act of swarming into the compound of Craigie's house. Some score of troopers heard his fierce cry for help, and fell upon the would-be murderers, for Mrs. Craigie and her children were alone in the bungalow. The riff-raff were soon driven off, and Malcolm not yet realizing the gravity of the emeute told the men to safeguard the mem-sahib until they received further orders, while he went to join his senior officer.

Incredible as it may seem, the tiny detachment obeyed him to the letter. They held the compound against repeated assaults, and lost several men in hand-to-hand fighting.

The history of that terrible hour is brightened by many such instances of native fealty. The Treasury Guard, composed of men of the 8th Irregular Cavalry, not only refused to join the rebels but defended their charge boldly. A week later, of their own free will, they escorted the treasure and records from Meerut to Agra, the transfer being made for greater saftey, and beat off several attacks by insurgents on the way. They were well rewarded for their fidelity, yet, such was the power of fanaticism, within less than two months they deserted to a man!

The acting Commissioner of Meerut, Mr. Greathed, whose residence was in the centre of the sacked area, took his wife to the flat roof of his house when he found that escape was impossible. A gang of ruffians ransacked every room, and, piling the furniture, set it alight, but a trustworthy servant, named Golab Khan, told them that he would reveal the hiding-place of the sahib and mem-sahib if they followed quickly. He thus decoyed them away, and the fortunate couple were enabled to reach the British lines under cover of the darkness.

And, while the sky flamed red over a thousand fires, and the blood of unhappy Europeans, either civilian families or the wives and children of military officers, was being spilt like water, where were the two regiments of white troops who, by prompt action, could have saved Meerut and prevented the siege of Delhi?

FAILURE AT SCHOOL

Some Interesting Observations by Dr Luther M. Gulick

Dr. Luther M. Gulick, physical director in the schools of New York, believes that the natural age for attendance in primary departments is from 6 to 14 years, but finds that many children drop out. They fail because of faults in the school course, irregular attendance or because of removable physical defects. Statistics he has gathered show that 16 per cent. of those who leave school before completing their course are victims of disease, and "those who have physical defects such as poor hearing, poor seeing, hypertrophied tonsils, adenoids or decayed teeth, progress through school nine per cent. more slowly than children who are not so handicapped.

TOBACCO IS KING

F. R. Gregory of Leamington states that the following prices were paid to Kent County farmers for their tobacco crops:

H. W. Arnold, nine acres, $2,400; George Blackburn, nine acres, $2,300; W. Pickering, seven acres, $1,680; George Stephens, 100 acres, $1,800; Wm. Snow, 28 acres, $6,500; W. R. McGregor, 22 acres, $5,500; Neil Campbell, 12 acres, $3,200.

HORDE OF IMMIGRANTS

During the second quarter of this year, says a White Paper issued, 133,744 alien immigrants landed in the United Kingdom, making the total for the first half of the year 22,686. Aliens leaving numbered 29,535, and during the quarter 129 expulsion orders were made.

Unionists Staggered.

London, Feb. 6.—The Imperialist newspapers are staggered by the breadth and scope of the U.S.-Canadian reciprocity agreement.

The Morning Post, in an editorial full of sobs, tears and threats, calls upon the Unionists to fight to the death for an imperial union. It declares that the agreement must afford powerful assistance to the United States in her efforts to control the foreign trade of Canada. It says the Dominion will be linked even closer and closer to her great neighbor by these sordid ties, and American influence over Canadian thought and action will rapidly expand. The links that bind the daughter nation to the Mother Country, it is said, will grow steadily weaker.

Frank McCall of Toronto, a shipping agent, said: "I believe a majority of the people of Ontario favor reciprocity. All friends of international peace and progress wish it success in its further campaign."

Well-Known Man Disappears.

Atlantic City, N.J., Feb. 6—The man who disappeared from the Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel, and is supposed to have fallen from the Million Dollar Pier on Monday night, was [illegible] Ashhurst, postmaster, of Philadelphia, according to a statement given out by the police officials here Saturday night.

Postmaster Ashhurst came to this resort on Monday. Steven Lacy, a chair pusher, said that on Monday night he had rolled the missing man from the hotel to the pier, but so far as can be learned the aged man never came back to the board walk after entering the pier. It is believed he became faint and fell off.

Shot Down at Her Door.

Flint, Mich., Feb. 3.—Miss Ellen Blane, who kept a boarding-house here several years, was shot and killed early yesterday when she answered a knock at the door of her home. Her sister, Mrs. Catherine Talbot, who was also shot in the arm, charged the crime to Frank Fox, of Sandusky Ohio, a brother-in-law, who has disappeared.

Breakwater for Port Stanley.

London, Ont., Feb. 3.—Government Engineer Lamb announced yesterday that he had received instructions to prepare plans for a breakwater 1,200 feet long at Port Stanley, to cost $250,000. Sixty thousand dollars has been appropriated this year.

In making love or playing cards much depends upon the hands you hold.

HOCKEY NOTES.

The Y. M. C. A. Juniors won from the Belleville Midgets last evening by the score of 6 to 4. Half time score 5 to 1. In a former game the Midgets were victors, consequently this tie will have to be played off. Mr. Lightfoot refereed the game.

Albert College vs. Greys meet for the first time to-night at 6.15.

The T. A. S. and O. B. C. will cross sticks in the Arena at 7 o'clock to-night.

APPEAL TO ONLY MAN WHO CAN SAVE CANADA

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Asked to Avert Menace of Reciprocity—How the Trap Was Laid—The Cost To Canada—It Means Commerical Vassalage and Annexation—The Premier's Opportunity

(From the Montreal Star, Feb. 4th, 1911.)

There is only on man in Canada who can avert the menace that lurks in Reciprocity.

That man is Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

He is the master of the situation. If he appeals to the loyalty of his followers, there is much reason to fear that they will vote the agreement through. Like Sir John A. Macdonald, he has a genius for inspiring the confidence and attracting the love of men.

But it is equally true that if Sir Wilfrid declares that, on sober second thought, he dare not recommend this astounding commercial revolution to a people bound to preserve their independence, the agreement will not be ratified.

Moreover, such a declaration from Sir Wilfrid would be far more welcome to the bulk of his followers, both in and out of Parliament, than a bugle-call to stand up and vote—and possibly die politically—for a bargain which may save the skin of the Taft Republicans but will inevitably terminate the career of Canada as an independent nation.

If Sir Wilfrid were not of the stature of a statesman, we would not waste words on such an appeal. But there is no flattery in saying that the Premier is one of three or four great Canadians. He is a constructive statesman with the long vision, the deep insight, and the steadfast courage that marks the rare race of nation-builders.

"DID SIR WILFRID KNOW?

He is a big enough man to change his mind—though we are not of the opinion that it is necessary for him to do so in this case. We do not believe that his mind has ever been made up to accept so sweeping a Reciprocity scheme as that included in the Taft "life-saving" device.

This may sound like a surprising statement in view of the fact that Sir Wilfrid's Ministers accepted the Taft proposals, and that they would not have dared to do so without consulting him on every item.

But it is no more than the truth that none of us realised the inward meaning of the shrewdly-framed offer of the long-headed American Government when we first saw it. It was as cunning a trap as was ever laid. The master-bargainers at Washington have not lost their skill.

It was particularly well-baited for men who have an honest, life-long belief that some sort of Reciprocity between these two neighboring nations ought to be mutually profitable. For generations this school of thought has accepted as a basic tenet that it would be a good thing for Canada to secure access to the American market for its food products, provided it did not pay too high a price for the privilege.

So naturally two good Reciprocitarians like Messrs. Fielding and Paterson went to Washington with their minds concentrated on the price. That was all they were thinking about. They must not pay too much. Everything they got would be clear gain. Uncle Sam would be sure not to give too much. But he would be equally sure to ask too much. They must watch the Canadian end of the treaty; the American end would take care of itself.

HOW THE TRAP WAS LAID.

Messrs. Taft and Knox undoubtedly calculated on this Canadian attitude of mind. They laid their plans accordingly. They knew that we were watching the hand that took, and were not watching the hand that apparently gave. So they disarmed suspicion by not betraying any great greed in "taking," and then deftly secured the assent of our representatives to a "gift" of such far-reaching effects that it engulfs our commercial independence and endangers our national existence.

They presented us with a Trojan Horse.

There are moments in the life of every nation when it is more dangerous to receive than to give.

We know now—what few of us realised at first—that such a "gift" can only be accepted by the barter of our commercial and ultimately, our political freedom. If we turn the swollen stream of our food exports away from the West-East lines that carry it to the British market and send it along North-South lines to the American market—or, rather, the American "middleman"—we will utterly shatter the costly steel framework of this nation and debase the Dominion to a string of subject Provinces serving the convenience of the nearest American centres.

THE COST TO CANADA.

The "bridge" over the Wilderness north of Lake Superior will be broken. Confederation will be cut at a half-dozen vital points. The Provinces by the sea will be isolated, their industrial future negatived, the arteries that lead to Old Canada will collapse through starvation and the Americans will think of them chiefly as a collection of fishing villages. Quebec will become the "back-yard" and lumber camp of New England. Our farm produce will give the New England factories cheap food for their work people—without ultimately raising the price for our farmers; and our forests and mines will feed them with raw materials until they are literally eaten out by the enormous appetite of American industrialism. We will be lucky, indeed, if the national hemorrhage stops there. The exodus of our sons and daughters to New England factory towns, which has been so severe a drain in the past, may well bleed us to death when Montral has been strangled in its own dead railway lines, when the killing of the new Transcontinental has killed the legitimate hopes of Quebec City and when our other promising industrial towns have found their home market flowing merrily over the border.

Ontario has been built on the growth of the West. Toronto might as well be a Western city. What will happen when the West ceases to look to Ontario and turns its eyes to Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and the cities of the Western States? Nothing but a high national spirit and a tariff which makes the American frontier a reality, can keep trade flowing across the empty country from Manitoba to Ontario and from Ontario to Manitoba.

THE WEST AND THE TARIFF.

Oh! but the tariff on manufactured goods remains, it may be said. For the present it does. But there is no surer law of trade than that products must be paid for in products. No people will long buy from a market to which they sell nothing. They never have done so in the history of commerce. Let the Western man find his market to the south of the border, and he will want to buy from his best customers. If the tariff stands in his way, then so much the worse for the tariff. He will climb it while he must; but the East will not long be able to say "must" to the West.

As for the West, the farmer may get more for his grain at first; but at what a price. The great railways which opened up his land will die in the middle, and degenerate into merely local lines. The Canadian Pacific, the Grand Trunk Pacific, the Canadian Northern, will become "feeders" to the Hill system. They will no longer span a Continent; they will shrink to the category of branch roads. The projected Hudson Bay Railway will be condemned before it is born. What is the use of a road to Hudson Bay for men with their eyes on New York?

The Georgian Bay Canal will never be dug. Why widen the Welland when the Erie starts from Buffalo? Why bother about the Long Sault dam when nothing but pleasure craft will use the St. Lawrence route? The Canadian ports will be side-tracked and Canadian shipping will put itself under the Stars and Stripes.

British Columbia is already expressing its opinion. It sees ruin in the pact. Its great fruit orchards will be blighted; and its magnificent forests are in peril. It, too, will be isolated from the rest of Canada; and the bargain by which the Fathers of Confederation brought it into the Dominion will have been wasted effort.

THE COUNTRY WAKES UP.

Now all this was not realised when the Taft proposals first saw the light. Messrs. Fielding and Paterson—with their eyes on the "price"—may easily have missed the meaning hidden in the "gift." And if they could have missed it, how much more easily might Sir Wilfrid Laurier, busy at Ottawa, not have though to weigh carefully that part of the bargain which was presumed by all concerned to be clear gain?

But from the day the agreement was laid on the table of the House of Commons, the astonished country has studied nothing else. Its surprise has turned to amazement; and its amazement to panic. Experts on all the matters affected have offered their considered opinions. Men with their ears to the ground in all the Provinces have reported what they hear. There is now a wealth of information touching the whole subject, available to every one, which was not in existence when the Prime Minister gave a tacit assent to what he doubtless regarded as a mere business bargain.

Thus we do not hesitate to say that he might to-day decline to be responsible for this perilous pact without necessarily changing any opinion touching it he ever really held. He would be no more than forming a first opinion with all the facts fully before him. As we have said, even if a change is necessary, we believe that he is big enough to make it; but he is also big enough to have taken his time about coming to a final conclusion regarding so momentous a matter.

WHAT SID WILFRID COULD DO.

Should his reasoned opinion be against ratification, the effect on the country and the Empire would be electric. His opponents would be deprived of an issue; and thousands of voters, who have been thrown into alarm by the announcement of the agreement, would rally to his support as a statesman whose "safety and sanity" could be relied on. He would in one more replace the political conditions that existed prior to the fatal "journey to Washington," and restore confidence in the steadfast fidelity of Canada to her own destiny among our own people and in the money-markets of the world.

Financiers of every European capital are watching our behavior in the face of this sudden crisis. Are we going to keep faith with the men who invested their money in Canadian enterprises on the understanding that the development of Canada along national lines was a permanent feature of our policy; or are we about to destroy the value of millions of these investments by a wanton act of betrayal, and close every money-market in the world against us for years to come? We have been borrowing money for decades on the pledge that we would keep Canada commercially and politically independent; and to repudiate that pledge is equivalent to repudiating our debts.

Opinion in Great Britain, which was nervous to begin with, has fallen into dismay. They knew perfectly well in the Mother Country that this fusing of our market with the American, means the end of any policy of British Reciprocity. The Empire cannot—if it be carried—be united commercially. Our commercial affiliations will be with the United States; and where the treasure is, there will the heart be also. If the ties of commerce are no longer to bind the British peoples together, how long will the exceedingly slender political ligaments last? On this point, they have no delusions in the United Kingdom.

LOOKING TO SIR WILFRID.

Thus every British subject looks to Sir Wilfrid to save the Empire. Every money-market in Europe, every Canadian enterprise that needs capital, every public body which must borrow, all look to Sir Wilfrid to save the credit of Canada. Every railway man looks to him to save the souls of our railways, and so preserve the value of the money invested, and keep the jobs of our railway men at their present number and wage. Every manufacturer—though comparatively untouched by this first blow—looks to Sir Wilfrid to save the home market; every merchant, every professional man, every workman dependent on the welfare of our industries, looks to him with the same hope. Can we not say that every farmer, when the farce shall have been played out, will realize that in imperilling his home market, this agreement threatened him with a disaster in comparison with which a few cents on grain was not to be considered?

When it comes to our political future, the appalling magnitude of the issues make it difficult to speak calmly. Here we enter a phase of the matter where the business interests of the moment become mere dust on the glass through which we gaze into the long future. We are talking now as Canadians, and thinking only of Canada. Let us put aside for the moment any gratitude we may owe the Mother Country, and take the most selfish view of the subject possible. Surely we know that on the day British connection fails us, Canadian independence is lost. Withdraw from our heads the shield of a powerful British Empire, and how long will our loving friends to the South leave us with both our self-government and our self-respect?

WHAT ANNEXATION MEANS.

Now what does Annexation imply? First, it implies absolutely free trade between Canada and the United States. Down come our tall chimneys! Useless are our railways for the East-and-West haul! Abandoned are our ports! Empty are our canals!

Next, it implies the opening of our natural resources to the American exploiter. Our forests will soon fall before the American lumberman and paper-maker as have their own. Our mines will be bled into the pockets of New York stock gamblers. We will be stripped as bare as their own forest lands.

Next, it implies pouring our commercial and financial capitals into the big American cities. Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, St. John, Halifax, Vancouver, will become suburbs of New York, Chicago, Boston and San Francisco. Our urban growth will be stopped; and any development we get will be as the farm and mining camp and timber limit of the proud United States.

Next, it will destroy all our national institutions. Parliament will be replaced by Congress; responsible government by a four-year oligarchy; an unstained judiciary by the product of a political machine. For our fellow citizens of the French language and the Roman Catholic religion, it means the closing of their religious schools and the turning of their language out of the courts and Legislatures. Their guarantees rest on British pledges, and would disappear with the flag of Great Britain.

But why pile up the agony? This country has no shadow of a notion of submitting to Annexation. It can only be tricked into it. But we should not forget that nations have lost their independence before to-day by entering upon courses whose first steps were innocence itself. Soldiers hidden in Trojan Horses have captured more citadels than have been stormed by frontal attack

SIR WILFRID'S OPPORTUNITY.

To-day Sir Wilfrid has the ball at his feet. He is the one man to save the situation. The Canadian people never watched him so eagerly, so anxiously, as they are doing at this moment. Thousands of his best friends hope that he will see the true bearing of the tremendous issue which lies in his hands; and that they can add another jewel to his crown as a patriot-statesman who loves his country so well that he would not think twice of risking her life to put profits in the pockets of a few clamorous people.

This is not a business matter he is considering; but the political fate of Canada. In the seat of Sir John A. Macdonald, with the eyes of the Empire-builders of history on him, with all the future waiting to award its judgment, he is deciding for or against the Annexation of Canada to the American Union.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

CONDEMN RECIPROCITY

Balfour and Lansdowne Denounce It in British House.

Magnificent Pageant Marks Opening of Session In the Old Land—King George Reads Speech From Throne—Royal Equipage Is Surrounded by Secret Police, But Suffragettes Held Off.

London, Feb. 7.—The formal opening of the new Parliament yesterday was marked by gorgeous ceremony and was attended by King George and Queen Mary and their suites, most of the dignitaries of the Empire, many members of the diplomatic corps and all others who could crowd within the doors of Westminster.

The processional display of nobility and military was one of magnificence. The streets were massed with people from dawn on, waiting to catch a glimpse of the coach containing the King and Queen and the Prince of Wales. Among the spectators were many Americans, some of whom paid large prices in order to see the great procession. The immense throngs cheered mightily for the King and Queen.

The suffragettes gave up their proposed attack upon the Parliament Building and King George at the last moment. Christobel Pankhurst, one of the leaders of the militant suffragettes, issued a statement declaring that no attempt would be made to storm Parliament or mob the King. However, believing this might be a ruse, the police kept up their strict guard.

Following the example of his father, the late King Edward, King George V. delivered the crown's address to Parliament in person. It contained a strong plea for the furtherance of friendly relations between England and other powers of the world. After expressing pleasure at the result of the trip of the Duke of Connaught to South Africa, the King said:

"My relations with foreign powers continue friendly. Japan intends to terminate the treaty of 1894. It is hoped that satisfactory arrangements can be made for a new treaty."

The King next referred to the action taken by the British Government to restore order along the trade routes of Southern Persia.

His Majesty announced that proposals will be submitted to settle the relations between the two Houses of Parliament, with the object of securing a more effective legislation.

That the King made no further announcement on the veto question caused great surprise among members of both branches of Parliament.

Continuing his speech His Majesty announced that measures would be presented to provide insurance for the industrial population against sickness and invalidity. This measure will embody the plan of a slight tax to provide the principal for the payment of the insurance pensions.

Both Lord Lansdowne and A. J. Balfour took occasion to denounce the reciprocity agreement between the United States and Canada, but the evening session was mainly devoted to getting the legislative ship under way.

Premier Asquith gave formal notice of the veto bill, and his intention to claim the whole time of the House until the Easter recess in order to get the veto bill disposed of before the coronation. The Government's policy was discursively criticized in the two Houses, but outside of references to the reciprocity agreement, the debate on the address was of no special interest.

Lord Lansdowne intimated that the House of Lords was still ready to negotiate with the Government on the necessary changes in the constitution of the Upper Chamber and the relations between the two Houses. James Ramsay Macdonald, who, yesterday elected chairman of the Labor party to replace George Nicoll Barnes, who retired on account of illness, characterized Mr. Balfour's description of the reciprocity agreement as an imperial disaster, as the most awkward and colossal blunder he had ever heard in Parliament.

The Prime Minister replied to the Opposition speeches, saying that for the present it would be wise to withhold criticism of the reciprocity agreement. It was as certain as the rising of the sun, that sooner or later the U. S. would have been bound to level the tariff wall with Canada. He said it was certain that the Government could do nothing by preference to prevent the natural trend of even this.

It is expected that the debate on the address will be carried over into next week. As the speech from the throne made no mention of the Aliens Act, the Opposition has given notice of an amendment raising this question.

The Irish party, at a prolonged meeting, adopted a resolution to the effect that, while approving the principle of the payment of members of the House of Commons, they desired this measure excluded until home rule has been granted, preferring to depend on voluntary contributions, and would therefore ask the Government to devote the money to some useful public purpose in Ireland. It is known that Mrs. Asquith is opposed to any such differential action, and is unlikely to accede to this.

INQUEST TO-MORROW.

Inquiry Into Wreck on G.T.R. Will Be Searching.

Woodstock, Feb. 7.—Dr. Staples, coroner, of Princton, announced yesterday morning that he would open an inquest on the bodies of the dead trainmen in the hall at Princeton on Wednesday afternoon next, on the arrival of the accommodation from London, which will bear several of the witnesses.

The scene of the wreck was just about 200 yards within the Oxford boundary, and as Dr. Staples is the coroner for that section, he took charge of matters.

"The wreck is one of the worst of the many we have had in our boundaries," said Dr. Staples, "and you may depend upon it that as far as I myself and the jury can investigate, we will fix the responsibility where it belongs, if it is possible to do so.

"At present it looks as though the crew of the light engine had run past their order, but the truth of this can only be ascertained when the surviving trainmen and other witnesses are put on their oath.

"I am summoning all these men, together with other eyewitnesses of the wreck, and the investigation will be as thorough as we can make it."

Says He Was Overwork.

London, Feb. 7.—Conductor William Meecham, in charge of the light engine at the Richwood wreck, was in the city Sunday for some hours. A reporter called at his home, 406 Rectory street, and was told that he had not been at his home since Saturday night.

Meecham, it is said, reached London on train No. 7 Sunday morning.

Supt. Bowker received word that Meecham was to be ordered to Stratford, and he sent a message to the house last night to that effect.

"I do not know whether he has been in the city or not," said Supt. Bowker.

A brother-in-law of the much-wanted man said yesterday, in answer to the question, if Meecham had been home: "We have heard nothing about him. We know that he was in the wreck, but he has not been here and we have not seen him."

"Have you heard from him?"

"No, we have not heard a thing. They worked the poor fellow to death. He was not home for three weeks until Saturday night, and then he had to go right out. He has not had a minute to himself in three weeks."

Engineer to Blame, Says Gillen.

Toronto, Feb. 7.—Grand Trunk Superintendent Gillen, when interviewed yesterday concerning Saturday night's wreck near Paris, said that the collision would not have occurred had Engineer Erreol of the mogul engine complied with the rules of the signal code.

The official admitted the entire loss of the baggage and mail car, the complete destruction of three first-class coaches and the putting out of business for two months of two engines. Exclusive of any claims which may be brought against the company, Supt. Gillen estimated that the accident would mean a loss of between $16,000 and $24,000 to the Grand Trunk.

Macnamara, their agent here, in answer to the action for $200,000 damages taken against them by Mr. David Russell. This preliminary is in the shape of a motion for particulars on most of the allegations made by Mr. Russell.

A Farmer's Suicide.

Brockville, Feb. 7.—Albert Carroll, a prosperous farmer, living three miles from Westport Village, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid. Worry over a recent business transaction is reported to have caused mental derangment, with the above result. Carroll leaves a widow and family.

Fire In Moving-Picture House.

Montreal, Feb. 7.—A fire broke out in the Wonderland Moving Picture Theatre here yesterday morning. Fortunately only about 25 people had entered the building at the time of the outbreak and they made good their escape by way of a door at the back of the hall.

MEMBERS SNOWED IN

So Very Few Appeared in Legislation Yesterday.

Government Is Active and Four Bills Were Ready For Committee Yesterday—Niagara District Will Double Its Fruit Output In Next Few Years Says Hon. J. S. Duff—W. J. McCart Wants Information.

Toronto, Feb. 7.—Had it not been for the foresight of the Prime Minister last week in having Government business placed on the order paper on Mondays, yesterday would have seen but little progress in the Legislature, as the private members did not avail themselves of the precedence which belonged to them.

The Government set the members an example of prompt business methods by having three bills ready for the committee stage, and when Government orders were called for, about 100 clauses of the bills in question were dealt with.

The time was taken up almost solely in committee. W. F. Nickle, Kingston, was in the chair. The majority of the members were conspicuous by their absence, less than half not wishing to brave the storm. Report had it that Hon. A. G. MacKay, Opposition leader, was snow-bound in North Grey.

Four Government bills went through the committee stage. They were: Bill 83, respecting the law of landlord and tenant; bill 85, respecting the support of illegitimate children; bill 91, respecting infants, having Hon. I. B. Lucas as their sponsor; and Hon. J. J. Foy's bill, No. 97, respecting trustees and executors and the administration of estates.

This afternoon the budget debate wil be resumed by S. Clarke, West Northumberland, who is expected to make a vigorous reply to the fighting speech of T. W. McGarry.

An inquisition into the affairs of the Provincial Secretary's Department is indicated by notice by W. J. McCart, Stormont, for a return of all the officials in Hon. W. J. Hanna's Department on Feb. 1, 1905, when the new regime began, and on the first of last month.

Hon. J. S. Duff's report for the Department of Agriculture shows the attendance at the Guelph College was the highest in its history, aggregating 1,386, including Macdonald Institute.

In the Niagara district it was found that while there are at present only about 375,000 trees in bearing, there are young orchards comprising approximately 500,000 trees. This means that in the next few years the production of the district will be doubled. Nearly 200,000 peach trees have been planted in Norfolk, Kent, Essex and Lambton Counties.

An aggregate of 7,581 immigrants were brought to Ontario through the Colonization Department.

The Minister of Agriculture vigorously commends the plans of the Hydro-Electric Commission for placing electricity at the early disposal of the individual farmers of the province.

Troubles Didn't Come Singly.

Niagara Falls, Feb. 7.—The season's severest storm struck here early yesterday. A forty-mile gale blew and snow fell in great quantities. Traffic on both steam and electric lines was handicapped. Cold dinners were the rule in hundreds of homes, as there was scarcely enough gas pressure in many houses to boil the kettle. Then the high wind caused the level of the river to fall greatly cutting off the supply of city water. If a fire were to occur during present conditions great damage would be done. Ice in the upper river gave the power-house employes great trouble early last evening.

Conflict of Authority.

Kingston, Feb. 7.—In his attempt to serve the people, Mayor Graham had a lively row with the Board of Works and Chairman Ald. Rigney. The mayor ordered out the snow clearing machine to cut down high spots on Princess street. The engineer ordered the men in off work, as he had not given orders, and Ald. Rigney wrote the mayor that he must not interfere with his department. Solicitor McIntyre stated that the mayor was within his rights. The matter will be threshed out in committee.

"Oatmeal King" Dead.

Mitchell, Feb. 7.—Walter Thomson, a prominent and wealthy citizen of Mitchell, and until recently one of the largest millers and grain dealers in western Ontario, died at the residence of his son in Texas on Friday. He was formerly known as the Oatmeal King, and had milling interests in London, Woodstock, Seaforth and Mitchell. He was born in Kelso, Scotland, in 1825, but has lived since 1840 in Ontario, and since 1867 has been a resident of Mitchell.

A Win For the Wets.

Barrie, Feb. 7.—A recount of the local option vote, which was asked for by some in favor of the bylaw, took place yesterday before Judge Wismer, and resulted in a further victory for the anti-local option side. Two votes which had been counted in favor of the bylaw were thrown out, thus defeating the bylaw by ten votes instead of eight.

Refused [illegible] Be Rescued.

Viborg, Finla[illegible], Feb. 7.—Two vessels sent to the rescue of the fishermen who on Friday were swept out to sea on an ice floe in a gale yesterday found the floe stranded near the Island of Seitskar. The fishermen, who numbered 253, were in no danger and refused to be taken off.

Tax Autos In Quebec.

Quebec, Feb. 7.—In the Legislature yesterday the Provincial Treasurer gave notice of a bill providing for the taxation of automobiles according to their horsepower, the revenue to be applied to the improvement of the highways.

CROMPTON IN COURT.

He Is Committed For Trial at the March Sessions.

Toronto, Feb. 7.—Fred. Crompton, president of the Crompton Corset Co., and brother-in-law of Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, former president of the Farmers' Bank, was yesterday committed for trial from the Police Court upon a charge of illegally accepting the notes of the bank, contrary to the provisions of the Bank Act.

The only evidence taken was that of Travers, who was given protection by Magistrate Denison when he stepped into the box. Travers told that Mr. Crompton had been introduced by Dr. Beattie Nesbitt and that the illegal scheme by which the bank secured $50,000 in cash from Mr. Crompton, giving in return its own unrecorded notes, upon which interest at 5 per cent. was later paid, was suggested by the fertile brain of the doctor. He said that he did not believe that Mr. Crompton knew that what he was doing was illegal, but that it simply looked like a good investment.

Travers said that the arrangement had been made verbally and that the money had been needed to tide over the bank's obligations at the clearing house. The former general manager was the only witness heard, but Messrs. V. A. Burke, James F. Fitzgibbon and H. A. E. Menshall were bound over as additional witnesses, to be called when the case comes up for trial at the March sessions.

Mr. Crompton, who appeared upon a summons and who has made restitution of $860, said to have been received as interest upon the notes, was allowed to depart upon his own bail of $1,000.

Travers was once more closeted in the detective office for the day. At 6.30 he left by street car for the jail with Detective Murray, as he had come up in the morning. He is looking a good deal thinner, but heathier than when he first appeared in court.

Crown Attorney Corley yesterday received a telegram from James J. Warren, charged jointly with Dr. Nesbitt, Travers and the four provisional directors and C. H. Smith, with conspiring to obtain the certificate of the Treasury Boar dby which the bank opened its doors for business.

The telegram is from Revelstoke, B.C., and reads:

"Understand some proceedings contemplated. Writing you fully, with particulars my address. Telegraph answer to Spencerbridge."

Mr. Warren has interests in British Columbia which take him there frequently.

Good News For Travelers.

Toronto, Feb. 7.—Commercial travelers will be interested in a decision of Justice Riddell's in an appeal of William Canning and W. J. Sarvis from the decision of the local judge at Guelph, on matters relating to the liquidation of the Morlock & Clinex Co. of Guelph. This decision of Justice Riddell's allows them the preferred creditor's chances to both salary and expenses, amounting in each case to $209.94.

"Expenses," declared the justice, "are as much a part of the wages as any fixed sum. It is not as though these sums were paid for the company to the railway companies, hotels, etc., with an undertaking that the company would repay the sums so paid as a debt, as would be the case if the commercial traveler were to pay some creditor of the company. The servant is paying money for himself the repayment of which to himself is payment of part of his wages."

Aeroplane Scouting.

Washington, Feb. 7.—So far as an aeroplane can discover the U. S. Government will probably soon be in a position to determine the facts as to the activities of the insurgents along the Mexican border. At present, owing to the conflicting reports and absurd and extravagant claims on the part of the different leaders and their neutrality law, and troops are continually making wild goose chases after military expeditions reported to be crossing the Rio Grande, which rarely materialize. When the troops are on these false scents, it is presumed that armed parties make their way across the river at unguarded points.

Yesterday Gen. Wood, chief of staff, let it be known that at least one aeroplane would be employed in observation work along the Rio Grande.

May Be "Tong" War.

Ottawa, Feb. 7.—There may be trouble among the local Chinese as a result of a big seizure of oriental liquor made by the license officers on Saturday night. Those who understand the ways of Chinese state that Ottawa may have something of the nature of a Tong war. It is said the members of the Reform Association are indignant at the actions of certain members of the Freemasons, the Opposition "Tong," and claim the latter were the informers who told the police where they could expect to find the liquor that was seized. They resent especially the injury to Hum Quong, the member of the Chinese Parliament who was one of the losers in the raid.

May Reorganize Regiment.

Ottawa, Feb. 7.—Speaking as to the disbanding of the Prince of Wales' Fusiliers at Montreal, Lieut.-Col. Lessard of the Militia Department said that he hoped the regiment could be reorganized. However, the regiment had become so shaken up that there was nothing left to do but disband it temporarily.

"It is, of course, well known in military circles that a regiment cannot be reorganized properly until it is disbanded," he concluded.

Might Have Been Serious.

Palmerston, Feb. 7.—Fire broke out in the Albion Hotel stable, a large frame building close behind the hotel, also frame, and situated close to the Grand Trunk yards. A fierce easterly gale was blowing, and for a time things looked serious for the business street of the town, but thanks to the new waterworks system, the fire was confined to the building in which it started.

COMMISSION ARRANGED

Announcement of International Board Is Confirmed.

It Will Consist of Four Members and Will Fix a Uniform Rate on Goods Shipped Across the Line—Details Still a Secret—House Spends Most of the Sitting In Discussion of Steam Trawling In Atlantic.

Ottawa, Feb. 7.—At yesterday's session of the House of Commons, W. S. Middlebro (N. Grey) interpollated the Minister of Railways on the truth of an article in a United States magazine that an agreement had been reached between the two countries providing for an international commerce commission. Hon. George Graham stated that this was the result of a conference between Mr. Knapp, chairman of the Interstate Commission of U.S., and Judge Mabee, chairman of the Board of Railway Commissioners. Its object was to secure a through bill of lading for goods originating in U. S. and destined for points in Canada. Unless there are a competing line the shipper was obliged to pay the local freight rate to and from the border. There were to be four members of the new body, including the two chairman. Its duty would be to fix a uniform rate. As the matter was covered by a treaty the details could not be made public at present.

Replying to Col. Sam Hughes, the Prime Minister said the Government had not received any information regarding the plans of a United States company to build a dam at the Long Sault and divert the waters of the St. Lawrence by a canal into Lake Champlain.

The House spent practically all the rest of the sitting discussing a resolution proposed by Mr. Sinclair of Guysboro, urging upon the Government the necessity of taking steps to secure an international agreement which would in the future prohibit steam trawling in such spawning grounds of deep sea fish as the banks of the north Atlantic adjacent to Canada and the St. Lawrence Gulf.

Mr. Sinclair, in the course of his speech, said that steam trawling had resulted in great injury to fisheries in all waters where it had been permitted. The Government had prohibited steam trawling within the three-mile limit, which was all it could do, but Mr. Sinclair expressed the view that if the fisheries were to be properly conserved there must be international regulation. He emphasized the fact that much damage had been done Canadian fisheries in recent years by French trawlers operating off the coast of Nova Scotia, the chief spawning ground of the Canadian deep sea fisheries on the Atlantic coast.

Hon. L. P. Brodeur said he would approve of trawling as restricted on the North Sea by international regulations.

H. H. Miller (S. Grey) sought to read to the House yesterday a resolution condemnatory of Col. Hughes, passed by Ottawa Ministerial Association, in view of certain references made by that gentleman about Dr. Milne a Presbyterian clergyman at the capital. Col. Hughes asked the House to permit the reading of the resolution, but the Speaker ruled Mr. Miller out of order. It is understood the matter will come up on Friday, when a lively interchange is anticipated.

Whole Council Goes.

St. Catharines, Feb. 7.—The thousand fruit men who will go to Ottawa on Friday will be accompanied by Mayor McBride, City Clerk Pay and the whole City Council, in accordance with the following resolution, passed with only one dissenting voice at the regular meeting last night.

"That it being the opinion of the council that the business interests of the Niagara peninsula, and particularly of this city, are deeply concerned in the prosperity of the fruit growers of this section, and, feeling that the agreement for reciprocity which is now being considered by the Parliament of Canada, and whereby it is proposed to remove the duty from tender fruits, will result in serious financial loss.

Therefore, be it resolved that this council appoint a committee, to be named by the mayor, to accompany the deputation of fruit growers who propose to interview the members of the Dominion Government and protest against the oblition of the present duty upon tender fruits."

Following Toronto's Lead.

Winnipeg, Feb. 7.—An agitation among consumers here over gas bills has reached the City Hall. It is likely that the council will be urged to take action towards securing a reduction of rates. The present prices are $1.20 to $1.35 per thousand net. Efforts will be made to secure an agreement similar to that in Toronto, where rates have been lowered to 70 cents.

WORDY SESSION OF THE CITY COUNCIL

Resolution as to Dredging Modified—Firemen Granted Rubber Suits and $20 More per Year—Back Taxes of 1908 to be Collected at Once—Return of Sale of City Lots—Other Business

Some of the City Fathers possess at least one quality, and that is talk. Last night the council session lasted until 11.15, when the business transacted could easily have been completed expeditiously at least one hour earlier. During the session a number of matters appertaining to the city's wellfare were brought up and discussed. The members of the fire brigade were granted an increase in wages and will also be provided with rubber outfits. The recommendation re dredging above and below the proposed C. N. R. bridge across the river was amended so as to read to have the work done if possible before the bridge is built. It was also decided by motion to have all the back taxes on the 1908 roll collected by the next meeting of the council. The amount to be collected is less than $300.

The members of the Council present at the meeting were as follows: Mayor Ackerman, Aldermen Woodley, Bogle, Lott, Gibson, Riggs, Anderson, Adams, Clarke, Marshall Bleecker St. Charles, Parks, McGie, Caldwell, Vermilyea, Chown, Sills Panter and Flagler.

After the reading and confirming of the minutes of the last meeting, the council went into Committee of the whole on accounts, reports, petitions etc., Ald. McGie in the chair.

The accounts passed in the various civic committees as alredy published were ratified.

A recommendation prevailed that $10 be given to the Sick Children's Hospital and a like sum to the Muskoka Free Hospital for consumptives.

INCREASE TO FIREMEN.

The Fire Committee recommended that a water-proof outfit be purchased at once for each fireman, also that the firemens' pay be increased to $20 a year.

Ald. Lott asked if there was a petition from the firemen asking for an increase or was it an imaginary idea.

Ald. McGie— A petition was presented from the firemen which asked for an incrase in pay and also for the rubber outfit.

The petition was read by the chairman which asked for an ncrease of $25 in salary and a water-proof outfit.

Ald. Lott— I do not know that I will oppose the increase asked for.

In answer to an enquiry it was stated that the rubber outfit asked for would cost from $12 to $15 per suit.

Ald. Flagler spoke in favor of giving the firemen $25 increase. They earned what was paid them.

Ald. St. Charles moved that the prayer of the petition be granted.

The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

SALE OF LOTS.

The Market and City Property Committee recommended that the City Treasurer add to the return of lots sold, the description, location and number of each of the said lots.

The Clerk handed to Ald. Clarke such a report from the Treasurer which stipulated what was required This caused the Alderman to remark that it was rather peculiar that such information had been given before the Council had taken action in the matter of the Committee's recommendation.

The recommendation was adopted.

DREDGING THE RIVER

The Railway, Industrial and Publicity Committee recommended to the council that the governmen of Canada be petitioned to dredge the river both below and above the site of the Canadian Northern Railway bridge and that the Harbor Commissioners be requested to co-operate with the corporation in the matter; that the dredging be done before the bridge is built as recommended by the Government Engineer.

Ald. Panter objected to the last clause in the report. We desired to have the bridge and cars running over it before next summer. He did not think the recommendation would be of any avail if passed as it read.

Mayor Ackerman was of the opinion that the recommendation might be modified so as to read that the dredging be done either before or after the bridge is built.

Ald. Flagler said the business men of the city wanted the C. N. R. built through the city and the company should not be hampered. If we desire the terminal of that railway here nothing should be done to antagonize the company.

Ald. Vermilyea thought the words 'if possible' might be added in reference to the dredging being done before the bridge is built. This was an important matter to citizens generally.

Ald. Bogle said the undertaking was not one of such a serious nature. He thought the dredging could and should be done before the bridge is built.

Ald. Clarke asked if the voice of the people could be obtained in this matter. Does the press represent the voice of the people in this matter? Both papers had spoken against the Committee's recommendation. No harm could come if the words "if possible" were added to the recommendation in reference to that portion referring to when the dredging should be done.

The recommendation was adopted after being amended by the words "if possible" added to the time of the proposed dredging.

G. T. R. MATTERS.

Mr. W. B. Deacon, President of the Board of Thade, addressed the Council. He said the Board of Trade was endeavoring to boost the city and they wanted the co-operation of the City Council in all matters appertaining to the city's welfare. An important matter just now was the G.T.R. round house situated just outside the city limts. The township of Thurlow, and in fact the whole county of Hastings was against the proposed scheme to annex that roundhouse to the city. The three members in the Legislature from this county would probably be against the proposition. If such was the fact what chance would the city have to win their case. A question that was of vital importance to the city at present was to secure the Grand Junction dock and have our harbor dredged out with a view to better docking facilities and also to have certain parts of the Bay made deeper. If this were done there would be no doubt that the output of the rolling mills would be naturally increased, also the Belleville Cement Works would again be put in operation and the Lehigh Cement Works increase their output if vessels drawing deeper water could be brought in here. The matter of securing the Grand Junction dock from the G. T. R. might be of more advantage to the city than annexing the round house to the city.

Mr. J. Elliott spoke of the necessity of the city doing all in their power to work amicably with the G. T. R. and not antagonize that corporation. He understood that the Grand Trunk Railway would allow the city to have the Grand Junction dock. If this was secured and dredging could be done, there was no doubt the wharfage facilities could be much improved, which would mean much for the city. He would be sorry to do anything to antagonize the G. T. R. company, but would rather accept a compromise which would be of benefit to the city.

Mayor Ackerman said the remarks of Messrs. Deacon and Elliott would receive the careful attention of the council at the proper time.

The Committee of the whole then resumed.

A number of accounts presented were on motion referred to their respective committees.

COLLECTION OF TAXES

A report was presented from the tax collector which showed the collection of taxes on the various rolls since the last meeting of the council were as follows :—

	called	balance on roll
1908	81.91	293.00
1909	298.96	7,870.24
1910	581.47

Total amount collected on 1910 roll $91,200.77.

FREIGHT ON ROLLER.

A communication was read from the Reeve of Bloomfield township in reference to the freight bill of $45.75 for the return of the city steam roller which the township contended the city should pay.

Ald. Lott moved that the City Solicitor take action to collect this amount from the township of Bloomfield.

The motion prevailed after Ald Vermilyea had spoken in support of it.

INJURY TO A HORSE.

Messrs. Porter & Carnew wrote the council in regard to a claim Dr. Gibson had against the city owing to injuries a horse belonging to him had sustained on a street in this city. It is alleged that an unprotected ob-

Fools the Calendar.

Don't look older than you are. It is just as easy to look younger. While lack of hair or poor hair is not always an indication of age, it is frequently accepted as such.

A person well advanced in years possessing a good head of hair is always spoken of as "well preserved."

Everyone can retain beautiful, luxuriant hair if they make the effort. In almost every instance poor hair or the loss of hairmay be traced to the activity of the dandruff germ. Newbro's Herpicide kills this germ and puts the scalp in a perfect healthy condition. With the destruction of the dandruff germ the hair no longer drops out. The itching of the scalp stops almost at once.

Newbro's Herpicide is the original remedy for which there are many substitutes, preparations claimed to be "just as good." You don't have to accept a substitute. Insist upon having genuine Herpicide.

BRAIN STRAIN.

In the long history of the past, glasses were resorted to for the purpose of correcting imperfect vision only. More especially during the later years it has been observed that glasses now and again have relieved nervous disorders, and the more closely we have studied and observed the effects of properly adjusted spectacles in disease, the more convinced we have grown that eye strain is the cause of many serious disorders, and that its correction will in a great measure relieve troubles that have theretofore baffled the skill of the medical profession.

When evidence comes from here and there of the cure of diseases that have always been considered fatal, it awakens, at first, incredulity, but if we are able to offer good and logical reasons why eye strain has such a powerful influence over

DON'T FOOL WITH YOUR LIVER

MAKE IT ACTIVE AND HEALTHY WITH "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Don't treat the Liver with common purgatives. Salts, senna, calomel and the host of "liver pills" do not act on the liver at all. They merely irritate the bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" corrects Indigestion and Constipation—not by inflaming the bowels like common purgatives, but by making the liver active and healthy.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest liver medicine in the world, and is the only medicine made of fruit juices.

struction caused the injury to the animal.

Ald. Marshall said he had seen Dr Gibson and the doctor was not yet prepared to present his bill to the city as he had not made it up, and had not received the veterinary surgeon's bill.

The matter was referred to the Claims Committee.

A communication was read from the Ontario Agricultural College in reference to ascertaining the names of bee keepers who were in the city.

The letter was referred to the City Solicitor to enquire and reply to.

THE LIBRARY'S NEED.

The Board of Directors of the Corby Public Library presented a statement showing that $1800 was required from the city for the running of the library for the ensuing year.

Ald. Vermilyea said that last year about $1850 was expended.

ANNEXING G. T. R. PROPERTY

Mr. E. Donald, a G. T. R. official in Montreal, wrote the council in reference to the city's proposition to apply to the Legislature for the purpose of annexing certain buildings and lands owned by the Company to the city. The company did not desire these buildings and lands annexed to the city.

Ald. Panter asked when the matter would be brought up in the Legislature.

City Solicitor—There is no particular hurry in this matter. It may be three or four weeks before the Legislature acts in the matter.

Ald. Flagler objected to the action of the city in this matter.

Ald. Clarke—When you put your hand to the plough you should not turn back. The matter had been pretty thoroughly discussed by the committee. Whilst we do not wish to antagonize the G. T. R. we should still preserve the city's right. Would it be compensation to take the Grand Junction dock and give up the round house which has been erected outside of the city limits. The township of Thurlow is grasping that round house for the purpose of taxaton. The G T. R. did not build that round house for the benefit of Belleville or the township of Thurlow. The talk of the Board of Trade in reference to antagonizing the G. T. R. was, he thought, far fetched. He did not believe the G. T. R. would seriously oppose the contention of the city to have that property annexed to the city. He moved that the City Solicitor be a deputation to wait upon the Government in reference to this matter.

Ald. Lott thought it was a good move of the G. T. R. to build the round house where they did. The residents are now free from the smoke nuisance.

Ald. Flagler spoke against the city doing anything to antagonize the G T. R. The company, he claimed, had lived up to their agreement.

Ald. McGie—No, they have not!

Ald. Flagler—The wages paid out per month are thousands in excess of what they were formerly.

Mayor Ackerman—The deputation from the county would meet the Government in reference to this matter on Wednesday of this week. There was nothing definite in the matter of getting the Grand Junction dock from the railway. He was in favor of the Solicitor going to-morrow and placing the city's interests before the Private Bills Committee.

Ald. Clarke's motion was adopted.

Ald. Panter moved that without prejudice to our case the city council will be willing to discuss with the G. T. R. the question re. bonus and removal of works outside the city.—Carried.

DEEPENING WATER COURSES.

On motion of Mayor Ackerman the council concurred in a petition from the city council of Toronto in regard to petitioning the Dominion Government to deepen the Welland Canal also the Murray Canal and a portion of the Bay of Quinte.

Mr. D. Price, City Treasurer, reported that a lot had been sold on the east side of Gordon street to Mr F. Slater for $35, which cost the city $14.

THANKS FOR FAVOR.

A communication was read from the Deacon Shirt Company, thanking the council for the consideration they had given the company in fixing their assessment for 10 years at a nominal sum. The company had received many tempting offers to leave the city after their fire, but their faith was in the city and its future welfare.

Messrs. Thompson & Donohue wrote the council in regard to $200 which was still due them as part of the contract money for building the Dundas street sewer. They asked that this amount be paid them.

Considerable discussion took place as to the condition of the street and the probable cost of putting the same in a proper state of repair.

The matter of paying the amount asked for was left in abeyance for the time being.

THE LOT QUESTION.

The following communication was read from Mr. J. F. Wills, Secretary of the Property Owners' and Tax Payers' Association :—

Belleville, Jan. 31, 1911.

W. C. Mikel, K. C.,
City Clerk,
Belleville, Ont.

My Dear Sir :—

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of yours of the 31st inst., addressed to me as Secretary of the P. O. & T Association advising of progress of matters re. investigation of City Affairs. I do not understand from any communication received by your council from the P. O. & T. Association that the said Association demands anything. A motion was made in the meeting of the Association, held at the City Hall on the 13th inst., that the Association recommended a certain proceeding to be undertaken by the city council, which body is the proper one, we submit, to act. There has been certain information given in particulars in the Daily Intelligencer on the 24th of December last and also in subsequent issues which should be judicially determined after the production of the facts before such authority as may be determined by your council or committee to be called to act. You are familiar with the two sections of the Municipal Act governing such matters. There has been a large amount of writing in the newspapers, a great deal of which has been quite irrelevant. The simple proceeding necessary to get the facts before the Judge should be quite inexpensive. It is unfortunate that so much has been said by so many persons and it would appear to me that for every person concerned as well as the general citizens the atmosphere should be cleared by the decision of a Judge.

Yours sincerely,
J. F. WILLS.

On motion the communication was filed.

SALE OF PROPERTY.

A communication was read from the McLaughlin Carriage Co., objecting to the price asked for a portion of land on what is known as Panter Park. The company want 100 feet south on Coleman street and are prepared to pay $800 to the city for the land required. The company would erect a $6,000 building.

Mr. Lee, a representative of the company, addressed the council, stating that the company would like to have 100 feet on Coleman street, and would also like to have a few more feet near the revetment wall.

A motion prevailed that the city sell the McLaughlin Co. 100 feet on Coleman street, south of the Greaves property, also to within 11 feet of the revetment wall for $800, and to erect a four thousand dollar building this year and at least a two thousand dollar building the following year.

GRANTS TO CHARITIES.

Ald. Clarke asked for the reconsideration of the recommendation of the Executive Committee that grants of $10 to the Sick Children's Hospital and a similar grant to the Muskoka Free Hospital for consumptives. The grant was not large and the objects were worthy. It was, however, a question of our right to vote the money in this manner.

The City Clerk said that the statute provided that a council could by by law give a grant to charitable institutions. He understood they were charitable institutions.

Ald. Vermilyea stated that the by laws covering this matter were prepared and he would introduce them at the proper time.

The Committee arose and reported The report was received and adopted

ENQUIRIES.

Ald. Thompson asked the Chairman of the Claims Committee why he had not called upon Mrs. Thompson, who fell upon the walk and broke her arm

Ald. Thompson—I will see the lady in question and the matter will be considered by the Committee.

Ald. Clarke—What was the reason that No. 2. hose cart and the hook and ladder wagon were so slow in responding to a fire on Front street on Jan. 25th? Also is it a fact that the horses of No. 2 hose cart were being used to draw parties to the races that afternoon?

Ald. St. Charles—The last part of that enquiry is false.

Ald. McGie—The reason that No. 2 fire brigade was slow in answering was because no alarm was sent in to No. 2. station. The fire was adjoining No. 1. Station.

Ald. Chown—What procedure had to be taken to do away with the Ward system, and return to the old system of electing aldermen by the whole city?

City Clerk—If a petition brought is signed by 25 per cent. of the electors a by-law can be prepared and submitted to the electors for their approval or disapproval at the next municipal election.

Ald. Flagler—Why are not the back taxes collected? Is it also a fact that the Bailiff engaged had not paid his license as an auctioneer for the past year?

Ald. Vermilyea—The matter of collecting is being attended to and warrants would be issued. The Treasurer intended to retain out of the Bailiff's commission the price of his auctioneer's license.

Ald. Clarke—Has the Treasurer a right to issue a license without receiving pay for same?

A Voice—Did he have a license last year?

BY-LAWS.

Ald. Vermilyea introduced two by laws, namely, a by-law to grant $10 to the Sick Children's Hospital, of Toronto, and $10 to the Muskoka Free Hospital for consumptives.

The Council went into Committee of the whole on by-laws. Ald. Panter in the chair.

The by-laws were passed through their various stages and numbered 1627 and 1628.

MOTIONS

Ald. Clarke moved, seconded by Bogle, that the Chief of the Fire Department prepare a statement showing the fires for 1910, the time of the arrival of the hose cart and the hook and ladder wagon at such fires also the time of the arrival of the members of the fire department.

Ald. Clarke said in making the motion he did it to obtain information which should be in the hands of the Chief. If the Chief performs his duties there should be no trouble in furnishing the council with such information.

Ald. Flagler considered this was an impossible thing for the Chief to do.

Ald. St. Charles—The Chief cannot get to the fires as quickly as the hose carts unless he has a vehicle. He has to run or walk to fires.

Ald. Panter thought the Chief of the Department could not give the record asked for by Ald. Clarke.

Ald. Clarke—If the Chief cannot give the information he should say so He, the speaker, was informed that at some fires some of the members were not present.

The motion passed.

Ald. Chown moved, seconded by Ald. Sills, that the tax collector have the uncollected taxes on the 1908 roll amounting to $209, collected by the next meeting of the council and the roll returned.—Carried.

Council adjourned.

The Bald Headed Man may Look Wise

But If He Had Been He Would Have Hair Now

You do not want a scientific treatise on the hair follicle—you are not particularly interested in the name of the German scientist who isolated the bug that is said to cause baldness. What you do want to know is how to save the hair you have and make it strong and lustrous.

Nyal's Hirsutone will do it better than anything else.

It is not claimed that Hirsutone is a wonderful scientific secret—but it is the concrete result of all that is proven in the scientific treatment of sick and diseased hair and scalp.

It is a happy combination and you will notice a prompt improvement in the feeling of the scalp and the look of the hair.

Hirsutone loosens and removes all scaly and matted deposit on the scalp —stimulates the hair bulbs and gives new life and vigor to the hair itself.

Nyal's Hirsutone gives back to the hair and scalp just what it has been robbed of by your neglect and abuse.

It is time to start right. Use Hirsutone.

It is one of the Nyal remedies and no higher recommendation can be given it. They are all good. Ask your Nyal Druggist. He recommends it.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Higher, Chicago Lower—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Widespread snow, directly beneficial to fall-sown wheat, carried down the price of wheat to-day. The far southwest, tho, where moisture would be of greatest help, received very little. As a result, the advance was checked, with closing figures at a net loss of only ⅛c to ⅜c. The day's trading left corn unchanged to a sixteenth lower, oats off a shade to ⅛c, and provisions not altered more than a nickel either way.

The Liverpool market closed ⅛d to ¼d higher than on Saturday for wheat futures; corn, ⅛d to ¼d lower. Berlin closed ½c higher; Buda Pest, ½c lower; Paris, ¼c to ⅜c lower, and Antwerp, unchanged.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Feb. 6.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Feb. 4, were 1680 cattle, 980 sheep and lambs, 1626 hogs and 275 calves. The offerings on the market this morning amounted to 750 cattle, 300 sheep and lambs, 1050 hogs and 150 calves.

The stronger feeling which developed in the market for cattle a week ago has been fully maintained owing to the continued small supplies coming forward and the higher prices demanded for them at country points on account of improved condition and quality of the same.

There was a large gathering of buyers, notwithstanding the cold weather, and as they all seemed to be short of beef the demand was good and a fairly active trade was done. A few extra choice steers sold as high as seven cents per pound, but the bulk of the trading was done in choice stock at 6¾c, good at 6¼c to 6½c, fairly good at 5¾c to 6c, fair at 5¼c to 5½c, and the lower grades at 4½c to 5c per pound. There were a few extra choice heavy bulls offered, which brought as high as 6c, 6¼c and others sold at 5c to 5¾c per lb.

There was a stronger undertone to the market for hogs and prices scored an advance of 10c per cwt. Supplies were fairly large for the demand was keen from packers, and an active trade was done, sales of selected lots being made at $7.85 to $8 per cwt., weighed off the cars. Owing to the limited supplies of lambs coming forward a stronger feeling developed in the market and prices advanced ¼c per lb. The demand was good and all the offerings met with a ready sale at 6¼c to 6½c per lb. The market for sheep was steady at 4½c to 4¾c per pound.

DEATH WAS NATURAL

Death of Hotel Keeper's Wife at Colborne Was Caused by Heart Disease

COLBORNE, Feb. 7.— Death from heart failure was the verdict returned here last night by the jury empanelled by Coroner Latta to investigate the sudden demise of Mrs. Victoria Teasdale, wife of the proprietor of the Hotel Bristol, who was found dead in her bed last Thursday afternoon. The finding was not unanimous, as two of the jurymen were of the opinion that death was due to alcoholic poisoning. A peculiar interest centred upon the sudden taking off of Mrs. Teasdale. owing to the fact that it was in the Bristol Hotel that the strangled body of Johanna Brimacomb was found on December 18th inst. Rumors hed been circulating through the village during the past few days that worry and remorse had probably contributed to the death of Mrs. Teasdale, and these became so persistent that an inquest was deemed absolutely necessary to clear the air.

THE C. P. R. IS COMING

Surveyors on Their Toronto-Ottawa Line are Working In Sidney

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company's new Toronto-Ottawa line will pass through Belleville. That is a certainty. It is probable that it will be located to the south of the Canadian Northern Ontario, as the surveyors are now at work in Sidney within two miles of the city.

It will be remembered that the C P. R. made a survey through Sidney a very short time before that for the C. N. O. R. R. was made, and that is the location that is now being gone over for revision.

The line in question deviates from the main line near Bathurst, eight miles west of Perth, passes north of the Rideau lakes, and will pass north of Kingston, crossing the Grand Trunk a few miles east of the city. Hence it will continue westward, passing through Trenton and several places west of Port Hope, which the C. N. O does not touch. This line will be of very great benefit to Belleville, and it will be the duty of the City Council and of every good citizen to afford every assistance which can be given to the company, having, of course, due regard to our own interests.

It is prbable that the work of construction will be commenced early in the spring, as the Government has limited the time for the building of the road.

INTEREST GROWING IN BIG POPULARITY CONTEST

Candidates are Planning a Big Campaign In the Intelligencer's Big Popularity Contest and Interest Is Growing Daily—Votes Issued to All Subscribers Paying or Prepaying on Daily or Weekly—Subscribe for Your Favorite Today

Interest is increasing daily since the publication of the first list of names, and indications are that the numerous ladies interested in the contest will be able to get votes more easily from now on. The contest is gaining ground day by day and no one can forecast what height of success this tug of war will attain. Certain it is that 90 per cent. of the people of Belleville and surrounding country are directly interested in the outcome of the contest and before another week has elapsed the other 10 per cent. will be as deeply engrossd in the contest as the candidates and their friends are to-day. A great number of popular young ladies who are energetically putting in their time securing subscriptions and gathering coupons from The Intelligencer are going to be satisfied with nothing less than one of the beautiful prizes offered the winners. Friends who subscribe for The Intelligencer are really not donating anything as they receive full value for the amount paid, as The Intelligencer will be sent to any address to which they may move for the term for which their subscription is paid. The Intelligencer will not only maintain its present standard as a clean, newsy, reliable newspaper, but will continue to improve its columns, and there will be no regrets for having subscribed for some deserving contestant. Many contestants have friends in other towns who woud gladly help them if they were notified of the contest. Contestants should send a copy of The Intelligencer containing the particulars to such friends and request their assistance. Contestants and friends working for them should report at this office daily if possible. In every case names of subscribers secured should be turned in at once, in order that the paper may be started to them. Vouchers for the number of votes contestants are entitled to will be issued with each receipt and votes may be placed in the ballot box at the pleasure of the contestants.

HOW BALLOTS ARE SECURED.

In all cases where vote certificates are issued, subscriptions must be paid in advance. The full amount of money must be sent direct by mail, paid to the contestant, or brought to this office.

MEMORY RESTORED

Hypnotism Restored Memory of Girl Affected by Explosion In Jersey

POUGHKEEPSIE, Feb. 6.— Mina Karn, eighteen years old, the pretty New York telephone girl, who was found wandering on the streets here and remained at the police station for fifteen hours in a complete state of amnesia, and whose memory was finally restored by hypnotic influence was taken to her home this afternoon.

Miss Karn's mind became a blank in New York last Wednesday noon when the dynamite explosion at Communipaw, occurred.

When found here she did not even know her name. After several hours treatment by Dr. Pilgrim, of the Hudson River Hospital, and his assistants Dr. Frederick Parsons, and Dr. John A. Card, the young woman's memory was restored. Dr. Pilgrim, who is president of the American Psychological Society, and Dr. Parsons applied the hypnotic test.

The girl was taken to a quiet room upstairs in the police station and was told to listen attentively to the ticking of a watch which she held to her ear while Dr. Parsons read from a book. The first test was not altogether a success.

The letters of the alphabet were repeated and the girl's pulse bounded when the letter K was reached. She was asked to try and remember something connected with K—her name, it subsequently developed, is Karn,—but she could not do so.

After the girl had had an hour's sleep the hypnotic test was resumed The girl was put into a receptive condition by the two alienists. Dr. Pilgrim stroked her forehead and Dr Parsons pressed her eyelids, while Dr. Card kept his fingers on her pulse The dostors finally got her started talking about the New York subway and trolley cars, when suddenly she exclaimed :

"Oh, there was such a noise down the bay !" To this she added : "My God ! What a shock !"

With this start the alienists got the girl to recall how she had started up town on a trolley car last Wednesday noon when the shock occurred. Then she gave her name and address, stating that she lived at No. 311, East 89th St., New York, and that she was a telephone girl employed in the Spring street exchange. She had gone to Dey street last Wednesday to collect wages due her and was on her way home when the shock came. Last Friday night some lady put her on a New York Central train.

This morning Dr. Parsons continued his test in an effort to learn who the woman was who put her on the train telling her to get off at the first stop but Miss Karn was unable to recall this incident. She was also unable to recall how she came to be wearing some clothing that was not her own The doctors believe that her memory will be completely restored in a few days.

CURRENT COMMENTS.

J. W. Johnson, M. P. P., has introduced a bill which is aimed at "overcapitalization," a terrible blow, forsooth, at Telegram editorials.—Toronto Star.

The Council acted wisely in rejecting that absurd proposal to ask for delay of a year or two in the construction of the railway bridge, until after a rocky shoal had been dredged." 'Tis well.

That powerless committee which the Council appointed to investigate the tax lot sales appears to have realized its own impotency. It has never met as yet, and probably never will. The letter of Mr. J. F. Wills, Secretary of the P. O. and T. P. Association should have set the Council right in the premises instead of being quietly shelved; but the end is not yet.

The Intelligencer refers those who, at the banquet of the Holstein Breeders' Association here, were weeping simulated tears over the non-prosperous condition of the farmers of Ontario, to the report presented to the Legislature by Hon. James Duff, Minister of Agriculture, in which he states that there never was a time when agriculture was so prosperous or the outlook so bright as it now is.

By the death of Mrs. F. R. Lingham Belleville has lost a citizen whom it could ill afford to lose. A woman of great business capacity, warm hearted and generous to a degree, she will be sadly missed, not alone by her sorrowing husband, daughter and relatives, but by a host of friends. Mrs. Lingham did much for Belleville, not only in establishing, on her own initiative, St. Agnes School, but in successfully directing that institution, and greatly enlarging the school premises, but, in conjunction with her husband, creating new dwellings and completely transforming and modernizing, at great expense, properties which they purchased. The Intelligencer unites with its readers in tendering to Mr. Lingham and family sincere sympathy in their great bereavement.

Mr. J. W. Johnson's bill to prevent the issue of watered stock, says the Globe, is a serious effort to restrict a somewhat elusive evil. It provides that the stock of all companies having for their purpose the manufacture or supply of any commodity or organized to operate any municipal or other public franchise utility or undertaking shall be issued at par and paid for in cash by the recipients. The holder of shares issued at less than par is made liable to the creditors of the company to the extent of the paid-up par value of such shares, and the issuer is liable to a fine of from $50 to $200. Exceptions are made in regard to the issuing of fully paid-up stock for property acquired or for services.

GRIFFIN'S OPERA HOUSE.

Denman Thompson's "The Old Homestead," is rapidly hastening on to its silver jubilee. This celebrated drama of New England rural life is now in its twenty-fifth year, and has only two more years to run when it will have completed twenty-five years of uninterrupted success. When we look back upon the years that have intervened since 'The Old Homestead' was first produced at the Boston Theatre in April 1886, it seems incredible that this same simple, domestic drama, dealing as it does with scenes and incidents which are in no way remarkable in themselves, should in this theatrical season of '10-11, be still one of the best drawing crads of the theatrical world. Millions of people have witnessed it during the past twenty-two years and yet the theatre going public has not yet tired of dear old Uncle Josh, of Cy Prime, and Seth Perkins, Aunt Matilda, Eb Ganzey Happy Jack, Rickety Ann and the others. The singing of the quartette of farm hands is looked forward to with as much interest as of yore and the scenic equipment this season is as beautiful and effective as ever Griffin's Opera House, Wed. SOME ODD CLAIMS FOR INSURANCE

LONDON, Feb. 5.—When a few years ago British employers became liable at law for injuries suffered by employes in the course of their work cartoonists got busy depicting the hired girl gleefully tumbling down stairs with the tea tray or the coalbox, secure in the prospect of a long rest and no loss of wages. Householders, of course, cover their risks by insuring each employe against accidents. English courts as a rule place a liberal construction on the word accident and accordingly on the books of the insurance companies may be found many odd claims. Here are a few:

A farmhand was stung by a bee.

A coachman coming out of a stable was struck in the face by his master's boot, intended for a cater-wauling cat.

A servant was pricked by a rusty needle while sewing on a button on her employer's clothes.

It is somewhat difficult to imagine that success could attend claims like these.

A servant received a shock through seeing a large Teddy bear when the room was only dimly lighted.

Another servant fetching coal out of a cellar collapsed from fright caused by the silent appearance of a washerwoman and broke her arm.

THE VALUE OF PEAT AS FUEL

"Six hundred tons of peat fuel have been sold in Ottawa, and it has given so much satisfaction that we have been besieged by telegrams asking for carloads of it," declared Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, Ottawa, in an address before the Canadian Club at Toronto, descriptive of the fuel value of the peat bogs of Canada and how successful has been the plant operated near Alfred, Ont.

Sweden and Russia have led the world in demonstrating the value of peat as a fuel. In Russia there are 1,300 such plants as that at Alfred, producing 4,000,000 tons of fuel in 1902, with a yearly increase since then of nearly 200,000 tons.

Dr. Haanel described the successful experiments of Lieutenant Ekelano with a product known as peat powder Starting from an air dried machine peat, with forty to fifty per cent. of moisture, he had carried his process further to obtain a product in the form of powder with only ten per cent of moisture, the heating effect of which pound for pound, was said to be equivalent to the best English bituminous coal.

"This peat powder is admirably adapted for industrial purposes, being a magnificent fuel for steam raising. Blown under a boiler it burns with a long, hot, smokeless flame, leaving no unburnt particles. The fuel is especially adapted to the cement glass and clay industries. The cost of manufacture of the peat powder in Switzerland is $2.30 per ton, while the cost of a plant capable of turning out 20,000 tons annually would be $86,000.

After pointing out the fact that the general practice pursued in Canadian factories of burning the fuel under a boiler and utilizing the expansive power of the resulting steam in a steam engine was "wasteful and deficient," Dr. Haanel quoted figures to show that using a coal of 12,500 British thermal units, at $4 per ton, in a 350 horse-power steam plant would mean the consumption of 15 tons to maintain one horse-power energy for a year of 6,000 hours, or at a cost of $60 per horse power.

He contrasted this with a modern gas producer power plant, requiring only four and one half tons at a cost of $18 for one horse-power per year With peat by the Ekeland process for a peat gas producer plant, the cost would be $7.50.

"I estimate," concluded Dr. Haanel "that if power were produced in Ontario from gas producer power plants it would cut down the coal bill for that purpose to less than one-third of the present cost, besides saving labor charges for handling. The Government has installed a 100 horse-power producer for lignite and soft coal which they confidently expect can be operated successfully with peat. As soon as practice has shown this feasible the department will recommend their installation at suitable peat bogs for the production of power"

STORM OF PROTEST

Instead of subsiding, or even diminishing, as the result of the explanations of and the defence attempted for the tariff arrangement which is proposed to be made between the Dominion and the United States, the storm of protest against it which has arisen in Canada has increased in intensity.

It is forcibly pointed out by the Toronto News, which journal was at first inclined to look favorably on the result of the mission to Washington that "we are plunging into a revolution without thought and without knowedge. None of us at first saw all that was involved in the agreement. Even Mr. Fielding and Mr. Paterson must be anxious when they contemplate the long and far-reaching consequences of the policy to which they have committed the Government. The issue transcends all party considerations and as the days pass the objections to the agreement rise in ever enlarging magnitude. The News," it continues, "does not believe that all the patriotism of Canada is vested in one party and it is convinced that when all the facts and all the bearings of the bargain with Washington are considered and understood no Government can afford to give it ratification."

"It is true," continues our contemporary, "that temporary advantages would accrue to many Canadian farmers. But in a time of great and increasing prosperity they embark upon a policy of uncertainty. They can have no guarantee that they will enjoy a free market in the United States for even a five year period. If the agreement goes into effect we will re-establish our trade connections with the United States. But we can have no control over the future action of Washington. What reason have we to think that low tariff is to be the permanent policy of the Republic? If there should come a season of commercial depression, which is so often the result of fiscal readjustment, there probably would be a summary restoration of high protection and the old attitude towards Canada."

These objections have found a ready response throughout the country, and the representatives of many important interests, which have been prejudicially affected are speaking out emphatically in condemnation, in which the Montreal Board of Trade has joined and in which the Manufacturers' Association will unite after giving careful consideration to the subject.

The representatives of particular interests, such as the salt industry, the manufacturers of farming implements, the live stock men and the fruit and vegetable growers, have already denounced the pact as ruinous to them.

The transportation companies, whether their business is carried on by land or by water, will be dealt a staggering blow, as to which we have quoted several of the gentlemen who are interested in it, and to whose testimony we now add that of Mr. L. L. Henderson, of Kingston, general manager of the Montreal Transportation Company, who gave expression to the conviction that if Congress and the Parliament of Canada ratify the agreement Canadian lake carriers would be compelled to abandon, to a great extent, the ports of Fort William and Port Arthur in favor of Duluth and Chicago for eastbound bulk freight.

It will simply be, he said, a return to the conditions of the days when there was practically no Canadian West to raise grain for shipment to the seaboard, and, of course, Canadian water transportation companies will be compelled to seek out the American ports where the cargoes offer. But, in the meantime, what is to become of the commodious elevators erected by private and municipal capital at the Canadian ports at the head of Lake Superior?

The whole trend of the traffic, so far as grain is concerned, will be changed with the ratification of the agreement. The free entry of grain into the United States will divert the traffic from east and west to north and south, and American railways will reap the benefit of the long haul to the seaboard, a thing we have fought hard in the past to maintain. On the understanding that the Government of Canada, irrespective of party, would do everything in its power to foster this trade, railways have been built and are building that have cost the country millions of money, canals have been deepened and widened, navigation improved in other ways, millions of dollars spent on harbor and elevator facilities at terminal ports, and ships by the score built by private enterprise to engage in the trade.

The case could not be more clearly or concisely stated, and Mr. Henderson's opinion is concurred in by Sir William Mackenzie on behalf of the Canadian Northern Railway, and Mr. J. J. Hill, the latter, of course, speaking from the American standpoint of the advantages to be secured by his railways from the diversion of traffic to the south of the border.

This view also finds confirmation from the Buffalo Times, which, in the course of an article on the subject, remarks:

Buffalo is the natural port of inlet for Canadian trade with the Middles States, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, part of Northern New England, Eastern Ohio and the southern Atlantic seaboard.

Reciprocity with Canada will be the making of Buffalo. Let Buffalo do everything in her power to bring about reciprocity. Strike while the iron is hot.

That is the point. The making of Buffalo will be the undoing of the Welland Canal and our Lake Ontario marine, and of enormous injury to our railways.

As other interests are heard from, The Intelligencer will endeavor to keep its readers informed in the premises. In the meantime, it is apparent that the great body of the public, in Ontario at least, are steadily coming to the conclusion that the Canadian negotiators have been overreached and that the balance of advantage will be greatly in favor of the United States.

OPPOSE CHANGES IN C. P. R. ROUTE

The Township of Percy, Campbellford and Seymour All Want the Road

WARKWORTH, Feb. 6.—At a meeting of the Councils of Percy, Campbellford, Seymour and the Campbellford Board of Trade, held at Campbellford, it was decided to send a strong deputation to Ottawa this week to ask the Railway Committee of the House of Commons to disallow any change in the route of the proposed C. P. R. line from that laid down in the original charter. Clause 8 is the one which is asked to be amended. Practically, it is said, it reads: From a point on or near the C. P. R. between Blairton and Ivanhoe through the counties of Peterborough, Hastings, Northumberland and to Cobourg, thence westerly and northwesterly through Durham, Ontario and York counties to a point on or near the C.P.R. between Locust Hill and Leaside Junction, passing through or near Campbellford, Warkworth, Cobourg, Port Hope, Oshawa and Whitby.

If amended the clause, it is stated, will read:—From a point on the C. P.R. between Smith's Falls and Sharbot Lake, thence southwesterly to a point between Locust Hill and Leaside Junction.

The municipalities interested fear that this change if consummated will cut off Campbellford, Warkworth, Burnby and a district at present not served by any railway.

Reeve Irwin occupied the chair, Reeve Watherson of Percy urged the necessity of the road in this district. Reeve Home of Seymour and Deputy Reeve Currie stated that their township Council heartily concurred in sending a deputation to protest against the change. It was suggested that Cobourg be asked to join the deputation. It is learned that at a joint meeting of the Town Council and Board of Trade in that town representatives of both of those bodies were appointed to go to Ottawa in connection with the proposed change of route. The matter comes before the Railway Committee of the House to-morrow.

The project of an electric road through Campbellford, Warkworth, etc., to the lake front has been projected, to be built, it is suggested, by the municipalities, operated and equipped by the C. P. R., the latter returning to the corporations forty per cent. of the gross earnings. It is stated that one reason of the C. P. R. for abandoning the route first fixed in the charter is the impossibility of securing a feasible grade. The first charter for the proposed road was granted in 1903.

The patrol was filled and it required an express wagon to carry all the goods to the police station. All three cases were seized at the store of Huom Quon.

The whiskey will be sent to Toronto for analysis, and, if it is overproof cases will be taken at the police court

A GREAT VIOLINIST

A Few Stories That are Told of Jan Kubelik

Many amusing and interesting stories are told of Kubelik, the great violinist. Here are a few of them:

One of Kubelik's most treasured possessions was a violin made by Guarnerius, for which he paid £2,000. Some time ago young Franz von Vecsey, the prodigy, visited Kubelik, and was permitted to play upon the costly instrument. When the boy had finished, Kubelik deprived him of his breath by presenting him with the violin. Kubelik uses a "Strad," the gift of Mrs. Walter Palmer, and a Tourte bow which belonged to the famous violinist, Ernst, and was given to him by that artiste's widow.

At a very small London party a lady gave a start on opening her programme. "Oh, Kubelik," she exclaimed. "How delightful! I have heard so much of Kubelik. But what is it? Is it a new game? A kind of ping pong, I suppose?"

At a reception at the Waldorf Astoria, New York, Kubelik retired to a corner after playing, rather ill at ease and silent. A young girl, approaching him, said, "Pardon me, sir, but your handkerchief is hanging out of your pocket." "Thank you," said Kubelik —"thank you for this warning. You know the company better than I do!"

In the cause of charity, Kubelik is ever ready with his art. Once he was asked to play in a lunatic asylum because the resident medico thought, with Congreve, that music had charms to "soften rocks." The violinist mounted the improvised platform and played a lively Slav dance. The patients seated about the concert-room seemed deeply interested, and beat time with feet and heads. When Kubelik finished, a pretty young woman rose and beckoned to him. The musician imagined that she wanted an encore, and asked the doctor to inquire what she would like. Before the doctor could approach her she cried at the top of her voice: "Well, to think of the likes of me being here, while the likes of him should be at large in the world!" This was Kubelik's first and last experience of a lunatic asylum.

Kubelik's English has not always been so good as it is now; indeed, he speaks it brokenly still. When he was a guest of Canon Fleming at York, and was being shown round the Canon's house, he shook his luxuriant head of hair in front of the Canon's parrot. The bird naturally expressed considerable surprise. "Ha," exclaimed the violinist, "he tink I am an ourang-outang!"

The German Reichstag has passed the unearned increment tax, which, it is estimated, will add $5,000,000 to the revenue.

63 Years of Age—
Younger Than at 40

Mrs. J. W. McPeck, of Herbert, Sask., Can., is more than pleased with the results obtained from the use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which has been of great benefit to her family. She says in her letter: "I have been using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for the past ten years. It is the best health giver I ever used. I am now 63 years of age, but I am looking and feeling younger than at 40. My friends all say, 'How young you look!'

"It has also proved just the thing for my daughter, who lives in Ohio. She had such weak nerves and heart that the slightest move would startle her. Your wonderful remedy has practically overcome this, and has done her more good than all other treatments."

Mr. McPeck writes about his remarkable experience: "I am 67 years of age, and for a number of years I haven't been strong. I have a weak heart and for some time was almost helpless. Lately I have been using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and it has helped me wonderfully. I sincerely recommend Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey to every one."

The genuine is sold in SEALED BOTTLES ONLY by all grocers and liquor dealers, or direct $1.25 a large bottle. Look for the "Old Chemist" on the label and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. THE RED YEAR

A Story of the Indian Mutiny

—By—

LOUIS TRACY

Copyright by McLeod & Allen

That serious question must receive a strange answer. They were bivouacked on their parade-ground, doing nothing. The General in command of the station was a feeble old man, suffering from senile decay. His Brigadier, Archdale Wilson, issued orders that were foolish. He sent the Dragoons to guard the empty gaol! After a long delay in issuing ammunition to the Rifles, he marched them and the gunners to the deserted parade-ground of the native infantry. They found a few belated sowars of the 3rd Cavalry, who took refuge in a wood, and the artillery opened fire at the trees! News came that the rebels were plundering the British quarters, and the infantry went there in hot haste. And then they halted, though the mutineers were crying, "Quick, brother, quick! The white men are coming!" and the scared suggestion went round: "To Delhi! That is our only chance!"

The moon rose on a terrified mob trudging or riding the forty miles of road between Meerut and the Mogul capital. All night long they expected to hear the roar of the pursuing guns, to find the sabers of the Dragoons flashing over their heads. But they were quite safe. Archdale Wilson had ordered his men to bivouac, and they obeyed, though it is within the bounds of probability that had the rank and file known what the morrow's sun would reveal, there might have been another Mutiny in Meerut that night, a Mutiny of Revenge and Reprisal.

It was not that wise and courageous counsel was lacking. Captain Rosser offered to cut off the flight of the rebels to Delhi if one squadron of his dragoons and a few guns were given to him. Lieutenant Moller of the 11th Native Infantry, appealed to General Hewitt for permission to ride alone to Delhi, and warn the authorities there of the outbreak. Sanction was refused in both cases. The bivouac was evidently deemed a masterpiece of strategy.

That Moller would have saved Delhi cannot be doubted. Next day, finding that the wife of a brother officer had been killed, he sought and obtained evidence of the identity of the poor lady's murderer, traced the man, followed him, arrested him single-handed, and brought him before a drumhead court-martial, by whose orders he was hanged forthwith.

Craigie, Rosser, Moller, and a few other brave spirits showed what could have been done. But negligence and apathy were stronger that night than courage or self-reliance. For good or ill, the torrent of rebellion was suffered to break loose, and it soon engulfed a continent.

Malcolm failed to find Craigie, who had taken his troop in the direction of some heavy firing. Passing a bungalow that was blazing furiously, he saw in the compound the corpses of two women. A little farther on, he discovered the bodies of a man and four children in the centre of the road, and he recognized, in the man, a well-known Scotch trader whose shop was the largest and best in Meerut.

Then, for the first time, he understood what this appalling thing meant. He thought of Winifred, and his blood went cold. She and her uncle were alone in that remote house, far away on the Aligarh Road, and completely cut off from the comparative safe northerly side of the station.

Giving heed to nought save this new horror of his immagination, he wheeled Nejdi and rode at top speed towards Mr. Mayne's bungalow. As he neared it his worst fears were confirmed. One wing was on fire, but the flames had almost burnt themselves out. Charred beams and blackened walls showed stark and gaunt in the glow of a smouldering mass of wreckage. Twice he rode round the ruined house calling he knew not what in his agony, and looking with the eyes of one on the verge of lunacy for some dread token of the fate that had overtaken the inmates.

He came across several bodies. They were all natives. One of two were servants, he fancied, but the rest were marauders from the city. Calming himself, with the coolness of utter despair, he dismounted, and examined the slain. Their injuries had been inflicted with some sharp, heavy instrument. None of them bore gunshot wounds. That was strange. If there was a fight, and Mayne, perhaps even Winifred, had taken part in the defense, they must have used the sporting rifles in the house. And that suggested an examination of the dark interior. He dreaded the task, but it must not be shirked.

The porch was intact, and he hung Nejdi's bridle on the hook where he had placed it little more than an hour ago. The spacious drawing-room had been gutted. The doors (Indian bungalows have hardly any windows, each door being half glass) were open front and back. The room was empty, thank Heaven! He was about to enter and search the remaining apartments which had escaped the fire, when a curiously cracked voice hailed him from the foot of the garden.

"Hallt! Who go dare?" it cried, in the queer jargon of the native regiments.

Malcolm saw a man hurrying towards him. He recognized him as a pensioner named Syed Mir Khan, an Afghan. The old man a born fire-eater, insisted on speaking English to the sahib-log, unless, by rare chance, he encountered some person acquainted with Pushtu, his native language.

"I come quick, sahib," he shouted. "I know all things. I save sahib and miss-sahib. Yes, by dam, I slewed the cut-heads."

As he came nearer, he brandished a huge tulwar, and the split skulls and severed vertebrae of certain gentry lying in the garden became explicable. Delighted in having a sahib to listen, he went on:

The mob appearing, I attacked them with great ferocity—yes, like terrible lion, by George. My fighting was immense. I had my actions with the pigs."

At last he quieted down sufficiently to tell Malcolm what had happened. He, with others, thinking the miss-sahib had gone to church, was smoking the hookah of gossip in a neighboring compound. It was an instance of the amazing rapidity with which the rioters spread over the station that a number of them reached the Maynes' bungalow five minutes after the first alarm was given. It should be explained here that Mr. Mayne, being a Commissioner of Oudh, was only visiting Meerut in order to learn the details of a system of revenue collection which it was proposed to adopt on the sequestered estates of the Oudh taluqdars. He had rented one of the best houses in the place, the owner being in Simla, and Syed Mir Khan held a position akin to that of caretaker in a British household. The looters knew how valuable were the contents of such an important residence, and the earliest contingent thought they would have matters entirely their own way.

As soon as Malcolm left, however, Mr. Mayne loaded all his guns, while Winifred made more successful search for the servants. The Afghan was true to his salt, and their own retainers, who had come with them from Lucknow, remained steadfast at this crisis. Hence the mob received a warm reception, but the fighting had taken place outside the bungalow, the defenders lining a wall at the edge of the compound. Indeed, a score of bodies lying there had not been seen by Malcolm during his first frenzied examination of the house.

Then an official of the Salt Department, driving past with his wife and child, shouted to Mr. Mayne that he must not lose an instant if he would save his niece and himself.

"The sepoys have risen," was the horrifying message he brought. "They have surprised and killed all the white troops. They are sacking the whole station. You see the fires there? That is their work. This road is clear, but the Delhi road is blocked."

Some distant yelling caused the man to flog his horse into a fast trot again; and he and his weeping companions vanished into the gloom.

Mayne could not choose but believe. Indeed, many days elapsed before a large part of India would credit the fact that the British regiments in Meerut had not been massacred. A carriage and pair were harnessed. Several servants were mounted on all the available horses and ponies, and Mr. Mayne and Winifred had gone down the Grand Trunk Road towards Bulandshahr and Aligarh.

"Going half an hour," said Syed Mir Khan, volubly. "I stand fast, slaying budmashes. They make rush in thousands, and I retreat with great glory. Then they put blazes in bungalow."

Now, Malcolm also might have accepted the sensational story of the Salt Department Inspector, if, at that instant, the boom of a heavy gun had not come from the direction of the sepoy parade-ground. Another followed, and another, in the steady sequence of a trained battery. As he had just ridden from that very spot, which was then almost deserted, he was sure that the British troops had come from their cantonment. The discovery that Winifred was yet living, and in comparative safety, cleared his brain as though he had partaken of some magic elixir. He knew that Meerut itself was now the safest refuge within a hundred miles. Probably the bulk of the mutineers would strive to reach Delhi, and, of course, the dragoons and artillery would cut them off during the night. But he had seen many squads of rebels, mounted and on foot, hastening along the Grand Trunk Road, and it was no secret that detachments of the 9th Native Infantry at Bulandshahr and Aligarh were seething with Brahminical hatred of the abhorred cartridges.

Each second he became more convinced that Winifred and her uncle were being carried into a peril far greater than that which they had escaped. Decision and action were the same things where he was concerned. Bidding the Afghan endeavor to find Captain Craigie, who might be trusted to send a portion of his troop to scour the road for some miles, and assuring the man of a big reward for his services, Frank mounted and galloped south. He counted on overtaking the fugitives in an hour, and persuading them to return with him. He rode with drawn sword, lest he might be attacked on the way, but it was a remarkable tribute to Moller's wisdom in offering to ride to Delhi that no man molested him, and such sepoys as he passed skulked off into the fields where they saw the glint of his sabre annd recognized him as a British officer. They had no difficulty in that respect. A glorious full moon was flooding the peaceful plain with light. The trunks of the tall trees lining the road barred its white riband with black shadows, but Nejdi, good horse that he was, felt that this was no time for skittishness, and repressed the inclination to jump these impalpable obstacles.

HOPE OF WALES

Mr. Lloyd George on the Religious Activity of the Day

Lloyd George, in opening a bazaar in Wales, in which Mrs. Lloyd George is president, said of late he had had some experience of extracting money, and he hoped the promoters of that bazaar would not meet with his difficulties, and that their efforts would not arouse resentment, as he seemed to have done, among the customers at his little bazaar. (Laughter).

Within recent years, he said, he had motored more than ever through the sterile and wild parts of Wales, across great mountain moors, with hardly a habitation in sight, perhaps only a shepherd's cot, but he has never gone very far without seeing a little chapel somewhere or other in the wilderness. (Hear, hear.)

"I am also struck by the way Nonconformity is dealing with the rapid changes which are taking place, not so much in the character of the population as in its training and outlook. There are two conditions in the life of Wales which contain elements of peril to the spiritual life of any nation. One is the great access of material prosperity and the other is the enormous improvement in the educational outfit and facilities of the people. Both are full of peril to the spiritual life of the people unless they are properly dealt with, and unless measures are adapted of utilizing them.

"For all the education was very much like carrying a lamp in the darkness. It illumined all the immediate vicinity, enabling one to see everything that was near with greater clearness, but it was very apt to darken the vastness around. At the great centres of learning on the Continent students saw material things with greater clearness, and thus for a moment darkened or thickened the darkness of impenetrable mysteries around them. Nonconformity realized the perils. Its ministry had become a better trained and educated one, and one which was quite adequate to cope with the new generation which was springing up in Wales with an intellectual awakening which was on of the greatest features of its rational life at the present moment. These were things that filled the heart of anyone loving Wales with a great sense of hope and of confidence as to the future of the country." (Cheers.)

DESCRIBED HIS PARENT

A Twelve-Year-Old Boy's Essay on "My Father"

The twelve-year-old son of a well-known Liverpool doctor was asked the other day to write an essay on "My Father." This is what he produced, and the doctor himself confesses that the portrait is not a bad one:—

"My father is a very moody person. Sometimes when he comes home on Saturday he will give me sixpence, instead of three pence. When he is in a bad mood, I ask him for my threepence, and he says 'Humph,' and after a good deal of grumbling he gives it to me. The way to make him in a bad mood is to ask him the time when he is reading his paper. On Sunday morning he generally devollops; he is rather good at enlargements and has been working wildly at them. Whenever he drops a plate and smashes it, he is a little farther off Heaven and nearer to the other place—I do not think I need mention it. On Saturday he generally goes to a football match all by himself. At one time he took up German, but that has altogether died out. In the morning from about eight or nine he is very bobbish and sings and dances all over the place. His favorite song is 'The Songs of Araby.' Whether he sings all this because of the night before I do not know, but I do not think so. He is very fond of smoking, and once made himself ill . He likes playing the piano, but when you want him to play nothing will induce him, simply because he is not in a mood. Altogether he is not a bad sort."

A GREAT FIGHTER

An Incident in the Career of General Hills-Johnes

General Sir James Hills-Johnes had only been in the Bengal Artillery four years when he won the coveted V.C. in the Indian Mutiny, in 1857, at the age of twenty-four. He was in charge of a cavalry picket outside Delhi when a large body of Sowars suddenly dashed from the side. To save his guns, Lieutenant Hills actually charged the enemy alone, thinking that the diversion he would cause would give his gunners time to load. For the next few minutes he had a very lively time indeed, for he was plunged into a series of hand-to-hand fights such as we read of in stories of the old crusading days. Two men did the young officer put out of action one after the other, but no sooner was he rid of these opponents than he was charged by two more, and he and his horse were sent flying. However, he went on fighting till his sword was twisted out of his hand and then he fought with his fists, being eventually rescued from certain death by the late Sir Henry Tombs, who also gained his V.C. on that memorable day.

AFTER TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers relates his experience:
"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the NEW METHOD TREATMENT and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

COURTSHIP ON ISLE OF IVIZA

With regard to Iviza, the third in importance of the Balearic Isles which lie midway between Spain and Africa, its complete history has never been and never will be written, says Chambers Journal. From the fragmentary records existent one gathers that from earliest days occupation of the lovely and fertile island was hotly contested. Chaldeans, Egyptians Phoenicians, Romans, Greeks Vandals, Sarecens, and Moors fought for its possession. Since the Aragonese invasion of the thirteenth century Iviza has belonged to Spain.

They say there are ten men for every woman on Iviza and the aspect on the roads on a sunny April morning inclined us to believe the report, for from every direction came fine, strapping fellows moving in droves, in striking contrast to the expansive attire of the women, the men's dress appeared designed to accentuate their slimness.

The trousers of richly colored velvet or plush fitted closely to their limbs except at the ankles, where they spread widely, while their further adornments were gayly hued shirts or short, full blouse jackets and bright sashes. The popular large felt hats were lavishly adorned with gold cords and in addition to one necktie for use it was customary to add a second and a third for show.

Some of the women rode mules, sitting perched high on a pile of sheep skins, their multi-colored petticoats bellowing about their neat ankles; others were packed closely into open carts that had cushions placed low on either side of their sagging floor matting. With its flippant hues and staid cut the native dress was a bewildering combination of garishness and sobriety.

As the morning advanced a moving throng, resplendent in color crowded the market place. Girls temporarily free from their chaperons were parading in decorous rows, their hands holding pocket handkerchiefs, heavily edged with crochet lace, sedately crossed over their short but voluminous green silk aprons.

It was perhaps only to be expected that wherever we saw a bevy of girls a corresponding cluster of men would be at hand. Yet we rarely saw them address one another. The modern etiquette of a rustic courtship in Iviza is clearly defined. It is the maiden who makes the selection. The admirers of a marriageable girl wait for her outside the church door on Sunday and when she leaves mass the one who has the prior right claim presents himself and walks beside her for the first portion of the homeward journey. Then at a given point, or within a stated time limit he yields place to a second and the second to a third, until the number is exhausted.

If any suitor seeks to transgress the unwritten law pistols may flash and knives are apt to spring. In all other matters the people of Iviza are peaceable and on all paints moral and virtuous. It must be admitted that certain of the more frolicsome spirits keep up the csutom of saluting the maidens of their choice with a charge of rock salt aimed at the ankles and it is devoutly to be hoped that the unwieldly masses of petticoats serve at least one useful purpose by shielding the wearers from the saline missles of love's artillery.

The Homewood Sanitarium, Guelph recently damaged by fire, will be rebuilt at a cost of $420,000.

OPINIONS DIFFER ON RECIPROCITY PROPOSALS

Millers Angry—Fish Interests Pleased—Asbestos Not Affected—Confidence in Canada—Battles Against Alcohol—Sheldon Again

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

MONTREAL, Feb. 6.—The industrial and commercial world has had ample time to digest the reciprocity announcement, and it is much easier now to get a clear and concise view from those vitality interested in the way the affairs of the country are shaping, than it was directly after the proposed agreement had been made known. Much to the surprise of many, Montreal, the centre of manufacturing in the Dominion, is not as heavily hit as might have been expected.

The millers are angry, at least most of them are, and are preparing for battle. They declare that the proposed facilities for shipping Canadian wheat to American mills will have a detrimental effect on the milling industry which will result in substantial loss to the Dominion.

The fish trade is delighted with the prospect of the free handling of fish between this country and the United States, which it is declared, will be a boon to consumers and fishermen alike.

The asbestos interests, who were as apprehensive as anybody because Canada turns out over eighty per cent. of the asbestos of the world, are breathing sighs of relief. Mr. Thomas McDougall, pres. of the Amalgamated Asbestos Corporation says: "I do not find any ground for complaint. The United States has never, and never will be able to compete with us in abestos. Abestos is of more than usual interest these days owing to the announcement that Amalgamated Asbestos has partially reorganized and appointed Mr. J. D. Sharpe, late mine manager of the Pittsburg Coal Co. where he had charge of 32 mines in which over 7,500 men were employed, to the general managership of the corporation... Since the abestos merger was effected, it has been felt that the full saving in operating costs has not been attained, but plans are already under way whereby at least $40,000 a year in administration expenses alone will be saved.

Mr. George E. Drummond says that if the bounties on steel rods are withdrawn on account of reciprocity or on any other account, the results will be disastrous to the industry.

BATTLES AGAINST ALCOHOL.

Early this spring two campaigns are to be commenced. One is to be against "the worldliness of Montreal" and the other is to be against the liquor trade. The first will extend to the city only. The second will start in Montreal, then branch out to the provinces and eventually, cover the whole of Canada. In spite of an increased police force, in spite of a morality squad, in spite of the work of private individuals and societies, it is alleged that Montreal is becoming more immoral and less godly every day. The liquor crusade will be directed, by the officers of the Dominion Alliance who, despite many setbacks, have been successful in closing up some of the resorts in the city.

SHELDON AGAIN.

Sheldon is still a live issue. It will be remembered that Sheldon was the get-rich-quick gentleman who fleeced the public of a good round sum and then made his escape to parts unknown. Sir Lomer Gouin, speaking in the House at Quebec the other day, practically admitted that the authorities had been unable to locate him, and that although the detectives had been sleuthing him for weeks at the cost of some three thousand dollars, they had never brought in any results. A newspaper now makes the offer of a reward of a thousand dollars and all legitimate expenses to any newspaper reporter who will trace Sheldon and cause his capture for trial.

NEW CHIEF JUSTICE.

About the first of February, Sir Louis Jette Chief Justice of the Court of the King's Bench, will have completed thirty years of active public service. He is entitled to, and will, retire on full pension. The Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, has been mentioned for the position. So have several other leading Liberal lights. But it is understood that Sir Wilfrid will not go outside of the present judiciary for the appointment, and that Judge Lavergne, the oldest sitting member of Sir Louis's court, the father of the fiery Armand, the Nationalist leader will get the post.

CONFIDENCE IN CANADA.

The confidence of Europe in Canada's growth, her natural resources, her developments and her activities in many spheres, is becoming stronger every day, and it is likely that this spring the investors, and of foreign settlers to this country will surpass all records. Montreal capitalists are justly proud of this reputation, and are very anxious to have it kept absolutely spotless. To this end a group of well-known business men have put a plan into operation which, with the co-operation of the people, should prove of immense advantage to the country in continuing to obtain the capital required to finance, new industries and undertakings. Briefly it is to be a Statistical Bureau, operated by Corporation Agencies, Limited, whose duty it will be to collect accurate statistics concerning all financial institutions. In this way a man who has money to invest, but who does not personally have the knowledge necessary to discriminate, may get all the expert information he requires before parting with his money. It is a safety valve on promoters and will keep Canada's name clear.

SPIES AT QUEBEC.

Senator Landry's question in the Senate concerning American spies at Quebec during the Tercentenary has caused no end of talk, especially in military circles. It has also recalled the fact that Canada, with the exception of her Corps of Guides, has no secret service of any account. The Dominion Police, of course, in times of peace, do all the government sleuthing, but they are not numerically strong enough, have not the time and are not properly trained to obtain military intelligence. It is interesting to note that, in this respect, during the German war scare which became so acute in 1907-08, officers of the Corps of Guides received instructions from headquarter at Ottawa to keep their eyes open for Germans who might be nosing around trying to get information about the Dominion. As far as can be recalled only one man was under suspicion and he turned out to be an agent for a patent electric lamp.

RHEUMATISM

CURED BY BOOTH'S KIDNEY PILLS

T. E. Foster, of St. John st., Fredericton, N.B., says:—"I have found more actual relief from Booth's Kidney Pills than in all else I have ever tried for rheumatism. The pains in my limbs have lessened greatly and I am better and stronger than in years previous. My appetite has built up and I eat and sleep better than I have in over three years. My general health is greatly improved and I can credit this only to Booth's Kidney Pills.

Booth's Kidney Pills

This is the Booth Kidney Pill way. Foxglove.

The foxglove is a hardy perennial that has a medicinal reputation. Digitalis is one of the most valued remedies in heart troubles and is obtained from the plant to which the common name, foxglove, is given. In olden time it was esteemed as an application to ulcers, etc., and Italian peasants have a proverb, "Foxglove heals all sores." Flowers of the foxglove were repuled to be favorites with elves and fairies.

ONLY A PIN

A Glance at the Trade of Pin-Making —Complex Machinery Used

A very long bridge of years, indeed, spans the time since a lady's "pin money" was really used for the object its name suggests. And there is an equally wide difference between the pins used by "my lady" of those days and the almost invaluable little article we should find it so hard to do without to-day.

At one period in our history the importation of pins into this country was forbidden by law, although so august a personage as Queen Catherine received hers from France, where, at that time most of the pins were made. They were expensive articles, and "pin money" was a consideration, and one with which no lady of any pretentions to fashion could afford to dispense.

Another law with regard to pins was passed in 1543, and it enacted that the sale of pins should be prohibited unless "double-headed," or with "heads fast soldered to the shank." As, unless it be provided with a firm head, a pin is practically useless to us. This law will be read with considerable amusement by ladies of to-day.

When, in 1626, the pin-making trade was introduced into Great Britain by one Tilsby, the manufacture of the article was for some time confined to Stroud, but it quickly spread to London, Bristol, and Birmingham; and it is at the great metropolis of the Midlands that most of our pins come from nowadays, although some are still made in Warrington and Dublin.

Most complex is the machinery used now in pin-making. It is a wonderful thing where all the pins go to, and how scarce they are when they are wanted. And the wonder becomes all the greater when we remember that a large factory will turn out many millions of pins in a day and that there are many factories keeping up this output.

In older pattern machines there used to be eighteen processes, but these have superseded, and now the wonderful mechanisms not only make the pins complete, but stick them in the familiar pale blue papers that everyone knows so well.

Black pins and ladies' hairpins are given their hue by being placed in a revolving chamber, so that they are kept on the move all the while the enamelling process is going on. By this means the enamel settles quite evenly, and a smooth black lustre on the pins is the result.

"It's only a pin," is a remark sometimes heard. Yes, it's only a pin, but it represents, nevertheless, the outcome of one of the greatest triumphs man's inventive genius has ever won, and an article, humble though it be, that few would care to be without.

A DANGEROUS HANDFUL

Alligator Hunting Not a Suitable Occupation for Timid

That one-half of the world does not know how the other half lives is a good deal truer than some people imagine. There are dozens of strange ways of earning a living which those following the more common-place occupations never dream of. Among these surely alligator catching is one on the strangest.

The commercial value of these strange reptiles is, of course, their skins, and for this reason quite a small army of men hunt them regularly in the tropical regions among the rivers and swamps of the Nile and Ganges. They live to a great age—some are known to be 500 years old, and by the tremendous strength which they can exert when occasion calls for it, one would imagine that the older they live the stronger they grow.

Besides an unusual amount of pluck and resource in handling the alligator, one needs to have a keen eye and a sharp hand. For holding shut the jaws of an alligator one and a half times your own length is life with the joy left in; trying to hold those same jaws open is experience gained too late to be of use. And the alligator in its native land is not as it appears to be at the Zoo, a sleepy and slow-moving creature, but very quick and lively in all its movements.

NOT A HENRY VIII.

A Good Story in Which Bonar Law Figured

As his name indicates, Mr. Andrew Bonar Law, M.P., who has completed his fifty-second year, is a Scot. However, he can also claim to be a Canadian, for he first saw the light in the Dominion, his father being the Rev. James Law, M.A., of New Brunswick. Mr. Bonar Law first entered Parliament in 1900. At a demonstration in Glasgow he referred to Mr. Balfour's attitude on the fiscal question. He pointed out that "the English people love a compromise," and instanced the course taken by Henry VIII. at the time of the Reformation, whereupon the following question was handed up to be answered: "Is the candidate aware that Mr. Balfour is a bachelor, and that Henry VIII. was much the reverse?" "Yes," replied the candidate, "but possibly Mr. Balfour might not be a bachelor if he could be sure of getting rid of his wives as easily as Henry VIII."

HOW A LICK SAVED A LICKING

Daniel Webster was frequently punished when a boy for appearing at school with dirty hands. On one occasion it occurred to him as he was nearing the school that his hands were hardly likely to pass muster, and having no other means of cleaning them, proceeded to lick one of them as clean as he could. On reaching school he was interrogated as to the condition of his hands, both of which were carefully concealed behind him, whereupon he produced the cleaner of the two for the inspection of the master.

"Daniel," said the master sternly, "if you can find a dirtier hand than that in all the school, I'll let you off."

The answer was immediate.

"Here it is, sir," said Daniel, and with the exclamation he produced the dirtier hand from behind his back.

SCOTT'S EMULSION.

THE COST OF OCEAN TRAVEL

The officers of the big steamship lines belonging to the Atlantic Conference, against which the government is now proceeding under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, defend that pool on the ground that it has worked no actual hardship upon shippers and passengers. Its purpose, they say, is merely that of preventing useless, costly and demoralizing struggles for traffic. Ocean tariffs are now relatively lower, they argue, than ever before, and the service is infinitely better. The passenger who is whirled across the Atlantic in five days pays but little more for his transportation than the passenger of a generation ago, who was 10 or 12 days on the water and had to do without elevators, palm gardens, Hungarian orchestras, a daily newspaper and morning marconigrams from his wife.

There is a considerable soundness in this plea. At first glance, the present charges for first cabin accommodation seem to be excessive, but when the speed and comforts of the new ships are taken into account it becomes apparent that a definite value is received for every dollar demanded. It costs $125 at the moment to cross from New York to Fishguard on the Lusitania, or about $25 a day. That is a heavy board to pay, but let it be remembered that it is not all board. Between noon and noon the passenger is transported about 600 miles, which at 3 cents a mile, the usual cost of travelling by Pullman on land, works out to $18. This leaves $7 for the day's meals and the night's couch, which may not be cheap, but is certainly not extortionate, for the meals on the big ships are better than those to be had in the average first-class hotel, and the other comforts of the voyage are vastly greater than those of travelling by Pullman.

There are but two $125 ships in service to-day — the Lusitania and the Mauretania. The minimum first cabin rate of the star ships of the North German Lloyd is $2.50 less, and that of the big Hamburg-American, French and Dutch boats run from $105 to $112.50. The passenger who can afford to spend six or seven days on the ocean may cross in perfect comfort, in the first-cabin of a 15,000 ton ship, for about $90. If he had 10 or 12 days instead of six or seven he may make the crossing for $75, and if the second cabin contents him he may do so for $50. Thirty years ago, when the first cabin fare and accommodations were far less tempting than those of the second cabin to-day, the standard minimum rate was $102.50.

An English wit made an epigram to describe the climate of London: "In a fine day, looking up a chimney; in a foul day, looking down one."

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

CLARKE PICKS HOLES

Liberal Member Criticizes the Ontario Budget.

He Says the Sale of the Gillies' Limit Was an Error of Judgment and Favors a Tax on Automobiles—C. R. McKeown Has a Bill to Tax Church Property—Bill to Regulate Street Railways.

Toronto, Feb. 8.—Attracted by the announcement that S. Clarke, the redoubtable debater of West Northumberland, would resume the budget debate, with, it was expected, old-time humor, the galleries contained many listeners yesterday afternoon. Mr. Clarke, however, took the tone of a serious, financial critic of the Government.

It would be impossible, said the member for West Northumberland, for any member of the House to master the contents of the big book of public accounts covering over eight millions expenditures.

He noticed that whenever the name of the Minister of Mines was mentioned it seemed to act like electricity on Government members. (Ministerial applause.) He did not know the reason why; perhaps they did? (Renewed Ministerial applause.) But there was one little item, or rather, one big item about which he did not do his whole duty. That was in respect to the sale of the Gillies' limits. It was one of the greatest errors of judgment imaginable. The Department, after a few small pettifogging advertisements, sold the Gillies' limit to A. J. Young for $10,500, and the purchaser resold the limit in October of the same year to a firm of Montreal contractors for $330,000.

Mr. Ferguson—"What could you buy it for now?"

Mr. Clarke—"That has nothing to do with it."

Recurring to the financial statement, Mr. Clarke opined that a $3,400 balance was a very small margin on an expenditure of $9,000,000, and it must have required, as the Provincial Treasurer had said, some very careful bookkeeping.

Seven years ago the total expenditure did not exceed $5,000,000. He considered that $4,000,000 was a large increase for the last six years, especially as Col. Matheson had got up in the House six years ago and descried an expenditure of $5,000,000 at the end of ten and a half years of Liberal rule.

"The way he used to depict the Liberal extravagance," announced the talker, "I could almost see the price of coffins raising."

When Mr. Clarke suggested that the Government might get some added revenue by taxing the automobiles—not extremely, but tax them for running up and down the Ontario roads. People in the rural sections had no right to keep up the roads for the auto owners "to go and do as they pleased."

Then the $80,000 revenue from liquor licenses was touched up. If the Government had left the old act and the square equal vote alone, they wouldn't have an increased revenue without increasing the licenses.

J. W. Johnson, West Hastings, Conservative, said that the feeling of the public of Ontario towards the Government was one of satisfaction, confidence and gratitude.

The province was prospering as never before, and it was regretable that this condition was threatened by the reciprocity proposals, which also would tend to the disintegration of the Empire.

J. McEwing (West Wellington), in a speech which was not concluded when the House adjourned, declared that there would be a deficit of three and a half millions, and he contended that his predictions were realized in the present budget. It would so appear, too, but for a beautiful system of bookkeeping.

Mr. McEwing attributed to Hon. Senator George W. Hoss and Senator McMullen "the weakness of old age," because they had spoken against reciprocity.

C. R. McKeown (Dufferin) will shortly introduce a bill to abolish the exemption on land covered by and immediately surrounding church buildings.

Hon. J. S. Duff has been applied to by the Ontario Plowman's Association for a grant of $1,000.

Hon. J. S. Hendrie is expected to introduce a bill to control the powers of street railway companies with respect to the enforcement of the company's bylaws and the establishment of P.A.Y.E. systems.

Died From Exposure.

Bolton, Feb. 8.—Thomas McGuire of Bolton, a single man, 60 years of age, was found on the highway yesterday morning apparently frozen, by a farmer coming into town. Upon examination McGuire was found to be alive. A doctor was summoned, but he expired shortly afterwards without regaining consciousness. It appeared he had been walking home from Locktown, a place about ten miles from Bolton, where he had been acting as bailiff, and must have become exhausted with the snow and extreme cold.

Paid $25 For Hug and Kiss.

Brantford, Feb. 8.—For offering his company to a young lady while walking along Brant avenue Monday night, and finally hugging and kissing her against her wish, Orval Saunders, a local young man, was fined $25 or 60 days by Magistrate Howell at the Police Court yesterday. The magistrate held the performance to be no joke and set a high premium on indiscriminate kissing in Brantford. The fine was paid.

Death of F. J. Devlin.

Ottawa, Feb. 8.—Fred. J. Devlin, formerly of Montreal, and a brother of Hon. Charles R. Devlin, Quebec Minister of Mines, and E. B. Devlin, M.P., died Monday night at the home of his father at Aylmer, Que. He was in his 47th year, and death was due to paralysis.

DISCUSSION POSTPONED.

Debate on the Tariff Will Come Up To-morrow.

Ottawa, Feb. 8.—It was a disappointed crowd that filled the galleries of the House of Commons yesterday. Interest was keen on a promised debate on the reciprocity issue, but a pall seemed to fall on the chamber when Sir Wilfrid Laurier announced that, in accordance with the leader of the Opposition, the debate on the tariff proposal would go over until Thursday of this week.

The Opposition seem to be marking time. There is some rumor that an amendment will be moved to the resolution already introduced by Mr. Fielding. Again, it is suggested that the hand of the Opposition will be withheld until the bill is brought before the House. In the interval Mr. Pugsley had a long session at the estimates of his Department.

Hon. Mr. Graham corrected the figures given on Monday as to the cost of the eastern division of the National Transcontinental Railway up to the end of December, 1910. The cost was $93,920,956.

When the vote of $35,000 for repairs, etc., to Rideau Hall was under consideration, Dr. Reid (Grenville) asked if there was any truth in the report that the Government had decided to erect a new residence for the Governor-General.

Mr. Pugsley replied that Rideau Hall was not creditable to this great country. Improvements involving $300,000 had been proposed, but he personally thought it would be better to sell the residence, the value of which was $700,000, and erect a new Government House on some commanding site in the City of Ottawa, which would be a credit to the country.

The steamship Alliance, at sea, reported by wireless yesterday afternoon that she had sighted the British bark Caithness-shire ashore on a reef in the West Indies. The U. S. Birmingham was taking off the crew.

Warrents have been issued for the arrest of two men and a woman, voters at Bothwell, Ont., in connection with the recent local option campaign. Perjury is charged in connection with oaths as to property qualifications.

Another raid by the police in connection with the Houndsditch burglary occurred early yesterday morning in the East End of London, and at one time it seemed likely to develop into a repetition of the Sydney street siege. They arrested a man and woman.

Died Taking a Drink.

Hamilton, Feb. 8.—Having in his pocket a loving message from his wife in England and a letter printed in childish characters by one of his children, saying how glad she was her daddy had not drank anything this year and hoping he would never drink again, Edward Thomas went from the postoffice in Dundas to the Osborne Hotel bar and began drinking yesterday afternoon.

As he raised a glass to his lips, he fell backwards. George Richardson, with whom he boarded, and another friend helped him home, but when they reached his place, they found that they were carrying a corpse.

Wreck at Gorham, N.H.

Gorham, N.H., Feb. 8.—To the thick snow yesterday was due a wreck in the Gorham yards of the Grand Trunk Railway. While a locomotive snowplow and van were engaged in clearing the sidings, a freight train, bound from Portland to Montreal, came along and crashed into the van. The van and plow were broken up, fire from the Portland engine completing their destruction. Roadmaster J. W. Shilling, who was in the van, had his skull fractured and hip broken. He died an hour later. The freight train did not leave the rails. The accident was caused by thick snow and smoke which obscured the signals.

The effect of the bill, if passed, will be to strike at racing in seven states where it is now allowed—Montana, Maryland, Florida, Nevada, Oklahoma, Virginia, and Kentucky.

PROPOSES COMMISSION

Sir Richard Cartwright Introduces Terminal Elevator Bill.

Proposed Legislation Provides For the Appointment of a Commission of Three Men With the Same Power Over Grain Transportation and Inspection as Railway Board Has Over Its Field of Work.

Ottawa, Feb. 8.—Sir Richard Cartwright, in the Senate yesterday, introduced the bill in respect to terminal elevators and the inspection of grain in general, which is based upon an agreement arrived at between the executives of the Western Farmers' Associations and the Government. The chief provision of the bill is one for the appointment of an independent commission of three, a chairman and two associate commissioners, who will have the same extensive jurisdiction over the transportation inspection and storage of grain that the Railway Board has over the railways of the country. The measure is a bulky affair, as it includes all the provisions of the Manitoba Act, and the Inspection Act, which it is proposed to continue in force. It was given a first reading.

In the course of his explanation, Sir Richard Cartwright said that the grain commission would have power to investigate and control all questions relating to the transportation, inspection and storage of grain, and will have authority to weigh and examine grain whenever they desire to do so. They will also have power to declare which are terminal elevators, and, in fact, may so designate any elevator. With the assent of the Government, and an appropriation being made for the purpose by Parliament, the commissioners will have authority to acquire by lease, purchase or expropriation, any elevator, or they may construct new elevators. They are given authority to engage experts and the necessary staff, and are directed by the bill to create inspection divisions as they see fit. The board is given authority to make rules and regulations respecting grain without the counsel of the Government being required.

The commissioners will hold office for ten years, and will be required to live at Port Arthur or Fort William.

Drastic penalties are provided for offences against the act, such as mixing grain in terminal elevators, the minimum penalty in such cases being a fine of $5,000. When corporations are found guilty their officers are made subject to penalties. Elevators where offences are committed are liable to have their licenses revoked for a year, in addition to their penalties.

Amendment to Address.

London, Feb. 8.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In the Commons notice was given last night of the official Opposition amendment to the address on the fiscal question, which Austin Chamberlain moves to-day in the following terms: "This House expresses regret at the persistent refusal of His Majesty's Government to modify the fiscal system of this country, imperilling the advantages at present derived by British commerce from the preference granted by the dominions overseas, has deferred commercial union of the Empire and deprived the country of the most effective method of inducing foreign countries to grant fair terms to British manufacturers." The debate has been arranged to extend over two nights and a division will be taken on Thursday.

Did Not Talk Reciprocity.

Ottawa, Feb. 8.—Contrary to expectations, the Canadian Lumbermen's Association did not take any action with regard to reciprocity at their annual meeting, held here yesterday afternoon. The lumbermen will ask the Board of Railway Commissioners to revise their order relating to export and freight rates on lumber.

Reports of the various officers showed that the session has had a good year. It now has 81 members, divided among the provinces as follows: Ontario 47, Quebec 17, British Columbia 15, Manitoba 1, and Saskatchewan 1.

The retiring officers and board of directors were all re-elected the officers for the ensuing year.

Senator Brings Libel Suit.

Montreal, Feb. 8.—Hon. Senator R. Dandurand, through his lawyers, Beique and Beique, has entered a suit of $10,000 against La Publicite, publishers of Le Devoir, and Mr. Tancrede Marcil, one of the editors of Le Devoir. The suit is for damages resulting from an article which appeared in Le Devoir of Monday under the heading of "Defendez-Vous," and signed by Mr. Tancrede Marcil. The article insinuates that Mr. Dandurand had misappropriated goods belonging to the Government of Canada.

Flee In Scant Attire.

New York, Feb. 8.—Six hundred men, women and children, living in the Williamburg district of Brooklyn, fled from their homes in scant attire yesterday during a fire in the six-storey tenement at 104 Hopkins street. Louis Rapport and his wife, who were asleep on the first floor, narrowly escaped being burned to death.

Scattered Coals on Fire.

Kingston, Feb. 8.—While Edward Draper and family of Point road, Pittsburg Township, were away, some one entered and stole a number of tools. Before departing they scattered live coals from the coal stove over the floor. Had not the family returned in time their home would have been destroyed.

Only the Premiers.

London, Feb. 8.—The Canadian Associated Press has high authority for stating that the only persons in the Dominion who will receive official invitations to the coronation will be the Premier of the Dominion and the Premiers of the several provinces.

SAY IT IS UNFAIR.

Exporters

U. S. Pulp Interests Are Opposed to Clauses In Draft.

Washington, Feb. 8.—As a result of the growing belief that the paper and woodpulp provisions of the new Canadian reciprocity agreement will operate one-sidedly to the benefit of the Dominion without a corresponding benefit to the U. S., an important change is likely to be made by Congress in the measure before it is ratified.

Paper manufacturers and other who have studied the agreement closely, believe that the language of the arrangement is so drawn that the United States may be compelled to admit paper free, before Canada complies with her part of the agreement. The situation has been presented to the way and means committee of the House in such a strong light that many members of that committee are satisfied the agreement between the two countries on the paper and pulp is open to a construction which will be distinctly to the disadvantage of United States manufacturers.

Secretary Knox sent a letter to the committee yesterday stating that the commissioners who framed the reciprocal agreement had arrived at only a tentative agreement upon the paper schedule. It can be changed, he said, without defeating the rest of the treaty, and its adjustment can be left to future negotiations or future action of Congress. The ways and means committee also procured yesterday a draft of the measure introduced in the Canadian Parliament to put the agreement in force in the Dominion. This shows that Canada had taken the stand that American paper and pulp shall not be admitted free into that country until all provinces have removed the restrictions against the exportation of the pulp logs.

The trouble arises over the distinction in Canada between "crown lands" and "private lands," and the rulings that the Treasury Department at Washington has made on this subject. Where Canadian provinces restrict the exportation of pulp logs, it is from "crown lands." The provinces have no power to restrict the exportation of logs cut from private lands.

Effect on Immigration.

Ottawa, Feb. 8.—W. J. White, chief Canadian immigration agent to the United States, says that the reciprocal trade agreement with the United States will result in a large increase in the American immigration into the Canadian west. At the beginning of the year it was estimated that during the immigration season 130,000 settlers would cross the international boundary line into Canada. Mr. White thinks that the estimate can now safely be increased to 150,000.

Decies-Gould Wedding.

New York, Feb. 8.—The old story of American wealth and foreign title meeting at the altar was re-staged yesterday in the marriage of Miss Vivien Gould, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Jay Gould, and Lord Decies of England. In St. Bartholomew's Church, before an audience that represented American and English aristocracy, this eighteen-year-old girl and her fiance of 44 years were wedded yesterday afternoon.

As is usually the case in international alliances of such prominence, yesterday's wedding again demonstrated the morbid curiosity of the public, and thousands of persons crowded about old St. Bartholomew's to get a glimpse of the bride and the notables in attendance. The services of several hundred policemen were required to keep the streets clear for the endless string of automobiles that deposited their richly-gowned and faultlessly groomed guests at the church doors. Similar scenes were enacted at the Gould home, 867 Fifth avenue, where a reception was held immediately following the ceremony. Owing to threats by cranks the police guards were doubled.

Provinces May Appeal.

Toronto, Feb. 8.—Hon. J. J. Foy received word yesterday that the Privy Council had granted the provinces leave to appeal in the litigation respecting the rights of provinces to grant charters to companies to operate outside of their own boundaries.

The Dominion Government had made a reference of the issue to the Supreme Court, but the Premier declined to have that body adjudicate upon the case, and asked to be heard by the judicial committee of the Privy Council. The application of the provinces having been granted, the case will likely be argued in London next June.

The revenue of Ontario will be affected to the extent of $300,000 a year by the final decision.

Imposing Lincoln Memorial.

Washington, Feb. 8.—The House enacted into law yesterday the Senate bill providing for a commission to secure plans and designs for a suitable monument or memorial to Abraham Lincoln in this city. It is estimated that this memorial will cost in the neighborhood of $2,000,000, and be the most imposing of all the monuments in Washington, save only the towering shaft erected in memory of Washington.

Suing Dun's Bulletin.

Kingston, Feb. 8.—Action for libel for $50,000 has been entered by Walter Telfer, proprietor of the British American Hotel, against R. G. Dun & Co., Toronto, publishers of Dun's Bulletin. The alleged libel was for publication of a report that his hotel had been placed in the hands of a receiver.

Fire at North Bay.

North Bay, Feb. 8.—The new block of J. E. Farrell was damaged by fire originating in oakum stored in the basement, used as a plumbing shop. The damage amounted to $1,000 on the building and $1,000 on stock, covered by insurance.

Another Banker Guilty.

New York, Feb. 7.—Wm. R. Montgomery, former president of the Hamilton Bank of New York, a State institution, was found guilty late yesterday of feloniously converting to his own use $4,400 of the bank's funds.

LONG SAULT DEFEATED

Proposal to Erect Dam Thrown Out of U. S. Congress.

Representative Young Introduces a Measure Said to Be Backed by the "Aluminum Trust," But It Is Voted Down—Clifford Sifton and Andrew Broder Express Their Pleasure—Still Need For Vigilance.

Washington, Feb. 8.—The House yesterday defeated the bill introduced by Representative Young of Michigan, giving the Long Sault Development Co. the right to erect dams in the St. Lawrence River near the Long Sault, Barnhart and Sheek Islands, so as to utilize the water power of that stream.

It was asserted in debate that the so-called "aluminum trust" was back of the bill, and proposed to make an investment of $40,000,000. The State of New York has granted a charter to the company, and waterfront rights. The only interest of the United States, it was declared, was to preserve navigation.

The opponents of the bill urged that the rights granted by the United States should be limited to 50 years. Amendments being out of order, they voted down the measure in its entirety.

Still Need For Vigilance.

Toronto, Feb. 8.—When told that the Long Sault power bill had been defeated in Congress, Hon. Clifford Sifton, who is chairman of the conservation committee, said:

"I am much gratified that Congress have taken this action, and I have no doubt that it was due to a desire to avoid any reasonable cause of offence to Canada. I have been in telegraphic communication with the Ottawa Government to-day regarding this bill, and I have no doubt that the decision is due to representation made by the Government to Washington as a result of agitation carried on here.

"That is, that local agitation has caused the Government to take action by advising its representatives in Washington to advise the throwing out of the bill.

"The company still retains its powers for New York State, and it is quite as necessary to be vigilant and on the defensive to prevent any further legislative powers being granted by the New York State Legislature; as the State Legislature approved of this very bill whoch the Congress have turned down."

A Fine Thing For Canada.

Ottawa, Feb. 8.—Andrew Broder of Dundas, one of the chief opponents of the proposal to dam the St. Lawrence River at the Long Sault, said last night that the defeat of the bill was "a fine thing for Canada."

"It meant," he said, "if it had gone through, the loss of the St. Lawrence as a navigable waterway. This would have been a serious blow to the Dominion. These schemers were the same who tried last year to get the Canadian Parliament to give them power to dam the St. Lawrence and were defeated."

The Power Was Off.

Hamilton, Feb. 8.—A fire broke out in the power-house of the Dominion Power and Transmission Co.—the Cataract Co.—at Decew Falls yesterday morning, and for several hours the plant of every factory in this district was at a standstill.

The power came on again about 10 a.m., but as the manufacturers thought it would not be available until noon at least, they had sent home their hands for the day. The street cars were stalled around the system and at intervals all morning, while the suburban traffic was tied up for hours, and badly congested.

The advocates of the Hydro-Electric are using the breakdown of the Cataract power this morning as a forcible argument of having an alternative system in the city.

Paid $200 For Neglect.

Hugh O'Heir, manager of Dewey & O'Heir, ice company, who, at the enquiry into the deaths of Frederick and Albert Smith, the two young men drowned, in Dewey & O'Heir's ice field, assumed responsibility for the protection for skaters, was fined $200.

His worship declared that the guard—and he did not consider tree-guards — should be of sufficient strength to prevent a skater breaking through and drowning.

Sylvia Pankhurst Arrives.

Ottawa, Feb. 8.—Sylvia Pankhurst, member of the noted English family of militant suffragettes, arrived in Ottawa from New York yesterday afternoon, after being snowbound for several hours south of the city on the Ottawa and New York Railway. Miss Pankhurst delivered an address in behalf of the equal suffrage cause here last night. She was welcomed by a deputation of the Ottawa Equal Suffrage Association, and in an interview expressed the conviction that her cause would triumph in England within a very few years.

All the work connected with the function of vision is done in the base of the brain. We do not see in the eye. It is simply a mechanical instrument similar to a photographic camera for focusing the rays of light on its posterior part, the retina. From here these delicate impressions are conveyed over nerve fibres to the gray matter cells lying in the outer part of the posterior portion of the brain. It is in the back of the brain that vision takes place, that the photograph is printed. This is the largest center in the entire nervous system. To this we must also add the centers that govern the movements and adjustment of the eye for far and near vision. The center that governs the focusing of the eye lies in the third ventricle; the cells governing the converging of the eyes

LUMBERMEN'S EXCITING STRUGGLE WITH A BEAR

Old Bruin Gave Shanty Crew a Warm Tussle—Was Sleeping Under Roots When Tree Was Felled and Mauled a Couple of Men Before he Was Despatched

OTTAWA, Feb. 6.—"If you have any bears to kill, send word to J. J. MacRae's men, and they will go to Ottawa at once."

So read the concluding sentence of the tale of a desperate fight with a monster bruin, sent down by Mr. Thomas Ferry, of J. J. MacRae's lumber camp at Chapeau, Pontiac County, to The Citizen.

According to the writer Mr. MacRae has a shanty crew of about 35 lumbermen at Chapeau, and recently two of them Isaac Lanthier and his chum, C. Holden, were engaged in cutting down a tree. During the operation they heard a continued groaning, but were unable to ascertain its cause. The tree being felled, they decided to call the "boss" and have him investigate. He, in turn, summoned his trusty dog which soon located the groans or sounds at the root of the tree, and began to scatter the snow left and right. When the dog had cleared away the snow, Mr. MacRae stooped down to se what kind of an animal was rested up so cosily for the winter, when suddenly out jumped a huge bear, which struck out and caught him a glancing blow with its paw on the side of the face. The claw struck the "boss" over the eye, almost causing him the loss of his sight. Shouting for help, the loggers soon came to his assistance, and with the help of the dog, which worried the bruin, the men were able to beat the animal off. Isaac Lanthier struck at the bear with an axe, but slipped on the ice when in the act, the bear seizing him in its grip and severely mauling him, partly tearing his clothes off, and lacerating him down the left side. Holden, the chum of the injured man, then stepped up and gave the bear a slashing blow over the end of its snout with his axe. It then turned on him, but the dog came to their assistance and kept the animal worried so that its attention was drawn from the men. At last Lanthier recovered sufficiently to come to the help of his chum, and hitting the bear on the back of its head with his axe killed it.

After the brute was skined a bullet was found in its hip, probably resulting from an old wound. Mr. MacRae gave the men $15 for the hide, which he converted into a sleigh robe.

JOE SWING WON A $1,000 STAKE

Eddie Herrington of Picton Uncovered a Good One in the 2.30 Pace at Ottawa

Ottawa, Feb. 7.—The features of Monday's card at the Central Canada ice races were the 2.13 trot and the 2.25 pace, stakes of $1,000 each. There were eight starters and the big end of the 2.13 purese eventually went to Joe Swing, the Three Rivers stallion owned by Ernest Houde, after a five heat race.

Game Maid, a Buffalo mare, took the first of the 2.35 pace stake, $1000 but lost the second and third to Earl a chestnut gelding, by Sidney Pointer owned by E. M. Herrington, of Picton. The race will be finished to-day

Ritchie, owned by Bedford Bros. of Chatham, carried off the 2.23 trot and pace in straights, and the classified race for the Silver Foam purse brought over from Saturday, finally went to Rex, owned to R. W. Stewart of Ottawa. Thirteen heats in all were decided.

The weather was bitterly cold and the attendance small. At times the mercury fell as low as 20 below zero Several of the drivers had their faces frozen. The track was fast however and the races exceptionally good.

OTTAWA, Feb. 7.—Another great program was offered at the Central Canada ice races this afternoon. Th e2.35 pace carried over from Monday, in which Earl had two heats and Game Maid one, finally went to the former, who is the property of E. M. Herrington, Picton, Ont. The fourth heat proved a surprise when Lou Jean won by a nose from Earl and Game Maid, but in the fifth Earl came back and won by a very narrow margin.

The 2.18 stake of $1,000 was captured by Furioso, owned by Jim Powell of Orillia, who started under protest. Furioso raced unsuccessfully at Belleville, but won at Ottawa in straight heats. Best time 2.20

The Port Hope Guide of Feb. 7th says:—The first train on the C. N. R line arrived at the station yesterday morning, but owing to the very inclement weather there were not many present to witness it. The corner of Hope and Ontario streets is a very busy centre, and the residents feel quite proud of the new railroad.

The rails have been laid as far west as the station and east to Canton The bridge at Gage's Creek is completed and a temporary track laid there, so that the steel for the Port Hope viaduct can be brought in.

The woman who neglects her health is neglecting the very foundation of all good fortune. For without health love loses its lustre and gold is but dross.

Womanly health when lost or impaired may generally be regained by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This Prescription has, for over 40 years, been curing delicate, weak, pain-wracked women, by the hundreds of thousands and this too in the privacy of their homes without their having to submit to indelicate questionings and offensively repugnant examinations.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. All correspondence held as sacredly confidential. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

PASTOR RUSSELL REFUTES CHARGE

World-Burning no Part of His Message for 1915, Nor for Any Other Date—Reversely He Proclaims "Good Tidings of Great Joy Which Shall Be Unto All People--Jewish Interest Centres in 1915—Israel's Re Nationalization Presages the World

Mr. Editor :—I crave a few inches of your space in correction of a news item widely circulated from Washington, D. C., stating that a street Evangelists charges me with "exciting the people" by preaching "that Christ will come in A. D. 1915, and accomplish the destruction of the world."

This "Street Preacher" got himself mixed up with my theology. It is true that he sent me a kind invitation to share twenty minutes of my time in explaining to the audience how he misunderstood my presentations before he heard them. It is true that he has requested a public debate with me at the next Baptist Convention in June or at the Christian Endeavor Convention in July. But I did not believe that the gentleman was authorized to speak for either of the conventions; consequently I gave him no heed. As I was announcing the closing hymn the gentleman attempted an interruption.

But it appears that after my meeting was dismissed, the interrupter who calls himself an evangelist, undertook to explain to a bevy of reporters Pastor Russell's "errors." He declared that all over the country I was preaching the second coming of Christ in A. D. 1915 and scaring people as Wm. Miller did years ago. I do not blame the reporters, for how could they know how foolishly the man was talking ?

I wish to deny as positively as language will permit, that I said a single thing concerning the year 1915 last Sunday. Nor have I ever preached such things; nor do I believe them now. So far from teaching that Christ will come and the world be burned up in 1915, as Wm. Miller taught of an earlier date, my teaching is that the world will never be burned up, but, as the Bible declares "The earth abideth forever."—Eccles 1:4.

If "Evangelist" represents an Protestant or Catholic bodies, as he intimates, his creed surely recites the burning up of the world at the Second Advent of Christ. Many ministers in all denominations each that Christ may come at any moment, and that the moment of his coming will be the end of the world ! A few saintly ones, they say, will be saved; but all the remainder will be overwhelmed by fire that will fall upon them from Heaven. It is one of their stock arguments intended to excite the people. I wonder if "Evangelist" has not so preached ?

It is because my interpretations of the scriptures on this particular point are so very different that many Christian people are being awakened to a fresh study of the Bible. I am in communication with Bible classes all over the world. Many persons are being reclaimed from infidelity by the Message which has nothing of excitement in it, but which shows the Bible in its true light, as the most common sense book in the world.

No Jewish State Before 1915.

What I have said respecting the year 1915 is that, in my opinion, there ends the treading down of the Jews by the Gentiles—a period of 2520 years from the time the crown was taken from Judah's last king of the house of David—Zedekiah, B. C. 606. Israel's restoration to Palestine as a nation will, Biblically, mark the beginning of the Messianic reign of righteousness, which will last a thousand years.—Luke 21:24.

Mr. Editor, "Evangelist" either intentionally or unintentionally thoroughly misrepresented my views. I teach from the Scriptures that Messiah, as the King of Glory, is not a man, and will not be visible to men—that his empire will be spiritual, not powerful.

Those Scriptures which alarm "Evangelist" and others, as representing the burning up of the world I understand to refer to a great time of trouble with which this Age will terminate and the New Era be inaugurated. Those who read my sermons and books could not be deceived by "Evangelist." Yet thousands of others might have been. So I thank you for this opportunity for explanation.

Respectfully,
C. T. RUSSELL.

Calls It a Lie.

Winnipeg, Feb. 8.—Officials of the Manitoba Grain Growers' Association vigorously deny and resent the charges contained in the address of Hon. Price Ellison at Victoria on Monday. They say the statement regarding an alleged bribe by J. J. Hill is a lie, base and ridiculous. "When a Minister of the crown," they say, "stoops to make such improbable statements, the situation becomes alarming."

Hitch In Armistice.

Washington, Feb. 8.—A deadlock in the proposed armistice in Honduras is threatened. The Government authorities contend that the status quo in the situation should be maintained, pending the establishment of an armistice, while Gen. Bonilla desires to occupy Puerto Cortez as a condition to accepting the armistice.

The Children's Hair

A Little Extra Care Now May Save After Years of Regret

Children play so hard that the head perspires and the hair has a tendency to mat and get sticky on the scalp. Soap and water doesn't seem to remove it, but the hair must breathe to be healthy. Just try Nyal's Hirsutone. Rub it into the roots of the hair with the balls of the fingers. The children like it and will ask you to use it. Hirsutone loosens up the accumulated dust and perspiration and the hair and scalp can then be easily and thoroughly cleaned. After it is dried give another application of Hirsutone. After you have used it for a while you will admit it is the best you have ever used. Your Nyal Drug Store will cheerfully guarantee Hirsutone to do all that is claimed for it.

30 Years of Success

J. S. McKeown Offers a Remedy for Catarrh. The Medicine Costs Nothing if it Fails.

When a medicine effects a successful treatment in a very large majority of cases, and when we offer that medicine on our own personal guarantee that it will cost the user nothing if it does not completely relieve catarrh, it is only reasonable that people should believe us, or at least put our claim to a practest when we take all the risk. These are facts which we want the people to substantiate. We want them to try Rexall Mucu-Tone, a medicine prepared from a prescription of a physician with whom catarrh was a specialty, and who has a record of thirty years of enviable success to his record.

We receive more good reports about Rexall Mucu-Tone than we do of all other catarrh remedies sold in our store, and if more people only knew what a thoroughly dependable remedy Rexall Mucu-Tone is, it would be the only catarrh remedy we would have any demand for.

Rexall Mucu-Tone is quickly absorbed and by its therapeutic effect tends to disinfect and cleanse the entire mucous membranous tract, to destroy and remove the parasites which injure the membranous tissues, to soothe the irritation and heal the soreness, stop the mucous discharge, build up strong, healthy tissue and relieve the blood and system of disease stimulating the mucocells, aiding digestion and improving nutrition until the whole body vibrates with healthy activity. In a comparatively short time it brings about a noticeable gain in weight, strength, good color and feeling of buoyancy.

We urge you to try Rexall Mucu-Tone, beginning a treatment to-day. At any time you are not satisfied, simply come and tell us, and we will quickly return your money without question or quibble. We have Rexall Mucu-Tone in two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Belleville only at our store—The Rexall Store; J. S. McKeown's.

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Lower—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—Democratic caucus approval of reciprocity was a reason, according to some, why all grain and provisions fell off in price here to-day. There was an unusually large trade in wheat, but the market was weak almost from start to finish. Closing figures showed a net loss of ⅜c to 1⅛c to 1¼c. Corn and oats both finished ½c to ⅜c under last night, with provisions down 7½c to 10c to 25c.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 7.—The market opened with an undertone of steadiness with March unchanged and May ⅛c lower. This decline was attributed to the lower American cables. Foreign crop conditions are generally favorable.

PLAGUE IS IN PEKIN

Several Cases Discovered Among Soldiers at Barracks in the Outer City

(Intelligencer Special.)

PEKIN, Feb. 9.— Several cases of Bubonic plague have been discovered among two thousand soldiers in the barracks of the outer city.

FIGHTING NEAR JUAREZ

(Intelligencer Special.)

ELPASO, Feb. 9.—Heavy firing was heard south of Juarez this morning and a battle is reported to be in progress between the Federal troops and the insurgents advancing against the city.

A NARROW ESCAPE

(Intelligencer Special.)

PARIS, Ont., Feb. 9.—A disastrous wreck was narrowly averted yesterday at Clarkson's near Oakville, when a light engine which was about to be hooked onto a westbound Grand Trunk passenger train, came within a foot of being struck by the C. P. R flyer. Members of the Railway Commission on the standing Grand Trunk passenger train saw the close shave and will investigate.

EXTERMINATION OF THE RATS

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The Lord Mayor presided over a large and influential meeting called to discuss the extermination of rats in this country. There was perfect unanimity that it was one of the pressing necessities that rats should be exterminated if possible, but the methods were acknowledged to be difficult and costly.

Sir James Crichton Browne said that the rat was a wholesale depredator, and levied its heaviest toll on the agriculturists. Experiments had shown that each rat consumed grain or did other damage to the extent of a farthing a day. If there was one rat to every acre in England, the agricultural loss due to rats was $75,000,600 a year. If the rat were exterminated England might reduce the importation of grain to the value of some millions yearly.

Great pressure will be brought to bear on the government to induce the appointment of a royal commission to deal with the subject.

POPE AND KAISER

His Holiness Will Not Meet Emperor If He Visits King Of Italy

ROME, Feb. 7.—The announcement that the German Emperor will visit Rome as the guest of the Quirinal next March on the ocasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the proclamation of Rome as the capital of United Italy has caused the report that other heads of States may come also during the celebration. Those mentioned more particularly are President Fallieres of France, and King Haakon of Norway.

King Peter of Servia will arrive here February 15, and it is thought not impossible that King George may visit Rome after the Coronation.

An unofficial statement from Berlin that the Kaiser would visit the Pope in March while on his way to Sicily and Corfu cannot be confirmed here. Officials at the Vatican say the Kaiser knows that his proposed visit to King Victor Emmanuel in Rome during the celebrations of Italian unity will be considered an insult to the Pope, and will lead to a complete diplomatic rupture with the Vatican. If his Majesty is determined to visit King Victor during the celebrations the Pope will not receive him now.

STANDING OF CONTESTANTS AGAIN UNDERGOES SHAKE-UP

Numerous Increases are Being Made All Along the Line—The Contest Manager is Still Receiving Names of New Candidates—District 2 is Now on the Move in the Vote Column

News of the contest is coming in thick and fast from every section of Belleville and all over the country. Never before has any newspaper in this vicinity offered such magnificent prizes in a subscription getting campaign. The young ladies are finding how easy it is to get subscribers for The Intelligencer. One of the most popular girls in the contest, in conversation with the contest manager, when asked how she kept so well up to the top, smiled and remarked: "Oh, it is so easy for me; in fact, everyone I have approached responded cheerfully." While the rivalry between the contest girls is sharp and spirited, it is of the most friendly nature—and has been from the very start. The Intelligencer contest girls are girls of spirit and pride, and they all wish to win, but if they can't win they wish to make a handsome showing—and they all will. The girls ought to get in the printed list and make a good showing there. We doubt if any better work has ever been done by contest girls than has been done in this contest in the short time it has been running, and wideawake girls have never had better inducements than The Intelligencer has provided for them. All of these young ladies have been given the materials furnished by the contest department to facilitate the getting of votes, and most of them have gone to work with a vim that promises to give them very quickly a respectable position in the ranks of the contestants. Considerable skill is shown by some of the young ladies in planning their forces, and were The Intelligencer permitted to tell some of the plans the fair contestants have "up their sleeves," some of our readers would be astonished at the wisdom and sagacity shown. The contest department will have some important announcements to make soon and all contestants should keep their eye on the daily report. Keep posted. Watch the standing of the candidates.

HOW BALLOTS ARE SECURED.

In all cases where vote certificates are issued, subscriptions must be paid in advance. The full amount of money must be sent direct by mail, paid to the contestant, or brought to this office.

BATTLE IN PROGRESS

But Horse Racing Continues at Juarez Despite the Fighting

EL PASO, Tex., Feb. 7.—The attack on Juarez has commenced. The rebel force is camped within two miles of the town. The first battle to-day was amere skirmish and not over 300 shots were fired. The rebels appeared at a point on the Mexican side of the river, just three miles above Juarez, at 2 o'clock. The Federals went out to meet them as they were watching their mounts at the Rio Grande River. The rebels opened fire. As shots were exchanged the fighting body moved down the river towards Juarez, the Federals slowly falling back. The fight occured directly opposite Old Fort Bliss.

Pascual Orozco commanded the insurrectos. He stated to the correspondents that he had two mountain guns back in the hills and he would wait until he could bring these up before descending upon Juarez.

While the insurrectos were watering their horses they talked and joked with the Americans on the opposite side of the river, and the Americans tossed them money. As the night came on the Federals retired into the hills just a short distance from the river, and their camp fires can be plainly seen to-night. The number of Federals wounded or dead in this afternoon's battle is unknown, but one riderless horse dashed out of the foot-hills, and three Federals were seen to fall.

The insurrectos had 340 men in the fight this afternoon, and claim to have 250 men back in the mountains bringing up the guns. The Federals had about 200 men engaged in the fight.

Horse racing was resumed and the programme carried out despite the battle.

BRUTAL CRIME AT COLLINGWOOD

Body of Infant Found By Children--Evidently Done To Death

COLLINGWOOD, Feb. 7.—Later investigations by the police into the death of the male infant whose body was found by children who were skating on Saturday, leads to the belief that local parties are responsible for a brutal crime. The infant was probaby a month old. The body was clean and neatly dressed. A handkerchief was stuffed into its mouth. This and other circumstances lead to the belief that when taken to the spot where the find was made, the infant was still alive. Whether it was frozen to death, died of suffocation, or was killed before being taken to the spot where found, has not been determined.

Crown Attorney Cotter has been notified, and pending his arrival it is improbable that the post-mortem will be held. In any event the Crown Attorney will be present at the inquest, which resumes on Thursday afternoon, Coroner A. M. McFau having made adjournment until after his jury had viewed the body to-night

Chief of Police Wyles is now convinced that the initials on the waist band, the handkerchief, and on the blanket that was wrapped around the body are "E. T. S." "S" and "S" respectively instead of "E. T. N." "N" and "T" as at first thought.

CURRENT COMMENTS.

Kingston has now abolished toll gates—just fifty-one years after Belleville did so.

• • •

A bill has been introduced in the Ontario Legislature proposing an increase in the tax on automobiles. That is only fair as the autos are very hard on the roads.

• • •

Guelph boasts a surplus of $21,000 from its water works department during the year, which surplus is used to keep the rate of taxation low. That is hard on the consumers who have to pay for the benefit of the non-consumers.

• • •

The expansion of Canada's trade with the mother country has been so great that the C. P. R. are preparing to add to their Atlantic fleet two steamers of 23 knots speed, driven by turbine engines. It is to be feared however, that if the new tariff arrangement be entered into our transatlantic trade may be seriously injured.

• • •

Harry K. Thaw, the slayer of Stanford White, is to stay in the lunatic asylum to which he was consigned soon after his trial. His last hope of being released from Matteawan Asylum was dashed to the ground on Monday when the Court of Appeals dismissed with costs his appeal from the decision of the Apellate Division adverse to his contention that he was being detained illegally in the State Hospital for the insane. Thaw's counsel appeared before the Court of Appeals and said he had practically entered into a stipulation with the Attorney that the appeal might be dismissed, and that the State was entitled to costs.

Here is an instance of how the Intercolonial Railway is used for political purposes. In a short discussion in the House of Commons on Friday night, Mr. Graham, Minister of Railways, said the ordinary special excursion rate on the Intercolonial Railway from Quebec to Montreal and return was $2.70. On the occasion of the Laurier demonstration in Montreal, however, the rate for excursionists was cut to $1.50. The Laurier demonstration in Montreal was a preliminary to the Drummond and Arthabaska election. The Intercolonial Railway always suffers when the Laurier government is preparing for an election. If it had been probed further there is no doubt that it would have been shown that most of the crowd paid no fare.

• • •

The Public Accounts Committee of the House of Commons, Ottawa, has become a committee of obstruction instead of a committee to investigate the expenditure of public money, the Conservative members, as has been the case for years under the Laurier Government, being obstructed in their efforts to solve the mystery of the changed telegram which caused some $30,000 of dredging to be done at Dalhousie, N. B., when it was intended that the work sholud be done at Bathurst, the work at Bathurst also being done by the interested firm and paid for by the Government. This sort of thing happens so often that it leaves the impression upon the mind that members of parliament have a personal interest in preventing the people from knowing how and why their money was mis-spent. It is feared they have in too many cases.

• • •

The members for Manitoba in the House of Commons are not satisfied with the way public money is distributed, and are asking why the Laurier Government spent for public works in their province only 30 cents a man, while in Nova Scotia the rate was $2 per man and in New Brunswick $4 a man. It is surprising that a question so easy of solution should be asked. Surely the Manitoba members have not forgotten the declaration of McDonald, of Picton, Nova Scotia, when in Lethbridge with Sir Wilfrid, that that constituency should not expect government favors while it sent a Conservative to Ottawa. If it does it is doomed to cold justice. The claims of the country are not considered. All the Government wants to know is, does the constituency send a supporter, if so, it receives consideration. Nova Scotia and New Brunswick elected more Liberals than Conservatives; and they get warm sympathy, represented by costly and uneconomical buildings at the general tax-payers' expense. This sort of thing is what constitutes Laurier's work.

MAYOR DEALT WITH FIVE DRUNKARDS

Mayor Ackerman this morning presided over the police court in the absence of the Magistrate. No less than five drunks were in the prisoners' dock, all presenting a sorrowful appearance. Walter Sawyer and John O'Brien, two strangers, wanted to go to Peterboro, where they alleged they could secure work. They were given the oppotunity of going to that city. Andrew Stack was assessed $2 and costs or in default, 10 days in jail. The fine in his case was provided for. James Henry had to contribute $2 for being taken care of whilst intoxicated. Milo Brant, who claims he is not a member of the Mohawk Band and does not receive any government assistance, pleaded guilty to being intoxicated. Asked where he procured his liquor he said "all over the city," and judging from the condition he was found in last night he told the truth. He was fined $5 or 15 days in jail, as he had previously been convicted of similar offences.

CORN TOOK A TUMBLE

An accident occurred at Cooper's flour mill yesterday, but fortunately no person was injured. It appears that a quantity of corn was stored on the second floor, and the weight of the same was evidently too much for the flooring, which gave way. A large quantity of corn was precipitated to the ground floor in consequence of the accident.

MISS CURLETTE WINS APPEAL

Plaintiff's Appeal Allowed—Terms and Effect of the Judgment

Curlette vs. Vermilyea. An appeal by plaintiff from the judgment of the County Court of Hastings of October 19, 1910. The plaintiff sued defendant, one of the executors of the last will of Frances Palmer Meudell, late of Belleville, to recover a Rose Point Fichu, alleged to have been bequeathed to plaintiff by said F. P. Meudell, or the payment of $300, its value, and damages for its detention, etc. At the trial a judgment was entered for a non-suit, with cost to be paid by plaintiff to defendant. Appeal allowed and judgment for plaintiff for $125 and costs, with option to defendant to deliver exhibit 4 to plaintiff within 30 days, in which case the judgment will be for vesting of exhibit in plaintiff in lieu of $125. Defendant to pay costs of appeal. Judgment for plaintiff to be without prejudice to right of defendant to claim indemnity for costs he is ordered to pay and his own costs out of estate.

Fitzgibbon v. Scott. An appeal by defendants from the judgment of the County Court of Hastings of December 15, 1910. This was an action for trespass and it appearing that if the trespass occurred in 1903 it was barred by the statute of limitations, but that if in 1904 the plaintiff had a right to bring the action, and this distinction not having been pointed out by the Judge in his charge to the jury. Appeal allowed and new trial ordered. Costs of former trial and appeal to be costs in the cause. Leave to both parties to amend within 30 days.

GRAND OPERA IN ENGLISH.

Joseph F. Sheehan, America's greatest tenor, and idol of every music lover in the country, is coming to Griffin's Opera House with his all star company for one performance of Verdi's "Il Trovatore," Monday, February 13th.

Joseph Sheehan needs no introduction, he is universally acknowledged the greatest of all American tenors and his company for the past three years has been proclaimed the foremost opera company in America, but this year he has by far outdone himself and gratified his ambition of taking only one opera enfour and making an elaborate production of it.

Mr. Sheehan has selected from his various companies the principals best fitted for the different roles and thereby truly making an all star production.

Mergers and Watered Stock

The question of mergers and what is known as common or watered stock and combines has been ably discussed in both the House of Commons and Legislature of Ontario: in the former by Mr. Monk, M.P. for Jacques Cartier, and in the latter by Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P. for West Hastings. Both these gentlemen pointed out what the effect upon trade and commerce had been by promoters and schemers. It was clearly pointed out that what should have been of advantage pecuniarily to all proved to be of benefit to the promoters only, principally through the operations of adding to capital "common stock," for which not a dollar had been paid.

The theory has been that a merger of a number of any particular industries would cheapen the production of goods by lessening the expense of producing them. So it would, if honestly carried out, but unfortunately the theory in too many cases does not crystalize through the merger being loaded down with stock called common, for which not a cent has been paid, but upon which dividends are declared and pocketed by those who are manipulating the merger, thereby depreciating the value of the legitimate stock, for which par value has been paid.

Take the case of the Cement Merger, in which many readers of The Intelligencer have stock for which they paid, and what do we find? That this Merger's earnings last year enabled the company to pay 7 per cent. upon preferred stock to the extent of $735,000, and claim additional earnings sufficient to pay "one per cent. upon $1,000,000 of common stock." What the extent of that common, or more correctly termed watered, stock is no one outside the ring knows, for it is not given in the financial statement published to the world. But we have seen it stated in the press that it amounts to over $13,000,000, which fully accounts for the depreciated value of the stock, which is quoted at 86 and 87 in the market, when paying, as it does, seven per cent. upon the $735,000 preferred stock. Were it not for this $13,000,000 staring the money market in the face, the stock of this Cement Merger should be selling at a premium.

Is it not time this fancy financing was put a stop to by drastic legislation?

In discussing this question in the Commons, Mr. Borden, leader of the Opposition, said: "The combination of business interests in the United States had reached a scale altogether undreamed of fifteen years ago. There were in Canada branches of American trusts which sold their commodities at prices regulated by American managements. That was worthy of investigation by Parliament, as well as combines having their origin in Canada. In his opinion, the only effective remedy was by legislation which could be enforced by a responsible officer."

To accomplish this Mr. Monk moved a resolution providing for the appointment of a Royal Commission to look into and report upon the whole question, which, as might be expected, was voted down by Sir Wilfrid and his mechanical majority. Mergers and combines are too powerful for the present men in power to oppose.

SAYS NEW YORK MAY BECOME WAY STATION IN HALF CENTURY

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—That New York City has nearly reached its maximum of growth and will find its supremacy as the biggest city and the most important commercial center in the western world threatened by competition during the next 30 years is the belief of Walter Laidlaw, secretary of the New York Federation of Christian Organizations, and a census expert of note.

Dr. Laidlaw frankly sets aside as preposterous the commonly accepted estimates of the tremendous growth of the city in the next three decades and propacies that in 1940 the population will not exceed 9,600,000.

In a long report on "New York's Future," Dr. Laidlaw notes that the two greatest causes of the city's rapid rise to pre-eminence were the building of the Erie Canal and the immense immigration. He declares there are now certain factors working against a continued increse.

In the first place, Dr. Laidlaw sees a continuation in the decline of the share of New York in the foreign commerce of the United States. In the last 30 years it has fallen from 54.8 to 48.7. Canada has become an important competitor and other American ports are doing their best to overhaul New York. Providence, Boston, Baltimore, Philadelphia and southern ports are formidable rivals.

The proposed intercostal canal, the development of the Mississippi, the completion of the Panama Canal and the favorable position of the cities to the south of New York to engage in trade with South America, will all tend to dwarf New York. Other factors are the decline of immigration, the diminishing export trade with Europe, the awakening of China and the increasing importance of Pacific commerce. The Pacific coast, the statistician thinks, is bound to run the East hard or its present supremacy.

"It is not unbelievable, in the light of conditions, that New York City may within half a century find itself outstripped by some of its energetic young rivals and in a fair way to become a way station on the road to Baltimore, New Orleans, San Francisco or some other metropolis."

Hair Dressing that Makes Women's Hair Grow Radiant

Women of Canada are demanding a perfect hair tonic, one that is daintily perfumed, that is not sticky or greasy and that will make the hair grow profusely and give it a luster that attracts admiration.

Like their clever sisters in Paris, they have learned that a woman with scant, dull, lifeless hair grows old all too soon.

Since the introduction of Parisian Sage into Canada, druggists in every town are recommending Parisian Sage because they know that it will do exactly what the makers say it will do.

Besides being a hair grower and beautifier Parisian Sage is rigidly guaranteed to stop itching scalp, to stop hair from falling and to banish every trace of dandruff or money back.

Parisian Sage causes the hair to grow strong, vigorous and lustrous because it kills the dandruff germs that infest the hair roots, which is the basis of all scalp and hair diseases and also because it furnishes natural nourishment to the weakened and run down hair bulbs.

Parisia Sage is sold by druggists everywhere or only 50 cents a large bottle. It is guaranteed by J. V. Doyle. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every package. Mail orders filled, charges prepaid, by Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont., upon receipt of price.

GUARANTEE FROM KING GEORGE

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—A special cable to the Tribune from its London correspondent says:

The information previously sent that the King had consented to the Prime Minister's demand for guarantees has been confirmed to-day by admissions from the Unionists. Prominent peers concede that what they describe as qualified guarantees have been obtained for the creation of a majority in the Upper House in a certain contingency, but they express the cofident expectation that a compromise will be effected, and that the prvileged order will not be discredited by a burlesque performance by the Opposition.

WILL REFORM THEMSELVES.

The tactics were not disclosed in opening the debate on address in reply to the speech from the Throne, but were explained in conversation by Unionist members of the Upper House. They expect Lord Lansdowne, with Lord Rosebery's help, to produce a definite reform scheme, and carry it through the Lords before the passage of the veto bill has been anticipated and that a compromise should be brought about in a conference of the two Houses, when that measure reaches the committee stage in the Lords, after the Coronation.

SAD DEATH OF AN INVENTOR

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.— The Times this morning says :—The finding of three large pine cases containing mechanical apparatus in a storage vault of a down town safe deposit company has led to the discovery that John Nodam Longdon, a fellow of the British Society of Engineers and an inventor of note, well known throughout the British empire for his work in the field of civil and mining engineering, died here of starvation several months ago while seeking the secret of generating cheap electricity which he believed would revolutionize the power systems of the world.

Longdon is said to have spent $100,000 in the work and whether he really discovered the secret he was after will never be known until his friends have inspected the contents of the three cases in the vault. Longdon died in the New York hospital and was buried in the Potter's field. The landlady of a cheap boarding house had found him lying upon the floor in his night clothes, while gas was escaping from a jet nearby. Circumstances pointed to death by accident rather than by suicide. The case attracted no attention at the time. The autopsy showed that exhausted vitality from starvation was more responsible for death than the gas. Relatives recently same to New York to look up Longford's whereabouts and came across the pine cases in the deposit vaults. These led to the locating of his lodging place and the news of his death.

THE OLD HOMESTEAD.

"The Old Homestead" was the attraction at Griffin's Opera House last evening, and this ever popular delineation of rural life in New England was ably presented by William Lawrence and a capable company. Mr. Lawrence, in the leading role of Joshua Whitcomb, was all that could be desired, and his acting of this difficult character was cleverly carried out. The remainder of the cast was quite up to the standard of the leading role, and the many quaint, amusing and pathetic incident of the play were fully appreciated by the well filled house. The musical numbers were excellent, the male quartette being repeatedly recalled and responding liberally.

FIRST OF THE C. N. R. HOTELS

The first hotel of the Canadian Northern hotel system, to be known as the Prince Arthur, will be formally opened at Port Arthur on March 1. It will have over 100 rooms, and is being erected at a cost of one million dollars. Only the main part of this building will be ready for occupancy at the date of the opening, the policy of Sir William Mackenzie having always been to commence business operations at the completion of the first unit of a new enterprise. Before the end of a year the company expect that the additional wings on either side will be finished. In front of the main portion of the hotel and between the two wings, it is intended to have a small park. The hotel as it shall be opened next month will contain 110 rooms.

The C. N. R. will erect large hotels in Winnipeg, Calgary and Edmonton. The name of the hotel at Port Arthur has been decided upon for some time and it is rather coincidental that the opening should take place in the year of the appointment of Prince Arthur of Connaught to the governor-generalship of Canada.

GREATEST TROTTERS TO MEET IN MATCH RACE

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 7.—Harness horsemen expect the treat of their lives next August and they are not likely to be disappointed.

The tidbit in store for lovers of the square-gaited flyers is a special race between the three speediest trotters in the world — the gelding Uhlan, 1.58 3-4, world's champion trotter; the stallion, The Harvester, 2.01, and the mare Joan, 2.04 3-4.

It has been suggested that they be brought together at the famous North Randall track, the fastest harness horse track in the world, during the grand circuit meet, Aug. 7-15.

As the owners of the horses are millionaires they will compete for a gold trophy instead of a purse, the winner to be the unquestioned trotting champion.

No harness event in years has stirred up so much interest as this proposed event. The Uhlan-Hamburg Belle and the Cresceus-The Abbott matches drew the attention of the sport's followers as no other events of their periods, but they fade when placed alongside the proposed event.

Uhlan, 1.58 3-4, is a gelding, seven years old, by Bingen-Blonde, by Sir Walter. He took his mark last year, in a trial against the watch, accompanied by runners. He is the property of C. K. G. Billings of Chicago.

The Harvester, 2.01, is a stallion, aged six, by Walnut Hall-Natolet, by Moko. He took his mark last summer. He is owned by August Uhlein of Milwaukee.

Joan, 2.04 3-4, is a mare, five years old, by Directum Spier-Sarah W., by Hal Braden. She is owned by Capt. David Shaw of Cleveland. She took her mark last year in the third heat of the Walnut Hall stake.

At first glance the tyro might ask what chance Joan, marked six seconds lower than Uhlan, will have with the champion. Harness horsemen know the mare is one of the speediest in the world and that she could have stepped faster than she is marked had her owner desired. And also that the time an animal makes in a race is seconds slower than the same horse will make when urged by a runner and rated for a record-breaking dash.

There seems little doubt that the horses will meet. Billings, through "Doc" Tanner, has signified Uhlan will be ready; Capt. Shaw said, "Yes, if it is a three-in-five-race." Uhlein has always been willing to send his horses against the best, but will doubtless rest his decision with Pop Geers, who has The Harvester in hand.

HOLLOWAY BEAT TABERNACLE.

Last night an exciting hockey match took place in the Arena last night between the boys of Holloway and Tabernacle Sunday Schools. The boys of West Belleville showed up in fine form and beat the Tabs. five to one. The score does not by any means indicate the play, the game being fast and furious throughout. Mr. Stub refereed the game with his usual ability, although he inflicted a few punishments. The line-up:

Holloway— Alexander, Harris, Boyd Minns, Vandervoort, Finkle.

Tabernacle—B. Bell, Ruttan, Earl Adams, Bell, Dafoe, Maston.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 8.—To the surprise of 5,000 fight fans, Knockout Brown, New York's lightweight pugilist, beat Champion Ad Wolgast all the way in a fierce six-round fight at the American A. C. here to-night.

JACKSONVILLE, Feb. 8.—Racing at Moncrief to-day was marred by an accident, in which Jockey Lang was killed and Jockey Goose bruised. The mishap occurred in the first race, a two-year-old event. Working Lad, which Lang rode, and Mack B. Eubanks, with Goose up, fell while rounding the turn into the home stretch, Lang's horse falling on him and crushing him.

Cy Young has been a big league twirler for 21 years.

VETERAN CURLER DIED SUDDENLY

MONTREAL, Feb. 8.—The Caledonia-St. Lawrence curling match last night had a tragic ending. Mr. Robert Samson, one of the best known members of the Caledonia curling club who had just skipped his rink to victory in the extra end, which had been ordered to be played, and had afterwards taken part in the celebration of the victory in the St. Lawrence club rooms, when he made a short speech, was back to the club two minutes after he had left it in a sleigh to go to his home in Westmount, dead.

Mr. Samson had not been feeling well in the earlier part of the evening but had recovered sufficiently to be able to take part in the game towards the finish, and appeared to have recovered his wonted spirits, before he left to go home. Several members of the Caledonia club left the club in the same sleigh with him, but before they had gone far, he became so ill that they immediately turned back to the St. Lawrence club, where they knew they would find medical assistance. Dr. Henderson was there when they arrived and seeing that Mr Samson was in extremis, had him carried inside the club, whe he almost immediately expired without regaining consciousness. Dr. Henderson said that while there could hardly be any doubt as to the cause of death, he had immediately tried to notify the coroner by telephone, but failing to find him at his house, arrangements were made with Messrs Wray to have the body taken for the night to their undertaking establishment.

The late Mr. Samson was one of the best known curlers in the city, having been for many years a member of the Caledonia and Heather clubs, and his loss will be deeply felt amongst his many friends both on and off the ice. Always ready to make up a game he was to be found nearly every day in the week in one of the two clubs and as he had the true curling spirit might be skipping a rink to-day and playing lead for a much younger curler to-morrow.

Abe Attell's New York surgeon says he will be able to box in about three months.

Jim Corbett rises to remark that the lid is being gradually lifted on the boxing game throughtout the country.

Tommy Burns will be unable to fight Bill Lang in London on April 17. Tommy's injured knee will not stand training.

President Barrow of the Eastern League will instruct his umpires this year to file daily reports.

John J. McGraw of the New York Giants says he will carry his own umpire for the exhibition games down south.

Arthur Clarkson, a brother of John and Walter Clarkson, famous in baseball, is dead. He was a professional pitcher but not as well known as his brothers.

GRIFFIN'S OPERA HOUSE.

Baby Helen willl appear at Griffin's Opera House for the last three days of this week with a complete change of programme. Arthur Yule & Co., in new songs and stories. Miss Teresa Miller, comedienne and Bill Jones, novelty musician. All new pictures and an illustrated song.

RISK LIVES TO MAKE RESCUE

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—The cries of a man who leaned from a fourth story window holding in one arm a baby and with the other his wife was the first warning folks in 68th street had Sunday noon of a fire that ruined the building. The fire cost the life of a man, and perhaps the lives of a woman and a girl and was the occasion of a number of startling window-ledge rescues. The building is owned by Patrick Shanley, the restauranter. The man who held the baby, to keep it from the smoke was Herman L. Grunech, a haberdasher, who occupied apartments in the building. On the sidewalk, when Mr Grunech began shouting, were three young men—Harry Fantry, Lloyd Gass and William J. Flynn. The three broke into the house next door and made their way to the fourth story of the building.

Fantry let himself down to an ornamental stone ledge wheeh ran along the block of buildings, and clinging to the wall as best he could, with Grass and Flynn at his heels, he crept along the ledge for twenty feet until he was beneath the window where the Grunechs were standing. Grunech handed the baby down to Fantry, Fantry handed it back to his comrades, and so it reached safety in the house next door.

Firemen had in the meantime arrived and a ladder was quickly raised It lacked four feet of reaching the Grunech window. Fantry scrambled from the ledge to the window sill and with the assistance of a fireman caught one of Mrs. Grunech's arms and passed her to firemen on the ladder below. Then Fantry and the fireman, Thomas Farrel, helped Mr. Grunech's mother down. Grunech himself escaped along the ledge after seeing his family out. His wife was badly burned and will probably die Baby Grunech and the grandmother were unharmed.

A man named Schimmel, a lodger with a family named O'Connor, which occupied apartments on the top floor lost his life while searching the apartments for Florence O'Connor, a ten-year-old girl who was missing. Mrs O'Connor inhaled smoke, and is now in the Flower Hospital. Florence was still missing when the fire was extinguished. The loss by fire is estimated at $20,000.

The Duchesse du Maine, who held her court at Sceaux during the reign of the regent, was an imperious old lady. One day, according to "A Princess of Strategy," when she was ill she complained to the doctor that he was not curing her quickly enough. What was the good, she wanted to know, of compelling her to go without so many things and making her live in seclusion? "But," replied the doctor, "your most serene highness has at present forty people at the chateau!" "Forty or fifty people!" said the duchesse. "Well, for a princess that is practically seclusion."

Not a Chance!

A man told another man a few days ago how he had been buttoning his wife's dress for five years and finally, in order to even the account, he had a shirt made to order with sixty-five buttons down the back.

"Did you make her button it?" eagerly inquired the second party, with a glad smile.

"I tried to and fell down, like slipping on a banana skin," replied the first party. "She promptly told me to button the top button and let the others slide, explaining that they would not show when I had put on my coat."—Chicago Tribune.

Their Last Hope Gone.

When the minister praised the raspberry jam at Mrs. Green's bountiful Saturday night supper he could not imagine why Angie and Horatio, the twins, gazed at him so reproachfully. "Don't you like raspberry jam, my little man?" he asked Horatio.

"Yes, sir, I do, and Angie does," said Horatio in distinctly resentful tones, "and mother told us that she was afraid the last she made wasn't quite up to the mark and if you didn't praise it Angie and I could have it for luncheon on our bread, for Mrs. Willis and Mrs. Shedd never said a word when they ate it, and you're made the third. But now she'll use it for the church sociables." And Horatio looked gloomily at his twin, who returned the look in kind.—Youth's Companion.

Catharine Parr.

Catharine Parr, the sixth wife of the much married Henry VIII., owed more to her intellectual than to her personal charms. She was not good looking, but had a pleasant face and a world of tact. So skillfully did she manage her troublesome husband as actually to turn him against some of the most trusted of his own officials. Once an order was made out for her arrest on a charge of heresy, but she got news of the matter and so cleverly flattered and soothed Henry as to effect a complete reconciliation, and when the officers came to serve the order he drove them out with curses and threats.

Tribulations of the Drama In New York In 1765.

Here is an account of the sacking of a theater in New York from the Gazette of May 3, 1765:

"The play advertised to be acted last Monday evening having given offense to sundry and divers inhabitants of this city, who thought it highly improper that such entertainments should be exhibited at this time of public distress, when great numbers of poor people can scarce find means of subsistence, whereby many persons might be tempted to neglect their business and squander that money which is necessary to the payment of their debts and the support of their families, a rumor was spread about the town that if the play went on the audience would meet with some disturbance from the multitude.

"This prevented the greatest part of those who intended to have been there from going. However, many people came, and the play was begun, but soon interrupted by the multitude, who burst open the doors and entered with noise and tumult. The audience escaped in the best manner they could. Many lost their hats and other articles of raiment. A boy had his skull fractured and was yesterday trepanned. Death is his. Several others were sorely set upon and injured. But we heard of no lives lost. The multitude immediately demolished the house, carried the pieces to the common, where they consumed them in a bonfire."

Mehemet's Parliament.

When Disraeli was in Egypt—the story is told in Mr. Monypenny's biography—he met Mehemet Ali, who desired to introduce parliamentary institutions into his country. "I will have a parliament," he said, "and I will have as many parliaments as the king of England himself." So saying, his highness produced two lists of names. "See here," he said. "Here are my parliaments. But I have made up my mind, to prevent inconvenience, to elect them myself."

LOST THRONES

The fate of King Manuel recalls that he is not only the only living ruler who has lost his throne, but he is not even the only living member of the House of Braganza who has suffered the misfortune of dethronement. In the Isle of Wight there dwells a nun who was once Queen of Portugal. For six years her husband, King Miguel, strived hard to keep the Lusitanian crown from Donna Maria, the rightful possessor of it, but after a lot of bloodshed, he was sent to the rightabout, and Donna Maria came by her own. She was the great grandmother of young King Manuel. Then there is the Duchess of Parma. She is a Braganza Princess who married another ill-fated European ruler. Her husband, who died two years ago, was the last sovereign ruler of an ancient royal house in Italy. What the last Duke of Parma and his wife lost in regal prestige, they made up in domestic felicity, for the Duchess presented the late Duke with no less than twelve children, all of whom survive, while the Duke's first wife had presented him with nine sons and daughters, eight of whom are still living. The Duchess of Parma is therefore the mother, or stepmother, of twenty-one children. Another Braganza Princess who has narrowly missed wearing a crown is the Comtesse D'Eu. Before her marriage to this Orleans Prince she was Her Royal Highness Princess Isabelle Christine Leopoldine, Augustine Michelle Gabrielle Raphaelle Gonzaga De Braganza, the second daughter of Pedro II., Emperor of Brazil. Had the Portuguese dynasty in Brazil not come to an end, the Comtesse D'Eu would have been an empress in her own right, as her two brothers both died in infancy. The House of Braganza has therefore suffered some terrible dynastic vicissitudes during the last half-century.

Among other living royalties who have worn crowns which are now in the possession of others are the ex-Empress Eugenie, the widow of Napoleon III., Emperor of the French. Her Majesty is still wonderfully active. She was a great beauty, but her vanity is said to have been the cause of the Franco-Prussian War, in which thousands of lives were lost. The ex-Empress lost her only son, the Prince Imperial, in the Zulu War. One of the most pathetic figures among the dispossessed monarchs is Charlotte, ex-Empress of Mexico. For many years she has been in a lunatic asylum. Her husband was the Archduke Maximilian of Austria, brother of the present Austrian Kaiser, and he responded to the invitation of the people of Mexico to become their ruler only to find himself drawn into a death-trap from which there was no dignified escape. He was eventually shot dead in Mexico, and his miserable widow, not long after, lost her reason. She is the unhappy sister of the late King of the Belgians.

The Grand Duchess of Tuscany is the last lady who will bear that historic title. The last ruling Grand Duke of Tuscany, her husband, lost his kingdom by royal decree of March 22, 1860, when his dominions were added to the province conquered by the King of Sardinia, and henceforth became part of the "United Italy" of Victor Emmanuele and Garibaldi.

Another lady who has lost a crown is the ex-Queen Natalie of Servia. She was the wife of King Milan, and mother of that unfortunate young King Alexander, whose assassination with his wife, Queen Draga, put an end to the Obrenovitch dynasty of Servia, and paved the way for King Peter's accession. Altogether, these dispossessed Queens are not to be envied.

Among the monarchs who have ceased to rule are the deposed Shah Mohammed Ali Mirza the son of Muzaffin-ed-Din, who used to be so well-known in London. Another Mohammedan monarch who has been replaced is Abdul Hamid, who, as the "Sick Man," was the bugbear of European politics for forty years. He is now said to be a lunatic, and is, at any rate, a prisoner. He is never likely to be ruler of Turkey again. Theebaw, ex-King of Burmah, who was dethroned by the British Government after the last Burmese campaign, still lives and thoroughly enjoys his rustication at Batnagiri, a town on the West Indian Coast. He also is nominally a prisoner, but feels none of the restrictions implied by that term, but he will never be allowed to see his beloved Burmah again.

India, by the way, has more than one Maharaja who has been deprived of his "Gadi." One of them is Mahdo Singh, the ex-Maharaja of Panna. He took a dislike to his nephew, who was heir-presumptive of the State, so Mahdo Singh caused him to be poisoned. After a State inquiry, which lasted forty days, the British Government deposed the Maharaja, and hanged the man who perpetrated the foul deed.

A monarch who, in his day, has been much in the public eye, is the ex-Sultan of Morocco, who was defeated in war by Mulai Hafid, and removed from the Sultanate. The ex-ruler of Morocco was a go-ahead sort of chap, and filled large rooms in his palace with golden cameras, toy railways, cinematograph apparati, concertinas, pianos, and bicycles.

Prempeh, the ex-King of Ashantee, too, still lives, and is ready and willing on all occasions to talk of the "City of Blood" and the terrible human sacrifices which were his diversion in the days of his kingship. There are a few other dethroned rulers in various coast towns of the Dark Continent, but they are kept under strict supervision. The last monarch to be deposed before the fall of King Manuel was Yong-Hi, the Emperor of Korea, who years ago saw his mother butchered on her throne, and who will probably be a happier man as a pensioner of Japan than as an Asiatic sovereign. True it is that "uneasy lies the head that wears a crown."

THAT DEPENDED

A very small boy was trying to lead a big St. Bernard dog up the road. "Where are you going to take the dog, my little man?" inquired a passer-by. "I—I'm going to see where—where he wants to go first," was the breathless reply.

ENGINE CREW BLAMED

Conductor Meecham and Engineer Earith Responsible.

Man in Charge of Locomotive Says at Inquest That He Was Troubled By His Engine, Which Was a New One, and Forgot All About the Passenger Train—Both Men Will Be Arrested.

Brantford, Feb. 9.—After a three hours' session at Princeton yesterday, the coroner's jury, empaneled to enquire into the cause of the Grand Trunk wreck near Richwood on Saturday night last, returned a verdict fixing the responsibility for the wreck on Conductor William Meecham and Engineer Robert Earith. The verdict was returned at six o'clock. It said: "The jury is unanimous that Conductor William Meecham and Engineer Robert Earith, in charge of engine 629, were responsible for the wreck, in colliding with the regular train, No. 39, which caused the death of Peter McFarlane and others."

The jury heard the story of a terrible omission from Robert Earith, the engineer who was carried into Princeton from a farm house near the scene of the wreck, in order to give his testimony. Earith admitted to Coroner Staples that he had forgotten all about the passenger train when he passed through Drumbo, and evidently his conductor had also forgotten, as they did not exchange a word from Tavistock down.

The inquest was held in the Stroud Hotel, where the famous Benwell inquest was held, and a big throng of people gathered. Representing the Grand Trunk Railway Co. were two solicitors, Messrs. Foster and Platt of Montreal, Assistant Supt. Bowker and Trainmaster Forrester. The solicitors merely watched the proceedings. There was no one present representing the crown interests. R. N. Ball, crown attorney for Oxford, was to have been present, but failed, it is said owing to the county not meeting his expenses, outside of the usual fee. Coroner Staples conducted the examination of the witnesses.

Earith said he knew the timetable of the train in question. When he left Stratford he thought he had time enough to reach Paris Junction five minutes clear of the passenger, as provided by the rules.

Earith said he was thoroughly familiar with the rules, as they had been read by Trainmaster Forrester to the jury. These rules provided for the priority of trains of first, second and third class, the trains of superior class having the right of way. The rules provided that in case of single track, the inferior train should take to a siding. This was an absolute duty, not dependent on any despatcher's orders. The rules also held conductors and enginemen equally responsible for the safety of their trains.

The order received by Meecham and Earith from the despatcher at Stratford was as follows: "Run as extra from Stratford to Paris Junction," the rules providing as to how an extra should be run.

Engineer Earith said that his engine, which was a new one, gave him a lot of trouble coming down, the cylinders blowing open and requiring him to stop. The engine lost time, and as the troubles bothered the engineer, he forgot all about the passenger train and the human life on board. Had his engine been in perfect order, he would have made Paris Junction before there was the possibility of an accident.

When, however, he saw the approach of the opposing engine, he first applied the emergency brakes and reversed the engine, giving one sharp, one long and six short whistles, all as different danger signals. By that time the crash was imminent, and he believed his engine was backing up from the passenger train. He yelled to his fireman to jump, and jumped himself, just in time.

When the verdict was returned, Coroner Staples stated that he would immediately report the same to the crown authorities at Woodstock. Warrants for the arrest of Earith and Meecham will likely be made out. Earith is unable to be removed at present.

As to the report of Conductor Meecham being overworked, Trainmaster Forrester submitted a statement of hours on and off duty by Meecham from Jan. 23 to Feb. 4. It showed an average of nearly 14 hours off duty. Engineer Earith denied the report that he was overworked. The company had made every effort to locate Meecham for the inquest, but had failed to do so.

Left Suddenly.

Montreal, Feb. 9.—Fred. Krutzberger, foreman of a branch store of Davies, Ltd., pork packers and butchers, left Montreal very suddenly on Sunday morning, Jan. 29. On Sunday evening Mr. Charles H. Binnels, the local manager, had the safe in the shop opened. It had been cleaned out. A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Krutzberger, who, it is believed, is in the western States or the Canadian west. The amount that is missing is said to be $585.

Lloyd George Ill?

Naples, Feb. 9.—David Lloyd George, the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, and his friends, refuse to discuss the condition of his health, merely saying that he is taking a much-needed rest. Reports are in circulation, however, to the effect that the Chancellor is suffering from nervous prostration, and that his condition is not improving, which might eventually force him to resign his portfolio.

A Lottery Romance.

A few years ago, as the date for the drawing of the annual Christmas lottery at Madrid was approaching, a poor mechanic of Corunna was awakened three consecutive nights by the number 125,869, apparently spoken in his ear. So impressed was he by the repetition of the incident that he wrote down the number and jocularly said to his wife, "That number will win the first prize in the great lottery." "Then why don't you buy the ticket?" his wife answered jokingly as she looked at the figures. "Why, see, if you add them together they just come to my age. I shall be thirty-one on Christmas day." The ticket, after much trouble, was found (it had been rejected a few minutes earlier by a wealthy citizen of Corunna) and bought, and before many days had passed the mechanic and his wife were made jubilant by the news that the ticket had won the first prize of £200,000.—London Globe.

He Got His Answer.

"They who ask unpleasant questions," said a senator, "mustn't be surprised if they get unpleasant answers. Yes, the interrogatory politician too often finds himself in the boots of Gobsa Golde.

"The aged Gobsa Golde was quarreling furiously with his young and beautiful wife.

"'Didn't you marry me for my money?' he yelled.

"Mrs. Gobsa Golde tossed her head.

"'Yes, of course I did,' she said, 'and if you weren't so stingy with it we'd never have a cross word.'"—Washington Post.

U. S. SAVING CANADA

Better to Dominion Than Own Ministers, Says Doherty.

In Turning Down the Long Sault Dam Proposals, Congress Showed More Consideration For This Country Than Aylesworth — Word "Liar" Passes In Dispute In the Public Accounts Committee.

Ottawa, Feb. 9.—When the House of Commons is in need of a subject the Long Sault power development scheme is revived. The Opposition held a post-mortem discussion on the matter yesterday, and the House did not reach the orders of the day until seven minutes before adjournment. The intention was to give the Verville eight-hour bill its third reading, but as it was only referred to for a moment, the psychological moment has probably passed, and it is unlikely that the bill will be reached again this session.

Mr. Borden precipitated the discussion by moving for a copy of all correspondence and documents dealing with the proposed damming of the St. Lawrence at the Long Sault Rapids. He referred to the proceedings at Washington Tuesday, and was grateful that the United States Congress had "saved Canada from itself," but he did not think that the interests promoting the measure would be satisfied with this reverse.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier expressed himself as happy to comply with the request, promising to bring down full information from the time of the Ashburton treaty until the present.

The Opposition speakers would not let the matter rest there, and Dr. Sproule claimed that the defeat of the bill in Washington was the result of the "stand we took here."

Mr. Foster thought the Minister of Justice had given Canada's case away.

Dr. Reid (Grenville) was fearful because the corporation had threatened to spend $2,000,000 to put the legislation through.

Mr. Borden argued that it was better to have all the papers in the case brought before Parliament in the event of the proposal being renewed in the United States or in the Canadian Parliament. He said that he would not care to associate himself with the view expressed by Sir Alan Aylesworth in the House last Thursday, that if the works on the United States side of the international boundary did not raise the level of the water in Canadian territory, the Dominion would have no grounds for a protest. Under the provisions of the Ashburton treaty the position of Canada was well defined. The channels in question were to remain open to navigation of both countries forever. He took this occasion to protest against the view of Sir Alan Aylesworth.

Sir Alan Aylesworth said, from the standpoint of international rights, supposing there were no treaties, Canada would have no right to object to the damming of the southern channels. This was what was meant by his statement last Thursday. According to the treaties, navigation reigned supreme, and everything that interfered with navigation could not go. If navigation were not interfered with, under the existing treaty, Canada had no cause for complaint.

Mr. Doherty (St. Anne's) said that the channel could not be free and open if it was to be obstructed. It was an extraordinary position on the part of the Government charged with the protection of the interests of the country. The Congress of the United States appeared to be more careful of Canadian interests than the Canadian Government.

A sensational episode, which came on the verge of turning the proceedings of the public accounts committee into an unseemly riot, took place yesterday, and a scene of disorder followed of an unparalleled nature, Mr. Crocket of York, who has been camping on Mr. Pugsley's trail all the session, had concluded his examination of Geoffrey Stead, the resident engineer of the department at Chatham, N.B., over the unauthorized dredging at Dalhousie, and the committee was on the point of breaking up when F. B. Carvell got into a heated wordy argument with Mr. Crocket and wound up by deliberately calling his fellow member a liar.

At once there was an appeal to the chair, but in the excited hubbub nothing could be distinguished for a moment except the violent gesticulations of a number of angry men shouting at the tops of their voices.

During the melee A. B. Crosby of Halifax and Mr. MacKenzie, the former North Sydney judge, got into such a serious argument that Mr. Crosby threatened to thrash the former member of the judiciary for an alleged offensive expression. A personal encounter was imminent, when some of the cooler heads stepped in between the would-be belligerents and prevented the exchange of anything more serious than verbal blows.

When comparative quiet was restored, ex-Judge Warburton, the chairman, ordered Mr. Carvell to withdraw the offensive word "liar," which Mr. Carvell did, declaring he did so with mental reservation, and the excited crowd thronged out of the room after one of the most tempestuous scenes in the history of this committee.

Think Government Should Pay.

Kingston, Feb. 9.—Portsmouth Village Council has had to pay for registration of deaths at Rockwood Asylum and the penitentiary. Council believes this expense should be met by the Government, and will petition the Government to do so. Last year there were seven deaths at the penitentiary and 49 at Rockwood.

'Frisco Gets the Exposition.

Washington, Feb. 9.—San Francisco yesterday won the unanimous vote of the Senate committee on industrial expositions for the Panama Canal exposition.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Eight white men and two negroes were killed and four injured yesterday by the explosion of a freight locomotive boiler at Smithville, Texas.

Ald. Judge, representing St. Paul's Ward in the City Council, Montreal, was yesterday unseated as a member of the council on charges of corruption.

The immense five-storey St. Anne convent and school in the north end of Montreal was totally destroyed by fire, which broke out shortly before noon yesterday.

In the B.C. Legislature, Hon. Price Ellison, Minister of Finance and Agriculture, adhered to his statement that he had heard James J. Hill furnished $50,000 to take the delegation of farmers to Ottawa.

The scarcity of dry fish in Nova Scotia is alarming and the great problem is how the consumer is going to get along until the spring catch is marketed, which will not be for three or four months.

Twenty-five hundred students of the university of St. Petersburg voted to go out on strike until Easter. The police made forty arrests. The action of the students followed repressive measures by the Cabinet.

The Liberal candidate for the Legislature, George W. McPhee, defeated the Conservative candidate, John H. Burton of Rustigo, by 38 votes in the King's County bye-election. A reversal would have meant a general election.

Family In Suicide Pact.

New York, Feb. 9.—Rather than let their children starve to death because their father was penniless and out of employment, Frank Barnard, formerly a trainer for the 23rd Regiment in Brooklyn, entered into a suicide pact with his wife, Mamie, by which they killed their two little ones by gas and at the same time ended their own lives.

The four bodies were found yesterday lying on a bed in the scantily furnished apartment which they had occupied on the third floor of 750 Fulton street, Brooklyn. The bodies of the children were between those of the parents. The husband left a brief note stating that poverty prompted him and his wife to enter into the pact.

Persons living in the Fulton street building smelled gas yesterday. At the same time it was noted that nothing had been seen of the Barnards. The children, George four years old, and Daniel two, usually were heard playing about in the apartment. Getting no response to knocks, the neighbors summoned a policeman and he discovered the tragedy.

To Consider Graft Charges.

Toronto, Feb. 9.—Sir James Whitney stated yesterday afternoon that the Ontario Government expected to take up and consider the report received on Monday from Judge Snider, upon the investigation into the charges of graft in North Oxford.

The Prime Minister stated that owing to the pressure of public business he had personally not had time to read the judge's review of the investigation himself.

The question whether the report will be made public before the formal presentation to the House will be decided to-day if the report is, as expected by the Premier, at the forenoon Cabinet Council.

German Spies In Bermuda.

New York, Feb. 9.—A cable from Hamilton, Bermuda, says: The German scare has extended to Bermuda. It synchronized this week with the arrival from the West Indies of the German cruiser Hansa. There was much firing of cannon and official visits were paid and returned.

An unfortunate termination to the festivities was brought about by the fact that certain of the crew were detected in an endeavor to obtain photographic views of the fortifications and approaches of the navy yard, and the situation of lights and bearings.

Wet and Dry Hotelman.

Brockville, Feb. 9.—T. E. Connor, proprietor of the Nevens' House, Jasper, has purchased the Fitzgerald Hotel there, and will conduct them both. The Nevens' House is in Wolford Township, which carried local option, and in consequence, after May 1 the hostelry will be deprived of a license. The Fitzgerald House, which is directly across the street, is in Kitley, which is not a "dry" township, and Connor will hold the unique position of being proprietor of two hotels in the one place, one of which will be a local option house, and the other will not.

A Fatal Stairway.

Guelph, Feb. 9.—At the inquest held Monday evening to enquire into the cause of the death of Richard Porter, who was found lying in a dying condition at the foot of the stairs leading to the lavatory of the Victoria Hotel, the jury found that death was caused by a hemorrhage, but were unable to state whether this was caused by the fall or superinduced by it. As this was not the first fall down this stairway the jury called the attention of the proprietor to its dangerous condition.

Feet and Hands Frozen.

Shelburne, Feb. 9.—A boy from Dr. Barnardo's Home, Peter street, Toronto, had a trying experience from Thursday until Sunday last, during which time he lay buried in the straw mow in Thomas Murphey's barn, a Melayothan farmer, just west of here. His feet and hands were terribly frozen.

Earl Cawdor Dead.

London, Feb. 9.—Frederick Archibald Vaughan Campbell, the third Earl Cawdor, and the greatest railway authority in Great Britain, died yesterday after a long illness. He was one of the two or three men blamed for the failure of the veto conference.

Hand Pocket Receiver.

London, Feb. 9.—Prof. Belar, of Laibach Observatory, has invented a cheap pocket aerograph receiver. Experiments on Tuesday resulted in successfully receiving messages from Malta, Paris and Clifden.

BILLS FOR UNION MEN

Sir James Whitney Brings In Two Labor Measures.

One Is For Protection of Workmen on Scaffolding and the Other Is For Inspection of Chinese Laundries—Proposal to Change Date of Municipal Elections Is Brought Up —Other Bills.

Toronto, Feb. 9.—Sir James Whitney introduced three bills at the Ontario Legislature yesterday afternoon, two of especial interest to labor organizations. The Prime Minister has given the question of accidents caused by defective scaffolding personal attention, and while in England last summer was a close observer of the methods for the protection of workmen.

One of his bills yesterday related to the protection of scaffolding. Sir James stated that after its second reading it would go to a special committee, before which employes and labor bodies will have an opportunity to discuss its provisions.

The other bill, which will be welcomed by labor organizations, moved by the Premier, provides that in future all laundries, including those run by Chinese, shall be open to inspection by the regular Factory Act inspectors.

W. H. Hoyle's bill to amend the Voters' Lists Act, gave rise to animated discussion. It contains two clauses. The first clause appeared to meet with approval. It provides that "the clerk shall forthwith, after posting up the list of appeals, deliver or transmit by post by registered letter, one copy of the list to each of the persons described in section 2," i.e., the official persons to whom ten copies of the voters' lists have to be sent.

The second clause was designed to change the word "may" to "shall" in the present law with respect to the reception of affidavits respecting appeals to be placed on the voters' list.

Hon. A. G. MacKay, Opposition leader, spoke favorably, stating that at present some judges accepted such affidavits as evidence, while others refused.

Sir James Whitney pronounced himself firmly opposed to the proposal as one which would compel a judge to accept as evidence affidavits made up by possibly unknown persons, and which, as evidence were utterly worthless.

Hon. W. J. Hanna said that in his constituency, in consequence of arrangement between the political parties, the judge accepted affidavits, while personally opposed to doing so. There was possibly a middle course which could be worked with in committee.

On that understanding the Government assented to the second reading, and a reference of the bill to the municipal committee.

A. Studholme, East Hamilton, moved the second reading of his bill to amend the Municipal Act. He stated that the bill expressed the views of the City Council of Hamilton, but its clause to have controllers hold office for two years, two retiring annually did not meet with his approval.

The bill also provides for elections of city councils and boards of education on New Year's Day in cities of 50,000 and over.

Mr. Studholme said that when outlying districts were added to a city, it was often found that the streets were mapped out in an irregular manner. "For this reason the bill provides that no plan of any survey or sub-division of any land, situated within two miles of the limits of any city having a population of 50,000 or over, shall be registered until such plan shall have been approved by the council of such city.

In the event of the said council not approving within 15 days after a copy thereof has been served on the clerk of said city, the judge of the county court, in the county in which said lands are situated, may, after notice to the council of the said city, make an order allowing the said plan to be filed.

The proposal of A. E. Donovan of Brockville to amend the Municipal Act to change the date of municipal elections from New Year's Day to the third Monday in January, was given its second reading and went to the municipal committee.

Mr. Donovan said he had written to 75 mayors and 67 reeves, and 98 per cent. were favorable. Also he had received letters from nine premiers of other Canadian provinces and all had replied that the proposal was a sound one.

Premier Whitney said the idea was good, but Mr. Donovan was wrong as to the time. If a change were to be made, December would be better than January. There was no time of the year as undesirable as the time proposed. However, the Government was not going to take sides as a Government at all.

C. A. Browser, East Elgin, introduced a bill to amend the Public Schools Act. The bill has but one clause, which reads:

"The school year should consist of two terms, the first of which shall begin on the first day of September and shall end on the 22nd of December; and the second of which shall begin on the 3rd of January and end on the 29th of June."

Hon. Dr. Pyne introduced the private bill of the Chartered Stenographers Association.

R. T. Shillington, Temiskaming, introduced the private bill for the Town of Cobalt, and G. W. Neely, East Middlesex, that for the Town of Petrolea.

A Rough Passage.

Halifax, Feb. 9.—"The worst experience I ever had in crossing the North Atlantic." This was the remark of the veteran Captain Rennie of the Allan Liner Corinthian, which got into port yesterday afternoon from Glasgow via Liverpool. The steamer lost one of the boats and a steward had his knee dislocated when thrown down by a sudden lurch of the ship.

NO ENCOURAGEMENT.

Hon. Mr. Fielding Turns Down Sheet Steel Makers.

Ottawa, Feb. 9.—Hon. W. S. Fielding, in replying to the demands of a deputation from Morrisburg, asking for a bounty on sheet steel, did not hold out very much encouragement that steel bounties will be renewed in any form. He said that, while the request would receive the serious consideration of himself and his colleagues he could not give any definite reply at the present time.

"You come to us," he said, "at a time when we are not anxious to extend our bounties, but are rather engaged in a noble effort to get rid of them." He went on to say that some of the iron and steel bounties had already expired, and that the majority of the members of the House were disposed to be hostile to the idea of the Government giving bounties of any kind. He added that the Government would not grant a bounty on goods for export. Should Canada do so the United States would immediately place a counterveiling duty on such products going into that country. The Government in the past had been obliged to decline to grant increased protection to the sheet steel industry because its product was the raw material of other manufacturers.

What the deputation asked was for a bounty of not less than five dollars a ton on sheet steel made in Canada, in view of the fact that the duty of five per cent. will be removed by the reciprocal agreement recently arrived at between Canada and the United States. It was pointed out by the members of the deputation who were introduced by Andrew Broder, M.P. for Dundas, that it was the aim of the town to establish a group of industries whose raw material is sheet steel. If a bounty were granted for five years the desired result would be attained.

Girl's Strange Disappearance.

Berlin, Feb. 9.—One of the strangest disappearance cases with which the German police have had to deal in many years has them completely baffled to-day. It is that involving the disappearance of Miss Margaret Damm, a young musical student from Omaha, Neb., who has been mysteriously missing since Jan. 24. Some of her friends believe that she has committed suicide, but as her body has not been found, the authorities are inclined to doubt this.

When Miss Damm left her lodgings on Jan. 24, she informed her landlady that she was going to Westphalia to visit her father, who was staying there then. However, she told different stories to various persons as to destination. Her last words to her landlady upon leaving her lodgings were: "I will write to you and the letter that you receive will astonish you."

Miss Damm was 26 years old, tall, pretty and of striking stature. While her father spent most of his time in Western Germany the rest of the family reside in Omaha.

Australia Alarmed.

Victoria, B.C., Feb. 9.—Advices were brought by the steamer Zealandia that much excitement was occasioned in Australia and New Zealand by the report that arrangements had been made by the French Nickle Mining Companies in New Caledonia, to bring 5,000 Japanese to the South Pacific Islands.

Mr. Fisher, Premier of Australia, in an interview, said the arrival of thousands of Japanese at Noumea was a matter of grave importance to Australia, owing to the danger of New Caledonia being made an intermediate settling ground for hordes of Japanese with Australia as the final destination.

Noumea correspondents state that the arrival of the first ship load of Japanese is causing disturbances. The bringing of the Japanese was arranged in France.

Winnipeg Teachers' Salaries Raised.

Winnipeg, Feb. 9.—The salaries of all the teachers, with the exception of the principals in the public schools, have been voluntarily raised. The new schedule places the schools of this city on a basis as high as that in any other city in America. The minimum for inexperienced teachers has been raised from $450 to $500. Regular teachers will be paid $650 to $800 for the first year, instead of $650 to $725. The maximum is to be reached at the end of the eighth year, instead of the ninth as before, and it will run from $900 to $1,000, instead of from $800 to $950.

Blaze In a Hospital.

Brockville, Feb. 9.—The matron and nurses of the General Hospital proved fire-fighters yesterday. An over-heated smoke pipe of a hot water furnace caused a blaze to get deep-seated in the window casing beneath the sun parlors. After ripping away the casing with improvised tools, the the ladies applied the chemical extinguishers recently installed by the governors. The whole thing was so neatly and quietly done that no alarm was caused among the patients of the institution.

Shot His Neighbor.

Vancouver, Feb. 9.—For a reason yet unexplained, J. Follett, a city laborer, living in a cabin in Fairview, yesterday morning shot and killed M. Norris, a well digger, who lives in a cabin next to his own. Follett then shot himself and was rushed to the hospital, where he lingered until yesterday afternoon, when he also died. When asked if he had done the shooting, Follett, although unable to articulate, nodded his head in the affirmative.

Ferry Crew Arrested.

Windsor, Feb. 9.—Practically the entire crew of the C. P. ferry Ontario, six in all, with the exception of the captain and mate, were placed under arrest yesterday, for robbing bonded freight cars in transit eastward.

Shot Six Generals.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, Feb. 9.—Gen. Millionard, the head of the revolutionary forces, and five other rebel generals, were taken from the prison at Trou and shot to death at eleven o'clock last night.

SUPREME COURT WORK.

How the Justices Prepare Decisions and Dissenting Opinions.

On Saturday evening each justice receives from the chief justice an envelope containing the names of the cases the chief justice has decided to allow the justice to write the opinions on, and the chief justice also notifies the justices of the hour of the conference on Monday morning. The conferences are usually held in the conference room under locked doors. The chief justice presides, and cases are taken up or postponed according to the wishes of the justices or their readiness to consider them. Each justice is furnished with a lock book, in which he may enter the details of a case, the record of the vote on conference and the final disposition. On a case being assigned by the chief justice to a justice to write the opinion of the court the opinion when written must be agreeable to the justices. If not the dissatisfied justice will promptly write a dissenting opinion. In some instances four of the justices have each written a dissenting opinion, but the usual custom is for one to write it and announce that the others concur.

Before a case is reached for argument the justices familiarize themselves with its records and briefs, and when one is directed to write the opinion he makes a study of the case, long or short, as its gravity demands. This may take a few days or months. The opinion is dictated, and after being typewritten it is corrected, boiled down and revised; another copy is then made, further revised and sent to the printer. In order that the compositors who set the type may not know the decision of the case the foreman sets up the last few lines of the opinion, locks them in a safe, and after the opinion is set up he adds them to it, takes two proofs and forwards them under lock and key to the justice. It is again read and revised and sometimes completely altered and returned to the printer, corrected by the latter and nine revises sent to the justice.

If the opinion is now satisfactory to the justice a copy is mailed to each member of the court. These are returned to the justice with the notations of the justices, and the opinion is revised or changed, if need be, to conform to their views. If there be a dissenting opinion the justice writing the majority opinion holds it until the dissent is completed.

Then on some Monday, the court being in session, the justice announces an opinion in the case, giving its number and title, and then proceeds to read it at length to the dozen people who may be present. If there be a dissenting opinion the justice writing the dissent reads it and announces the names of the justices who concur with him. Afterward the official reporter of the court sends a verified copy of the opinion to the publishers of the United States supreme court reports, and the case finally becomes one of thousands in the law libraries to be read and reread if of moment or to be forgotten if mere detail.—Independent.

The Ring In Denmark.

The maidens of Denmark never receive a diamond engagement ring. They are always presented with a plain gold band, which is worn on the third finger of the left hand. On the wedding day the bridegroom changes the ring to the right third finger, which is the marriage finger in that country.

MISS VIVIEN GOULD WEDS LORD DECIES

Brilliant Assemblage Witnessed Ceremony in St. Bartholomew's, New York—Church a Mass of Bloom—After the Wedding Lord and Lady Decies Posed Before a Battery of Cameras

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—Helen Vivien second daughter of George J. Gould head of one of the wealthiest and most prominent families in the United States was married at St. Bartholomew's Episcopal church in Madison Avenue, shortly after four o'clock this afternoon to Lord Decies, an English Army officer. She is 18; he is 44.

The church was packed with a brilliant assemblage, representing the best of New York's social and professional life, together with a sprinkling of foreign nobility, relatives and friends of the bridegroom. Outside in the slushy streets there pushed and shoved the usual crowd of curious persons whose persistency makes police arrangements such a necessary part of a fashionable wedding in New York. Yet, not withstanding the crowd, there was no untoward inci- and none of the many cranks who have assailed Lord Decies in anonymous communications made themselves known. The ceremony was performed by Bishop David Greer, of the Episcopal diocese of New York, and the Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks, rector of St. Bartholomew's. George Gould gave his daughter away, and Miss Edith Gould, the bride's next oldest sister, was maid of honor. Lord Alaister Graham, R. N., a son of the Duke of Montrose, was best man.

The church was profusely decorated and the color scheme was green and white. At the entrance of every third pew stood tall vases, twined with asparagus and filled with 100 Easter lilies and marguerites. The chancel was a mass of spring blossoms and on either side of the altar stood tall palms for a background. Banked against them were white lilac trees tall calla lilies, apple blossoms and marguerites.

Long before four o'clock more than 100 patrolmen and detectives were on their way to the church. At half past two o'clock they were stationed a half a block from the church, in all directions and established a zone through which only the chosen might pass. Vehicular traffic was diverted through parallel thoroughfares, and the street cars which run down Madison Avenue past St. Bartholomew's whizzed past without a stop. Dozens of persons on the way to the Grand Central station—all of them in a hurry, they said,—were bounced off the police lines to scramble through side streets to the station.

The guests began to assemble more than an hour before the wedding. A few were admitted, but through a hitch in the arrangements more than 100 shivered outside the church door on the sidewalk for a quarter of an horu. At 3.15 Lord Decies arrived, nearly an hour before his bride's car stopped at the curb. He was resplendent in his uniform of the Seventh Hussars, aglitter with service medals and blue and gold braid. He carried a plumed helmet in the crook of his arm and wore a sabre.

Unnoticed by most of the crowd, he entered the church, surrounded by a group of friends, who were apparently taking no chances with the cranks. He was as calm as a soldier should be but a bit perturbed lest the crowd should jostle the bride-to-be on her arrival. The police arrangements had been planned carefully, however, the line held and there was no rushing of a bridal party such as occured when Marjorie Gould married Anthony J. Drexel, last year.

A cheer went up as George Gould and his daughter stepped from a big limousine car and entered the church and as they did so the first sunshine of the day peeped forth. A moment later the notes of the wddieng march sounded. This was 4.13 and Lord Decies and his best man appeared at the chancel. The six bridesmaids carrying lilies-of-the-valley, led the bridal party. They were followed by the little attendants, Bab Gloria Gould, with Master William Beresford, and Dianna Dalziell, with Master Marcus Beresford. Miss Edith Gould as maid of honor, came next immediately preceding the bride and her father. The ceremony was over in 23 minutes, and Lord Decies posed for a moment for a battery of cameras before their car whisked them away to the reception at the Gould mansion on Fifth Avenue.

Blood-Poisoning after a Cut.

Zam-Buk Saved His Finger.

Mr. Albert Brennan, butcher, of 141 Lindsay Ave., Toronto, has good cause to be thankful for Zam-Buk! While at work, he cut the middle finger of the left hand rather badly, but did not think that any serious consequences would follow. Some disease germs—of which the air is full—entered the wound, however, and next day the finger was swollen and painful. He bathed it in hot water and applied ordinary ointment ,but the pain got worse, and the swelling continued. not only so, but the area of the inflammation extended, until from the finger to the elbow it was inflamed and sore, and he knew that blood-poisoning had set in. He had to give up his ordinary work and suffered acute pain.

Finally he decided to enter St. Michael's Hospital, but just before doing so, having mentioned the intention to a friend, the latter advised him to try Zam-Buk. Mr. Brennan acted on this advice, and soon proved Zam-Buk's great value. He says: "It cured the pain almost as soon as applied, and within a day of first commencing the Zam-Buk treatment, I was back at work' Of course, I don't mean that in that time the wound was healed, but the pain had gone and the danger from blood-poisoning was averted. After that, healing was only a matter of a short time under the beneficial operaion of Zam-Buk. I have no hesitation in saying that Zam-Buk saved my finger, and I am very glad to let you state these simple facts publicly, in the interests of other workers, liable to similar accidents."

Zam-Buk is equally effective for piles, ulcers, abscesses, eruptions, ringworm, children's rashes, scalp sores, chapped hands, frost bite and cold sores. Every housewife should keep a supply handy, and no mother should be without it in the home. Sold by all druggists and stores, 50c. box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Refuse substitutes.

TO BEGIN ON LINE IN NEW ONTARIO

CanadianNorthern Railway May Start Construction--to Bring Over Laborers

Construction is expected to commence in about three months on the Canadian Northern Ontario Railway east from Port Arthur to overcome the gap in the system in New Ontario of 500 miles between Sudbury and Port Arthur.

This report was current in Canadian Northern Railway circles yesterday. Location of the line has been completed, and it is intended to conduct the laying of the steel from both terminals. It will take about three years to complete construction and have the line ready for traffic.

The new railway will open up the clay belt in New Ontario for settlement.

The company will begin the placing of settlers on the six million acres granted by the province in this clay belt for the building of the road shortly after construction has been started and settlers will be brought out from the British Isles and the land sold to them on liberal terms. The company will obtain most of its laborers for the work from Great Britain, and many of these, it is expected, will settle on the land when the line is finished.

Mr. Thomas Howell, General Immigration Agent of the C. N. R., who is in England, reports a great number of applicants for immigration to Canado.

Laborers will also be brought over this summer for work on the lines of the system on the prairies and in British Columbia.

All the work connected with the function of vision is done in the base of the brain. We do not see in the eye. It is simply a mechanical instrument similar to a photographic camera for focusing the rays of light on its posterior part, the retina. From here these delicate impressions are conveyed over nerve fibres to the gray matter cells lying in the outer part of the posterior portion of the brain. It is in the back of the brain that vision takes place, that the photograph is printed. This is the largest center in the entire nervous system. To this we must also add the centers that govern the movements and adjustment of the eye for far and near vision. The center that governs the focusing of the eye lies in the third ventricle; the cells governing the converging of the eyes

ROYAL TOUR IS PLANNED

LONDON, Feb. 7.—King George V., after his coronation in due and ancient form, is expected to make an extensive tour of his dominions, visiting probably India, Australia, South Africa and Canada and taking Queen Mary along.

While he will get a gorgeous welcome everywhere, it is likely that Canada will outdo itself in the warmth and spontaneity of its receptions. If King George does make a progress through his dominions he will, it is expected, leave his uncle, the Duke of Connaught, or some of the royal family, in charge in London, though keeping in close touch himself by wireless. And if King George does make the big trip it will only be in accordance with his known liking for travel and sightseeing. In 1879-80 he cruised on the Bacchante; in 1880-81 he repeated; in 1888 he visited King George in Greece and the Khedive in Egypt; in 1890 he opened the Jamaica Exhibition; in 1891 he visited Russia with his father; in 1897 and 1899 he made tours of Ireland; in 1901 he toured the empire; in 1905 he toured India, and in 1908 he visited Canada for the Quebec tercentenary.

Despite reports to the contrary there will be no visits to European courts by King George and Queen Mary this year. It is felt in many quarters that a trip to Germany would go a long way towards removing some of the bitterness that exists between the two countries. But with the coronation and his trip to India in the year, King George will have quite enough on his hands for the next twelve months.

Furthermore it is important that King George be in England during the next few months because of the unsettled condition of English politics and the possibility that he will be called on at any minute to take a hand in creating new peers.

So, it is plain that any visit to Canada will not likely be made before late autumn this year or early spring in 1912.

CRIMINIAL DEPORTED BY CANADA

LONDON, Feb. 7. — Mr. Justice Grantham sentenced at Liverpool to-day Arthur Baker, accountant, to five years for forgery. The prisoner had been sentenced to three years in Toronto and had been deported after serving one. Referring to this the Judge said: "That is the sort of reciprocity Canada has for England, sending her criminals over here to be punished in other matters, while she seeks reciprocity with the United States."

OPERATIONS AVOIDED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Belleriver, Que.—"Without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I would not be alive. For five months I had painful and irregular periods and inflammation of the uterus. I suffered like a martyr and thought often of death. I consulted two doctors who could do nothing for me. I went to a hospital, and the best doctors said I must submit to an operation, because I had a tumor. I went back home much discouraged. One of my cousins advised me to take your Compound, as it had cured her. I did so and soon commenced to feel better, and my appetite came back with the first bottle. Now I feel no pain and am cured. Your remedy is deserving of praise."—Mrs. EMMA CHATEL, Valleyfield, Belleriver, Quebec.

Another Operation Avoided.

Poughkeepsie, N.Y.—I run a sewing machine in a large factory and got all run down. I had to give up work for I could not stand the pains in my back. The doctor said I needed an operation for womb trouble but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did more for me than the doctors did. I have gained five pounds. I hope that every one who is suffering from female trouble, nervousness and backache will take the Compound. I owe my thanks to Mrs. Pinkham. She is the working girl's friend for health, and all women who suffer should write to her and take her advice.—MISS TILLIE PLENZIG, 3 Jay St., Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases.

TOUCHY SERVANTS.

Japanese Nesans Have to Be Handled With Gloves of Velvet.

Japanese servants must be treated with tact, however trying they may be, and often they are very trying indeed, especially the nesans, who are usually untidy, cross and lazy. Yet the dear little things have admirers who praise their kittenish ways, their tiny hands and even, of all things, their artistic temperaments.

A certain writer solemnly says: "A Japanese nesan—any nesan, even one in a hotel—will set out your hairbrushes, clothesbrushes, nail scissors, collar box and tooth powder on the average hotel dressing table and make a design of them—a picture, an artistic whole." All I can say is that no nesan has ever arranged studies of still life with the nail scissors and the tooth powder for me, though, possibly by way of compensation, one has started little lakes of boiling water on my carpet when I rang for you, or toppled over the morning tea tray and arranged the fragments in an unconventional design on my bed quilt, or dragged a table with scrapings in a minor key the whole length of the veranda.

If corrected roughly the maiden will first cry and then leave. The hotel manager is well aware of this—aware with all the nervous perception of a person whom one hasty or ill considered sentence can throw into a situation seriously threatening his comfort and prosperity; hence his attitude of habitual meekness. He dares not let his little lecture slide over the line which divides it from a scolding and is careful to deliver a necessary exhortation with a smiling face and frequent laughs just to show that it is really not a scolding at all.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Her Secret

Why She Always Looked So Young

Everyone refers to her as one of the most attractive women in town. It wasn't her features, for while regular, they were not unusual. But the charm lay in the head of splendid, vigorous hair that made a veritable crown. It had that peculiar lustre and the sun gave it an added brilliance —you couldn't look at her without unconsciously commenting on the beauty of her hair.

When asked how she kept it so beautiful she replied that it was no secret, simply proper shampooing, regular combing and the conscientious use of Hirsutone. She admitted it had not always been in that condition, but that she found Hirsutone the best thing she ever got for the hair. It gave the scalp such a cool, refreshed feeling, and the hair was so much easier to dress after its use.

There are plenty of heads that would be just as attractive for Hirsutone soon brings the hair and scalp into good condition.

Your Nyal Drug Store will cheerfully guarantee Hirsutone to do all that is claimed for it, and every woman owes it to herself to try it.

THE RED YEAR

A Story of the Indian Mutiny

—By—

LOUIS TRACY

Copyright by McLeod & Allen

And he made excellent progress. Eight miles from Meerut, in a tiny village of mud hovels which horse and rider had every reason to remember, they suddenly dashed into a large company of mounted men and a motley collection of vehicles. There were voices raised, too, in heated dispute, and a small crowd was gathered near a lumbering carriage, whose tawdry trappings and display of gold work betokened the state equipage of some native dignitary.

Drawn up by its side was a European traveling barouche, empty, but Malcolm's keen eyes soon picked out the figures of Winifred and her uncle, standing in the midst of an excited crowd of natives. So great was the hubbub that he was not noticed until he pulled up.

"I have come to bring you back to Meerut, Mr. Mayne," he cried. "The mutiny has been quelled. Our troops are in command of the station and of all the main roads. You can return without the slightest risk, I assure you."

He spoke clearly and slowly, well knowing that some among the natives would understand him. His appearance, no less than his words, created a rare stir. The clamor of tongues was stilled. Men looked at him as though he had fallen from the sky. He could not be certain, but he guessed, that he had arrived at a critical moment. Indeed, the lives of his friends were actually in deadliest jeopardy, and there was no knowing what turn the events of the next minute might have taken. But a glance at Winifred's distraught face told him a good deal. He must be bold, with the careless boldness of the man who has the means of making his will respected.

"Stand aside there!" he said in Hindustani. "And you had better clear the roadway. A troop of cavalry is riding fast behind."

He dismounted, drew Nejdi's bridle over his left arm, and went towards Winifred. The girl looked at him with a wistfulness that was pitiful. Hope was struggling in her soul against the fear of grim death.

"Oh, Frank!" she sighed, holding out both her hands, "Oh, Frank, I am so frightened. We had a dreadful time at the bungalow, and these men look so fierce and cruel! Have you really brought help?"

"Yes," he said confidently. "You need have no further anxiety. Please get into your carriage."

Mr. Mayne said something, but Malcolm never knew what it was, for Winifred fainted, and would have fallen had he not caught her.

"This Feringhi has a loud voice," a man near him growled. "He talks of cavalry. Where are they?"

"The Meerut road is empty," commented another.

"We have the Begum's orders," said the first speaker, more loudly. "Let us obey, or it may be an evil thing for us."

"One of the daughters of Bahadur Shah is here," murmured Mayne rapidly. "She says we are to be taken to Delhi, and slain if we resist. Where are your men? My poor niece! to think that I should have brought her from England for this!"

Malcolm, still holding Winifred's unconscious form clasped to his breast, laughed loudly.

"Mayne-sahib tells me that you have all gone mad," he shouted in the vernacular. "Have you no ears? Did you not hear the British artillery firing on the rebels a little time since? Ere day breaks the road to Delhi will be held by the white troops. What foolish talk is this of taking Mayne-sahib thither as a prisoner?"

The door of the bedizened traveling-coach was flung open, and the Mohammedan lady who had befriended Frank when he fell into the moat appeared. She alighted, and her aggressive servants drew away somewhat.

"It is my order," she said imperiously. "Who are you that you should dispute it?"

"I regret the heat of my words, Princess," he replied, grasping the frail chance that presented itself of wriggling out of a desperate situation. "Nevertheless, it is true that the native regiments at Meerut have been dispersed, and you yourself may have heard the guns as they advanced along the Delhi road. Why should I be here otherwise? I came to escort my friends back to Meerut."

The Princess came nearer. In the brilliant moonlight she had an unearthly beauty—at once weird and Sybilline—but her animated features were chilled with disdain, and she pointed to the girl whose pallid face lay against Frang's shoulder.

"You are lying," she said. "You are not the first man who has lied for a woman's sake. That is why you are here."

"Princess, I have spoken nothing but the truth," he answered. "If you still doubt my word, let some of your men ride back with us. They will soon convince you. Perchance, the information may not be without its value to you also."

The thrust was daring but she parried it adroitly.

"No matter what has happened in Meerut, the destined end is the same," she retorted. Then she fired into subdued passion. "The British Raj is doomed," she muttered, lowering her voice, and bringing her magnificent eyes close to his. "It is gone, like an evil dream. Listen, Malcolm-sahib. You are a young man, and ambitious. They say you are a good soldier. Come with me. I want some one I can trust. Though I am a king's daughter, there are difficulties in my path that call for a sword in the hands of a man not afraid to use it. Come! Let that weakling girl go where she lists—I care not. I offer you life, and wealth, and a career. She will lead you to death. What say you? Choose quickly. I am now going to Delhi, and to morrow's sun shall see my father a king in reality as well as in name."

Malcolm's first impression was that the Princess had lost her senses. He had yet to learn how completely the supporters of the Mogul dynasty were convinced of the approaching down fall of British supremacy in India. But his active brain fastened on to two considerations of exceeding importance. By temporizing, by misleading this arrogant woman, if necessary, he might not only secure freedom for Winifred and Mayne, but gather most valuable information as to the immediate plans of the rebels.

"Your words are tempting to a soldier of fortune, Princess," he said.

"Malcolm—" broke in Mayne, who, of course, understood all that passed.

"For Heaven's sake do not interfere," said Frank in English. "Suffer my friends to depart, Princess," he went on in Persian. "It is better so. Then I shall await your instructions."

"Ah, you agree, then? That is good hearing. Yet, your white doll can go, and the gray-beard, too. Ere many days have passed there will be no place for them in all India."

A commotion among the ring of soldiers and servants interrupted her. The stout, important-looking man whom Malcolm had seen in the hunting lodge on the occasion of his ducking, came towards them with hurried strides. The Princess seemed to be disconcerted by his arrival. Her expressive face betrayed her. Sullen anger, not unmixed with fear, robbed her of her good looks. Her whole aspect changed. She had the cowed appearance of one of her own serving-women.

"Remember!" she murmured. "You must obey me, none else. Come when I send for you!"

The man, who now carried on his forehead the insignia of a Brahmin, had no sooner reached the small space between the carriages than Mr. Mayne cried delightedly to Malcolm:

"Why, if this is not Nana Sahib! Here is a piece of good luck! I know him well. If he has any control over this mob, we are perfectly safe."

Nana Sahib acknowledged the Commissioner's greeting with smiling politeness. But first he held a whispered colloquy with the Princess, whom he entreated, or persuaded, to re-enter her gorgeous vehicle. She drove away without another glance at Malcolm. Perhaps she did not dare to show her favor in the newcomer's presence.

Then Nana Sahib turned to the Europeans.

"Let the miss-sahib be placed in her carriage," he said suavely. "She will soon revive in the air, and we march at once for Aligarh. Will you accept my escort thus far, Mayne-sahib, or farther south, if you wish it? I think you will be safer with me than in taking the Meerut road to-night."

Mayne agreed gladly. The commanding influence of this highly placed nobleman, who, despite an adverse decision of the Government was regarded by every Mahratta as Peishwa, the ruler of the vast territory in Western India, seemed to offer more stable support that night than the broken reed of British authority at Meerut. Moreover, the Commissioner wished to reach Lucknow without delay. If the country were in for a period of disturbance, his duty lay there and he was planning already to send Winifred to Calcutta from Cawnpore annd thence to England until the time of political trouble had passed.

"I am sure I am doing right," he said in answer to Frank's remonstrances. "Don't you understand, a native in Nana Sahib's position must be well informed as to the exact position of affairs. By helping me he is safeguarding himself. I am only too thankful he was able to subdue that fiery harpy, the Begum. She threatened me in the most outrageous manner before you came. Of course Winifred and I will be everlastingly grateful to you for coming to our assistance. You are alone, I suppose?"

"Yes, though some of our troopers may turn up any minute."

CRIPPLE FROM RHEUMATISM

NOW IN PERFECT HEALTH THANKS TO "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 1st. 1910.

"I am well acquainted with a man, known to thousands in Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster, who for nearly a year was practically a cripple from Rheumatism. He was so troubled with the disease that he found it difficult to even turn over in bed. His heart appeared so weak that he could hardly walk up stairs.

Last June, he received a sample of "Fruit-a-tives". He used them and dates his recovery from that time. To-day, there is no man in Vancouver enjoying better health.

He was building a house this fall and shingled a good part of the roof in a driving rain, without suffering any bad effects". JOHN B. LACY.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Feb. 8.—The railways reported 44 carloads of live stock at the City Market, consisting of 721 cattle, 994 hogs, 262 sheep and lambs and 68 calves.

Butchers.

Geo. Rowntree, who bought 98 cattle, quoted prices as follows: Good to prime steers and heifers, $5.65 to $6.25; cows, $3 to $5.20; bulls, $3 to $5.20.

Milkers and Springers.

Milkers and springers sold at $40 to $65 for the bulk, $70 being reported for a very few.

Veal Calves.

Prices firm, at $2.50 to $8.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Wesley Dunn reported prices as follows: Sheep, ewes, $4.25 to $4.75; rams, $3.50 to $4 per cwt.; lambs, $6 to $6.50 per cwt.

Hogs.

Hog prices were unchanged, at $7.40 for selects, fed and watered at the market, and $7.15 to drovers for hogs f.o.b. cars at country points. This means that the farmer would get $7 per cwt. for his hogs.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Feb. 8.—At the Montreal stock yards, West End Market, the offerings of live stock this morning were 600 cattle, 50 sheep and lambs, 1300 hogs and 100 calves.

Owing to the heavy snowstorm which prevailed thruout the country yesterday the returns of live stock were delayed in arriving, and in consequence supplies of cattle on the market were small, which created a much firmer feeling, but there was no actual advance in prices. The demand was good and a fairly active trade was done. Choice steers sold at 6¾c; good, at 6¼c to 6½c; fairly good, at 5¾c to 6c; fair, at 5¼c to 5½c, and the lower grades at 4½c to 5c per lb.

The trade in sheep and lambs was very quiet on account of the limited supplies offered and prices ruled firm. Sheep sold at 4¼c to 4½c and lambs, at 6¼c to 6½c per pound. The market for hogs opened stronger, $8 per cwt. for selected lots, weighed off cars, but as supplies turned out to be much larger than was generally expected the impression was that the above figures would not be maintained, as packers showed little disposition to operate freely, having sufficient on hand for their requirements for the balance of this week. The demand for calves was good and sales were made at prices ranging from $3 to $15 each, as to size and quality.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Cattle—Receipts, 17,000; market steady; beeves, $5 to $6.85; Texas steers, $4.10 to $5.50; western steers, $4.40 to $5.70; stockers and feeders, $3.85 to $5.90; cows and heifers, $2.65 to $5.80; calves, $6.75 to $9.

Hogs—Receipts, 36,000; market slow, weak, 10c lower; light, $7.50 to $7.75; mixed, $7.35 to $7.70; heavy, $7.15 to $7.60; rough, $7.15 to $7.30; good to choice hogs, $7.30 to $7.60; pigs, $7.50 to $7.85; bulk of sales, $7.55 to $7.65.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 22,000; market weak; native, $2.50 to $4.25; western $2.50 to $4.35; yearlings, $4.50 to $5.4

Last year 32,000 London school children were taught to swim, and over 7,000,000 free meals were provided for the little ones.

ORIENTAL DANCE AT EVANGELIST MEETING

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—A thousand men and women who went to the Grand Opera House. Brooklyn, yesterday for the first of the noon meetings of the Chapman-Alexander evangelistic campaign, were horrified when a young woman pranced out upon the stage and performed the Oriental dance.

As soon as the dancer appeared men sat bolt upright, then leaned orward and were evidently entranced by her movements. It was 20 minutes beore the dancing was finished and the woman left the stage.

Then Rev. Clelland B. McAfee, chairman of the meetings, said a terrible mistake had been made. The young woman had been rehearsing, he said, but the manager of the house had promised to cancel all other morning rehearsals on days when meetings were to be held.

THE WINNING CANDIDATES WILL BE THOSE WHO HUSTLE EVERY DAY

The Uncertainity, Which is One of the Most Absorbing Features of the Contest, Will Continue to the End—Candidates Keeping Their Reserve Strength to Themselves—Miss Gertrude Yourex Takes Lead in District No 1

The battle of the ballots goes merrily on. One of the most interesting developments of the contest is the uncertainty as to the final outcome which has been generated by the reserve vote held by some of the candidates.

The number of votes held in reserve by some of the candidates is furnishing an engrossing topic for speculation on the part of other candidates, and the very uncertainty created by the reserve forces is forcing every one of the contestants to the utmost endeavor.

There is no way of ascertaining how many votes are being held in reserve by any of the candidates, and while the contest department will continue to regard such knowledge as it may have in this connection as sacredly confidential, some surprises may be looked for when the time arrives for the contestants to show the full strength of their hands. There are some who have not yet figured among the leaders who may be expected to jump towards the top most any day.

And that is why we urge every candidate to improve every opportunity to secure votes and subscriptions. The weather we are now enjoying is ideal. No more favorable condition for the pleasant work of the contest could be desired, and it is more than likely that the efforts put forth during these days will have much to do with deciding the award of the prizes on March 25th.

HOW BALLOTS ARE SECURED.

In all cases where vote certificates are issued, subscriptions must be paid in advance. The full amount of money must be sent direct by mail, paid to the contestant, or brought to this office.

COST OF RECIPROCITY

Effects of Treaty of 1854-66 Were Disastrous to Canadian Interests

TORONTO, Feb. 8.—The Canadian Century publishes a remarkable article written by Mr. George D. Griffin, of Toronto, in his eighty-sixth year, on the reciprocity treaty of 1854, between Canada and the United States, and its effects on Canadian conditions. Through the manufacturing concerns of his father, who founded the village of Waterdown in 1828, and established there a store mills and factories, and from 1849 in his iron, woolen mills, foundry, flour mills and other industries, Mr. Griffin stated that "he had a clear memory of the industrial and financial conditions of Canada form 1838 to 1854 and of the conditions during the treaty and the conditions from its termination to the present time—that is, 72 years. This exceeds the ordinary span of human life and gives Mr. Griffin's article, in addition to its intrinsic value and importance, an unusual personal interest. He was also able to draw upon a large amount of statistics, which he commenced to publish in his Canadian Quarterly Review of October 1863, and continued in his Dominion Watchman, from and including the years 1876 to 1879.

Contrary to common belief Mr. Griffin held that the government returns proved that the reciprocity was most disastrous for Canada, industrially commercially and financially. He pointed for example to the Canadian carrying trade on the St. Lawrence which dropped from $33,633,128 in 1854, to $15,208,600 in 1855, the first year of the treaty, while the canal tolls showed a decrease of $35,000, or thirty-two per cent. Large decrease also occurred in the tonnage of shipping enterprises and leaving the St Lawrence, while the total value of the exports and imports at the ports of Montreal and Quebec fell from about $42,000,000 in 1854, to $28,000,000 in 1855. Mr. Griffin called for production by the Government of what he termed a reciprocity balance sheet, showing the treaty to have been the "unmixed benefit" to Canada which is usually claimed by free trade organs.' Speaking from his own personal knowledge from Sarnia to Quebec, Mr. Griffin affirmed that great reductions took place in farm village, town and city property during the early years of the treaty. He refers also to the prejudicial effect of the treaty on the Grand Trunk Railway and the enormous loss sustained by Canada through the advances made to sustain that road and the accruing interest.

(Intelligencer Special)

LONDON, Feb. 10.—Frederick Weldon, who recently used a razor in an effort to extort money from Sir Thomas Lipton, was fined five pounds or one month in jail.

QUEBEC BEAVERS CAUSING TROUBLE

QUEBEC, Feb. 8.—Beavers are becoming very troublesome again in Quebec. A Government bill read the second time at the meeting of the House this afternoon concerns the killing of these hardy animals, under certain conditions. According to law they are protected until 1912 from trappers, but Hon. Mr. Taschereau Minister of Public Works, who had charge of the bill in the absence of the Hon. Mr. Devlin, informed the members that in certain instances beavers were causing considerable damage. They were damming up rivers which caused the country to be flooded, and they were also stopping the flow o certain streams. They were, in fact, coming back to the ancient position. The bill accordingly authorizes the shooting of these beavers where it was judged necessary by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council.

CURRENT COMMENTS.

In the six years that the New York subway has been in operation, the fares collected have paid the cost of construction and $7,000,000 more. This does not allow for the expense of operation, but it shows the tremendous number of nickels that New Yorkers expend for carfare.

Before the legislature finishes its work this session there will probably be upon the statute books an amending act changing the date of municipal elections throughout the Province. For session after session the question of changing the date has occupied the attention of one legislator or another without receiving the serious consideratin of the House, but on Wednesday it was under discussion for nearly an hour and a half. A dozen members, among them Mr. Johnson, had something to say about it, generally of a favorable nature.

JOHN BULL & SONS.

"We have chosen deliberately to be members of the firm of John Bull & Sons. Our prosperity and our nationhood dates from the McKinley tariff. While we are friends we are trade rivals. What a pity to take risks that would lead to the disintegration of the Empire."—Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P. West Hastings, in the Legislature.

In the Public Accounts Committee at Ottawa on the 8th inst. that dredging job at Dalhousie, N.B., again occupied the attention of the committee at morning. Geoffrey Stead, district engineer, said that the work done in 1908 was opposite the wharf of the Dalhousie Lumber Co. In 1905, he estimated the work at 15 cents per cubic yard. In 1908, he certified the Loggie account at 50 cents as fair and reasonable but, in explanation, said the price had ben fixed by contract. A renewal contract had been made with the Loggie firm at 29 1-2 cents. In answer to Mr. Crocket, Mr. Stead said Loggies had been receiving 35 cents for dredging in Miramichi Bay, and under the new contract, after public competition, were receiving 11 cents. And "that's the way the money goes."

LINDSAY LADY IS COMING TO BELLEVILLE

Miss Mabel Sharpe, Fair Ave., who has been the efficient and painstaking bookkeeper for The Warder for a number of years past, has resigned that position to accept a similar position with The Belleville Intelligencer of Belleville, Ont. and will leave for the eastern city on Thursday morning of next week.

In leaving this office Miss Sharpe takes with her the hearty good will and esteem of all hands, from the proprietor and manager down to the office boy, and all wish her every success in her new field of labor. Miss Sharpe, while employed at The Warder office fulfilled her duties with exactness and precision and with much credit to herself. She has a large circle of friends and acquaintances in Lindsay and throughout the county who will regret to hear of her intended departure, but will at the same time be pleased to know that she is accepting a responsible and lucrative position in Belleville.

Miss Florence E. Way has been engaged by The Warder as bookkeeper, to succeed Miss Sharpe.—Daily Warder, Lindsay.

AMERICAN GIRL A FINE SINGER.

A few years ago critics said that there were no more coloratura sopranos, but Tetriazzirri with her wonderful flute-like notes electrified the world. People flocked to hear her from everywhere and for the past year and to the present time, she is the sensation of the musical world. Now comes an American girl, Miss Grace Nelson, whom the foremost critics declare to be the latest discovery among coloratura sopranos.

Joseph F. Sheehan, the famous tenor, while in Europe last summer heard Miss Nelson sing and was immediately impressed with the fact that here was an ideal Leonora for his all star cast production of Verdi's great opera, "Il Trovatore." It was only after many weeks that he secured her from her European contract and engaged her for his company.

Miss Grace Nelson will be heard at the Griffin Opera House Monday evening, Feb. 13, when the Sheehan English Grand Opera Company comes here for a performance of "Il Trovatore."

Four Frenchmen Disorderly on G. T. R. Punished by Mayor Ackerman

Between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock this morning a telephone message was received at the Police Station that the services of one or more members of the force were wanted immediately at the G.T.R. station. Two of the officers responded and in about an hours time returned to the police station having in custody four young Frenchmen, named Xavier Servias, Maurice Dubois, August and Albert Matte, the oldest being but 20 years of age.

It appears the parties boarded the east bound express at Trenton and were considerably under the influence of liquor. Whilst on the train from Trenton to this city it was alleged that they acted in a most disorderly manner, frightening some of the passengers who were in the same car. Upon the arrival of the train here they were put off and the police notified.

This morning they were brought up before Mayor Ackerman, acting as magistrate and through Servias, the only one who could talk English, pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly. They were fined $10 and costs each, which fine they paid. They were enroute to Quebec City and all were supplied with means.

AN UNFOUNDED RUMOR

THEIR FORTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Late Mrs. N. Jones' Bible Class Had Fine Celebration Last Night

The 40th anniversary of the organization of the Adult Bible Class in the Bridge Street Methodist Sunday School, of which the late Mrs. Nathan Jones was the first teacher, was commemorated last night by a banquet in the Sunday School rooms. Mr. C. M. Reid, the assistant teacher of the class was the versatile chairman.

"Wallace, caterer," has come to be a guarantee of the excellence of the viands.

The guests of honor were the Rev Benjamin Greatrix, Vice-President of the Bay of Quinte Conference, and the Rev. H. Bruce Kenny, two pasters of two Methodist churches in the city, both of whom had been brought into the church largely through the influence of this class' first teacher Mrs. Jones.

The teachers of the class during its two score years of its life have been Mrs. Jones for fourteen years; Mr. Thomas. S. Clarke; Mr. J. Hutton, and now for four years, Mr. Henry Pringle

After "The King" the toast list, and those who responded to the toasts were : "The British Empire,"—Mr Gordon Reid; "Canada"—Mr. Harry Dickens; "This Church"—Rev. Dr Bishop; "This Sunday School"—Mr. Wm. Johnson; "This Class"— Mr Henry Pringle; "Its Officers"— Mr Blake Chown. Mr. S. Burrows rendered a vocal solo, Mr. Clayton Rose, a piano solo. The list of volunteer speakers embraced everyone present and proved one of the most entertaining parts of the evening.

Two photographs of Mrs. Jones were exhibited and the constant references to her by the many speakers proved "that though dead, she yet speaketh."

The officers of the class are : President, Mr. T. A. LaRiche; Teacher, Mr. Henry Pringle; Assistant Teacher Mr. Chas. M. Reid; Secretary, Mr Harry Dickens; Treasurer, Mr. Nathan Jones; who, appropriately was one of the numerous speakers.

A MADOC MAN BEAT HIS BROTHER

Samuel Reeves, a resident of Madoc Township, was this morning before Judge Deroche convicted of assaulting his brother, Richard. It appears that Samuel was intoxicated at the time he assaulted his brother and repented of his action. The assault was not of a very serious nature. Reeves was allowed to go upon a suspended sentence being given him which he will never serve if he behaves himself. Mr. Anderson for the Crown; Mr. Carnew for the accused.

OBSEQUIES OF LATE MRS. F. R. LINGHAM

Impressive Ceremony at St. Thomas—Many Beautiful Tokens of Esteem

Many citizens of all ranks in society were this afternoon in attendance at the obsequies of the late Mrs. Frederick R. Lingham. The pupils of St. Agnes School at which the deceased was the directress, attended in a body and acted as floral bearers. At 2.30 the cortege left the family residence on John St. and proceeded to St. Thomas Church, where the impressive burial services of the Anglican Church were conducted by the Rector, Rev. Rural Dean Beamish. The Church Choir assisted in the service, during which the sacred edifice was filled with sympathizing friends. The floral tributes were not only numerous, but many were magnificent in design which evidenced that the deceased had many friends who in this manner desired to attest their esteem for her. After the service the cortege was reformed and proceeded to the Belleville Cemetery, where interment took place. The bearers were Messrs. J. W. Walker, C. M. Stork, D. M. Waters, A. McGinnis, John Taylor and J. G. Phippen.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON DRAINAGE

A public illustrated lecture, relating to drainage will be held in the Town Hall, Stirling, at 8 p. m., Tuesday, Feb. 14th. Mr. W. R. Reek, B S. A., drainage expert from the Ontario Agricultural College will deliver the address.

Every farmer who is in any way interested in drainage should not miss this opportunity of hearing a man like Mr. Reek, who has had a great deal of practical experience in drainage work.

The slides will illustrate the actual benefits derived from drainage on farms throughout the Province. Mr. Reek will also be in a position to give information on traction ditching machines, as he has been personally interested with the working of three of these machines in Western Ontario. It is expected that he farmers of Hastings county will have one of these machines at their disposal during the coming summer, providing they show sufficient interest to warrant an interested mechanic in buying one.

This lecture should receive the patronage of all farmers in this district as drainage is the most important feature on our clay farms.

EX-MAYOR MARSH'S DEFENCE.

It was not our intention to again refer to ex-Mayor Marsh and Treasurer Price with regard to their dealings in city property while the question was under consideration by a committee of the City Council, nor should we do so now were it not that Mr. Marsh has issued a circular in which he seeks to justify his conduct by attempting to fasten upon Mr. J. W. Johnson conduct, in his capacity as Mayor, similar to his own in dabbling in city property. Even if his statements were true, what have they to do with the case in point? Mr. Johnson, however, will no doubt deal with them in good time. It is worthy of note that Mr. Marsh does not even insinuate that Mr. Johnson profited by what was done—either himself or his relatives. And even if he did, two wrongs would not make a third wrong right.

His attempt to justify himself by such means is transparent subterfuge and disingenuousness. We use the word in the fullest sense of its meaning.

What the people want to know, and what they must be told, is whether the ex-Mayor and the Treasurer utilized the knowledge they possessed through being Mayor and Treasurer to secure city lots for themselves and their relatives at ridiculously low prices, in order that they, the relatives, through themselves, might sell the lots so procured at an advance of three or four hundred per cent. That is the issue, Mr. Marsh—not what was done when Mr. Johnson was Mayor. Their cases must be dealt with on their merits hereafter. All this is foreign to the subject at issue, and the people will not be hoodwinked by such attempts to cover up a wrong. If Mr. Marsh fancies that the taxpayers of the city will be satisfied with such an explanation, he must believe that they are as void of a knowledge of what is right and wrong in public servants as he appears to be himself.

The City Council has a duty to perform, and that is to ascertain whether the Treasurer declined or refused to give Mr. Solmes and others information, when sought, as to the price of lots, inorder that he, the Treasurer, might be enabled to sell said lots to his and the Mayor's relatives at small prices, knowing that they could be sold at profits ranging from two to four hundred per cent., and that, too, by themselves through the powers of attorney given to the Treasurer by his son-in-law, and to the wife of the Mayor by her mother.

A demand should be made upon the Treasurer for his reasons for telling Mr. Burrell, when that gentleman asked for information as to the price of lots, that they were "under offer," to whom they were "under offer," and at what price; and why others were shunted in the same way when seeking information. It should also be ascertained how it was that when no information could be obtained from the Treasurer, Mr. Burrell should be told by a man in his employ that he had learned that if application were made to Mr. Marsh, then Mayor, the lots could be secured. Upon this statement the hired man was instructed by Mr. Burrell to make an attempt to secure the lots. It was made, and was successful. The lots were bought at $75 each through the Mayor, who, it subsequently transpired, was acting for his mother-in-law, Mrs. Smith, who had an option on said lots at $25 each, which option did not expire until the 31st of December of the same year, though they were sold in September by the Mayor to the person acting for Mr. Burrell, about TWO MONTHS BEFORE the option expired. This fact is no longer in doubt. It is established by Mr. Price's letter to Mr. Ackerman of Sept. 13th, 1910, written, in all probability, after the Mayor had sold the lots for his mother-in-law at a profit of 200 per cent. It is evident Mr. Marsh overlooked the damning evidence of the whole transaction which Mr. Price's letter contains. Had he analyzed this letter, he would not have been stupid enough to publish it. But "murder will out."

These are but a few of the facts which the public want investigated, and when the result is known all will be able to judge of the innocence or culpability of these two city officials.

A difficulty will, however, prevent the City Council committee from getting at the inner workings of this whole business, from the fact that the committee has no power to summon witnesses, to require the production of letters, etc., or to put any one under oath. All that can be done by them is to examine the books and learn what they contain; hence a judicial investigation must be held, notwithstanding the objection of the ex-Mayor, which objection is the best possible evidence of guilt. If no breach of trust has been committed, why should objections be urged by the accused? The public can judge. Innocent men would court it; guilty men would object. Let us have it, and clear these gentlemen of any wrong doing, if none exists.

MAYOR ACKERMAN'S LETTER.

Mayor Ackerman's letter, which was published in The Intelligencer on the 7th inst., in reply to Mr. Marsh's and Mr. Price's statements as to the state of his health when waited upon by the Treasurer, is clear and to the point and needs no comment, but we must differ from the conclusion at which the Mayor arrives that though he "COULD SAY "A FEW THINGS REGARDING "MR. MARSH'S ACTS AS MAYOR, "THAT PERHAPS WOULD NOT "BE TO HIS CREDIT," he says he refrains from "doing so, as he does "not believe the interests of the city "will be advanced by continuing the "controversy."

In taking this position, Mr. Ackerman, are you doing your duty as Mayor of the city? The language you use has but one meaning, and that is that Mr. Marsh's "acts as Mayor" would not, if made public, "BE TO HIS CREDIT."

In the interests of the city and honest municipal government the facts should be made known. It is about time that the wrong doing of officials, no matter of what grade, should be exposed and the guilty punished. It appears, unfortunately, that grafting and plundering from governments and corporations have corrupted the morals of the people. Come, Mr. Ackerman, out with it; if not voluntarily a judicial commission will have to compel you to do so.

* * * * *

Mr. Solmes' letter speaks for itself and requires no comment. It would be well, however, for Mr. Solmes to ascertain the names of the parties to whom the lots he wanted were sold, and the prices paid for them, and what followed. Trace them up. The Registry Office will give the information.

CURED OF CONSTIPATON

Mr. Andrews praises Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Mr. George Andrews of Halifax, N.S., writes:

"For many years I have been troubled with chronic Constipation. This ailment never comes single-handed, and I have been a victim to the many illnesses that constipation brings in its train. Medicine after medicine I have taken in order to find relief, but one and all left me in the same hopeless condition. It seemed that nothing would expel from me the one ailment that caused so much trouble, yet at last I read about these Indian Root Pills.

That was indeed a lucky day for me, for I was so impressed with the statements made that I determined to give them a fair trial.

They have regulated my stomach and bowels. I am cured of constipation, and I claim they have no equal as a medicine."

For over half a century Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have been curing constipation and clogged, inactive kidneys, with all the ailments which result from them. They cleanse the whole system and purify the blood. Sold everywhere at 25c. a box. 2

Thought it Was Cancer

Sores Spread From Eye to Neck.

Miss Mary Conley of 184 Colborne St., Montreal, writes: "Over a year ago I became bothered with an unsightly spot on my right cheek. The sore spread until the whole cheek was covered from the eye to far down on the neck, below the ear. It was so noticeable that people asked me if I had cancer, and I began to feel I had. I fully expected the sores would heal some day, and tried numerous highly recommended salves and ointments, but nothing did any good.

"I was about to consult a specialist when a lady friend spoke of Zam-Buk, and advised a trial of it, first. Acting on her advice I procured a box and was surprised to notice the immediate effect the balm had on the sores. I used three boxes only, and as I kept applying it each evening before retiring I could see how the sores were being cleaned and dried up. This improvement continued until my face was cleared of sores completely. Zam-Buk is certainly a marvellous balm."

Zam-Buk is a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bites, ulcers, blood-poisoning, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. You are warned against harmful imitations and substitutes. See the registered name "Zam-Buk" on every package before buying.

SHALL BELLEVILLE EXPAND OR NOT?

Belleville is not to expand. The Township Council of Thurlow has so decreed. Just as Belleville has adopted the motto : "A Bigger and Better Belleville," the Thurlow Council forbids the annexation of the territory to the north west of the city, which includes the Grand Trunk works Villages in other parts of the Province may expand and take in territory from the surrounding townships, towns may become cities, and cities may become larger cities, but Belleville must not. Townships all over the province are yielding up their territory from time to time to permit the expansion of urban communities but these townships have councils built on different lines from the Thurlow township council.

Even the fact that Belleville is supplying a water works system for certain of the inhabitants and public institutions in Thurlow, does not move the Thurlow township council to act in harmony with Belleville in this matter of expansion. Even the fact that Belleville paid the Grand Trunk $25,000 for the right to have these works in Belleville, does not move the Thurlow township council to do what other township councils all over the province have done and are doing. Thurlow has a paltry few dollars taxes from the land on which these buildings now stand. Thurlow now seeks to obtain a large amount of taxes at Belleville's loss. That is not all—disagreeable epithets are hurled at the Bellevile counci and officials for daring to expand, for seeking to retain what she paid for.—Com.

OTTAWA, Feb. 9. —The thirteenth annual meet of the Central Canada Ice Racing Association, which has been in progress since Thursday came to a close to-day when the five mile race was the feature. Thre were only three starters — Prince Greenlander, owned by Langlois of Montreal Jennie Price, owned by McGirr, Owen Sound; and Judge, the property of Jack Peacock, Ottawa. The race was won by Prince Greenlander, who has many five mile races to his credit Prince Greenlander was the favorite and led almost from beginning to end Judge was never seriously in the running, and although Jennie Price came from behind and led by a length at the close of the second mile, Prince Greenlander soon overtook her and then proceeded to cut out a pace that Jennie could not follow. Prince Greenlander won by five or six lengths

The classified race, three heats of which were trotted yesterday, eventually went to the Jap, the property of T. A. Stewart, of Deseronto.

Emily Morris, driven by Nat Ray won the 2.18 trot, in straight heats while the 2.27 race went to Ritchie who thus scored the second win of the meet. A run was put on as a novelty, but very slow time was made and the event proved more of a joke than a race.

Fine weather again favored the Association and nearly 6,000 people attended. The ladies' stand collapsed near the close of the program and several were slightly hurt.

A SUPRISE AND A PLEASANT TIME

A very pleasant and enjoyable time was spent on Friday, Feb. 3rd, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Magginson when in spite of very severe weather about one hundred and sixty of their friends and neighbors gathered to spend the evening with them before their departrue to their new home on the Front of Sidney.

The company was called to order by Mr. Robt. Myers and Miss Lillian Blair was then called on to read an address. Two parlor chairs were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Magginson Messr. W. J. Blair and B. W. Myers on behalf of the people. Mr. Magginson thanked the people in a few chosen words for the presents.

Following the appointment of Mr James Harry as chairman the next half hour was spent in speeches made by the ladies and gentlemen, all of whom testified to the high esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Magginson are held.

An oyster supper and a dainty lunch was then served.

Mr. Bleecker Myers entertained the company with several gramophone selections. The remainder of the evening was spent in games, music and social intercourse. The party broke up in the wee sma' hours, all having spent an enjoyable time.

GREAT RACING AT OTTAWA

OTTAWA, Feb. 8.—Jennie W., the great little brown pacer, now owned by L. J. Tarte of Montreal, defeated Hal B. Jr. and St. Anthony and carried off the free-for-all in to-day's card of the Central Canada Ice Racing Association. Originally there were seven entries, but Alcyde, The Fiend, Joe Swing and Queen's Ideal were scratched, leaving only Jennie W., St. Anthony and Hal B. in the race. Hal B. won the first heat in the remarkably fast time of 2.15 flat, a new record for the local track.

In the second heat Jennie W. passed Hal. B. on the stretch and won by a nose in a driving finish, St. Anthony again trailing. The time was 2.17. The third heat was Jennie W. all the way. Hal B. caught Tarte's little pacer at the half, but Jennie W. again outstepped her opponent in the stretch. Jennie W. would likely have settled the race in the fourth heat, but when well ahead in the back stretch a wheel of the sulky broke, throwing driver Beaudoin. St. Anthony and Hal B. fought it out in a great race, and in a driving finish St. Anthony gained the decision. St. Anthony was a 14 to 1 shot on the heat. The judges considered Jenie W's. accident unavoidable and placed her third, the fifth heat seeing Jennie W. win by a half length, with St. Anthony second and the tired Hal B. third. The last heat was the slowest of the race, 2.17 1-4. Jennie W. was a strong favorite throughout, and for the final heat the bookies refused to lay against her at any price. This is Jennie W's. second win over Hal. B. Jr. this winter.

The classified race carried over from Tuesday went to Dan Fisher after Cassie Pointer had taken the fourth, while another classified went to Alcyde in three straight. The third classified was unfinished. Fern Hal won the first heat. The Jap won the second heat in 2.19 1-4 and was third in the third heat, which was won by Nettie Ethan.

WHAT WILSONS INVALIDS' PORT IS

Wilson's Invalids' Port is a standard preparation—prepared according to the British and French Pharmacopœias. It consists of a delicate, pleasant-tasting Oporto wine, containing an exact and constant quantity of the principles of Cinchona Bark—these principles are present in such a form as to obviate the distressing results frequently following the administration of ordinary Cinchona extracts.

The following analysis prove that it is a tonic preparation of a superior character:

The Canadian Government Analyst reports: I Hereby Certify that I have analysed Wilson's Invalids' Port Wine, and find it contains the best of Natural Port Wine and Extract of Cinchona Bark as its chief principles. These active principles are blended in the proper proportion to act as an excellent appetiser, and a most agreeable tonic and fortifier. MILTON L. HERSEY.

Prof. L. Meunier of Paris, France, says: I certify that Wilson's Invalids' Port is a wine of good quality, agreeable to the taste and that the extract of cinchona which it contains makes it a powerful tonic.

DEATH OF SIR E. CASSEL'S DAUGHTER

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Mrs. Wilfred Ashley, only child of Sir Ernest Cassel, the famous English financier, died yesterday. She has been ill or some time.

Mrs. Ashley, who was Miss Maud Cassel, was greatly interested in charitable work, and was understood to have been responsible for many of the vast donations made by Sir Ernest. She was also greatly interested in the fight against tuberculosis.

She was heir to the $65,000,000 fortune of her father. While having the entree to Court society, she seldom took advantage of it, and in fact, cared little for social affairs.

THAT RUSSIAN POISON MYSTERY

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 8.—Digging into the past of Dr. Pantchenko to-day the prosecution developed that he was once an employee on the North Western Railroad, having received his appointment upon the recommendation of Count De Witte. Fellow employees testified that he neglected his duties to peddle nostrums and was depraved. Among his habitual offences was the habit of borrowing right and left and never repaying.

Once reprimanded for irregularity of attendance upon his duties, Pantchenko explained that he was frequently incapacitated, being a sufferer from kidney disease. Under examination he fooled the head physician of the road in believing that the disease had reached an advanced stage but when he was advised to go to a hospital at once, the alleged poisoner suggested that it would be more convenient for him and quite as well if someone else was sent to the infirmary under his name.

Pantchenko was asked to-day to explain his deception, but the prosecution failed to get much from him.

Continuing the evidence that Pantchenko poisoned Count Vassilli Buturlin at the instigation of Count Patrick O'Brien de Lassy, the State introduced depositions from witnesses at Vilna, who told of a series of meetings between the doctor and De Lassy at a hotel and coffee houses at that place.

WILL BE CURIOUS TO SEE IT

The Globe of yesterday says:—"Many people besides lawyers will be interested in learning from to-day's law reports in another column that Miss Margery Curlette, Lady Principal of the Westbourne School for Girls has won her suit for the restoration of a valuable piece of point lace bequeathed to her by the will of a Belleville lady recently deceased. The suit was against one of the executors under the will, who has the option of either restoring the lace or paying to Miss Curlette what the court finds to be its value. If, as the result of the judgment, the lace should find its way to Toronto, there will be widespread curiosity to see it.

THE AYRSHIRE BREEDERS ORGANIZE

An Association Formed For Hastings, Prince Edward and Adjoining Counties

The Ayrshire breeders of the Counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland, Durham and Peterboro, met in Campbellford on Tuesday, Feb. 7th, and organized a local club of Ayrshire breeders. The purpose of this club is, in the main to foster the interests of Ayrshires in the counties named, to encourage the breeders more generally to adopt the Ayrshire cattle, to assist the breeders locally in marketing their cattle and produce to the best advantage, and generally to promote the interest of the breeders and to become better acquainted one with another. The organization as formed will be known as the "Menie District Ayrshire Breeders' Association." The officers and directors are:

Hon. pres., Mr. Wm. Stewart, Menie; pres., Mr. Alex Hume, Menie; vice-pres., Mr. John McCubbon, Campbellford; sec.-treas., Mr. W. E. Tummon, Crookston; directors, Mr. Chas. Macoun, Campbellford; Mr. Barlow Cumberlin, Port Hope; Mr. H. K. Denyes, Foxboro; Mr. Geo. Stokes, Tweed; Mr. John Locke, Campbellford; Mr. W. Rannie, Menie; Mr. H. Curtis, Warkworth; Mr. J. O'Connor, Campbellford; Mr. F. W. Furber, Cobourg.

Note—Three yet to be chosen.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather many were prevented from attending who intended being present. As it was about twenty Ayrshire men assembled in the Cheese Board Room at the St. Lawrence Hotel where they discussed the merits of Ayrshire cattle and on receiving the feeling of those present in regard to a local organization the association was formed.

The Ayrshire breeders present were surprised to learn that there were so many other brother breeders of Ayrshires in the local counties, there being some seventy or more. In deciding upon a name for the local organization the members chose to "hitch their wagons to stars," in that they took advantage of the reputation which their two well-known, local, fellow breeders, Messrs. Alex. Hume and Wm. Stewart of Menie, held. Thus they calculated that much would be gained by the association from from the start which otherwise would take some time and much expense to obtain.

The meeting was addressed by C. C. Nixon, editor of the Farm and Dairy, Peterboro, who emphasized the sterling qualities of the Ayrshire cow. Pointing out the main things wherein she excelled he urged Ayrshire breeders generally to demand "pay by test" in their cheese factories and assured them that if milk were paid for at the cheese factories according to its value and if the cost of production was taken into consideration the Ayrshire would rapidly become more in favor and take the prime position that is here by right. The speaker urged the breeders present to have more faith in their breed, to talk it up and to tell the world at large of the splendid records and low cost of production of the Ayrshires.

The thanks of the local Ayrshire men are due to Messrs. Duncan of Port Hope, A. D. McIntosh of Stirling, A. P. McVannel of Picton and H. C. Duff of Peterboro, the district representatives of the Ontario Department of Agriculture in the local counties and to Mr. Alex. Hume and Mr. Wm. Stewart to whom the initiative of the being of this association is due.

The Menie Ayrshire Breeders' Association will hold their next meeting on Friday, Feb. 24th, at Campbellford, at which time some leading Ayrshire men and other speakers will be in attendance.

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—Improved domestic call for cash wheat strengthened the option market to-day and caused slowly rising prices from the start. Closing figures were at a net advance of ⅛c to ¼c. The day's business left all other leading staples, too, at a level above last night: Corn, up ¼c to ⅜c; oats, ⅛c to ½c, and hog products, 10c to 20c. There was said to have been much buying of Canadian wheat for export account. Local sales of cash grades reached a total of 55,000 bushels in small lots. Primary receipts were short of a year ago and there was a noticeable let-up in country offerings. Closing prices were almost the top for session, with the final tone firm. May fluctuated from 94⅝c to 95⅛c, with last sales ⅜c up, to 95c.

Liverpool wheat futures closed to-day ⅛d to ¼d higher than yesterday; corn futures were ⅛d to ¼d lower. At Berlin wheat was ¼c lower; at Paris, unchanged; at Buda Pest, ⅜c higher, and at Antwerp, unchanged.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Feb. 9.—The foreign demand for Manitoba spring wheat was good and a fair volume of business was worked at an advance in bids of 1½d. The feeling in oats is steady, but the volume of business doing is small. There was considerable enquiry for spring wheat flour and sales of some round lots were made for shipment between now and June. Provisions are fairly active and steady. There is an easier feeling in the market for potatoes and sales of carlots (Green Mountains) were made at 92½c per bag. A few cars of American potatoes have been imported which cost 97½c, duty paid.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—The railways reported receipts of 70 carloads at the City Market, consisting of 802 cattle, 1688 hogs, 1497 sheep and lambs, 41 calves and 6 horses.

Prime picked lots of butchers' cattle sold at $6 to $6.25; loads of good $5.75 to $6; medium, $5.40 to $5.60; common, $5 to $5.30; cows, $3.50 to $5.40; canners, $2.25 to $3; bulls, $4.50 to $5.50.

Milkers and Springers.

The bulk of the milkers and springers coming on the market are common to medium, and are easier in price at $40 to $65 each. Good to choice cows are scarce and sell readily at $70, $75, $80 and occasionally one reaches $100, which occurred to-day.

Veal Calves.

Good to choice veal calves are scarce. Common, sell at $3.50 to $4.50; medium at $5 to $6; good at $7 to $8, and choice new milk fed calves, $8.50 to $9.50, but there are very few of the latter class, some weeks none at all, at least we seldom see them.

The market is firm for sheep and lambs. Wesley Dunn, who does the bulk of the trade, reports prices as follows: Sheep, ewes, $4.25 to $4.75; rams, $3.50 to $4 per cwt.; lambs, $6 to $6.50.

Hogs.

Selects fed and watered sold at $7.40 at the market, and $7.15 to drovers for hogs f.o.b. cars at country points. Thick fat heavy hogs are not worth as much by 25c per cwt., and are being culled out at that reduction in price. Drovers are warned to go easy on heavy hogs if they don't want to lose money.

Two Aviators Killed.

Douai, France, Feb. 10.—Two more names were added to the death roll of the aeroplane yesterday. The aviators Noel and Delatorre, were killed while conducting a trial of a military aeroplane before experts from the War Department, previous to its delivery to the army. Noel was the pilot and Delatorre a passenger.

The aviators were planing down from a height of about 250 feet, when suddenly the wings folded up and the machine fell headlong to the earth.

Sewage Contamination.

Montreal, Feb. 10.—After an investigation of the typhoid outbreak in Ottawa, Mr. Meadows, provincial sanitary inspector, has come to the conclusion that the cause of the outbreak was the drinking water, contaminated by sewerage near the city. The source of contamination being local, Hull and Aylmer are in no danger of a similar outbreak.

J. R. STRATTON NOW.

Former Minister Summoned in the Farmers' Bank Case.

Toronto, Feb. 10.—Hon. J. R. Stratton, Liberal member for West Peterboro, former Provincial Secretary under the Ross Government, and president of the Trusts & Guarantee Co., was last night served with summonses calling upon him to appear in Police Court a week from to-day, to face a charge of conspiring with the provisional directors, Travers, Nesbitt and others, to secure the certificate of the Treasury Board by fraud, and on a further charge that he accepted as a pledge the notes of the bank, contrary to the provisions of the Bank Act.

The information was laid by Inspector of Detectives Duncan, before Magistrate Denison, at the hearing of the case against the provisional directors, who were again remanded upon the conspiracy charge, in which Mr. Stratton is now joined with them and with Clark Hamilton Smith, secretary of the provisional board; J. J. Warren, general manager of the Trusts & Guarantee Co., and Dr. Beattie Nesbitt. The three last named were absent.

Mr. Stratton said yesterday afternoon, "I have been in Toronto all day, but I have not yet received the summons, which I believe is out. Personally, I had nothing to do with the Farmers' Bank; the Trust company, of which I am president, had dealings with the bank through its officers, and at the first opportunity these things will be fully explained. The general manager, Mr. Warren, left a fortnight ago for British Columbia on important business previously arranged. As far as we can learn, he is now in the Okanagan Valley, but I expect he will arrange to return to Toronto immediately, and the authorities here have been satisfied in this respect."

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

IT MEANS ABSORPTION

Mr. Borden Voices Warning Against Reciprocity.

Tariff Agreement Comes Up For Discussion In the House of Commons and F. D. Monk's Amendment Is Lost by a Small Majority—Many Liberals Absented Themselves—Fielding and Paterson Reply.

Ottawa, Feb. 10.—The first round of the reciprocity debate showed the Conservatives counselling for delay. The Monk amendment to the motion to go into committee was rejected by a majority of 26.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is said to have received a petition from 46 Liberals asking for delay.

Mr. Monk thought the matter was too serious to be received with the "shrieks of approval" which greeted it from the Government benches. Mr. Fielding said the agreement was a virtual repetition of the treaty of 1854 and was not new. Mr. Foster charged the Minister of Finance with having no mandate to Washington, and declared the Canadian delegates had treated Canadian interests like gamblers. Canada had bartered away her authority.

The House was well filled at all times during the debate. There was a large concourse in the galleries, and not the least interested was Henri Bourassa. The debates will be resumed next Tuesday.

The debate started when, on a motion by the Finance Minister that the House go into committee to consider the tariff resolution Mr. Monk (Jacques Cartier) brought up an amendment regretting that the Government had not given the "necessary time or occasion to ascertain the opinion of the people of Canada in that regard and to study more carefully the effect the new fiscal regime will have upon the various industries thereby affected."

Mr. Monk instanced the case of conventions between continental nations, which always contained a clause that ratifications could be exchanged within six months. He had no desire to place any obstacle in the path of the Government, but said that the members wanted an opportunity to consult with their constituents.

Giving his reasons, Mr. Monk said the House expected something less considerable. The agreement covered the whole field of agriculture. It imperilled the forest wealth of Canada, at a time when Canada should "bring to the conservation of her natural resources all that care which has been found wanting in other countries."

The tendency of the agreement was to make trade lines run generally north and south. It nullified the sacrifices Canada had made for twenty years to develop a great transportation system. The agreement came to Canada with a suddenness, after forty years of isolation, during a time when Canada had established markets and created large industries.

While criticizing the House for the "acclaim" with which Mr. Fielding's report had been received, Mr. Monk declared, "We should be ready to trade and conclude treaties with all nations where our interests are concerned."

Mr. Fielding disclaimed any desire to rush the matter through the House. It was not a new question, reciprocity had been before Parliament for the past forty years. The surprise which the hon. gentleman opposite felt was a surprise that the Government had been able to come to such a good agreement, which would revive faith and hope in every industry and undertaking in Canada, and would make permanent the prosperity of the country. He declared there would be abundant opportunities for discussion.

He had strong hopes that President Taft would overcome the opposition in Congress, and in the event of rejection by Congress and acceptance by the Dominion Parliament, Canada would be in a much stronger position in future negotiations. In the bill to be brought down there would be a clause declaring that no part of the arrangement would come into operation until corresponding legislation would be passed by the United States.

On the division which followed the amendment was lost on a party vote, the smallness of the Government majority being due to the absence of a large number of French-Canadian Liberals.

When the House went into committee, Mr. Borden arose to the accompaniment of Conservative cheers.

"These proposals are too grave for partisanship," he said. He desired to take a reasonable and moderate view of the trade arrangement without making an attack on the Government or anybody else. He would devote himself either to the conditions in the House, and show that these were proposed which should not be entered into lightly by the people of the Dominion at the present time.

Mr. Borden reviewed Canadian national progress and said prosperity was an assured fact.

There was no doubt that a section of the people in Canada would immediately profit by the proposed tariff; there was less doubt that it would spell ruin for a much larger number. But as to the far reaching effect on Canadian trade, no one could speak with authority, beyond saying that it reversed the work of forty years.

Dealing with the argument that one good result of the agreement would be to provide a wider market for Canadian products, Mr. Borden said that if the national issue was to be disregarded, and wider markets in the United States, from which the Empire was to be excluded, were to prevail, the conclusion was logical and evitable that the part of reciprocity, as proposed, would lead to commercial union, and from that to political absorption.

Mr. Borden then went on to say that the proper fiscal policy for Canada to adopt was not which would provide in the event of a necessity for tariff reduction, for a revision upon a reasonable and scientific basis. He would recommend such a tariff as would aim at the development of the country, the employment for our labor, the increase of our population and the utilization of resources. It would aim at giving producers reasonable opportunities by equalizing the cost of production. It would have been well if a Parliamentary commission had been named, so that the effect would not be made by rule of the House. The problems of transportation and terminal elevators were of more vital importance to the West than the tariff question.

In conclusion, Mr. Borden said: "I trust that the Canadian people will not lightly relinquish the task to which their energies and the energies of their fathers have been consecrated for so many years. I trust that the standard will not be thrown aside and the retreat sounded when the battle is more than half won.

Hon. Wm. Paterson, speaking after recess, said Mr. Borden in remarking upon the progress made by Canada during the last forty years, had failed to notice that particular progress had been made during the last fifteen years. One of the acts of the present Government which tended to increase our trade, was the making of trade freer with the whole world, particularly Great Britain and the United States.

(Government cheers and ironical cheers from the Opposition.)

Referring particularly to Mr. Borden's speech, he said he could not make up his mind whether the Opposition leader was for or against the agreement. At any rate he was not so hostile as a section of the press of Canada.

Mr. Paterson continued his argument by instancing the development of the West, and declared that the export of a hundred millions of bushels of wheat every year would keep the railways busy. He thought Canada could do better even than she had been doing, and would progress more in the next five years than in the past ten.

"This agreement will, I believe, give trade a greater stimulus than the British preference gave it." He appealed to the patriotism of the Opposition to share with the Government the credit of the great thing they were doing. He argued it would help the miner, the lumberman and the fruit grower. If the Opposition would not help, the Government would press the measure alone.

Mr. Foster returned to his old time virility in an attack on the Government. He declared that the present was a crisis in Canadian history. It was a situation of great gravity. The Government should heed the lesson of history. It was valuable to tell them what they should avoid. The volume of reciprocity had been completed in 1891. A heresy remained with the Liberals until 1897, but subsequent to then both parties had cast it aside. The mandate of the people on four successive occasions had been to leave the question alone, and there had been no compelling impulse to make the Government think differently.

A Double Standard.

Montreal, Feb. 10.—Two weights and two measures is the way "L'Action Sociale" of Quebec sizes up the recent anti-reciprocity sermon delivered in Quebec by Rev. Fred. Scott, and while the clerical organ says no one should dispute the Anglican clergyman's right to speak as he did on Sunday last, it wants to know what French-Canadian politicians would think or say if a Roman Catholic priest got up into the pulpit and expressed himself so plainly on political subjects as did Rev. Mr. Scott.

Married Actress; Must Resign.

New York, Feb. 10.—A London cable to The World says: Capt. the Hon. It is thought, however, that his father's influence might have prevented such a necessity. Capt. Brett has been transferred to the noted Highland regiment, the Black Watch, retaining his rank.

THREE ARE ARRESTED

Buchanan, McCarty and Youngs Charged—Out on Bail.

Attorney-General Makes Quick Move and Takes Three of the Prominent Figures In the Oxford Graft Investigation In the Net—Bail For Buchanan and Youngs Fixed at $5,000 Each.

Woodstock, Feb. 10.—The Oxford police net was thrown out yesterday afternoon and gathered in some of the leading figures in the Oxford graft investigation. The authorities yesterday morning received word from the Attorney-General's Department at Toronto instructing them to take quick action in apprehending M. T. Buchanan, Byron McCarty and Jno Youngs. McCarty was arrested by Constable Fred. Hill at Thamesford late yesterday afternoon. Ex-Warden John Youngs of Brooksdale was in town during the afternoon, and was placed under arrest by Constable Oston. Chief Killings went up to Ingersoll and brought back Buchanan on the three o'clock street car. They were all taken to police headquarters and after an hour or so's conference the three were admitted to bail, furnished by their friends. Youngs, it will be remembered, was accused of offering money to the late jailer, Cameron, for his job.

M. T. BUCHANAN.

The arrests were startling in their suddenness, although it was generally believed that the fact that the commission's finding was being withheld until the Cabinet met portended some drastic movements by the Attorney-General's Department.

It was believed that the keeping back of the report indicated the Government's decision to make a sudden move and land the men wanted before they had a chance to get out, if they had any intention of doing so.

McCarty of Thamesford was not taken before the magistrate, his bail being arranged in the office of his solicitor, S. W. T. McMullen. M. T. Buchanan walked half a block behind the chief from the car to the police office, where bail was given for $2,500 cash and sureties of a like amount, similar bail being demanded of Youngs. There are several charges against Buchanan, but these have not been formally made out yet. The men wanted have simply been arrested on a general warrant of graft from the county, issued under instructions by the Attorney-General's Department.

Constable Hobson is out in the county at present, and will probably bring in another man from Zorra.

Will Hold Back Report.

Toronto, Feb. 10.—Judge Snider's report on the Oxford County investigation was considered yesterday by the Ontario Government, but it is doubtful if it will be either presented to the House this session, or be made public until the prosecutions are concluded.

Sir James Whitney said last evening, that in view of the report of the arrests, it was not certain when the judge's report would be made public. Certainly not at present.

Flames Claim Aged Lady.

Toronto, Feb. 10.—Dropping a lamp from her aged hands in the little cottage where she has lived alone since the death of her husband in December, Mrs. Matilda Andrews, 65 years, was burned to death in her home at 162 Sheridan avenue. Not till the flames had laid hold of the interior of the little roughcast cottage and were bursting from the front door was the fire discovered.

Lieuts. Hamilton and Coulter forced an entry and found the body of the old woman lying on its face in the little dining-room. Nearby lay a broken coal oil lamp, which she is believed to have dropped and started the fire. The body was severely charred about the head and shoulders and the clothing on the upper part of the body was burned off.

Coronation Contingent.

Ottawa, Feb. 10.—It has been decided, that there will be forty-eight officers, and altogether a force about 700 strong on the Canadian contingent to the coronation. This will mean that each regiment of cavalry and infantry will have about four representatives, and each brigade of artillery the same number. The non-commissioned officers and men will be recommended by the officers commending the different units. The men will wear the uniforms of their respective corps on the contingent.

Certificates Withdrawn.

Kingston, Feb. 10.—Two Kingston captains who have held United States marine certificates, have had them withdrawn in accordance with the recent order from Washington that all captains and engineers serving on United States vessels, must not live abroad.

Ontario Opposition Has a Hard Time Finding Holes.

Each Charge Is Met by a Challenge to Prove That One Dollar Has Been Misspent By the Whitney Government—Pinkerton Detective Who Sold Liquor Was Not Hired by Government, Says Hanna.

Toronto, Feb. 10.—Vigorous criticisms of the Government marked the budget debate in the Ontario Legislature yesterday afternoon, but the charges were a repetition of those of preceding speeches, and were met by challenges to quote one misspent dollar. R. J. McCormack's criticism contained such an admixture of commendation that he was frequently applauded by the Ministerial members.

The veteran Liberal from East Lambton, received two genuine ovations when he rose to express his opinions in the budget debate, and when he sat down. It made his Irish blood boil, he said, to hear the Tory members saying that the Liberals had done nothing. He felt very friendly towards the present Government and he was willing to vouch that the 18 members of the Opposition were willing to do everything in their power to help the Government to make good laws. He had taken a ride over the new railroad the Government had built up north and it was a splendid thing.

Mr. McCormick hoped that the Government would make a further grant of $25,000 to the Fall Fair Association.

J. H. Howitt, South Wellington (Con.), made his initial bow as a debater. He pointed out that it was not good bookkeeping for Mr. McEwing to have given no credit for the results of the heavy expenditures made by the Hydro-Electric Commission to be found in the outlay on the transmission line.

There was no doubt much to be said on both sides in respect to the question of reciprocity. Some would suffer severely and some interested will gain, but it was a bad policy to make so great a change at a time of such great prosperity.

D. Reed, Liberal for South Wentworth, brought up the Gillies' limit again. There never was a transaction put through by the old Government that had such a shaky appearance. (Cries of "Oh! oh!" from the Government.)

Hon. Frank Cochrane piped up: "The timber on the limit did not bring a cent."

"Your timber dues are coming from there now," persisted Mr. Reed.

"No, you're wrong."

Mr. Reed added that practically all the limit was sold.

"No," declared Mr. Cochrane, "three-quarters of it is not sold."

"I insist that nearly all of it is sold."

Mr. Cochrane—"That is absolutely untrue."

It was a disgrace to the province that a hireling from the United States came to live in hotels up north and beg and coax a man to break the law. It was a shame, too, that seized liquor should be peddled into an unlicensed district by the Government's hirelings.

Hon. Mr. Hanna declared that the man who had re-sold the liquor was not in the employ of the Government, but a man whom a Government agent had enlisted to assist him. The Provincial Secretary promised to produce the verbatim evidence of those trials.

J. A. Ross of Monck (Con.), pointed out that the new school books which had been criticized by the Opposition were considered worthy of adoption by other provinces.

The "poor old Financial Post" fumed against the Hydro-Electric Commission and efforts had been made to show that property owners had been treated unfairly in respect to the right of way. The reverse was the case. In the much-talked of Felker instance, Mrs. Felker was paid $500 for the site of two towers, which was almost half the original price of her whole farm.

When the House resumed at night, J. C. Elliott, West Middlesex, criticized the Provincial Premier for introducing a Dominion issue into the budget debate. The Government members, being unable to adduce reasons against reciprocity, had been compelled to resort to their old tactics of waving the old flag.

He claimed that the annual expenses of the provinces had increased by nearly 14 per cent. over that of Liberal administration.

The Provincial Treasurer here interrupted that the extensive Government works that had been undertaken would go a long way towards making up the difference.

W. D. McPherson, Toronto West, said that the Opposition members appeared to consider it right to attempt to set class against class by commending everything that was done on behalf of agriculture, and condemning aid for any other profession. Instead of the Government discriminating against the agricultural students at Guelph, the per capita aid to Guelph College was $149, compared with $128 per student at Toronto University.

Reforestration Scheme.

St. John, N.B., Feb. 10.—Following an extensive investigation on reforestation, an American lumber company now operating in New Brunswick plans immediate action in reforesting the more denuded parts of the province. Nurseries will be established at Salmon River and Matins Head, where trees will be grown from seed. The company has fifty thousand acres at Cookshire, Que., which will be seeded this spring. The work to be done this year, it is understood, is merely preparatory to extensive reforestration in New Brunswick and the State of Maine.

TOMB VIOLATED.

Body of Erie, Pa., Woman Stolen From Mausoleum.

Erie, Pa., Feb. 10.—Body snatching that may equal the daring grave ghouls who stirred the country more than a quarter of a century ago, when the body of A. T. Stewart, New York's pioneer merchant, was stolen, has stirred this section of Pensylvania in indignation at its daring as nothing has since the sensational kidnapping which occurred in this vicinty a few years ago.

The mausoleum of one of the most prominent families of this section of the state was desecrated sometime between Monday and Wednesday afternoon. A body is missing from the vault of the family of the late Congressman William L. Scott. The police of neighboring cities and communities within 400 miles have been notified of the crime.

The discovery was made by two women walking through the Erie Cemetery. The family was immediately notified, and a watch was placed in the cemetery at midnight after all assurances were made that the missing body was not in the vicinity.

Details of Erie police kept watch at the tomb during the night to greet the body-snatchers should they return. The only disturbance they met was from newspaper men early in the morning, who were ordered from the cemetery at the point of revolvers.

While the police have been informed of the grave-robbing no name is attached to the missing body of them. The first information to the public come from the family, but again no name is given. It is known, however, that the body taken by the ghouls is that of Mrs. McCollum, a sister-in-law of the late Mr. Scott. The police believe the body is being held for ransom, and that the vandals also intended to carry away the bodies of the millionaire and his wife.

Investigation showed that the casket containing the body of Mrs. McCollum had been carried away. The caskets are sealed in a wall and a chisel had been used in breaking the seals, before the metallic box could be carried away. This casket was the first on the lower tier at the north side of the mausoleum, and directly opposite it on the second tier is the caskets containing the bodies of Mrs. Scott and the millionaire, who built the mausoleum.

Protestants Object to Catcheism.

Toronto, Feb. 10.—T. B. Collins and William Banks, sr., representing the grand lodges of Ontario East and West, L.O.L., and J. H. Burnham and James Thompson, representing the Protestant ratepayers of No. 8 Otonabee, laid a charge before Hon. Dr. Pyne, and afterwards before Sir James Whitney, that the Roman Catholic catechism and Roman Catholic doctrines were taught in the public school by a Roman Catholic teacher, and that the teacher had the support of the parish priest, who visited the school.

The Ministers promised an investigation, but Sir James refused to consider a suggestion that the schools be entirely secularized.

No Discrimination.

Albany, N.Y., Feb. 10.—Boycotts are permitted and strike-breaking is prohibited in a bill introduced yesterday by Assemblyman Gerhardt. Any firm restraining persons from joining a labor organiaztion as a condition of such person obtaining employment with the company is made guilty of a misdemeanor. Employers are prohibited from bringing employes from other states or from other parts of the state by false inducements or representations of work to be done, conditions of labor, or compensation.

PROFESSIONALS PLAYED ROUGH-HOUSE HOCKEY

Belleville-Picton Team Defeated by Port Hope—All Sorts of Dirty Play Resorted to by Visitors—Dusty and Crossitt Knocked Out—Kyle's Old Injury Laid Him Off—Probably Last Pro. Game Here

Any visitor to the Arena last night who was a stranger to ice hockey might have mistaken the encounter,—it cannot be fairly called a game—for the rehearsal on a small scale of a battle, without the rattle of small arms, or the roar of artillery. There were the opposing forces, attired in blue and green sweaters, respectively the clash of arms, the falling of the killed or wounded, on either side the ready first-aid services of the hospital field corps, who bore the fallen to the temporary hospital. Even the call for medical assistance and the prompt attendance of the duly qualified surgeons was not lacking.

The encounter was between the Port Hope professionals and a seven composed of four of the Bellevilles and three of the late Picton team which had disbanded the previous night. These men were all tired and sore after a hard game the night before, and a long drive which landed them here at 5 o'clock in the morning.

THE BATTLE.

The fight began under the supervision of "Bill" Lane, of the Bellevilles, who proved to lack sufficient nerve for the position. After a few minutes strenuous sombat, Randall, of Port Hope, who has a reputation as a dirty player, fouled Dusty, who was on the Belleville line. He was given a minute on the fence, but as he left the ice he gave the referee a vicious jolt with the butt end of his stick, and was then ruled off for the rest of the game. Then the war really began. The Blues threatened to discontinue and after a long parley, the Referee yielded and Randall was let off with three minutes. Thenceforward the players did almost as they chose Dusty was knocked out with a serious injury to his shoulder by being bodied against a girder by McMillan Kyle was tripped by Debeau and could not continue because of an old hurt in one of his knees, and finally was forced to leave the game. Crossett was crowded so that his head struck a girder and was unconscious for a time.

From seven on a side at the beginning the number, owing to casualities fell to four on each side and Port Hope won by 10 to 6.

The game was of such a character as the people of Belleville would not care to witness again. It is but fair however, to state that the majority of the players really played the game.

BELLEVILLE PROS. TO MOVE TO PETERBORO.

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 9.—That 'pro.' hockey has not proven a success in Belleville is evident from the following :—The team, known as the Belleville professional hockey team, formerly, the Trenton hockey team, will be transferred, bag and baggage, to new fields next week, and will wear the label, "Peterboro." It is thought that as both the Peterboro O. H. A teams are practically out of the running, and Peterboro is hockey mad at present, the 'pro.' game will draw well and become popular in the "Litt Lock" city.—Toronto Star.

ATHLETICS.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 8.—Frank Gotch, world's champion wrestler, to-night won from Gus Schoenlein (Americus) in straight falls. The first fall came after 42 minutes, 23 seconds, with a half-Nelson, and crotch hold, and the second in 22 seconds with a toe hold.

MONTREAL, Feb. 9.—The fighting was not confined to the ice nor to the fourteen men engaged in the hockey game at the Arena last Tuesday night There was an overflow meeting in the vestibule of the rink after all but a few perfervid spectators had taken the cars home. Some of these red hot fans waiting around to see the players come out and to sympathize or to gloat according to their dispositions, witnessed a pretty little go between Lalonde, the Canadian rover and some misguided Wanderer supporters, who were hanging around to get the Frenchman's scalp, because of some alleged dirty work the latter had been guilty of during the game.

The trouble started in the rink after Lalonde had made a run down the ice in the course of which he dealt out a few heavy checks and probably did some slashing in common with the rest of the players at this stage of the game. Some of these jolts must have reached a favorite, for, going back close to the boards, Newsy received a crack in the face from one of the spectators whom he was just able to spot as he skated by. When the game was over and Lalonde came out from the dressing room into the rink vestibule the first man he saw was the man he wanted to see and, unforunately for the Wanderer supporter, Newsy saw him first. It was only a jump and a swift jab, and all was over as far as the belligerent fan was concerned, but his two friends made a rush for the Frenchman, and for a moment it looked as if Newsy would be used up But Poulin, the Canadian left wing with the assistance of some of the tardy spectators, calmed things down and persuaded the two friends to carry their champion out into the cool air, where he gradually recovered and made his way home, resolved never to let his enthusiasm get beyond the shouting point, not even for the Wanderers.

HE CONFESSED

Before Mayor Ackerman, acting magistrate, John Murphy this morning pleaded guilty to being intoxicated. He was fined $2 and costs or ten days. Not having the change John went up.

CURLING.

Two club matches were played last evening at the curling rink here, and both matches were well contested, especially between the rinks skipped by Messrs. A. McGie and H. A. Morgan, when an extra end had to be played in order to break the tie. The rinks and scores were as follows:

W. Griffith, A. G. Vermilyea, C. A. Vermilyea and H. A. Morgan, skip—10; F. E. O'Flynn, A. R. Schryver, T. E. Ketcheson and A. McGie, skip—11.

J. O. R. McCurdy, H. Bryant, P. Doyle and J. S. Cook, skip—10; J. H. Elliott, W. P. Allen, W. H. Hudson and W. Wessels and J. A. Zufelt.

It Grows Hair

Here Are Facts We Want You to Prove at Our Risk.

Marvelous as it may seem, Rexall "93" Hair Tonc has grown hair on heads that were once bald. Of course, in none of these cases were the hair roots dead, nor had the scalp taken on a glazed, shiny appearance.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic acts scientifically, destroying the germs which are usually responsible for baldness. It penetrates to the roots of the hair, stimulating and nousihing them. It is a most pleasant toilet necessity, is delicately perfumed, and will not gum or permanently stain the hair.

We want you to get a bottle of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic and use it as directed. If it does not relieve scalp irritation, remove dandruff, prevent the hair from falling out and promote an increased growth of hair, and in every way give entire satisfaction, simply come back and tell us, and without question or formality we will hand back to you every penny you paid us for it. HAVE TO TELL OF MISSING MONEY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.— If the Government has evidence that any part of the money embezzled by John F. Gaynor and Benjamin D. Greene in complicity with Captain Oberlin M Carter in the Savannah harbor frauds is now secreted, there is no indication that the Department of Justice will show its hand before the two prisoners apply for release from the Atlanta penitentiary.

Gaynor and Greene have served their four years' sentences but are now held for a $575,000 fine. Under the law they must remain in jail until the fine is paid, or take the paupers' oath that neither has more than $20 above the exemptions allowed by statute. A confinement of thirty days after the expiration of the sentence must precede such a move. Both Gaynor and Greene to-day began serving the thirty-day period. If a month later they take the paupers' oath a hearing will be set before a United States commissioner, at which the Government will be represented. If the Attorney-General has any trace of the money of the money which disappeared after the embezzlement it will then be shown.

Agents of the Department Detective Bureau have been working on the case and Attorney-General Wickersham has had conferences with District Attorney Marion Erwin, of Georgia Mr. Wickersham intends to collect the fine if possible.

A compromise on the amount of the fine it was said to-day would be unauthorized by law, and without precedent.

DEUTSCH MADE GOOD ESCAPE

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—One of the interesting characters of the Russian revolution, Leo Gregorovitch Deutsch, arrived in New York, yesterday, on board the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, of the Hamburg-American line, with his wife. He comes to take charge of a socialist newspaper printed in the Russian language which is to be published here.

Mr. Deutsch has led a picturesque career. For sixteen years he was an exile in Siberia and, after completing his term of servitude, having passed three of these years in one of the most remote Asiatic prisons, he wrote a book, "Sixteen Years In Siberia."

After a successful dash for liberty, Mr. Deutsch made his way to Japan and thence to San Francisco and eventually back to Europe and England. In 1905, when the bloodless revolution held Russia in its grasp, he could not resist the temptation to go back to his native land. Again he was arrested and sent to Siberia. Again the guards were eluded and by sacrifice of his beard and a change of clothing, Mr. Deutsch again managed to escape.

In so important a thing as the purchase of a piano, do not let an apparent saving in cost warp your good judgment.

Afraid of Ghosts

Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified to a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.

The germ can only prosper when the condition of the system gives it free scope to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a sallow cheek, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can fortify the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of clogging impurities, enriches the blood, puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in working condition, so that the germ finds no weak or tainted spot in which to breed. WILD MAN OF NEW ONTARIO CAPTURED AFTER STRUGGLE

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Feb. 8.—To all appearances as wild as the denizens of the New Ontario Forest, which have been his sole companions for the past four years, John Beck, about forty-four years of age, garbed in crudely fashioned coat and trousers of skines, was taken through Fort William from Vermillion Bay, abut a hundred miles west of this city to Kenora, where he will be committed to an institution for the violently insane. Since the winter of 1907, when he lost part of his hands while dynamiting for fish, Beck has lived in the wilderness near Vermillion Bay, a new station on the Grand Trunk Pacific. Although his identity and place of abode, a crevice in a rock, twenty miles from the nearest dwelling, were not known until a few days ago, he was feared by construction men and a few lumbermen who visited the district. Fleet of foot and as wary as the untamed beast, he never allowed his fellowmen to approach him. At the sight of a human being he invariably vanished in the dense bush. He was finally captured after a desperate struggle by Canadian Pacific Railway Constable Ball, of this city and a Dominion constable of St. Ignace. He had existed during the four years on raw fish, rabbits and fowl which he snared or killed with stones or clubs. In the house nature had fashioned for him were found only a pile of dry leaves, two or three deer skins and a pile of stones.

NEW YORK TO HAVE BIGGEST MOTOR ENGINE

NEW YORK, Feb 9.—The biggest motor propelled steam pumping fire engine ever built will be delivered in about a fortnight to Fire Commissioner Waldo, for service in the Harlem district.

It is the first motor fire engine of the New York fire department, and is the initial delivery in an order for 25 that are to be put in service during the next six months.

The machine weighs seven tons about one and a half tons more than the present horse drawn steamer. It travels on hard rubber tires and will cover a city block in about four seconds,— at the rate of a mile a minute

GREAT RUSH FOR A TOWN SITE

TORONTO, Feb. 8.—A force of five hundred bushmen has just been engaged by the Canadian Northern Railway Co. to clear the townsite of Port Mann, on the Fraser River. An active race has begun between holders of the property adjoining the railway townsite and the company to have the land sufficiently cleared to file plans of the town. If the company has its streets laid out first and the plans filed, the other holders of property will have to make their streets coincide with those of the railway town. If the outsiders are able to file these plans first, the railway company will have to make its plans conform to those of its rivals.

Word to this effect reached the city yesterday. The clearing is to make the ground easy for the first surveyor.

Port Mann will be the site of the car shops of the Canadian Northern, and it is intended to make this a model town. Lines will extend from it to Vancouver and to the delta of the Fraser River. When it became known that the company had acquired property for this townsite, real estate agents secured much adjacent property and put the lots on the market.

The company has completed the preliminary location and grading on the line through the Fraser Valley, and the contractors are now awaiting the arrival of two shipments of steel on the coast to begin track laying.

The British Columbia section of the system extends through the Yellowhead Pass to Kamloops and down the Fraser Valley to the coast.

A Good Idea in Hair Treatment.

The trouble with most women's hair is that they won't take the time to give it proper treatment. If you want your hair to have that look of lustre and vitality, you must take care of it.

You cannot expect to have splendid hair if you simply run a comb through it in the morning—give it a dab on the outer edge with a brush—throw it into a braid—switch it around the head—jab in a few hair pins—and let it go at that.

Hair is like any other growing thing—it needs attention—it needs care—it needs thorough grooming regularly—not only the hair but the scalp.

If you have the time and patience you won't need any hair tonic—but most women haven't. The next best thing is Nyal's Hirsutone. It is the best thing offered to take the place of hours of combing and brushing.

It tones up the roots, brightens the color, improves the texture and makes it stay gracefully where it is put.

Hirsutone literally revitalises the neglected hair.

Your Nyal Druggist cheerfully recommends Hirsutone because he knows. In artistic bottles $1.00 and 50c.

Sold and guaranteed by J. S. McKeown, J. V. Doyle, Albert L. Geen, The Belleville Pharmacy Ltd., Belleville.

THE FIRST OF BRITAIN'S FLEET

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Sir Lawrence Gomme, clerk in the London County Council, is of the opinion that the Roman boat which was recently discovered on the site of the new County Hall at Westminster Bridge is probably a relic of the first fleet formed to protect the shores of Britain.

"No other such find has been made in Britain," says Sir Lawrence, "and the boat thus possesses a greater interest than that attaching to the clinker built boat of King Alfred's time discovered at Walthamstow a few years ago. A coin of Allectus found in the boat indicates that it was built between 239 and 297 A.D., and its condition seems to prove that it was destroyed in a battle which took place where Westminster Bridge now stands.

"Several large round stones, weighing about three pounds each, lay near the boat. One of these is partially embedded in its timbers, proving that it had been thrown from a considerable height. The boat had evidently been deserted in haste, as coins and other articles were left in it. In addition it had been partly burnt."

Sir Lawrence recalls that in the year 296 Constantius sent an expedition to Britain which routed and slew Allectus. Some of the latter's soldiers fled to London. While they were engaged in sacking the city a Roman detachment overtook them and slew them in the streets of London. All the facts seem consistent with the theory that this Roman boat is one of Allectus's vessels that endeavored to escape but was overtaken and destroyed by a shot from a large catapult.

Among the articles found in or near this boat were five bronze coins, some pottery, three gaming buttons, two British spearheads and five horseshoes.

NEWS OF THE RAILWAYS

Montreal, Feb. 9.—An outlet for the Soo line from the Northwest to the Atlantic seaboard at Newport, Va., via Cincinnati, has been acquired by the Canadian Pacific Railroad through a close traffic agreement recently effected with the Chespeake & Ohio, and which takes effect the 1st of May. Railway rumors also have it that the C.P.R. will either take over the Wabash between Detroit and Chicago, or build an entirely new line between these cities to connect the eastern C.P.R. and Chicago division of the Soo line with the C. & O. The Wabash is shortly to lose its eastern connections, and it is said, contemplates giving up its Chicago, Detroit and Toledo line.

Won His Appeal.

Montreal, Feb. 10.—David Russell has won, in appeal, in the fight for jurisdiction before the Ontario courts in the case which he brought some time ago against M. N. Greenshields, K.C., for the sum of $1,250,000, a dispute in a land deal in Ontario being the basis of the suit.

THE RED YEAR

A Story of the Indian Mutiny

—By—

LOUIS TRACY

Copyright by McLeod & Allen

"I fear not," said the older man gravely. "This is a bad business, Malcolm. The Begum said too much. There are worse times in store for us. Do you really believe you can reach Meerut safely?"

"I rode here without hindrance."

"Let me advise you, then, to slip away before we start. That woman meant mischief or she would never have dared to suggest that a British officer should throw in his lot with hers. Waste no time, and don't spare that good horse of yours. Be sure I shall tell Winifred all you have done for us. She is pulling round, I think, and it will be better that she should not see you again. Besides, the Nana's escort are preparing to march."

Frank's latest memory of the girl he loved was a sad one. Her white face looked ethereal in the moonlight, and her bloodless lips were quivering with returning life. It was hard to leave her in such a plight, but it would only unnerve her again if he waited until she was conscious to bid her farewell.

So he rode back to Meerut, a solitary European on the eight miles of road, and no man challenged him till he reached the famous bivouac of the white garrison, the bivouac that made the Mutiny an accomplished fact.

CHAPTER III.

How Bahadur Shah Proclaimed His Empire

On the morning of the 11th, the sun that laid bare the horrors of Meerut shone brightly on the placid splendor of Delhi. This great city, the Rome of Asia, was also the Metz of Upper India, its old-fashioned though strong defences having been modernized by the genius of a Napier. Resting on the Jumna, it might best be described as of half-moon shape, with the straight edge running north and south along the right bank of the river.

In the centre of the river line stood the imposing red sandstone palace of Bahadur Shah, last of the Moguls. North of this citadel were the magazine, the Church, some European houses, and the cutcherry, or group of minor law courts, while the main thoroughfare leading in that direction passed through the Kashmir Gate. Southward from the fort stretched the European residential suburb known as Darya Gunj (or, as it would be called in England, the "Riverside District") out of which the Delhi Gate gave access to the open country and the road to Humayun's Tomb. Another gate, the Raj Ghat, opened towards the river between the palace and Darya Gunj. Thus, the walls of city and palace ran almost straight for two miles from the Kashmir Gate on the north to the Delhi Gate on the south, while the main road connecting the two passed the fort on the landward side.

The Lahore Gate of the palace, a magnificent structure, commanded the bazaar and its chief street, the superb Chandni Chowk, which extended due west for nearly two miles to the Lahore Gate of the city itself. Near the palace, in a very large garden, stood the spacious premises of the Delhi Bank. A little farther on, but on the opposite side of the Chowk, was the Kotwallee, or police station, and still farther, practically in the centre of the dense bazaar, two stone elephants marked the entrance to the beautiful park now known as the Queen's Gardens.

The remainder of the space within the walls was packed with the houses and shops of well-to-do traders, and the lofty tenements or mud hovels in which dwelt a population of artisans noted not only for their artistic skill but for a spirit of lawlessness, a turbulent fanaticism, that had led to many scenes of violence in the city's earlier history.

The whole of Delhi, as well as the palace—which had its own separate fortifications—was surrounded by a wall seven miles long, twenty-four feet in height, well supplied with bastions, and containing ten huge gates, each a small fort in itself. The wall was protected by a dry fosse, or ditch, twenty-five feet wide and about twenty feet deep; this, in turn, was guarded by a counterscarp and glacis.

On the northwest side of Delhi, and about a mile distant from the river, an irregular rock-strewn spine of land called the Ridge, rose above the general level of the plain, and afforded a panoramic view of the city and palace. The rising ground began about half a mile from the Mori Gate—which was situated on what may be termed the landward side of the Kashmir Gate. It followed a course parallel with the river for two miles, and at its northerly extremity were situated the principal European bungalows and the military cantonment.

Delhi was the centre of Mohammedan hopes; its palace held the lineal descendant of Aurangzebe, with his children and grandchildren; it was stored to repletion with munitions of war; yet, such was the inconceivable folly of the rulers of India at that time, the nearest British regiments were stationed in Meerut, while the place swarmed with native troops, horse, foot and artillery!

A May morning in the Punjab must not be confused with its prototype in Britain. Undimmed by cloud, unchecked by cooling breeze, the sun scorches the earth from the moment his glowing rays first peep over the horizon. Thus men who value their health and have work to be done rise at an early hour when London's streets are emptiest. Merchants were busy in the bazaar, soldiers were on parade, judges were sitting in the courts of the cutcherry, and the European housewives of the station were making their morning purchases of food for breakfast and dinner, when some of the loungers on the river-side wall saw groups of horsemen raising the dust on the Meerut road beyond the bridge of boats which spanned the Jumna.

The word went round that something unusual had happened. Already the idlers had noted the arrival of a dust-laden royal carriage, which crossed the pontoons at breakneck speed and entered by the Calcutta Gate. That incident, trivial in itself, became important when those hard-riding horsemen came in sight. The political air was charged with electricity. None knew whether it would end in summer lightning or in a tornado, so there was much running to and fro, and gesticulations, and excited whisperings among those watchers on the walls.

Vague murmurs of doubt and surprise reached the ears of two of the British magistrates. They hurriedly adjourned the cases they were trying and sent for their horses. One rode hard to the cantonment and told Brigadier Graves what he had seen and heard; the other, knowing the immense importance of the chief magazine, went there to warn Lieutenant Willoughby, the officer in charge.

Here, then, in Delhi, were men of prompt decision, but the troops on whom they could have depended were forty miles away in Meerut, in that never-to-be-forgotten bivouac. Meanwhile, the vanguard of the Meerut rebels had arrived. Mostly troopers of Malcolm's regiment, with some few sepoys who had stolen ponies on the way, they crossed the Jumna, some going straight to the palace by way of the bridge of boats, while others forded the river to the south and made for the gaol, where, as usual, they released the prisoners. This trick of emptying the penitentiaries was more adroit than it seems at first sight. Not only were the mutineers sure of obtaining hearty assistance in their campaign of robbery and murder, but every gaol-bird headed direct for his native town as soon as he was gorged with plunder. There was no better means of disseminating the belief that the British power had crumbled to atoms. The convicts boasted that they had been set free by the rebels; they paraded their ill-gotten gains and incited ignorant villagers to emulate the example of the towns. Thus a skilful and damaging blow was struck at British prestige. Neither Mohammedan moullah nor Hindu fakir carried such conviction to ill-informed minds as the appearance of some known malefactor decked out in the jewels and trinkets of murdered Englishwomen.

The foremost of the mutineers reined in their weary horses beneath a balcony on which Bahadur Shah, a decrepit old man of eighty, awaited them.

By his side stood his youngest daughter, the Roshinara Begum. Her eyes were blazing with triumph, yet her lips curved with contempt at the attitude of her trembling father.

QUEBEC MAY GET HUGE SHIPYARD

QUEBEC, Feb. 10.— Quebec will make a bid for a big shipbuilding plant, and one which is prepared to undertake the construction of the largest warships. At the meeting of the Finance Committee held to-night one of the most important decisions reached was in connection with a request of Mr. Hugh Russell, who had enquired as to what privileges the city would be willing to grant a company which would establish a shipbuilding plant in the port of Quebec.

The company desires to establish yards here so as to be able to tender for the new ships of the Canadian navy. It was decided to offer an exemption from taxes for twenty years as well as a liberal bonus should the company locate here.

COUNTERFEITER IS DISCOVERED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The practice of exchanging rogue's gallery photographs resulted in the alleged discovery by the Secret Service that a man declared to be one of the shrewdest counterfeiters and smugglers is now under arrest as a confidence man under the name of O. J. Crane, in San Antonio, Texas.

Acting Chief Moran declared that Crane was really Frank Caviness wanted by the Federal Government of this country for counterfeiting and wanted by both this Government and the Canadian authorities for opium smuggling. Caviness was identified from a photograph by a Secret Service operative in Seattle, Washington.

CONTESTANTS ARE CLIMBING STEADILY TO THE TOP

Thousands of Votes Cast To Date in the Great Race—Increase in Vote Column Remarkable—Miss Maud Fleming Takes Spurt and Captures Lead in District No. 1 by Small Margin

All contestants in The Intelligencer's great popularity contest are on the move upwards. During the coming weeks may be expected one of the greatest races ever witnessed in this part of the Dominion—a race for the winning of one of the many valuable prizes offered in this contest. From now until the finish there will be sharp competition among the contestants, and each will try and be a leader in her district.

The spirit of the race seems to be getting hold of the contestants, and all are busy in an endeavor to head the list. Some of the candidates have a large number of votes held in reserve—to be cast at some strategic moment. This holding back of votes makes the result of the contest very uncertain, there being no means of finding out who is at the head of the list until the close of the contest.

Bring out some of the ballots you are holding in reserve, girls, and jump into the lead—as you know the world loves a leader. Don't let any of the glory of this great contest escape you. Make up your mind right now that you are going to be one of the lucky ones, and strive to attain that end; you can do it if you try. Do not wait until the last moment, but start right now. If your name is already entered in the list, and you have not done much as yet, begin now. You will never regret the time and effort spent in this contest.

At present the contestants are just beginning to get their start, and are feeling the pulse of their friends to learn their strength.

Some of the contestants are already beginning to realize how easy it is. There has never been a voting contest which has sprung into such immediate favor as the one now being conducted by The Intelligencer.

The prizes are especially liberal, and the greatest number ever offered in a single contest. To win one of these prizes will be a very gratifying honor, and of immeasurable profit and pleasure to the winner.

The best way to roll up a large number of votes is by securing a number of subscriptions to The Intelligencer, and a little work now will be worth ten times the amount later on. Get into the contest with a decided view to win.

A difference of a few thousand votes is not a large margin, as it means but a year or six months' subscription to The Intelligencer, and those who are behind such a small number should not lose heart by any means, but keep on with the race with renewed vigor. A race is never ended until time for the last competitor to win out. Keep up with the contest, and make it your determination to win and you will be successful. However, don' overlook the fact that you must start to work—at once.

HOW BALLOTS ARE SECURED.

In all cases where vote certificates are issued, subscriptions must be paid in advance. The full amount of money must be sent direct by mail, paid to the contestant, or brought to this office.

BULLET ENDS THE QUEST

"Black Hand" Found Mysteriously Slain--He Bore Orders from Italy to Kill Some One

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 11.—Sent from Italy to seek out and kill some person of unknown identity, a foreigner, supposed to be connected with the "Black Hand," failed in his mission and was found dead, his body pierced by five bullets, in a dark swamp near the water front, here.

From letters in his pocket his name is believed to have been Giovanni Battista Arrecchi and his intended victim, Pietro Licari. In one letter, dated Fuinari, Sicily, October 10th, 1910, occurs the phrase:

"It is a great favor if you get him to scream before I arrive there."

Another letter, from Buffalo, refers to the disappearance of a young woman on the day her sweetheart was arrested.

Although the police are reticent about the case, it is known that they are in touch with Pittsburg, Cleveland and Buffalo, where the man is supposed to have lived. An arrest also was made here.

The police theory is that the man was in this country about two months looking for the man he was hired to kill, but that his mission was known and he was shot before he had a chance to acomplish his purpose.

(Intelligencer Special.)

BERLIN, Germany, Feb. 11.—Alarming reports were circulated today concerning the Kaiser's health. Although reported to have influenza, it is believed that his old ear trouble, which threatens to affect the brain, is bothering him again.

MISSING HEIRESS TRACED

(Intelligencer Special.)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 11.—The "Inquirer" prints a statement to-day that Dorothy Arnold, the missing heiress, has been located by her family; also that she was married to George Griscom six months ago, and that the wedding will shortly be announced.

LONDON TO SPEND $100,000,000 ON ROADS

LONDON, Feb. 11.—On the heels of the scheme to improve the port of London comes a report from the traffic department of the Board of Trade, advising the metropolis to improve its travelling facilities.

The most interesting feature is the recommendation that one hundred miles of new roads be constructed, especially a number of main arteries of approach to the capital.

It is recognized that the cost would be enormous, but the report says the work must be done sooner or later, and probably the cost eight years hence would be double what it would be now.

From works already going on, it can be figured that the carrying out of the recommendations would involve an outlay of $100,000,000.

RUSSIA TO BUILD NEW WARSHIPS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Naval officers have received information from reliable sources that Rusias is about to spend many millions for a new fleet, whereby she may regain her lost prestige on the seas. It is stated that the Russian council of ministers, during one of its last sessions, reviewed the Black Sea fleet-building programme as presented by the minister of the navy and approved his recommendations in general terms.

The Black Sea fleet programme appears to be an additional one to the so-called "grand fleet-building programme," a bill for which has also been introduced. According to this new additional recommendation, an appropriation of approximately $77,850,000 will be required. It is intended to build several protected cruisers of the latest type and armament, and also several modern smaller vessels and gunboats.

"Let no guilty man escape."

Vote early and vote often !

Get your ballots at the Intelligencer office, or at least out of the Intelligencer's daily issues.

The battle of the ballots is now being carried on with great vigor, and many of the fair contestants are displaying great generalship in marshalling their forces.

Laurier, if he does not "finish his work," when his servile majority in Parliament pass the new tariff arrangement, will at least work the finish of some Canadian industrial interests.

Seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars saved the public in school books in ten years is the way a number summarize the result of the Ontario Government's breaking up of the book ring. There is a volume of sound in those figures.

The happiest people—with exceptions—are the students who are living over in memory their "good time" at Bridge Street church last night The exceptions are the young ladies who have received a bundle of coupons or a year's subscription to the Intelligencer popularity contest.

Canada is doing well, says the Mail and Empire. She is getting from Great Britain hundreds of millions of capital every year. Her farming industry is having unprecedented prosperity. Her mines are increasing their output. Her manufacturing industries are busy. Labor is in great demand. It would be difficult for our Government to change conditions for the better and easy to change them for the worse. Let well enough alone.

The reciprocity agreement continues to excite keen interest in England Sir Gilbert Parker, the Canadian member of Parliament for Gravesend, publishes a statement on the subject After referring to the strong opposition by Sir John Macdonald, the Canadian Premier, and Edward Blake leader of the Canadian Liberals some twenty years ago, to commercial union with the United States, because it would mean political union, Sir Gilbert says :—"The agreement is a desperately serious thing, and will eventually mean that the Canadians have lost their grip on their own independence. Canada's fight for two centuries against American commercial tyranny was the source of her progress and wealth. It gave her energy, resourcefulness and determination, but under this agreement the United States seeks a new field of exploitation for American finance, new opportunities for the overflow of American energy, and for the control of the great Dominion."

BELLEVILLE "EVERITT" SHOW-ROOMS.

Messrs. Grible and Warren have taken showrooms on Front Street for the sale of the magnificent "Everitt" Automobile, produced at Orillia by the Tudhope Motor Co. The "Everitt' car has many excellent features one of which is that every part is true to 1-1000 inch, by means of a special jig system of manufacture adopted by the Tudhopes for every part going into the car. This makes a strong, long-wearing machine. The "Everitt" car will be represented in this vicinity by the new firm. They expect to have a showing of at least several of the 6 "Everitt" models by February 15th. They cordially invite visitors to see the new Canadian-made car, which is sold at a most moderate price.

MARKET TODAY HAD FEW CHANGES

The market to-day was one which was only fairly well attended. During the past week there was no particular change in the prices of farm produce, which as usual, commands a good figure.

Butter was quite plentiful and sold at from 23c. to 25c., the latter price being more prevalent.

Strictly fresh eggs were more abundant than they have been for some time and in consequence were somewhat cheaper. A number of basket lots were procured for 25c. per dozen. but the price obtained in one dozen lots was 28c. to 30c. Packed eggs were sold at 23c. and 25c. per dozen.

Dressed poultry was not as plentiful as on previous Saturdays and the prices obtained for what was offered for sale were good. Chickens sold up as high as $1.75 per pair, for exceptionally large and prime fowls. The ruling price was from 80c. to $1.50 a pair, according to the quality. A few geese sold at $1.50 to $2 each and turkeys at about 25c. per pound.

Potatoes remain the same in price namely, 75c. and 80c. per bag. Apples command a good price(namely, 25c. and 30c. per peck. $4.50 was asked by one yeoman for a barrel of extra fine northern spies.

In the meat market there is no change to note in prices.

PROF. BELL BEFORE CANADIAN CLUB

The Building up of England's Sea Power the Subject of an Interesting Address

Last evening the Canadian Club had another pleasant and profitable gathering. The members of the club to the number of about 60 gathered at Mr. Jas. Wallace's restaurant at 6.30 when a tempting repast was partaken of, after which an intellectual treat was in store for those present. Mr. C. M. Reid, President of the Club occupied the chair and in introducing the speaker of the evening referred to the fact that the Club had already this season listened to some good addresses and others were to follow The guest of the evening was Prof Bell, who has been identified with the Oxford University, England. His subject was one of importance : "The Building up of England's Sea Power"

In his opening remarks the Prof said the immense importance of the navy to Great Britain was a recognized fact. On the navy depended largely the existence of the mother land It is in fact her only safe guard against invasion by those powers who would no doubt like to invade that country.

The navy to his mind was the most important asset of the British Empire. The speaker then referred generally to the establishment of the navy referring to the times in the 16th and 17th cetnuries when England, as it were, was only on the fringe of civilization. To-day Great Britain was the pillar of the civilized world, and the navy had done much to bring about this desirable and satisfactory result The use of the navy for progression and defence was lucidly explained by the speaker. By Britain having a great navy it could not only reach but protect many important points. The navy was a great assistance in many ways to the mother land, for commercial and other purposes. The establishment of the navy, its present efficient condition, and the prospects of being still greater in efficiency in the near future by valuable additions to the fleet were matters which were referred to, and dilated upon by the speaker. The address throughout was replete with valuable information of a historical nature in reference to the navy.

At the conclusion of the address Mr. F. E. O'Flynn, vice-chairman, spoke a few complimentary remarks in reference to the speaker and the interesting address which he had given.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES.

It is not often an opportunity occurs at your door to see the latest Parisian and New York styles in Hair Goods, yet such is the case, as Prof. Dorenwend of Toronto is visiting this town, and invites your inspection of these goods at his private apartments reserved at the Hotel. These Hair Goods styles, when properly adjusted, protect and ornament the head, soften and beautify the expression of the face, and consequently tone up an aged appearance. FAMOUS STARS TO VISIT BELLEVILLE.

When the Sheehan English Grand Opera Company comes to Griffin's Opera House, Monday evening, Feb. 13, for an all star pedformance of Verdi's ramous "Il Trovatore," there will be heard in this city more renowned artists than ever appeared here before at one time.

First and foremost of these stars is Joseph F. Sheehan asknowledged the greatest of all American tenors. Then comes Miss Elaine De Sellen, the eminent French contralto, whose work as the Gypsy hag in "Il Trovatore," has made her a favorite in France.

Miss Grace Nelson, the prima donna is said to be the most remarkable coloratura soprano since Tetrazzini electrified the world.

The engagement here is for one performance only, Monday evening, February 13th, and regular prices will prevail in order to give all an opportunity of hearing what will no doubt prove to be the biggest attraction of the season.

Combines

On the question of combines and mergers, Mayor Fitzgerald, of Boston, has been vigorously condemning as little less than robbery. He deals particularly with flour and coal. He states that he has in his investigations "uncovered facts of whose social significance he probably is not fully aware."

His charge is "that while the people of Boston are paying $7.50 a barrel for flour, the penal institutions of the city are buying the same article for $4.83 a barrel. And while the charge made for coal to the private user is $7.25 a ton, the same coal is being bought by the city for $5.50 a ton."

It may be fairly asked why this great difference in prices should exist. No satisfactory explanation can possibly be given. It is simply the result of flour and coal combinations, revealing a "tremendous discrimination, made all the worse by the fact that business firms never sell to the city without the assurance of a fair profit. Something is wrong somewhere, that such a condition of affairs should be possible in a modern city. And since the conditions are practically universal, there is need for all to interest themselves in their cause and cure."

How far does this state of affairs exist and to what extent? Everywhere, where men combine and are dishonest.

Farm Values and Wages

The Census Monthly for January says that values and wages in Canada make a good record for 1910. The total value of live stock on the farms is $593,768,000, which is $34,979,000 more than in 1909. The price per head of horses is $132.50, as against 130.72 in 1909, of milch cows $42.60 against $36.36, of other cattle $30.90 against $28.81 and of sheep $6.00 against $5.89. Swine alone show a drop in average price, being $11.30 per head, against $11.80. The total value of horses is $293,398,000 for last year, against $278,789,000 for 1909, of milch cows $121,789,000 against $103,601,000, of other cattle $131,781,000, against $126,326,000, and of sheep $15,819,000 against $15,735,000. The value of swine, however, fell from $34,368,000 in 1909 to $31,157,000 in 1910.

The highest average price of horses was in Saskatchewan, of milch cows, other horned cattle and sheep in Ontario, and of swine in Quebec. Horses, three years old and over, reached the highest price in British Columbia, where the average was $225. Swine per 100 lbs. live weight ranged from $6.50 in Manitoba to $9.62 in Quebec. The price of unwashed wool was 18 cents in 1910 and 17 cents in 1909, and of washed wool 24 cents for each year.

The average value of occupied farm land in the Dominion was $38.45 per acre, or 15 cents less than for the previous year. It was highest in British Columbia, where the cost of clearing is heavy and the land is largely occupied for fruit growing—the average being $74 per acre, or 56 cents per acre more than in the previous year. Ontario comes next with $48 per acre, which is $2.22 less than in 1909.

Farm help for the summer season shows an average of $35.15 per month for males, and $20.70 for females, counting board, as compared with $33.69 and $19.08 respectively in the previous year. Males have an average of $347.10, and females $209.69 per year, counting board, as against $336.29 and $206.08 respectively for 1909. The highest prices per month in summer are paid in Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, where they are $40 and over for males and $25 and over for females, counting board. The average rate of board per month ranges from $8 for males, and $6 for females in Prince Edward Island and to $20 and $17 respectively per month in British Columbia.

The rates of wages and board are quoted for the farm, where males are employed on the land and families in the house. They are averages computed from a large number of returns by farmers to the Census Office.

GIRL ESCAPES KIDNAPPERS BY HIDING IN THE CONFESSIONAL BOX

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—An 11-year-old girl's story of her escape from kidnapers by hiding behind the curtains of the confessional in a Brooklyn Catholic Church set a dozen New York detectives early to-day on a hunt for the headquarters of a gang of Italians who are believed to have tried to abduct her.

The girl, Marie Coleman, is the daughter of a well-to-do Brooklyn manufacturer. She was found in one of the confessional boxes of the St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church shortly before midnight by the pastor, the Rev. Fr. William C. McGuirl. Between hysterical sobs the little girl told the priest she had hidden in the confessional at 7 o'clock in the evening after having run away from two men who had tried to kidnap her and that she had not dared to come out of her place of refuge.

After Father McGuirl had quieted the little girl, she told a very clear story of how, when she had come out of school, a man had lured her to a distant locality by telling her that her mother was ill and in a strange house. Subsequently the man had been joined by another and they had taken Marie over a route which she remembered so perfectly that the police believe they can locate the place.

The men stopped at a yellow house, but almost before she was inside the door Marie became suspicious. She ran screaming down the street, and although the pair caught her and started back with her, she struggled loose again and ran several blocks to the church. With the men close behind, she dodged in through the open door and hid in the darkened interior.

The priest's discovery of the hidden girl was by accident. At 10 o'clock Father McGuirl entered the dark church alone, to pray. During the course of his devotions he thought he heard sobbing. He made a casual search of the church but found nothing and went back to the rectory. But after he went to bed he could not sleep. The conviction that somebody in distress was locked in the church persisted and he arose about midnight and dressed himself. A second time he went into the church.

After some minutes spent in search he pushed aside the curtains of one of the confessional boxes and there, in the dim light cast by the lantern, saw a little girl lying with her head on a bundle of school books. She was dazed and sobbed hysterically. The priest took her into the rectory and after he had comforted her to some extent got her story and reported it to the police.

MONTREAL, Feb. 8.—When spoken to to-night, Mr. Rodolphe Forget, M. P., would neither confirm nor deny the report that he was about to acquire control of both the Inland Navigation and the Northern Navigation Companies.

According to the information given to the correspondent the two companies will be taken over by the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company, of which Mr. Forget is President. KICKED HIMSELF OUT OF A JOB AND IS DISABLED FOR LIFE

TRENTON, N.J., Feb. 9.—Ambrose J. Fish, who was anxious to maintain his reputation as a high kicker, kicked himself out of a position with the Pennsylvania Railroad, with whom he had been employed for 40 years, and is disabled for life.

These facts were brought out in a trial in Mercer County Court, in which Fish figured as a plaintiff in an action against the Fidelity and Casualty Co., to recover $25 a week for a period of 26 weeks, because of injuries. Judge Lloyd held that high kicking was not an accident within the meaning of Fish's policy and granted a non-suit to the company.

Fish testified that one day last March he found some of the younger members of the office force engaging in a high-kicking contest. Forgetful that he was 65 years of age, but recalling his former proficiency in that line, he joined the youngsters in their sport and made the record kick. In doing so he wrenched his side and back. As a result he became a partial cripple and had to give up his position. As a messenger for the company he sometimes carried as much as $1,000,000 in a single day. The Casualty Company offered to settle with Fish on a reduced basis before the trial, but he would not accept the proposed terms.

EDSON WAGON ROAD NOW COMPLETED TO THE PEACE RIVER

EDSON

THE BASE OF SUPPLIES

Dream Of Many Years Realized

HOW EDSON WILL GROW

REAL ESTATE VALUES WILL BOUND UPWARDS

The successful completion of a short wagon road from Edson to the upper waters of the Peace River has placed the final nail in the structure of enterprise that has made Edson the Gateway to the Peace River country. This wonderful and far-famed district is at last easily accessible to the settler, and the rush to secure the homesteads has commenced.

The commercial expansion of Edson is now assured, and, as has been shown in a hundred instances during the development of Western Canada, real estates values rise concurrently with the expansion of trade, and rise with phenomenal rapidity in all distributing centres.

Only a few lots remain unsold in the original Grand Trunk Pacific townsite, and may still be purchased at first cost. They are going rapidly, and your chance to get cheap lots in this star city of the West is quickly passing away. The time to buy is now. If you wait till the city is built up, and improvements made, you will pay a high price for the same property.

Below will be found a table of statistics showing the marvellous increase in population in other distributing centres in Western Canada during the last ten years and values increase accordingly.

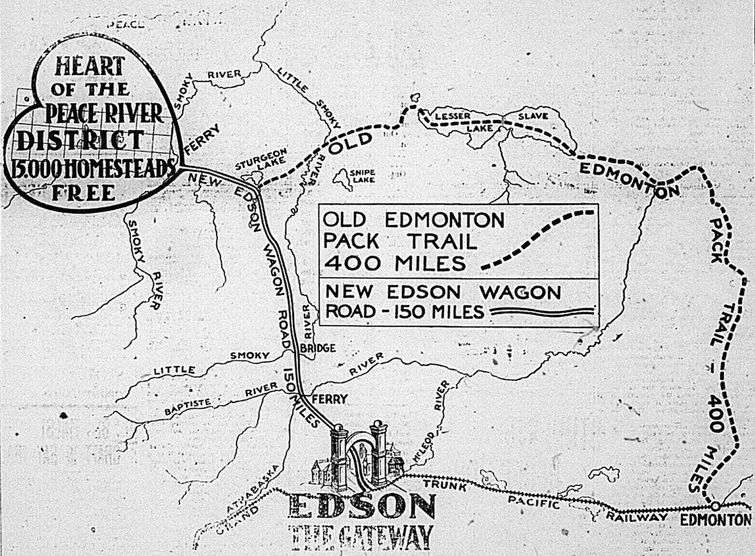
Below will also be found a table of statistics showing the enormous immigration into Canada during 1910. This volume of settlers is on the increase every year, and it must be remembered that during the period of the most rapid development of these other cities the migration was only a fraction of what it is estimated it will be in the future.

Rushing in Supplies from Edson.

A recent despatch from Edson, Alta., to the press says: "The snowfall of last week has been joyfully welcomed by the hundreds of freighters who have been waiting here and at points just outside to begin the work of hauling supplies by sleighs to the coaches further up the line for this year's construction operations on the Grand Trunk Pacific. Two thousand men and teams will be employed in this work from now until the spring opens up. This will give Edson a good business start on the way to that destiny that is predicted will be hers."

Edson-Grande Prairie Road.

The road to the Grande Prairie has been completed from here to its junction with the government road to the same place at the confluence of the Baptiste and Athabasca rivers. This road makes Edson the nearest point on the railway to the Grande Prairie country, to which there will be a great trek of homesteaders this spring, the most favorable time to start out on their journey. The distance from here to Grande Prairie is only 140 miles, as against 500 from Edmonton. On the Edson route the smaller rivers that have to be crossed are being bridged, and ferries will be placed on the larger ones. Stopping places will be erected at suitable points for the accommodation of settlers.



FIRST CLASS IMMIGRANTS COMING IN THOUSANDS

WILL REQUIRE LARGE CITY TO SUPPLY THEIR WANTS

A recent dispatch to the Press says: With $9,000 in his pocket, five teamloads of supplies, and an unbounded faith in the country and himself, a settler started for the Grande Prairie last week. He was a native born American, who had come up from the States to farm on a big scale in the northwest.

This settler will operate a big farm in the Grande Prairie. He sold his farm in Montana, and came with the cash in his pocket. After purchasing his supplies and farm implements he had $9,000 left. He bought five teams and started out.

Wealthy Party Coming.

A letter to the Canadian immigration authorities from Minnesota asks for information for a wealthy party coming next spring. There are 25 farmers in the party. Each of them have from $2,000 to $5,000 in ready money in their pockets, and will bring their wealth with them. They want to go into farming on a big scale in a big country, and have heard much of the Peace River. That is where they will strike when they come north next summer.

"One thousand people will go into the Peace River and Grande Prairie country from the Pacific Coast," said one man who is conversant with the conditions. "The eyes of the Coast people are on that country, and some big land will be taken up by some of them next summer."

Another Press clipping: "The coming spring will witness an immense invasion of northern Alberta by citizens of the United States. The possibilities of the northwest have been talked of in the States for a number of years, and next year will see a great influx of settlers from the other side, following in the steps of those already established there."

This is the statement of W. H. Brewer, of Glendive, Mont., who with G. E. Lang, of Bismarck, N.D., and Chas. Hill, of Beach, N.D., are in the city of Winnipeg on their way west, where they intend to invest in farming and grazing land. Mr. Brewer states that the Grande Prairie and Peace River districts are much talked of in the States, and he believes that all the available land in these districts will be snapped up inside of a year.

These men are but the forerunners of the large number from across the line who will go out west this year. Most of them will take up farming land, but a number will confine themselves to cattle raising, while quite a number of merchants from different parts of the United States will go into business in western towns.

The new roads will bring the different sections of the western country closer together, thus consolidating the Canadian West into a great agricultural and stock raising country.

RADIUM IS THE ELIXIR OF LIFE

PARIS, Feb. 9.—Rejuvenating qualities in radium have been discovered by Professor Gabriel Petit, of the Veterinary School at Alfort.

He injected two milligrams twice into the jugular vein of a very old horse with surpriseing effects. It seemed immediately to gain a new lease of life. It put on flesh, became frisky, considerable traces of sulphate of radium appeared in its blood, and the red globules increased in number.

The injections, Dr. Petit says, produced lasting radio-activity of the system. He thinks it highly probable that a radio-active serum may be obtained in this manner which will arrest to a certain extent the advance of physical decay in human beings.

In other words radium made be made the basis of a real elixir of life.

SCEPTICAL IN NEW YORK.

New York, Feb. 9.—Physicians here who have either experimented with radium themselves or have closely followed the experiments of others, were skeptical last night in regard to Dr. Petit's alleged discovery.

"This thing should not be taken too seriously," said Dr. Norman E. Ditman, of 280 Madison Avenue, who has much experience with radium and is familiar with its effects on the blood. "The professor has evidently jumped at conclusions. He says that the injection produced a lasting effect. Now how can a man say after an experiment or two that the effct is lasting? He thinks too, that radio-active serum may be obtained in this manner which will arrest to a certain extent the advance of physical decay in the human being. Why, such a discovery could not be made until one had a chance to observe the action on the human system through a long period of years. Perhaps it would take forty or fifty years to arrive at such a conclusion.

"No, this alleged discovery should be taken with a pinch of salt. If such an announcement came from the Rockefeller Institute or from some other source it would be quite different. Why an injection of arsenic often makes a horse very frisky for a while."

Prof. Charles Baskerville of the department of chemistry of City College was told last night of the despatch from Paris. He said that without more exact information he could not estimate the significance of the news. He said that radium sulphide was insoluble, and therefore could not have been injected in the form of a solution. As to the direct effect of radium injections, he said that experiments over many years had been practically barren of practical results, and he believed the despatch was inaccurate, or what had been done had been taken too seriously. The experiments in this country along this line had been very complete. He particularly doubted the possibility of obtaining a serum which would be radio-active.

As far back as 1907 accounts of experiments with injections into animals of minute quantities of radium sulphate and other compounds of radium reached America from Paris. At that time the only effects obtained were to cause guinea pigs, which are used most often as subjects, to lose their hair.

HOCKEY NOTES

LAME BACK

CURED BY BOOTH'S KIDNEY PILLS.

If you suffer from backache like Mr. W. M. Ferguson, of Indian Head, Sask., don't wait until you are laid off work before you give the matter attention. He says: "I was compelled to quit work six months ago on account of a lame sore back, which had become so weak that I could scarcely get around. My limbs and feet were very much swollen, and I also had severe headaches occasionally. On learning of Booth's Kidney Pills, I procured a box and found them a fine remedy. The pains and aches have left my back, and it has been greatly strengthened. The swelling in my limbs and feet have also disappeared, and I have not had a headache since. I am very much pleased to recommend this remedy."

COL. SAM ON PARSONS

Member For Victoria Raises Storm in House.

Hughes Replies to the Criticisms of Ottawa Ministerial Association in No Uncertain Terms—He Reiterates His Charge Against Dr. Milne—Another "Liar" Episode in the Commons.

Ottawa, Feb. 11.—The chief incident of the Commons' sitting yesterday, was an attack by Col. Sam Hughes on an Ottawa clergyman, Rev. J. W. H. Milne, and the Ottawa Ministerial Association. A fortnight or so ago, Col. Hughes, in the House, accused Rev. Dr. Macdonald of The Globe of being in the pay of a peace society in Boston, whose propaganda was reciprocity, and the colonel declared that Dr. Macdonald had advocated that doctrine for the association. Col. Hughes objected to this as being inimical to the best interests of Canada. Mr. Milne was alleged to have preached in his church, in Ottawa, a sermon condemnatory of Col. Hughes, although he did not mention him by name. However, Col. Hughes stated that many members of Mr. Milne's congregation had assured him that the sermon was directed against him. Accordingly he retaliated.

He described Mr. Milne as a Liberal party-heeler, that after declaring in 1905 that the Ross Government of Ontario should be defeated, he appeared on the Ross platform in Ottawa; that just before the provincial elections he invited Rev. Dr. Macdonald to preach in his church, but the leading members of his congregation refused to allow him to occupy the pulpit; that Mr. Milne had supplied to the officials of the Liberal Association a list of his congregation with their political faith designated.

The Ministerial Association took the matter up and passed a resolution declaring that every statement made by Col. Hughes was false, and expressed implicit confidence in Mr. Milne.

This resolution was the cause of Col. Hughes' statement to the House yesterday. He re-affirmed all he had previously said, and offered to produce affidavits in support of his charges against Mr. Milne. He demanded that the Ministerial Association take the matter up again, and in order that there should be the fullest enquiry, he offered to sign the Hansard report of his speech, so that they could proceed against him.

Towards the end of his speech, which lasted for over an hour, Col. Hughes made a somewhat general attack on the clergy of various denominations, particularly the Roman Catholic Church. He said of course he excepted the many noble men in all branches of the Christian Church.

This provoked a warm rejoinder from the Conservative benches.

A. C. Macdonnel (South Toronto), who said he had no concern with the comment that had been made upon Mr. Milne's conduct, but he could not sit and hear the attack upon clergymen generally. Col. Hughes had gone out of his way to do so, and his references to Roman Catholic clergymen were unnecessary and gratuitous. He could permit him to state without challenge that humanity had been cursed by them, and he entirely disassociated himself from the remarks made by Col. Hughes.

David Henderson (Halton), Conservative, concurred in the sentiments expressed by Mr. Macdonnel, and declared that he was not in sympathy with discussions of this kind in the House of Commons.

On the Liberal side, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux and H. H. Miller of South Grey, also spoke in condemnation of the general attack on the clergy made by Col. Hughes. Mr. Miller talked sarcastically of Col. Hughes' work in South Africa, to which the colonel replied that it was the privilege of every coward to sneer at every man who went to South Africa. There the incident ended.

Shortly before adjournment a contretemps occurred between J. W. Maddin (S. Cape Breton) and D. D. MacKenzie (N. Cape Breton.).

Mr. Maddin stated that Mr. MacKenzie had been responsible for the appointment of a large number of fisheries officers in his county, who received pay for the supervision of fisheries on streams that did not exist, at least during a part of the season.

Mr. McKenzie, replying, said that the statement was false, and a lie.

In less time than it takes to relate the circumstance, the few members in the House were roaring at the top of their voices. When the Deputy Speaker called upon Mr. MacKenzie to retract, he said that he would not do so were he outside the House. Subsequently the Opposition members expressed their disapproval of Mr. MacKenzie's form of retraction, and various points of order was raised and debated with heat.

Finally Mr. MacKenzie satisfied the House that he had withdrawn the remark, and peace was restored.

Don't Want Foreign Funds.

Pekin, China, Feb. 11.—Indications are not wanting in these days of the growing hostility throughout the country, not only to the granting of foreign railway concessions, but even to obtaining money from abroad for the construction of those lines which the Government is anxious to build.

The student body of the Province of Sinkiang has issued what amounts to a proclamation practically threatening the Government with war should further loans be arranged with foreigners.

In No Danger.

Washington, Feb. 11.—The crew and cargo of the British bark Caithnessshire, which is stranded off San Salvador, are in no danger, according to a wireless telegram received by the Navy Department yesterday from the scout cruiser Birmingham, which went to the assistance of the vessel. It will be impossible to save the hull of the ship, however, the despatch added.

An English clergyman has sighted a new star; but that's nothing to blow about. Fell and bumped my head the other night and saw about a bushel of 'em myself.

STUDENTS' RECEPTION

Bridge St. Church Gave Hearty Welcome to Young Ladies and Gentlemen

The annual reception of the young ladies and gentlemen of Belleville's various colleges at Bridge Street Methodist church was held last night. For fully twenty years this great family journal has been trying to describe these events, but always realized that we could not do them justice. How can the indescribable be described? There were, however, some new features introduced last night that lent greater interest. That promenade with the aid of Sprague's orchestra, for instance, the cutting out of addresses and thereby giving more time for what has ever been the charm of the night,—the opportunity for social intercourse. The promenade as arranged by a committee of which Mr. J. A. Marsh was the clever chairman, was certainly ahead of anything in the past, and the way he "ran" it was worth going some distance to see.

Then the ticket of admission was a curiosity, it was also the creation of Mr. Marsh.

If Baden Powell had been there he would have admired the practical services of his scouts of the Bridge street Sunday School Company, who were in evidence in mufti.

In Mr. Wm. Johnson's welcome he specially mentioned the presence of the sick nurses from the City Hospital. What he said was vociferously applauded and testified to the popularity of the Hospital and its skilled nurses.

There were very brief but ardent addresses by the chairman, Rev. Dr Bishop; Mr. Wm. Johnson, Mr. H. Pringle, and Mr. J. Arthur Marsh.

The following constituted a program—Mandolin solo, Mr. Harold Holton; reading, Mrs. J. L. Hess; solos, Misses Annie Mair, and Mr. Jas. S. Dyer; piano solo, Miss Edna Wallace; and a recitation and an encore which would not ake no denial, by Mrs. C E. Smith. Mrs. Smith was at her best in which she delighted her old friends and won many new ones.

In going to and returning from the church Albert College made the welkin ring with their college yells, songs and cheers.

SERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST A WOMAN

Before Magistrate Masson this morning, Mrs. Ada Howell of this city, who conducts a second hand store, was charged that she did on the 3rd of Febuary unlawfully take and conceal one overcoat the property of one, Wm. Kimmerley for the fraudulent purpose of keeping same from the police. On this charge she pleaded not guilty and the case was enlarged for one week. Mrs. Howell being out on bond.

It appears that a few days ago a party named Wm. Bentley stole a coat belonging to Mr. Kimmerley and sold same to Mrs. Howell, who it is now charged made no entry of purchase of same according to law, thereby concealing the purchase from the police who have a right to examine her book of purchase and sale.

Bentley, who pleaded guilty to stealing the coat was to have been brought up to-day for sentence but he is in jail and unwell.

TEN DAYS FOR VAGRANT

W. A. Duggan, a stranger, was today fined $5 or ten days in jail for being a vagrant and a tresspasser. Not having the money, Duggan will spend the next ten days in jail.

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Higher, Chicago Lower—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 10.—The market was firm at the opening with offerings light and values were ½c higher and following opening there was good support in May. Buying was due to the light shipments from Argentine and especially to the United Kingdom, no increase in the Argentine visible, firmness in Buenos Ayres at the close yesterday and the fact that Plata offers are 3d dearer. Receipts for three days are light and spot markets firm with an improved demand. The continent is making enquiry for cargoes off coast. The firmness in Winnipeg was also a factor for the steadiness.

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—Advices to the effect that the reciprocity agreement could pass the senate on a forced vote depressed the wheat market to-day. Flattening out of cash demand further discouraged the bulls, and so did poor trade in flour. Closing prices were weak at a net decline of 1¼c to 1⅜c to 1⅝c. Corn finished ½c to ⅝c, to ⅝c to ¾c under last night. Oats off ⅜c to ⅝c, and provisions 12½c to 30½c down.

Decline to Release Him.

Albany, N.Y., Feb. 11.—Unconvinced that Edward E. Grimmell, a third term convict in Glinton prison, has been cured of his criminal tendencies by surgery, the State Parole Board has refused to parole him, although Governor White, before retiring from office, gave the board the authority by commuting his sentence.

Grimmell's skull was fractured when a boy of 14 during a quarrel with a playmate, and the claim was made that the injury was a potent factor in developing his criminal career. In March, 1909, Dr. Dewitt G. Wilcox of Buffalo, with an assistant, went to the prison and performed an operation with a view to restoring Grimmell to his normal state of mind.

Frequenters Will Be Fined.

Hamilton, Feb. 11.—Hereafter when hotel bars are found open after hours, the men caught will be prosecuted as well as the proprietor.

Yesterday morning the magistrate fined Edward Duffy of the Northern Hotel $20, and a dozen men found in his bar by the police last Sunday $10 each.

"I am making the fine in the proprietor's case as low as possible, and raising it on the frequenters, because if they did not patronize these places the law would not be broken," said the magistrate.

Bowman Sentenced Again.

Toronto, Feb. 11.—Continuing to collect money in Berlin after his employer, R. L. Jose, had warned him to stop, and pocketing $46.50, Levi Bowman will go to the Central for five months. Will Press Suit.

Kingston, Feb. 11.—Walter Telfer, proprietor of the British-American Hotel, states that he will not withdraw his action against Dun's Bulletin, Toronto, because the sheet makes correction.

It is always the chap with the short end of it who advocates equality.

Of course there are two sides to every story; but the trouble is the most of us only care to hear one.

DRINKS FOR HIS NERVES

You Who Never Touch Liquor Cannot Understand a Strange Nervousness in Some People Which Nothing Else Will Allay.

Nine-tenths of all those who drink liquor would gladly stop if their nerves would allow them to. Very few men like liquor, and yet fewer drink it because they are naturally vicious.

There is a kind of nervousness that no sedative in the world will have the least effect upon—nothing will allay it but alcohol. That is why men keep right on drinking when they know just as well as you do that it is ruining them mentally, physically and financially. They simply CAN'T STOP.

The condition of nervousness is due to accumlated alcoholic poison in their systems. Before they can or will stop drinking liquor every trace of this poison must be driven out. The Gatlin treatment is the only one in the world that will eliminate this poison; other methods of treatment will not because EFFECTS are treated instead of CAUSE. The Gatlin does away with the CAUSE, and with it go craving, desire, nervousness and all other effects of alcoholic poisoning. But THREE DAYS' Time is required to cure any case by either Institute or Home treatment.

Come to the Gatlin Institute for three days and you will return home with no more desire for liquor than you had the day you took your first drink.

You will be treated under a legally-executed contract to cure in three days or the full fee paid shall be refunded on leaving the institute.

Call or write for books giving full particulars and copies of contract.

It is anticipated that the builders the Collingwood Shupbuilding Co. will have the new steamer ready for her run by the latter part of June. She will go on her route July 1st.

The new steamer and the Steamer Alexandria, already an established favorite will during the summer season give a semi-weekly service on the Charlotte (port of Rochester, N. Y.,) to Quebec route. The steamers will leave Picton on the down trip Mondays and Fridays.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

PROTEST IS USELESS

Sir Wilfrid Says Fruit Growers Have Come Too Late.

Big Deputation Representing Eastern Canada Ask Premier For Fair Treatment In Tariff and Want a Reconsideration of Clauses Involving the Fruit Industry — Laurier Says West Demands Free Fruit.

Ottawa, Feb. 11.—Fully 1,500 fruit and vegetable growers flooded the House of Commons yesterday to present their memorial in opposition to the proposed lowering of the tariff barriers against American products. They represented widely separated parts of Ontario.

Although the largest contingent hailed from the Niagara peninsula, there were many representatives also from Halton, Essex and the vicinity of Toronto. The Quebec farmers were also represented.

The deputation was introduced by W. O. Sealey, M.P., and in addition to the Premier and Hon. W. S. Fielding, Mr. Borden and Hon. G. E. Foster with many other members of Parliament were present.

The memorial was read by Mr. Johnston, and after several "whereases," it said:

"We would, therefore, most earnestly and respectfully request that your Government may, after due consideration of the points we have ventured to bring to your notice, and after full enquiry into all the conditions, reconsider the clauses referring to the interchange of fresh fruits and vegetables, and that you may then be enabled to place our industry on a commensurate footing with its great importance to the deevlopment of this country."

It seemed, said Mr. Johnston, that, though the interests of the grain growers had been looked after, those of the fruit growers had somehow been overlooked. The agreement as it stood would mean the ruin of this industry.

In his reply to the deputation, Sir Wilfrid said it was impossible to frame a tariff that would please everybody in the country. The western provinces demanded free fruit, and their demand was a reasonable one. All classes and industries had to be prepared to make some sacrifices to the common good. He was afraid the fruit growers had come too late to have anything done.

New Hospital.

Berlin, Ont., Feb. 11.—The report of Dr. Bruce Smith, read at the meeting of the Berlin-Waterloo Hospital Board last night, recommended the erection of a new wing in order to provide proper accommodation for the increasing number of patients. Dr. Smith also stated that the operating room was one of the poorest in Ontario. Steps will be taken immediately to have a new wing erected. Berlin Council will be asked to issue debentures to the amount of $10,000; Waterlooo Town $3,000, and Waeterloo County $3,000. There is at present $1,230 in the bank bequeathed by the late Dr. G. S. Bowlby, to be used in the erection of a new operating room, and $3,300 raised during the last two years, to be used towards financing the new wing.

Mormon Leader Dead.

As leader of the sect Hill was guard-in-chief of the famous "Temple Lot" here, which was set apart more than 75 years ago by Joseph Smith, original prophet and founder of the Mormon Church, as the site of a future great temple of the Lord.

The "Temple Lot" passed into Gentile hands, from which it was again obtained by the sub-sect. Hill succeeded Hedrick. He was born in Gloucester, England, in 1827.

Quebec, Feb. 11.—The Quebec royal commission on education has recommended the creation of a central commission of twelve members, instead of the parochial system obtaining, and a separate English Catholic board. The members also suggest that parents of each district be called into consultation with the central commission at stated intervals.

There are thirty different school commissions in the city of Montreal at present.

The specific charge is that Rind and Warner brought in a five stone diamond ring on Jan. 1 without payment of duty, and sold it here.

McKinney, jr., son of a well-to-do advertising man, is locked up in a police station here, charged with admitting two burglars to his father's home in Bensonhurst, and aiding them in looting the house. MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

Ontario Legislators Discuss Nomination Difficulties.

Toronto, Feb. 11.—Rural municipal and school trustee election difficulties were discussed by the Ontario Legislature yesterday afternoon.

T. E. Bradburn, West Peterboro (Con.), moved the second reading of his bill to amend the School Act in the direction of stiffening the conditions of the nomination proceedings.

Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, said that while the present regulations allowed some latitude, it would be unwise to change them as suggested owing to the difficulties in many rural school districts of securing ratepayers who were willing to take the position of school trustees.

Mr. Bradburn, in deference to Hon. Dr. Pyne's views, withdrew his bill. He, however, fared better with his bill to amend the Municipal Act, which elicited a few words of commendation from Hon. W. J. Hanna.

The Provincial Secretary said that Mr. Bradburn's motion contained about half a dozen suggestions which might be considered in the municipal committee. The clause which provided that some officer other than the mayor should be qualified to sign debenture coupons was worthy of consideration, as it certainly was a big task to sign innumerable debenture coupons several times a year.

A. B. Thomson, Centre Simcoe, moved the second reading of his bill to place township elections on the same basis as other municipalities.

Hon. A. G. MacKay, Opposition leader, objected to the bill as too drastic for present conditions in many parts of the province, especially in sparsely settled sections.

Sir James Whitney said that he agreed with his honored friend, the leader of the Opposition, with respect to the bill for what might be very nice for the city and town might be very inconvenient and uncomfortable out in the country.

Mr. Thomson said that he did not introduce the bill with any idea of forcing it upon the rural municipalities, but had brought it in at the request of several municipalities in his riding.

Sir James Whitney said that the great Judge Richards once said that "the hard cases make bad laws." Lawmakers were but human, and it was impossible to make a law which would work to perfection absolutely in all cases without exception, but in view of Mr. Thompson's explanation the bill might go to the municipal committee for a consideration of the difficulty complained of.

W. T. Nickle, Kingston (Con.), moved the second reading of his bill to amend the Public Health Act. The bill places the control of locations for the storage of rags and bones in the hands of the municipalities. An outbreak of smallpox appeared to be traceable in one instance to the improper storage of infected rags.

Sir James Whitney said that the bill might be reported upon to see whether or not the matter was already covered by the Public Health Act.

When Hon. J. [illegible]. Duff's bill respecting veterinary surgeons was read a second time. Hon. A. G. Mackay repeated the criticism that it raised the witness' fee of veterinary experts to one dollar in excess of other experts.

The Minister of Agriculture said that this would all be adjusted as the other statutes were revised.

Several incorporation bills were on the motion of Hon. I. B. Lucas given their second reading, also Hon. Frank Cochrane's aid to drainage bill.

Sir James Whitney's Factories Act amendment bill was read a second time.

Carload of Liquor Seized.

Toronto, Feb. 11.—The biggest single seizure of liquor ever made in Northern Ontario was made by the provincial police near Cochrane, early yesterday morning. It consisted of a carload of the forbidden goods, 150 cases of whisky and the rest beer. The shipment was obviously intended for distribution among the blind-piggers in the district. The constables had a tip that a large shipment was coming and to get it they had to lie in the woods for two nights with the temperature at about forty below zero.

Word of the seizure was sent to the Provincial Secretary yesterday morning, and he immediately conferred with his deputy, S. A. Armstrong, Eudo Saunder, chief license officer, and Joseph Rogers, superintendent of Provincial Police. The Department is putting up a strong fight against the importation of liquor into the prohibited districts and every possible device has been adopted to evade the police. Liquor has been shipped in as gasoline and every other commodity. The idea of sending in a whole carload, which would be sealed, is a new idea. Only the bare report of the seizure has been sent to headquarters and it is not known where the car was shipped from. Sealed cars like that cannot be examined by the T. & N. O. officials, and it is now the work of the license department to find out who the shippers were.

Given a Chance.

Kingston, Feb. 11.—The Bank of British North America will not take any action against Sergt. G. Harrison of the Army Service Corps, for forging a check for $20. Harrison is in the barracks, having returned to answer for his doings. The accounts are short, but it is understood friends will help him out, and that he will be given a chance to make good.

Power For Kingston.

Kingston, Feb. 11.—In a week's time, Hon. Adam Beck, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission, hopes to have a proposition ready for cheap power for Kingston. This is the encouraging report Ald. Toye, who was sent as a delegate to interview Hon. Mr. Beck in Toronto, brought back with him yesterday.

Changed Their Time.

Paris, Feb. 11.—The Senate yesterday passed a bill modifying the legal time in France and Algeria, which now is nine minutes 21 seconds slower than that in use in Western Europe. This action is to be taken so as to bring France within the same time section as England, Belgium, Holland and Spain.

CONTRACTOR ARRESTED

James Vance of Tavistock Is Charged With Bribery.

Man Who Is Accused of Having Paid Fifty Dollars to a Councillor For a Bridge Job Gives Himself Up to Constable and Is Released on $5,000 Cash and Security.

Woodstock, Feb. 11.—A further arrest in the Oxford graft enquiry took place yesterday afternoon, when Jas. Vance, bridge contractor from near Tavistock, went into that village and gave himself up to Constable Frick.

A warrant was issued for his arrest at the same time as the others, and given to Constable Hobson to execute. The constable could not locate him on Thursday, but hearing he was wanted, Vance went to Tavistock and gave himself into custody.

The village constable and his man came to Woodstock yesterday afternoon, and before Magistrate Ball bail was given to $2,500 cash and $2,500 security. It is charged that Vance gave a county councillor $50 to get a bridge contract.

The charge upon which M. T. Buchanan was arrested on Thursday was perjury in the recent investigation before Judge Snider, the information against the others being for various grafts.

Byron McCarty is accused of accepting a rake-off, while councillor, from a firm in London in Oxford County purchases.

These three, with Youngs, will have preliminary hearings on Feb. 17 before Magistrate Ball.

May Be Man's Body.

Erie, Pa., Feb. 11.—While the police and detectives were working desperately to discover a clue to the identity of the ghouls that robbed the Scott mausoleum in the Erie Cemetery, new mystery was thrown about the case by a report that the body taken was not that of Mrs. Anna M. McCollum, as at first reported, but that of the late Congressman Wm. L. Scott.

The main hunt for the ghouls is now being directed in Black Hand channels as a result of a conference between detectives and Charles H. Strong, brother-in-law of the late Mr. Scott. Men who attempted to blackmail the Strong family two years ago by means of Black Hand letters are now in the Washington penitentiary, and it is believed that their friends or companions may have been responsible for the grave robbery.

Mr. Scott, who was a wealthy railroad man, was a close personal friend of the late Grover Cleveland, during the latter's first term.

Fifteen Miners Meet Death.

Trinidad, Col., Feb. 11.—The bodies of four shot-firers had been removed from the Cokedale Mine wrecked by an explosion on Thursday night, five more bodies had been discovered and six were still unaccounted for last night. A. E. Suton, assistant superintendent, in charge of the rescue work, was overcome with gas and was carried to the surface. He probably will die.

Supt. Bailess declared yesterday he believed the explosion was due to the accidental discharge of blasting powder. Little hope is entertained of finding the remaining six men alive. All the dead and missing are foreigners.

Could Smuggle Diamonds.

Portland, Me., Feb. 11.—An indictment charging Theodore F. Abildgaard of Washburn, a U. S. customs inspector, with scheming to defraud the U. S. Government by a plan to smuggle diamonds from Canada, was reported by the grand jury of the U. S. District Court, which arose yesterday. It is alleged Abildgaard wrote a Chicago mail order jewelry firm suggesting that he could get diamonds across the Canadian border into the United States free of duty. He pleaded not guilty to the indictment, and the case was continued until April.

Ancient Coach Prey to Flames.

London, Feb. 11.—The ancient royal glass coach, used for two centuries in the coronation ceremonies, was destroyed by fire yesterday, together with the queen's barouche, another vehicle used on state occasions, when fire swept the plant of a carriage builder in the west end, where both were being renovated.

The historic old carriages were being furbished up for the coronation of King George in June. The glass coach was 200 years old.

Attempted Murder Is Charged.

Sherbrooke, Feb. 11.—S. Guillemette of Lake Woron was brought to Sherbrooke jail yesterday charged with an attempt at murder. He was trying, it is alleged, to force an entry into a store, and when disturbed by Mr. Brier, the proprietor, shot at the latter with a Snyder rifle. The bullet just grazed his head. The burglar then entered the store and carried away a quantity of flour.

Wants Treaty Cancelled.

Washington, Feb. 11.—Claiming that Russia has violated the treaty of 1832 with the United States, by denying Jewish citizens of this country the privileges extended to other American travelers, Representative Herbert Parsons of New York introduced a resolution in the House yesterday calling on President Taft to declare the treaty void.

"Conder Charlie" Retires.

London, Feb. 11.—Admiral Lord Charles William de la Poer Beresford was sixty-five years old yesterday, and by virtue of the age limit clause, is retired from the active list of the British navy. He has held no appointment since his surrender, on March 24, 1909, of the command of the Channel fleet.

RALLY IN MARCH?

Liberals Are Expected to Meet to Revise Platform.

Toronto, Feb. 11.—According to some of those who are discussing the matter, the arrangements are well under way for an Ontario Reform convention at Massey Hall, early in March, says a Toronto morning paper. The promoters expect an attendance of 2,500 accredited delegates.

H. M. Mowat, K.C., president of the Ontario Reform Association, and F. S. Mearns, president of the Toronto Reform Association, are taking an active part in the arrangements, backed by Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways, and Hon. A. G. MacKay, Opposition leader in the Ontario Legislature.

If the views of the progressive element among the young Liberals are crystalized into form and adopted, the planks of the new Ontario Reform platform will be:

Grouped constituencies.

Proportional representation.

Local option by municipalities respecting the taxation of improvements.

Abolition of the three-fifths clause.

Extension of the present municipal woman's suffrage.

Great activity is being manifested at the new offices of the Toronto Reform Association, in the Forum Building. This has been accelerated by the likelihood of an early dissolution on the reciprocity issue.

A. E. Hacker, organizer for the Toronto district, has a clerical staff busily employed, and there is an evident determination on the part of the association to be ready to put up a stiff fight in the Toronto ridings.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

James Conmee, M.P., is reported as progressing favorably.

President Taft opened his reciprocity campaign at Columbus, Ohio.

British Unionists cannot agree as to line of action in regard to veto.

Starvation threatens two million Chinese unless immediately relieved.

Engineer Earith was arrested in connection with the train collision near Paris.

Mr. Richard Hazleton, M.P., has been unseated in North Louth on petition of Mr. T. M. Healy, K.C.

It is said the C.P.R. will establish a steamship line from St. John and Halifax to the West Indies, calling also at Boston.

Ford Teeples and John McCoy, two trappers near Charlton, have been missing for two weeks, and it is feared some disaster has overtaken them.

A complete inventory of the goods taken in the robbery of the home of Charles G. Roebling, Trenton, N.J., on Wednesday, shows about $25,000 worth of jewelry missing.

The new 50,000 ton Cunard Line steamship which is being built at Clyde Bank, Scotland, will be named Aquitania. It is estimated that the vessel will cost $10,000,000.

All the fishermen who had been adrift for several days on an ice floe outside Bjorko Sound, Finland, and for whose safety grave fears were felt, got ashore yesterday near Yamburg.

Dr. E. G. Janeway, credited with saving the life of Rudyard Kipling in New York in 1909, died at his home near Summit, N.J., yesterday, in his 79th year. He also attended McKinley at the last.

The Minister of Militia states that outside the appointment of Lieut.-Col. H. H. McLean, as commander, there had been absolutely no names definitely decided upon for positions on the coronation contingent.

Four foreigners were arrested early yesterday in the Italian quarter of Philadelphia on the charge of counterfeiting. It is alleged the prisoners made and circulated spursious silver dollars. They were selling 100 bad dollars for $5.

Shot a Burglar.

Sydney, N.S., Feb. 11.—Louis Sodoisky, a Hebrew, put two bullets into Antonio Ariatook, a Polander, yesterday. Sodoisky found a man entering his house through a window early yesterday morning, holding a glittering object like a revolver in his hand. Sodoisky secured his own revolver, and thinking to scare the intruder, fired twice. Both shots took effect, one entering the head and the other breaking one hand. Sodoisky was the first to acquaint the authorities of the affray. He was released on $1,000 bail.

Seek Power to Extradite Poachers.

FRENCH SMUGGLERS.

Tricks They Employ to Cheat the Customs Officials.

Speaking of the various means employed to defraud the customs authorities in his country a Parisian recently said:

"It must be remembered that spirits and goods of various descriptions are not allowed to enter Paris without paying duty. The tricks of the fraudulent are numberless. One inventive gentleman, apparently of ample proportions, made use of an India rubber pocket. He used it with a dummy stomach in which to carry dutiable goods, and when relieved of it by a suspicious official he turned out to be quite a thin man. A horse collar worn by a horse was found to be full of chartreuse on another occasion. The shafts of the little cart behind the horse contained expensive lace, neatly rolled up. Another case was where a foot warmer was found under the feet of a dear old lady who entered Paris in a carriage. The foot warmer was filled with eau de cologne, out of which in the past the highly respectable old dame had been making a handsome profit.

"One of the cleverest smugglers used the following method to smuggle brandy into town: He organized funerals, passing at long intervals through the various gates of Paris. There was nothing suspicious in the fact, since many Parisians living in the suburbs insist on being buried in one of the beautiful Paris cemeteries. The coffin was smothered under numberless wreaths of flowers. The procession like everything else, stopped at the gate, but was invariably allowed to proceed at once, the douaniers respectfully greeting the dead, and that was all. One day a procession was stopped by a number of carriages. There had been some accident ahead and the traffic was impeded. Meanwhile one of the customs officers walked near to the hearse in order to admire the violets and roses of the wreaths. He sniffed. Really there was a very strong odor of brandy about them. He promptly seized one of his special and sharp tools, sounded the wreaths and found that they were made of metal and wood and full of the best brandy. The chief mourner was arrested and his "wreaths" confiscated. Funerals are now closely watched and do not escape investigation at the gates of Paris."

Sink the Money.

The measures adopted by the Bank of England to protect its treasure against the depredations of robbers exhibit almost the limit of human ingenuity. Its outer doors are so finely balanced that a clerk, by pressing a knob under his desk, can close them instantly, and they cannot be opened again except by a special mechanism.

The bullion department of this great British banking institution is nightly submerged in several feet of water by the action of machinery. In some of the London banks the bullion departments are connected with the manager's sleeping rooms, and an entrance cannot be effected without setting off an alarm near this person's head.

If, in the Bank of England, a dishonest officer, during the day or night, should take even one from a pile of sovereigns, the whole pile would instantly sink and a pool of water take its place, besides letting every person in the establishment know of the theft.

His Recommendation.

Very graceful was the subterfuge resorted to by a certain general who had been tyrannized over by a certain atrocious cook whose cooking he had suffered from more out of fear than love for so long a period that he became at length a martyr to indigestion. The cook had to leave, but she demanded a written reference. What is more, she stood by while her unhappy master strove between fear of her and fear of the crime of manslaughter being on his conscience if he recommended her to another employer who might be brought to an early grave with dyspepsia. At length he found a way out.

"Dear sir," he wrote, "Mary Jane has cooked for me day in and day out for several years. She is leaving merely on account of bad health. P.S.—My bad health."—M.A.P.

A Chinese Superstition.

The Chinese have a remarkable superstition about the Chu River, which is the local name on the border for the [illegible]. A considerable trade in drugs is borne along this river, for which a special class of boats, composed of very light boards fastened with wooden nails, is built. The natives say that the magnetic attraction of the bed of the river is so strong that were ordinary boats used the iron nails would be pulled out. Along the river banks iron is mined in primitive fashion, and from geological evidence it is believed that the ore is very rich.

Considering all of these centres that are concerned in vision, they occupy at least one-third of the gray matter area of the entire brain. The natural position of the eyes in a state of perfect rest is distant vision. As the eye approaches closer and closer to an observed object, it is necessary to gradually increase its focus, which is done by work or strain in the gray matter cells in the third ventricle. In approaching an object it is necessary for the eyes to converge towards each other, that both may be fixed on the object simultaneously. This con-

In so important a thing as the purchase of a piano, do not let an apparent saving in cost warp your good judgment.

OUR LADY CURLERS BEAT ALL COMERS

Kingston and Peterborough Were Both Victims to Their Skill—'Twas a Sporting Event in all Respects—Victors Hospitably Entertained the Vanquished

There was rejoicing yesterday afternoon in the camp of the Ladies' Curling Club, and there was certainly good reason for it. Did not two rinks representing the senior members administer a defeat to two similar rinks from Kingston and a junior rink also defeat a Peterboro rink? The ladies are enthusiastic curlers and they certainly enjoyed the game yesterday. Previous to the game the visiting ladies were entertained at Hotel Quinte by the Belleville ladies, and at the conclusion of the matches a dainty tea was served at the club rooms. During the progress of the game there were many spectators present, not a few of course being gentlemen. It was an interesting match to witness and some of the ladies are, without undue credit, excellent curlers. On all the rinks 12 ends were played, which was sufficient, owing to the fact that the ice was a little sticky. The result of the contest was that the total shots secured by the local players in the senior competition was 23, whereas Kingston players were unable to secure more than 15 shots. In the junior competition it was an easy win for Miss Kathleen Stork as skip and the other members of her rink. In the senior competition Mrs. W. J. Cook and Miss B. Gillum as skips played well, being pitted against two of Kingston's best lady rinks. The victory secured was well earned and reflected much credit upon all who participated.

The composition of the rinks and the score were as follows:

CHICAGO THIEVES ROB THIEVES AFTER RECTOR HOLD-UP

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—"Even a thief isn't safe in Chicago," is the plea made by Charles Willard to the Chicago police in a remarkable confession which declares that he, in conspiracy with two employes, held up Rector's restaurant last Sunday morning and stole $3,300. He says that another conspiracy made his possession of the money brief, for, as he was leaving the cafe, he was greeted by three men who, with a revolver pressed against his side, forced him into an alley and robbed him.

Willard says he confided to an outsider the conspiracy to rob Rector's. He believed that he was a victim of a conspiracy devised by his friends and two other men. The story, incredible as it first seemed to the police, was corroborated later. They recovered $500 and arrested William Loftus, a saloonkeeper, and charged him with being an accessory to the robbery, and with having received stolen property.

The original robbery occurred in Rector's restaurant Sunday morning, when a bandit entered as John Adams, the cashier, and Ray Saisline, assistant head waiter, were near the cashier's desk. Pointing a revolver at the men, he proceeded in true hold-up fashion to procure $3,300.

Saisline was arrested. He confessed that he had arranged with Willard to commit the robbery. Willard finally admitted the robbery and told why he did not divide with the waiter.

Willard was in the habit of spending much of his time in Loftus' saloon. When the plot to rob the restaurant developed, Willard confided in his friend Loftus and borrowed two revolvers of him.

"When I came out of the restaurant," said Willard, "three men were waiting for me. 'We want you, Charley,' said one, and he pressed the end of a revolver against me.

"I thought they were detectives called by other waiters and that I was under arrest. They walked me around a policeman to a back alley of the Hamilton Club. In the alley one man covered my mouth, one pressed the revolver against my ribs, and the third took the money from me. I could not make any complaint about it, but had to hurry away to keep from being arrested."

THAT LACE CASE ONCE MORE

Curlette vs. Vermilyea.—This action grew out of the Meudell estate. Dr. John J. Farley and N. Vermilyea are the executors, but Mrs. (Dr.) Mather Mrs. W. W. Farley and Mrs. Vermilyea were appointed by the codicil to allot and distribute the chattels, the executors having nothing whatever to do with them under the will. Miss Curlette sued for a fichu worth $300 and damages for detention of the lace. She appears to have failed in both, but the Divisional Court has decided that instead of the four pieces given by the ladies, Miss Curlette was entitled to a certain bertha with two pieces of yard lace attached, although such piece has several holes in it. The result is that the estate will pay the costs.—Com.

SEATTLE'S MAYOR FIRED AS GRAFTER

SEATTLE, Feb. 10.—Hiram C. Gill elected mayor of Seattle a year ago was ousted from office by the voters participating in the recall election yesterday, and George W. Dilling, public welfare candidate, was chosen by a plurality of 6000 votes to serve as mayor during the remainder of the term to which Mayor Gill had been elected. When Gill was elected a year ago he received 18000 votes out of 35000 votes cast, winning with a plurality of 3300 votes. He was ousted for misconduct in office.

It was alleged by the recall leaders that Gill and Chief of Police Wappenstein farmed out the vice privileges to a syndicate and collected a large percentage of receipts therefrom.

Women were extremely active in yesterday's election. They stood in lines at the booth, and appeared to be as apt and quick at casting their votes as the more experienced men voters. Their votes were largely responsible for the result.

As soon as it was announced last November that the woman suffrage amendment to the constitution had been adopted, the movement to recall Gill, under a provision of the city charter, took active form and the women entered vigorously into the campaign.

A surprise of the day was the heavy Socialist vote, which will probably reach 5,000.

Mayor Gill's troubles began the moment he announced that he would appoint Charles Wappenstein as chief of police. Wappenstein had been dismissed from the office of chief of detectives in Cincinnati and later had been dismissed as chief of detectives of Seattle.

He also had been involved in the scandal that led to the shooting of former Chief of Police Meredith in a street fight in the city. Pressure was brought to bear upon the Mayor to remove Wappenstein, and Wappenstein later sought to resign.

A GRAND MEDICINE FOR OLD PEOPLE

"Fruit-a-tives" Restores The Health and Strength of Youth.

GRANDE LIGNE, QUE., Jan. 2nd, 1910.

"I heartily recommend "Fruit-a-tives" to all who suffer from constipation and the painful consequence, Piles. I am now over 80 years of age and suffered for more than 10 years with Constipation and Piles. I tried all kinds of remedies, but nothing cured me.

About four years ago, I received a sample of "Fruit-a-tives". After taking a few doses. I felt that "Fruit-a-tives" were doing me good. As "Fruit-a-tives" were not sold here then, I wrote to Ottawa for several boxes.

After taking four boxes, I felt well—my Bowels were regular—and the Piles had disappeared". N. JOUBERT.

By taking one "Fruit-a-tives" tablet half an hour before meals—or one or two at night—old people can correct all Stomach, Liver and Kidney Troubles.

"Fruit-a-tives" the famous fruit medicine is mild and gentle in action—pleasant to the taste—yet no other remedy has been found to be so effective in keeping old folks in good health.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Woman Talked so Fast That Stenographer Had to Get a Rest

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 11.—Telling of her married life, Mrs. Alice L. Lemen talked so fast on the witness stand that Judge Hadley ordered a recess of three hours to give his fagged stenographer a rest.

Mrs. Lemen is suing for divorce from her second husband, Wilam C. Lemen, a former commission merchant. She began talking at four p.m. yesterday. Even her attorney found it almost impossible to get in a word. Questions were not needed, and the witness easily maintained a high velocity of language which never flagged.

"Iusedtositupnightstiltwelveo'clock darningmyhusband'ssocks," she raced along.

"Oftenldidnothaveclothestokeepme warm. Oncehetoldmetocomedowntown withhimandhewouldbuyme$100worth of clothes. Whenwegottothestorehehanded me$15andstrolledaway."

And so it went on and on. At 11 a.m the stenographer threw up her hands. Her fingers were blue and cramped with fatigue.

She had filled two notebooks and started on a third and shook her head feebly to indicate her inability to continue.

OWEN KILDARE IS DEAD IN AYSLUM

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Owen Kildare, Bowery boy who became author, died Saturday night in Manhattan State Hospital for the insane of paresis. His wife, who has become Mrs. Charles A. Adams since his commitment to Ward's Island, visited him the day before.

Kildare was born in New York in 1864 and secured his education after attaining the age of 30 at Bowery night schools, Cooper Union lectures and in the Y.M.C.A. courses. For a long period prior to the commencement of his regeneration he was a typical Bowery boy. In 1871 he was a newsboy of the gang of which Timothy D. Sullivan, congressman of New York was leader. Between 1880 and 1894 he was by turns pugilist, professional athlete, soldier of fortune, filibuster, manager of sporting ventures, dock laborer, freight handler and truck driver. In 1900 he became a practical reformer of the slum district and from that on was a contributor to various magazines, rising to the post of associate editor of Pearson's.

During the Brazilian revolution Kildare shipped from Wey West as captain of marines in the Republican navy; he served as a sergeant of the foreign legation with the French army in Algiers and took part in an unsuccessful revolt against President Castro of Venezuela, being sentenced to be shot, but escaping.

His books are: "My Mamie Rose," "The Good of the Wicked," "The Wisdom of the Simple." His plays: "The Tipster," "An Intermezzo," "A Raid on Policy," "The Czar of the Precinct," dramatization of "My Mamie Rose."

The non-success of this work, produced on the stage under the title of "The Regeneration," by Arnold Daly, and given in this city by Vaughan Glaser and his company, was the cause of Mr. Kildare's illness.

On Nov. 24 of last year the author was committed to the Bellevue Hospital for the insane, his mind having failed to recover from the mental shock attending the failure of his pet drama, which really was the story of his own uprise from the Bowery to an editor's chair.

He maried Miss Leita Russell Bogardus, who came from Detroit to work as a newspaper writer. She helped him with much of his work. They had a daughter, who is now about 5 years old. Mrs. Kildare secured the annulment of her marriage after his commitment to Ward's Island. She then married Lieut.-Com. Charles A. Adams, U.S.N., retired.

SAYS SHE WAS NOT "BABBLING BROOK"

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Lady Warwick, in a letter to the Times recalling her experience with scandalmongers, says:

"Twenty-one years ago, at a Doncaster race party, occurred what was termed the 'Tranby Croft scandal.' The American press without exception published my portrait beneath the heading, 'The Babbling Brook,' my father-in-law being alive—accusing me of having at this house party revealed the facts of the scandal to the public and saying that but for my indiscretion this affair might have been kept secret.

"I have never been at Tranby Croft in my life. At the very time of this party as held I, with all the members of my family, was in Scotland at the deathbed of my stepfather. The subsequent funeral and our deep mourning prevented me for a long time from joining in any social gathering, so that I was among the last to hear of what at that time set society agog.

"Nevertheless American newspapers persisted in this story whenever my name was mentioned, and when written to they replied that the facts had been sent to them by their correspondent in London—a lady moving in the best society.

"From time to time during the 21 years that this story has been reprinted, and when in New York three years ago my having managed to elude an interviewer did not prevent the reappearance of the inevitable portrait and the inevitable tale.

"In course of time, if my obituary notice is mentioned in the American press, I have no doubt the latest edition of a story for which there was not even a foundation will figure for the last time."

Capt. Collier owner of the Str. Reindeer and a veteran mariner died on Friday morning.

Vol. 44 BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1911. NO. 92

Prizes in Our Great Popularity Contest

When we decided to offer the ladies of Belleville and vicinity the chance to win prizes in a popularity contest, we took great pains to select prizes that would be of value to them. We thought of trips to Europe and a great many other things, but after due consideration decided on the prizes we are giving, because they are prizes anyone will be proud to win, and at the same time many of them are prizes that will last a lifetime. Everyone understands that the circulation of a newspaper is the foundation on which a newspaper stands, the stronger the foundation the better the newspaper. We are able to take care of a great many new subscribers, thus accounting for our decision to put on a big popularity contest. The prizes to be given away are as follows:

1ST GRAND PRIZE.

The first Grand Prize, and most valuable of all the prizes in this great Contest, is a handsome $400.00 Ionic Heintzman Piano. It was purchased from W. B. Riggs and can be inspected at his store. Here is what the manufacturers have to say about this grand instrument:—Pianos are like men, they have character; likewise, too, this character is reflected in every detail of construction. It is the cumulative value of little things in the making of a piano that in the end will secure the symmetrically developed instrument. We want the details of this instrument to be inspected because we know they will be creditable to the makers. The Heintzman Piano Co. is composed of men who have built up an industry on a solid foundation, who have distinct ideals in their undertakings. We invite the inspection of this grand instrument at Mr. Riggs' store.

2ND GRAND PRIZE.

The second Grand Prize is a beautiful $300.00 Kohler & Campbell Piano. This piano is conceded by experts to be the best value on the market at this price. It is truly a grand instrument, and is fully guaranteed by Mr. W. B. Riggs, from whom it was purchased.

DISTRICT PRIZES.

There are ten other prizes, which will place five in each of the two districts, making a total of six valuable prizes for each district, including the Grand Prizes. They are as follows:

Two beautiful $100.00 Diamond Rings. The gems are perfect in every respect. They were purchased from Angus McFee and can be inspected at his store.

Two handsome $75.00 Bedroom Suites; one purchased from S. B. Sills & Co.; the other, a beautiful Brass Bedroom Suite, purchased from W. Thompson & Co. Both of these suites can be inspected at the above dealers.

Two $65.00 complete Business, Shorthand and Typewriting Courses in the Ontario Business College. This includes a complete unlimited course.

Two $35.00 complete Shorthand and Typewriting Courses in the Ontario Business College.

Two Ladies' beautiful Gold Watches. These watches were purchased from Mr. McCurdy and are fully guaranteed by him. They will be on display at his store.

THE WAY THE PRIZES WILL BE AWARDED.

The contestant receiving the largest number of votes in the whole contest territory, that is in both districts combined, will be awarded the 1st Grand Prize, the beautiful $400.00 Heintzman & Co. Piano.

The contestant receiving the largest number of votes in the remaining district after the award of the 1st Grand Prize will receive the $300.00 Kohler & Campbell Piano. One piano will be awarded to each of the two districts.

The third highest candidate will have her choice of the remaining five district prizes.

The fourth highest will have her choice of the remaining prizes, and so on down, after the other higher candidates have selected their prizes. This applies to both districts.

Every one has an excellent chance to win one of these valuable prizes. Just think, there are fourteen regular prizes and special prizes will be added from time to time during the term of the contest.

Any young lady who desires to enter this great contest and win one of the magnificent prizes offered should see that her name is sent in to the Contest Manager. All that is necessary to win a prize is to receive the largest number of votes, according to conditions mentioned elsewhere in this announcement.

A nomination coupon is printed in this paper, which, when sent in to The Intelligencer office with the prospective candidate's name and address, is good for 1,000 votes. Only one nomination blank for each nominee.

The easiest and quickest way for a candidate to win is for the candidates to ask their friends to pay and prepay their subscriptions in advance. It costs the subscriber nothing extra to do this, and they have saved the annoyance of weekly and monthly collections. By so doing the candidate receives a special vote voucher, which is good for votes, according to the schedule, and will count at any time during the contest.

Any young lady residing in the territory mentioned is eligible to compete in this contest. Any one who desires to vote in this contest may do so by ballots cut from the paper, or by special vote coupons by subscribing for The Intelligencer.

The coupons secured by subscribing to The Intelligencer may be held as long as desired and voted at any time up to the close of the contest, but the ballots cut from the paper are only good for a few days from the time of publication and wil not be counted after date printed on ballot.

This affords the girls of Belleville and outside territory an excellent opportunity to receive valuable prizes with very little effort on their part.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR VOTING.

Enter the name of the young lady whom you wish to secure one of these valuable prizes in this contest at once. Better still, get the young lady to enter her name and then vote for her. Those who get the names be entered at once. Candidates who enter this contest do not necessarily have to be subscribers to this paper. Enter your name and your friends will do the rest.

The first announcement as to who are the young ladies competing in this contest will be made Thursday, Feb. 2nd. We will then publish the names and number of votes each one has to her credit. After the first announcement of candidates the votes will be published daily.

Any person has the privilege of nominating one or more candidates.

Nominations should be mailed to the Contest Manager before Feb. 2nd. Candidates can be nominated after that date, but it is of great advantage for each candidate to have her name in the first list published, so that her friends will not agree to work for some one else before knowing who are entering the contest. It costs absolutely nothing to nominate a candidate. In all cases where ballots are issued subscriptions must be paid. The full amount of money must be sent direct by mail, paid to the contestants or brought to this office.

WHO IS TO BLAME

For So Many Sickly Children.

We hear of so many children who are thin, delicate, ailing, and tired all the time, we are led to ask what is the cause, and who is to blame?

Don't blame the children—they have no strength. They play hard, work hard at school, and rapid growth takes all their strength.

It is the mothers of all such children who are to blame, for if they only realized what our delicious cod liver and iron tonic will do for their little ones they wouldn't sleep at night until they had started them on Vinol.

Only a few days ago a case came to our attention— Mrs. H. Gilmore, of Durand, Mich., had a little daughter nine years of age. She was weak, pale, ailing, and nothing seemed to do her any good. She gave her Vinol and she began to thrive at once and gained rapidly in weight, color, and strength.

We positively know Vinol will build up your little ones and make them healthy, strong and robust. Try a bottle, and if you are not satisfied we will return your money. We make you this offer to show you our confidence and belief in Vinol.—J. S. McKeown.

NOVEL EYEGLASSES

Enlarge the Image on the Retina of Short-Sighted Persons

A German inventor has devised what he calls telescope eyeglasses. They are intended for the use of short-sighted persons by the very simple means of enlarging the image on the retina. They are especially designed for that class of near-sighted people who cannot wear the ordinary simply corrected glasses.

The monocle combination consists of two parts united in a single metal frame, a front objective lens or collector and a second nearer the eye to disperse the rays at the proper angle to make the correction for the degree of myopy in question. When properly prescribed and made the two lenses have such relation to each other that there is no distortion, astigmatism, or colored border to the image obtained.

Another German has invented what he calls police eyeglasses. On the side next the face they have tiny concave mirrors which may be extended sideways or be folded back so as not to show. They give the wearer, if he has normal sight, an image of what is going on almost directly behind him. They are proposed for the German secret police. Whether adopted or not is not to be ascertained from head-quarters.

Why is your nose like the V in civility?—It's between two eyes.

MANUEL AND A DOG-FIGHT

Ex-King Manuel is reported to have figured in a curious incident in Richmond Park. The wife and daughter of a local minister were walking in the park when their terrier got into a quarrel with a bulldog, much to the alarm of the ladies. The terrier was getting the worse of the encounter when the owner of the bulldog appeared on the scene, and beat his dog off with a walking-stick. Raising his hat he apologized to the ladies, and hoped that the dog was not much hurt. They then discovered that their helper was Manuel.

By way of experiment the cane has been relegated to obscurity at St. James's School, Barrow, the teachers having decided to encourage industry, punctuality, and good conduct by a policy of rewards taking the form of badges for individuals and banners for classes. Thus if a refractory pupil puts his class low on the list, his schoolmates are left to let him know what they think of him.

SURPRISED THE GERMAN

General Sir Reginald Pole-Carew relates the following story showing the energy of the British soldier. A German attache in the South African War was amazed at the spectacle of the British soldiers after a fight staggering into camp, but rushing instantly after a football which was thrown on the veldt. The German attache said to the General, "Well, you are the most extraordinary people in the whole civilized world. I have been with your men all day. I know what they have done. I know they have had nothing to eat or drink, and I know of no other troops in the world that would not have been lying down asleep. If we could do this we could conquer the

BRITISH AIRSHIP HAS EIGHT TANKS

Will Have a Storage Capacity of 2,000 Gallons of Petrol—Built for Long Voyages

Some additional particulars from a reliable source are to hand respecting the British naval airship now under construction at Barrow. The envelope, constructed of a silk similar in character to that used in the latest Zeppelins, is divided into seven sections. Its length is given as 510 feet, its diameter is 48 feet, and its gas capacity 706,336 cubic feet. To each of the two sets of eight cylinder Wolseley engines—each engine being rated at about 200 horse-power—there are attached eight sheet-metal tanks. Each tank has a storage capacity for 2,000 gallons of petrol, so that the total storage capacity of the tanks when full is 32,000 gallons. The tanks are welded together in oil-tight sections. Consequently, accident or injury to any section would involve the loss only of a minute fraction of the supply and would not destroy the buoyancy of the airship. In consequence of these features of her equipment the airship is fitted with some 300 yards of aluminum piping. Her lifting capacity is estimated at 21 tons, as against 16½ tons, the lifting capacity of the Zeppelin VIII., and her computed speed is 45 miles an hour, obtained from the three propellers, designed to run at 4,500 revolutions per minute. In order to minimize the weight, the framework has been constructed of the new alloy of aluminum known as "duralium," which is stated to be both lighter and stronger than the pure aluminum used in the construction of the German airships. From these particulars it is evident that the new airship is designed to undertake long voyages and to maintain efficiency, even if struck during an attack. As the tests to which all parts are being subjected are very thorough, it is not likely that the ship will be ready for her trial flight before May next.

The death occurred at Newmarket of Harry Parry, who in the sixties and seventies was one of the foremost jockeys on the English Turf. He rode for the Duke of Beaufort, Baron Rothschild, Lord Wilton, Prince Soltykoff, and M. Lefevre, and his successes included the Csarewitch, the One Thousand Guineas, and the Royal Hunt Cup.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Solves the Problem of Good Hair.

After Prof. Sabouraud confirmed the germ origin of dandruff, science was confronted by a new problem, which was not solved until the discovery of Newbro's Herpicide. Herpicide being the first successful preparation compounded in harmony with this new theory, becomes the original remedy to kill the dandruff germ.

Since then, numerous preparations said to be "just as good," as Herpicide have been thrown upon the market others have adopted Herpicide claims and without making any change in their remedies, but none have ever reached the same degree of popularity. Everywhere this remedy is recognized as the one dandruff germ destroyer. As a result Herpicide has more satisfied users than all other hair preparations combined.

Being the original remedy, users expect more astonishing results from Herpicide than they would look for from any other preparation, and they usually get them. So wonderful has been the success of this germicide that it is now recognized as the standard hair remedy of the world.

Herpicide kills the dandruff germ checks falling hair. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

TO VISIT DUBLIN AND EDINBURGH

Details of the Tour the King and Queen Will Take in Ireland and Scotland

"The King and Queen hope to visit Dublin and Edinburgh during the month of July next."

This is the simple official announcement of the King's Secretary, Sir Arthur Bigge.

It is expected that Their Majesties will include Glasgow in their Scottish itinerary, and that the King will there formally open Glasgow's new Royal Infirmary.

The announcement that the King and Queen are to pay a State visit to Ireland has been received with genuine satisfaction in Dublin. Their Majesties are assured of a genuinely hearty reception. The Irish people had a not unnatural feeling of regret that Queen Victoria did not visit Ireland except at long intervals, while Scotland was favored with a Royal residence at Balmoral.

Queen Victoria, however, nobly atoned for what Irishmen regarded as neglect by coming in the evening of her days and when a cross-Channel journey was a serious undertaking, on a special mission to Ireland to show her appreciation of the services rendered during the Boer War by what she almost affectionately called, "my brave Irish soldiers." King Edward increased the feeling of gratification by his State visit.

It was in the spring of 1903 that King Edward and Queen Alexandra went to Edinburgh and held a Court at Holyrood. They arrived in the city on May 11 and, according to ancient custom, the Lord Provost offered His Majesty the keys of the capital as he stepped from the train.

On this occasion, after a triumphal progress through the streets of Edinburgh, King Edward and Queen Alexandra were the guests of the Duke of Buccleuch at Dalkeith Palace, six miles from the city. The following day they held a Court at Holyrood, the first since the reign of George IV.

The levee proper was preceded by a presentation to the King of three arrows and three addresses. The arrows, three in number, but known in archery as a "pair," constituted the so-called "reddendo" which the Royal Archers are bound by their charter to offer to the Sovereign when he visits the Northern capital.

The third day was occupied by various ceremonies, including the opening of a new hospital.

The last official visit of King Edward to Edinburgh was in 1905, when nearly 40,000 Scottish Volunteers paraded in the King's Park. King George and Queen Mary were in the city two years later for the Highland and Agricultural Show.

The first Royal visit to Ireland, after King Edward ascended the throne, took place in 1903. On July 21 the King and Queen arrived at Dublin, and were enthusiastically greeted by large crowds. A levee was held, and numerous addresses were received, and Their Majesties visited Belfast, Connamara, and Cork.

The late King, accompanied by Queen Alexandra, went to Ireland in April, 1904. Their last visit was paid in July, 1905, when they attended the Leopardstown Races, and the Kingstown Exhibition.

BARONESS BEAUMONT

A SCOTTISH EXPLORER

The Remains of Major Laing Have Been Found

A correspondent writing from Timbuctoo announces the discovery of the remains of the Scottish explorer Major Alexander Gordon Laing, who was murdered by natives in 1826 between Timbuctoo and Arawan while exploring the sources of the Niger on behalf of the British Government. Major Laing, who was the son of a classical teacher in Edinburgh, was an African traveller of considerable repute. At the outset of his career he entered the Army, and while serving in the West Indies was appointed a lieutenant and adjutant. In 1819 he was sent to Sierra Leone, where he was seized with fever, and narrowly escaped death. He subsequently distinguished himself in the Ashantee war, and in 1825 he was promoted to the rank of captain and major. Later he was attached to an expedition appointed to explore the course of the Niger, and while engaged in this work he was treacherously assassinated by his guides.

ROYAL PAGEANT AT CORONATION

The Precedent of 1902 Will, it is Announced, be Followed as Closely as Possible

The arrangements for the Royal pageant associated with the Coronation of King George V. are so far complete that one can now form some idea of the comprehensiveness of the scheme. The precedent of 1902 is to be followed as far as possible. The line of procession will be the same, so that the progress of Royalties will be witnessed by the millions of East and South London, as well as by the more select inhabitants of and visitors to the West End. There will be a grand naval review at Spithead, and probably a military review. As the Over-Sea Dominions of the Empire will be well represented, and the great and small Powers of the world, the people will once more have a unique and powerful illustration of what the British Empire signifies. When it is considered that the varied units that make up the British Empire have been welded together by a generous application of the principles of justice, self-government, and religious and political liberty, citizens of the British Empire may well indulge in the festivity of the prospect of this great fact being represented once more in the metropolis of the world in a way that will strengthen the strong bonds that already hold them.

EXILED KING'S INCOME

Portuguese Government Allowing Him $3,330 a Month

At a meeting of foreign Press representatives the Portuguese Minister for Foreign Affairs said the departure of the Monarchists had been voluntary. As a proof of its toleration and generosity the Government was making monthly payments of $2,220 to Queen Maria Pia, and $3,330 to King Manuel. The Government having need of $125,000, $750,000 was immediately offered, a proof of the confidence felt in business circles.

Reuter's Agency circulates, with reference to this announcement, the statement following, which is based, says the Agency, on the "highest Portuguese authority,":—"With reference to the declaration of the Portuguese Minister of Foreign Affairs concerning the toleration and generosity displayed by the Republic towards the Royal family, Queen Maria Pia's dowery was settled in an Act approved by the Portuguese and Italian Chambers before Her Majesty's marriage with the late King Dom Luiz, and is an international agreement binding on whatever Government may be in power in Lisbon.

"As to King Manuel, His Majesty has so far received no sums except those derived from the estates of the House of Braganza, which constitute his personal property, and there can, therefore, be no question of any display of toleration and generosity by the Republican Government.

"With regard to the future, King Manuel has never abdicated his rights to the crown of Portugal, and he is determined always to maintain them, even if he were arbitrarily deprived of property which is undeniably his by law."

SLASHED HIS PICTURE

The Strange Conduct of an Artist at Budapest

A strange scene occurred in the Salon at Budapest the other week. A young man wearing an Inverness cape, the long hair and the slouch hat of the typical artist, was seen to take out a knife and began to slash one of the pictures upon the walls, and before he could be stopped he had not only completely ruined the picture, but cut the canvas to shreds. He was taken before the authorities, loudly protesting, and there the strange story transpired that the destroyer of the picture was actually its creator. The artist had tried for years to get a picture hung, and had at last succeeded. Whether the joy of success unhinged his reason, or whether he acted in this strange fashion to show his contempt for the official art world, is not clear, but probably the latter reason is the true one, as the man's demeanor was sane in other respects.

Coverly's Substitute

Appearances Were Against Him.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"I'm sorry, Elizabeth," said Ralph Coverly, "that I must go to Chicago on business for the firm of Fabens & Coverly."

"Never mind, Ralph. My one week has been lovely, and I shall enjoy spending a quiet time with your mother."

"Mother will be delighted to have you with her constantly. An invalid's days are dull enough. But there is an elderly aunt coming tomorrow, and I'm afraid you'll not find it very amusing with just Aunt Agatha and mother. I've thought of a plan so that you might enjoy the program we planned and not miss any of the concerts or art galleries or even the opera."

"What is that, dear? Really, half of the anticipated pleasure was the knowledge that we were to be together."

Ralph hesitated, and then, as if dismissing some unworthy doubt from his mind, he said quickly:

"Why, I've spoken to Fabens. He's a mighty clever chap and is better versed in all the things you're interested in than I am. I'm such a practical fellow, Elizabeth. Well, I told Fabens all the things I'd planned we were to do the coming week and asked him to see that you didn't miss any of the pleasures."

"It's very thoughtful of you, Ralph."

The next morning when Elizabeth wandered downstairs to a late breakfast she found the expected Aunt Agatha established at the head of the table. She was a stern visaged lady, whose hair remained a shining black in defiance of threescore years. She wore gold spectacles with thick lenses, which magnified her dark eyes with startling results. An ear trumpet dangled from a ribbon over her shoulder, much like a powderhorn at the back of a hunter.

"Good morning, Miss Neal—or shall I say Elizabeth? My niece has written of you, and I've seen your picture. If you'll excuse my saying so, you're not at all the sort of girl I thought Ralph would marry! He always preferred brunettes, like myself. Well, men are fickle as the weather! It's too bad Mary is confined to her room. You will be very lonely." Miss Dale paused to take breath.

"Mrs. Coverly will enjoy having some one with her. She is so much alone except for the nurse," said Elizabeth.

"I can't hear a word you say," asserted Miss Dale calmly. "It doesn't matter. I can always guess what people are talking about at table. You probably remarked that you wouldn't be lonely at all during Ralph's absence. I know Dick Fabens, my dear, and a more fascinating man I never met. Ralph is very foolish to leave you in Dick's care. But, there, every one has his consolations, and that little dark beauty Ralph was so crazy about last year lives in Chicago. There, there! Don't get emotional!"

Elizabeth, angry and amused, watched her and when she was alone finished her breakfast and retired to her own room. Later her brief morning visit to sweet Mrs. Coverly brought forth the fact that Aunt Agatha had arrived from her suburban home at an early hour that morning. She had surveyed the house from attic to cellar and had interviewed the nurse and the servants with praiseworthy results.

Mrs. Coverly smiled indulgently and touched Elizabeth's serious face with a delicate forefinger. "Aunt Agatha is an angel at heart, Elizabeth, but her deafness has accentuated certain oddities in her manner, and she has adopted a freedom of speech that is sometimes alarming. Don't forget. I shall expect you to come in for our game of chess every evening if you don't mind devoting so much time to an old woman."

Elizabeth's answer was to kiss the hand that caressed her, and the next half hour was one of delightful intimacy with the mother of her prospective husband.

Aunt Agatha at luncheon was a repetition of Aunt Agatha at breakfast, and her deeply voiced monologue left the girl with a strange sense of desolation. For the first time since her engagement to Ralph there crept into her heart a vague disquiet as to his perfect loyalty. Who was this dark beauty of whom Aunt Agatha Dale babbled?

Two o'clock brought Dick Fabens with tickets for a matinee, and, as Aunt Agatha was too rheumatic to go far afield, Elizabeth went alone with Ralph's partner. During their brief ride in the carriage Elizabeth learned that Mr. Fabens was feeling much better and that the simple program Ralph had laid out appealed to his convalescent body and mind as nothing else could.

Dick Fabens was fascinating. Older than Ralph, he was attractive by reason of his contrasting gray hair and youthful face. He was strangely sympathetic to Elizabeth, and she found herself looking to him for confirmation of all her delight in each pleasure that came to her in the days that followed. He did not flirt with her; he did not make love to her. He was simply natural and unaffected, and by very reason of her enforced solitude at the Coverly home Elizabeth turned to him for congeniality and pleasure during those seven days.

Aunt Agatha suddenly disapproved of Dick Fabens' attention and expressed her opinion each morning. Elizabeth came to take a wicked delight in listening to those lectures, and frequent mention of the dark beauty in Chicago and Ralph's weakness in that direction hardened her heart against the absent lover. His daily letters were characteristically short, and her jealous eyes read between the lines that he was enjoying his stay in the Windy City. Then on Thursday the letters ceased coming, and Elizabeth stopped writing.

On Saturday morning she took counsel in her own room and decided that Ralph Coverly was tired of her. If he had not been, if he had really cared for her, would he not have hesitated at leaving a substitute for his own escort? Was it not to justify his own attentions to this other girl—whose name Aunt Agatha had once admitted to be Elsie—that he had provided a substitute? Fabens spoke little of his partner beyond saying that the coveted contract had been secured by Ralph.

Saturday morning Elizabeth went back to the boarding school, where she was a teacher of music, but before she went she inclosed her engagement ring in a tiny box, registered it and sent it to Ralph's office, with a brief note explaining her action. "It has all been a mistake," she said.

Aunt Agatha's farewell of her was prolonged and affectionate at the late breakfast, several hours after the ring and letter had been sent.

"Goodby, my dear Elizabeth. I've learned to love you dearly, and I've watched you closely during the past week while Dick Fabens has been taking you out, and you are a most unusual girl. Ralph has won a treasure indeed. We would have been so unhappy if he had cared for that Elsie girl who set her cap for him last year. It's a good thing she eloped with her chauffeur and went to Paris, for"— And so on until Elizabeth's brain reeled with the horror of what she had done.

Her farewell to Mrs. Coverly was tearful and brief, but she did not dare divulge the fact of her broken engagement to the woman who had taken the motherless girl to her warm heart.

At Ferncliff the weeks passed drearily without word from Ralph. There was a picture postcard from Aunt Agatha, who had returned to her home, saying she trusted the missive found Elizabeth in good health. Then Elizabeth mailed a card to Miss Dale and hoped that lady was quite well, and so ended her connection with the Coverly family.

There came a day several months afterward when she received cards for Dick Fabens' wedding to some girl from New Orleans. She laid it away with a little sigh. It was merely an echo of the happy life she had dropped out of. She blamed herself bitterly for listening to Aunt Agatha's inane chatter and knew that she had wronged Ralph. And yet there was the fact that he had ceased writing to her. That might be easily explained. Letters often miscarried. There was no excuse for her doubt of her lover's constancy. She ought to have trusted him against everybody in the world, even as he would have done had the case been reversed.

That same day was a half holiday, and Elizabeth, weary with the strain of teaching and very unhappy, stole away to spend the afternoon alone in the beautiful chestnut woods that stretched behind the school buildings. The trees were in their summer glory of gold and brown, and through the scanty foliage there were glimpses of the clear blue sky. Where the trees fringed the banks of the tumbling river Elizabeth found a seat on a mossy rock.

The rushing of the river drowned all other sounds, and it was not until he stood beside her that Elizabeth knew Ralph Coverly had come at last. From very joy in his presence she was powerless to move.

He looked down at her, pale and worn and quite unlike his usual buoyant self.

"Elizabeth," he said desperately, "I've just had Fabens' invitation. If it isn't he, who is it?"

"Who is who?" asked Elizabeth weakly, her voice breaking as he caught her hand.

"The one who came between us," said Ralph hoarsely. "Aunt Agatha hinted—she wrote—it was Fabens, and you were both so happy, so I stopped writing and came home to find the ring and your letter. I was a beast to Fabens—thought he had cut me out with you—and then he stiffened up, and we've hardly been on speaking terms outside of business. Then this morning I found his wedding invitation in my mail, and so I came down to find out who the other man is. I would have staked my life on your faith, Elizabeth!"

"You may now. Wait, Ralph, till I tell you all," sobbed Elizabeth. But Ralph did not wait. His arms were about her and her sunny head on his shoulder while she poured out the misunderstanding and misery of those seven days.

"It's turned out for the best, dear," he comforted her. "This contract was a big thing, and so I am not going to wait another week for you. June is too far away. Give up your position and come. Mother needs you, and I do not dare run the chance of having to provide another substitute."

"Or another visit from Aunt Agatha," said Elizabeth devoutly.

FAMOUS MARYS OF FICTION'S PAGE

Always a Favorite Name With Novelists, Poets and Playwriters—In Romance Also

One of the gifts that the Queen will treasure most is the one that will be presented to her by the Marys of the Empire at the coronation of King George and herself. It is proposed that every Mary, Marion, and others with similar names shall contribute a small sum towards this gift.

Mary has always been a favorite name with novelists, poets, and playwriters. From "Mary, Mary, quite contrary," of our nursery days to the "Merely Mary Ann" of Israel Zangwill, the name will be found scattered freely over the pages of romance. The most famous novelist of all, Charles Dickens, whose centenary is celebrated this year, uses Mary in one form or another dozens of times. There are in his novels over a score of Marys pure and simple, to say nothing of Marthas, Mollys, and other versions of the name. Most of his Marys are, however, humble characters. There is Mary Anne, Dora's servant in "David Copperfield," for example, and another Mary Anne was the maid of the clerk Wemmick in "Great Expectations." In the "Pickwick Papers" there are no fewer than five Marys. One was a servant at the Manor Farm, another the wife of the Marshalsea prisoner, two were maids, one in a pot shop and one to Nupkins, and the last was a barmaid at the Peacock.

Not all the Marys of fiction are, however, placed in humble positions. Lady Mary Carlisle is the most important woman character in that delightful play and book, "Monsieur Beaucaire." The author of "Peter Pan" gives his first place in his novel, "When a Man's Single," as Mary Abinger, the charming daughter of a fiery colonel. And did not the famous dramatist immortalize her name in that best-known of all phrazes and titles "Little Mary"? In his "Little White Bird," too, Mary is the name of the pretty young governess who has such a great influence on the life of the supposed teller of the story.

In the late Count Tolstoi's "Resurrection" the Princess Mary Kortchagin was the good woman whom Prince Nehldu Nehldudoff expected to marry. Many well-known foreign novelists have been fond of this essentially English name. In Maarten Maarten's "Some Women I Have Known," for instance, Mary Bates is the good-natured, loyal daughter whose dearest "aspiration was to possess a Sunday class of her very own."

LATEST SOCIETY CRAZE

English Women May Send a Team to Bisley

The latest society craze is to become an expert marksman, or rather markswoman. A large number of ladies have joined the Imperial Rifle Club, and, indeed, quite half of its members belong to the gentle sex. Thirteen miniature rifle ranges have been fitted up in the Society's premises in Cork Street, London, and at these ranges many society women are engaging in daily practice. It is intended to form a team for Bisley.

FACILITIES FOR THE BLIND

Proposal to Carry Them Free in Street Cars

The proposal by Glasgow Corporation to allow blind people to travel on the street cars free of charge is expected to be in operation soon. Mr. Dalrymple, the manager of the department, has received from the various societies who work in the interests of the blind the names of between 700 and 800 persons, to whom a special form has been sent with a view to securing information regarding the occupation, business address, and other circumstances of the recipient. Several of the associations have agreed to co-operate with the Tramways Department in carrying out the scheme. Special brass tokens are being prepared, and these will be distributed gratis to qualified persons by the various institutions for the blind.

1,000 DEAD BABIES

An Amazing Story in Connection with the Closing of A Russian Hospital

The foundling hospital at Ekaterinoslav, in South Russia, has been closed by the Governor of the Province following amazing and revolting disclosures. Of 1,060 infants received into the institution within the last six months, 1,002 died. The staff of nurses on the books for whom full salaries were drawn numbered 65, but it is alleged that only three were employed. Numbers of infants were found dead of starvation in their cots, with the tubes of empty feeding-bottles in their mouths. The deplorable condition into which the dormitories had fallen through neglect accounted for other deaths. Of the last ten infants received into the hospital, seven died from cholera, but no report was made by the house doctor. The entire staff have now been placed under arrest, and the hospital is closed. The police investigation is now proceeding, on the conclusion of which a special judicial commission will probably be sent from St. Petersburg to deal with the matter. Open threats of lynching are made.

WANTED A SALUTE

Czar's Boy Said He Would Not Tell His Father

A good story of the 6-year-old Tsarevitch is now going the rounds of society in St. Petersburg. His Imperial Highness is, of course, greeted with a salute whenever he passes a sentry in the Palace precincts. Recently, however, it became evident that the honor so much gratified the young Prince that many unnecessary excursions were being made past the box of a certain sentry, the customary salute being accorded every time. The matter reached the ears of his father, who, to give his son a lesson, issued orders that in future no notice should be taken of the Tsarevitche's comings and goings by the sentries. The dismay of the heir was profound when, on passing his favorite sentry-box the next morning, he found that his presence was ignored. In childish indignation he went to the sentry and demanded the reason of the omission, pleadingly: "Please just do it th's once, and I promise you father shan't hear anything about it."

FATHER OF "WIRELESS"

A Welshman of whom the Principality has every reason to feel proud, Sir William Preece, the famous electrician who recently left England for Capetown, may rightly claim to be the father of wireless telegraphy. As long ago as 1875, the year Mr. Marconi was born, Sir William succeeded in telegraphing across the Solent when the cable to the Isle of Wight was broken. At that time Sir William was electrical engineer to the Post Office, and afterwards placed all the resources of the Post Office at Mr. Marconi's disposal, and gave him every possible aid in his experiments. Sir William was the first man to speak to Queen Victoria through a telephone, and it was he, too, who introduced the phonograph to the Royal Society. On that occasion one well-known ecclesiastic present turned to a friend and said loudly, "I emphatically say it is disgraceful that the Royal Society should allow ventriloquists here."

MY UNKNOWN FRIEND.

A Flow of Wealth Came From a Hidden Source.

By THOMAS R. DEAN.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

I was thirty years old and had not saved a penny when I fell in love with Emma Earle. I told her of my love, but also told her that we could not be anything more to each other than friends, owing to my ill success. She was a practical girl and admitted that a man who had reached my age and had not forged ahead at all was very unlikely ever to be able to support a family comfortably.

"You are too good hearted," she said, "to achieve financial success. Most of the wealth attained is by saving. To save one must shut one's eyes to other people's needs, their sufferings."

I was obliged to admit that there was a lot of good sense in this, though it was not in accordance with the teachings of Christianity, which Emma and I both professed. It seemed best for us to give up all idea of marriage, though we concluded to remain friends. This was a very unsatisfactory arrangement and was very wearing on both of us.

HE TURNED AND STARTED TO RUN.

One day I received a letter which read as follows:

> Office of the Acme Mining Company,
> Antelope, Colo., Oct. —, —.
>
> Dear Sir—I intend to open an office in New York for the transaction of the business of our company, principally the transfer of shares. You have been recommended to me as a suitable person to take charge of this office. The salary attached will be $150 a month. The position is open to you. If you accept please notify me. Yours truly,
>
> SAMUEL LANGFORD,
> President.

Who Samuel Langford was or who had recommended me to him I had not the remotest idea. Nevertheless I made inquiries about the Acme Mining company and learned that it was a paying institution, the shares standing considerably above par. Langford owned a majority of the stock. He lived at Antelope, giving all his attention to the mine. I endeavored in every way to get a clew as to why he, a stranger to me, had taken me up and enabled me to earn nearly twice the income I had ever earned before, but I failed.

I wrote accepting the position, at the same time requesting Mr. Langford to tell me why I had been selected to fill it. Neither in the return letter nor in any that followed did he make any reference to my request. In due time I found myself in charge of his eastern business, which was principally transferring stock, though I often made purchases for him and shipped the goods to him at Antelope. After awhile I wrote him to know if he was satisfied with me and if the position was likely to be permanent. He replied to both questions in the affirmative.

Emma and I concluded to get married, though she insisted that we live on two-thirds of our income and save the other third. I assented to this, but owing to wedding expenses it was two months before we were able to begin our saving, and on the third month an old friend called on me with a pitiful story of sickness at home and nothing with which to buy either provisions or medicines and our savings for that month went to him.

I had scarcely given him the money when I received a letter from my employer advising me (confidentially) to put what money I had into the stock of the company. My wife insisted on replying to his letter, telling him that I hadn't a cent to invest and why. He replied to her that he had bought 1,000 shares of the stock of the company for me and would hold it till he thought it time to sell. We were somewhat surprised, but Emma, who is a level headed woman and had no confidence in mining stocks—and justly so—said that we wouldn't presume on any profit we might make.

It was only a week after the receipt of Mr. Langford's letter that on going to my office one morning I found a crowd of investors there waiting for me to transfer shares. They told me that they had bought under private advices and intimated that there was a movement of some kind on foot. The shares had raised a few points on the market and the next day made a sudden jump. Then reports came that a very rich vein had been struck in the Acme mine. The price of the shares continued to rise for a week or two, then, after slight fluctuations, settled down to about 200 per cent above what it had been when I was advised to buy it.

One morning I received a check from my employer for about $2,000, payable to my wife's order. There was no letter accompanying it, but pinned to it was a bit of paper on which was written, "Profit on 1,000 shares of Acme mining stock." Emma and I had watched the rise in the price of the stock and knew that if our mysterious friend had really bought the shares for us we would have the profit sent us, but my wife insisted that there would be some reason why we wouldn't get it. When it came we were almost as surprised as if we had known nothing about the matter. We were certainly delighted.

And now we began to be consumed by a gnawing curiosity as to who was our unknown friend. We spent all our leisure time trying to think of some one who for some reason had thus favored us, going over every relative and every friend both of hers and mine. I recalled a number of persons to whom I had loaned or given small sums of money, but not one of them had ever prospered, and certainly none of them was named Langford.

I received my $2,000 at a time when, owing to a financial panic, there were many bargains to be picked up in dividend paying stocks. I invested the amount and within ten months had doubled my capital—that is, I owned $4,000 of securities paying me a good interest. About a year after my first acquisition Mr. Langford telegraphed me one morning to buy some shares of the Sarah Ann company, located in the vicinity of the Acme mine. I put my $4,000 into the venture. In a short time news came that an extension of the valuable vein in the Acme mine had been struck in the Sarah Ann. I bought the shares of the latter at 7 cents and sold them for $2.

I had now an income sufficient to support my family very comfortably without earning a cent by my own labor. I determined to go to Colorado and find out who this man was who had placed a fortune in my hand. I wrote him that I proposed to put some one in the office to attend to the business during my absence and would be with him in a couple of weeks.

I received a reply to this letter notifying me that he would be in New York before long and if I wished to see him I could then have an opportunity, but that it would avail me nothing, since I would not see one who was at all familiar to me. As for the thanks I had sent him, he had much more reason to thank me than I had to thank him.

After the receipt of this information Emma and I again racked our brains to remember some one who was thus indebted to me, but met with no better success than before. Langford continued to post me as to what mining shares to buy or to sell, but never did so except on accurate information of the mines.

A time came when my investments gave me all the income I required, and I resolved to investigate my benefactor. Without notifying him of my intention, I went to Colorado, and one morning appeared in his office, which meanwhile had been removed to Colorado Springs. A man over fifty years of age was pointed out to me by the clerks as Langford. I advanced to make myself known. He rose, pressed my hand and said to me:

"Dine with me this evening at my house. Meanwhile say nothing to any one here about our connection."

He bowed me out, and to kill time I went about indirectly pumping people about my benefactor. No one knew anything of his antecedents before he came to Colorado in a very forlorn condition and went about with a pick like any other prospector. In time he found a hole which promised well and sold it for enough to set him up comfortably as a mine seeker. Other mines fell into his hands, the Acme from his having grubstaked its finder. Since he acquired the controlling interest in that mine he had made money rapidly.

When I met Mr. Langford at his house I saw not only by his manner and mode of living, but by his family, that he was a man sprung from the lowly walks of life. After dinner he took me into a private room. We lit cigars, and he said:

"Do you remember one morning, when you were about eighteen years old, walking on a road with a shotgun on your shoulder and meeting an escaped jailbird?"

"Yes. Tell me something more."

"On seeing you he turned and started to run. You pointed your gun at him and called on him to halt. Being defenseless, he gave himself up."

"I remember very well. But go on."

"He told you how he had been born in poverty in the city; how without parents to guide him, after he was some six years old, he had fallen into such a life as such boys must inevitably fall into and had at last been sent to state prison. There, under the influence of a lovely woman who ministered to the prisoners, he had attained to a desire to lead a different life. He had escaped. His story touched your heart. You went to your home and brought him some clothes. He concealed his stripes in a wood. You gave him all the money you had with you, $18.63, and sent him on his way into a new world. I am that man, and I vowed then that if I ever became prosperous I would hunt you up and return your loan with interest."

"I have gone over every person I have ever helped," I replied, "and remembered you, but I never dreamed that I was indebted for my good fortune to a former jailbird."

LEMONS.

A Slang Expression Leads to a Serious Blunder.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

Amy Winfield reread the telegram with a puzzled frown, and this second perusal was not enlightening:

> Sending lemons by express today. Goodby! TED.

Why should her lover send an offering of this citrous fruit? And why should he say "Goodby," and where was he going?

All these questions Amy asked of the empty air, and the empty air made no response. She squeezed the message into a tiny ball and tossed it into the waste paper basket just as her young brother entered the library.

Short and thickset and snub nosed and grubby was little Bert Winfield, but he fairly seethed with the desire to impart knowledge of every description, and his fountain of wisdom was perpetually supplied from the various forms of literature that found their source in the discarded books and magazines that he fished from the library waste paper basket.

Amy looked up now with her pleasant smile. "Going anywhere near the station today, Bert?"

"Nope," returned the seeker after knowledge. "I may go tomorrow, though. Why?" He dropped on his knees beside the table and groped in the waste paper basket.

"I'm expecting a box or a crate or something. I don't just know what."

"What's in it?" demanded Bert, with a brother's privilege.

"Lemons," returned Amy.

"Lemons?" repeated Bert. "What are you going to do with lemons? Somebody been handing you a lemon?" he asked, reverting to common slang.

"I don't know what you mean," replied his sister with dignity. "But some one has sent me a box of lemons and"—

"It was Teddy Newton," declared Bert, spreading out the crumpled telegram on his knee. "Ain't he the limit?"

"Say 'is he not' instead of 'ain't,'" corrected Amy, "and how do you know Teddy sent them?"

"Is he not?" repeated Bert obediently. "And I'm reading the telegram, and that's how I know. Say, he's fierce, Amy, ain't he—is he not—I mean?"

CALLED THE DOG BY NAME.

"I think it is very thoughtful in Ted to send down lemons," said Amy coldly. "He knows we are all fond of lemonade."

"Ah-h!" snorted Bert scornfully. "Don't you see any other meaning in that message, Amy? Why, he's giving you the shake—don't you see?"

"Bert Winfield, what do you mean? I shall tell father what you have said!" cried Amy indignantly.

"Tell him," retorted Bert gloomily.

"What did you mean about the lemons, Bert?" insisted his sister uneasily.

"I must explain about what 'handing the lemon' means," returned Bert didactically. "It's a quiet way of telling a feller you have no use for him. You see, Teddy says he's sending lemons by express—that means he's shaking you at once, right away in a hurry—and don't he say goodby? You're slow."

Slowly Amy gathered the conviction that her little brother was right. Her doubting heart told her that Ted must be tired of her. They had quarreled a little the last time he had called, and she had not heard from him since. He was tired of her, and this cool, contemptuous way of dismissing their beautiful romance turned all her tender love to bitterness.

The next day Bert returned from the express office with the cheerful announcement that there were no lemons awaiting his sister.

Several days—a week—passed, and no lemons arrived for Amy Winfield, and so the dread conviction that she had been jilted came to be an established fact.

Then it was that Amy went around looking very pale and wan and, gathering one by one the treasures that she had cherished as gifts from her lover, bundled them together and sent them back to Teddy Newton, with a telegram as brief as his own and pathetically imitative:

> Sending lemons by express. AMY.

About this time little Bert Winfield came into possession of a dog, the handsomest bit of canine blood and flesh that one might see—an Irish bull, pure white, with yellow spots and a kindly, ugly face and protruding eyes of faithful brown.

"Isn't he the dearest?" murmured Amy, kneeling before the dog and submitting to the caresses of his velvet pink tongue. "Where did you get him, Bert?"

"Uncle Abe gave him to me. Says he bought him off the express agent in Traymore. He's my birthday present. I did want a collie, you know, Amy, but I suppose Uncle Abe did the best he could. Perhaps this little feller was all he could afford," said Bert kindly. "I heard him tell dad that the last panic put a crimp in his pocketbook."

"A crimp?" repeated gentle Amy reprovingly. "What is that, Bert—more slang, dear?"

"Um-huh!" returned Bert. "What shall I name the dog, Amy? I thought some of calling him Teddy. What do you think?"

"Teddy! Why?" gasped Miss Winfield indignantly. "I forbid you to name him after Teddy Newton!"

"Ah-h!" groaned Bert disgustedly. "I meant after Teddy Roosevelt. Who'd want to name a dog after Teddy Newton?"

"Perhaps he has a name, dear," suggested Amy. "Have you tried calling him by some names?"

"Sure! I've called him Fido and Lion and Rex and Bruno and Pete and even Old Dog Tray, and he won't come until he gets ready. He must have a name of some kind. I'm going to begin to call him Teddy—if you don't mind too much, sis," he added magnanimously.

"Call him anything you like, dear," said Amy sadly, and something in her tone roused Bert to indignation.

"I won't call him Teddy after anybody, I guess, sis—anybody that will send lemons to a girl and do it by telegram. Well—down, sir; down, I say! Look at him, sis!"

The dog climbed playfully over his little master, caressed him with paws and tongue and loved him with soft brown eyes. "I'll call him Pup for awhile," said Bert, and so the matter was settled.

A week later Amy received another disquieting telegram from her erstwhile lover:

> Why return lemons? Thought to please you. TED.

To which Miss Winfield gave much thought, many bitter tears and the following lucid reply:

> Returned my own lemons to you. Am much pleased. AMY.

And in due time came the following message:

> Lemons not received to date. Change your mind and keep. TED.

Its reply, "Decision irrevocable; goodby—Amy," brought forth one more telegram from Mr. Newton, and it bespoke that gentleman's masterful disposition:

> No decision irrevocable where we are concerned. Wait till I see you. TED.

"The impertinence!" gasped Amy indignantly. "I shall not see him if he comes! After jilting me in that heartless manner, to endeavor to ignore the matter and make it up—never, never, never!"

That same day Miss Winfield received an express package containing the objects she had mailed to Mr. Newton—all the books and music and the engagement ring and even the love letters, which any man might have been excused from retrieving when the opportunity offered. But Teddy was square in some things, Amy grudgingly agreed, and so she put the treasures away with a little degree of comfort, for these latter weeks had been full of storm and stress and very different from those earlier, happier weeks of her engagement.

Then one evening when the first frost lay sparkling on the garden Amy, wrapped in shawls, stood at the gate entranced with the witchery of the moonlight. She was there when Mr. Teddy Newton strode up to the gate and in his masterful way took her in his arms and kissed away her protests.

"What is the matter with you, dearest? You've had me half crazy. I just stole the time to run down and try to square our misunderstanding. Surely you don't harbor anger over that little quarrel"—

"What made you hand me the lemons?" sobbed Amy in his bosom, while Mr. Newton cast his eyes aloft in amazement.

"Hand you the lemons? Explain. Tell me all about it. There is some mistake," he soothed her. And so she told the story of the telegrams and the elucidation of that wiseacre, Bert, and when she had concluded Mr. Newton burst into such a roar of laughter that once more his sweetheart was indignant.

"Let me explain—there. After our quarrel I wanted to send a peace offering, and so I bought you the best dog I could find—Lemons by name, if you please. Sent him down by express and by a series of accidents have discovered that he went astray—tag gone from crate—and fetched up at Traymore station. The agent kept him awhile and, being of a thrifty nature, sold him to your Uncle Abe, who presented him to Bert—the little rascal! He'll lose the pup, Amy, for he is yours. Didn't you get the letter I sent before the first telegram?"

"Never," said Amy.

"It's ended all right, anyway," commented Mr. Newton philosophically. "Just to prove that his name is Lemons"— He whistled sharply and called the dog by name.

There was a scurrying of little feet on the gravel path, and the bull pup flashed upon them and into their mutual embrace.

FREE PSYCHINE FOR THE SICK

Let us buy a 50c. bottle from your Druggist and give it to you to try. Here are our reasons:

For nearly the third of a century we have known what Psychine will do. We have known it to cure hundreds of thousands in that time, of some of the most desperate cases of disease known to medical science.

We have received thousands of unsolicited testimonials, which we will gladly let you look over should you desire.

Think of it, a third of a century's experience with one preparation, a third of a century's intimate knowledge of what extraordinary cures it has made—almost a lifetime!

Do you wonder then with that perfect knowledge of Psychine, that we are anxious to bring it to the notice of everyone in Canada suffering from disease?

Do you wonder that we want those to know who are using wrong methods of cure, who are not getting well, and who we know will be benefited by Psychine.

Do you wonder that we can buy hundreds of thousands of 50-cent bottles of Psychine from the druggists of Canada to give to those who wish to try it?

* * *

Psychine builds vitality.

It strengthens and increases the white corpuscles of the blood—the phagocytes, the policemen or scavengers of the blood.

These white corpuscles of the blood, when strong enough, destroy every disease germ that gets into the body, keeps the body healthy.

If these white corpuscles are not in sufficient numbers or are not sufficiently strong, then these disease germs destroy them and disease holds the body. That's the cause of nearly every disease that afflicts the human race. For years, centuries, in fact, it has been recognized that herbs are the most effective treatment for disease.

It is only within recent times that we have been able to tell just why they were so effective.

Because certain of them increased and strengthened the white corpuscles or phagocytes.

These herbs are employed in compounding Psychine.

We go all over this world to obtain these herbs. Arabia, South America, China and Japan all contribute.

And the result is a preparation that will restore health and build vitality as no other preparation will.

That has proven itself in nearly the third of a century's use as no other preparation has proven itself.

That is a most effective treatment for:

La Grippe
Bronchitis
Hemorrhages
Sore Throat
Anaemia
Female Weakness
Indigestion
Poor Appetite
Chills and Fevers
Sleeplessness and Nervous Troubles
Bronchial Coughs
Weak Lungs
Weak Voice
Spring Weakness
Early Decline
Catarrhal Affections

THE DEAD SEA

Entertaining Facts About the Remarkable Sheet of Water

In many ways the Dead Sea, in Palestine, can claim the distinction of being the most remarkable sheet of water on the face of the globe. Although known by name to everyone, only twice in modern times has anyone attempted to make any systematic study of this historic region.

Indeed, its banks are seldom visited, and many of the ravines and mountains that skirt its shores are said to be virtually unexplored territory. This account, therefore, of a week spent upon the waters of this little-known lake is of more than passing interest.

The subject acquires an added value from the fact that the Turkish Government recently granted a concession for the exploitation of the minerals in the Dead Sea basin, a sum of £70,000, it is said, being paid for the rights. It is well known that the finest and purest bitumen is obtained here, as well as sulphur, copper, marble, etc. Then experts have declared that there are evidences of coal and oil in the region.

The Dead Sea is some forty-seven miles long, and about ten miles wide at its greatest breadth. Curiously enough, it lies—1,300 feet below the level of the Mediterranean. Many ridiculous stories are told about this sheet of water, even in Palestine itself. For instance, people will tell you in Jerusalem that it is impossible to swim in its waters, and that no animal or vege-

As for swimming, the excessive buoyancy of the water merely renders it difficult to make much headway, but swimming is both feasible and refreshing. Among the party on the exploring vessel, which numbered eleven, there were several who could not swim, yet in the evening they often ventured into the water, and floated about on their backs. What one has to be careful about is not to get the water into the eyes.

Indeed, did Palestine belong to any other power but Turkey, probably the northern shore of the lake would be a popular bathing station. No doubt the chloride of magnesia which enters so largely into the composition of the water, would be found to have medicinal and curative properties. The water is certainly very dense, containing twenty-three per cent. of solid matter, and, is, bulk for bulk, heavier than the human body.

How dense it is may be realized from the following table: In a ton of water from the Caspian Sea there are 11 lbs. of salt; in the Baltic, 18 lbs.; in the Black Sea, 26 lbs.; in the Atlantic, 31 lbs.; in the English Channel, 72 lbs.; in the Mediterranean, 85 lbs.; in the Red Sea, 93 lbs.; and in the Dead Sea, 187 lbs.

It has generally been believed that this famous inland sea is decreasing in size, but the reverse is the case.

TALKS BY BOWSER

Decides to Go on the Lecture Platform.

PAYS TO GET ON THE LIST.

Sounds Mrs. Bowser For a Subject. Her Questions Arouse His Ire, and He Seeks the Druggist, Who Names a Topic—Another Defeat.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.]

HOW foolish a husband is to have a matter of grave importance on hand and come home thinking to hide it from his wife! The moment Mr. Bowser opened the door the other evening as he arrived from the office Mrs. Bowser knew that something had transpired and that something more was to follow. In an instant she had asked herself:

"Is he going to take boxing lessons again to cure his lame back?

"Is it a flying machine this time?

"Does he intend to start for the south pole?

"Has he bought a fire escape or a burglar alarm?

"Is be going to be the good angel of a theatrical company?

"Has that chicken farm idea got hold of him again?

"Has he invented a snow melting machine?"

And Mr. Bowser hung up his hat, rubbed his hands together in an important way and with the stride of a public man led the way down to the dining room.

ANNOUNCES HIS PURPOSE.

"Are you thinking of running for governor?" asked Mrs. Bowser after awhile.

"I shouldn't care to fool away my time in that manner," he replied as he leaned back and took on new dignity.

"But something has happened?"

"Well, y-e-s. Being I am Bowser, it's only natural that something should happen almost every day."

"But I am Mrs. Bowser, and nothing ever happens to me."

"Humph! Did you ever hear that anything happened to Mrs. Christopher Columbus—to the wives of Plato, Socrates, Cicero? Of course nothing ever happens to you."

"But you are a great man?"

"Don't be envious or jealous, Mrs. Bowser. I don't want to brag of my greatness, but if the public thrusts greatness upon me what am I to do? Yes, something has happened today, and we will discuss it after dinner—that is, I will tell you what I have decided to do."

And Mr. Bowser cleared his throat with a senatorial ahem and smiled upon the cook in a patronizing way as she brought in the dessert. It was half an hour later, in the sitting room, and after striding up and down that he said:

Called to Lecture.

"Mrs. Bowser, you know that during the last thirty years I have had many tempting offers to lure me into public life."

"I know that politicians have often tried to make a soft mark of you," was the acid reply.

Mr. Bowser looked at her and flushed; but, remembering that he was a great man and that she as a woman didn't amount to shucks, he held on to himself and said:

"I didn't mean as to politics, but the fellows found their match when they came to me. I have been asked to lecture. I have been asked to explore. I have been offered leading parts as an actor. I have been asked to write a national anthem."

"And at last"—

"I shall take the lecture platform. I closed the matter today. The head of the greatest lecture bureau in the world came to the office to see me, and as soon as he heard my voice and witnessed my gestures he said that the world wanted me. My salary will be enormous. I shall be before the public six nights per week. I shall make the greatest success of the age."

Mrs. Bowser looked at him in love and pity. He was striding back and forth again, but he caught the look and asked:

"Well, have you anything to say?"

"How much did the head of the greatest lecture bureau in the world borrow of you?"

It was a bomb under Mr. Bowser's feet. He ripped out a damn and almost rose on wings as he exclaimed:

"Woman, what do you mean by such a question? I demand an instant answer!"

"Why, of course he struck you for money. I simply asked you the amount."

"And, by the great horn spoon, you meant it as an insult! Never again in all your life dare to talk to me thus!"

"But you did hand over money," she persisted.

"I paid $10 to have my name entered on the European route, but that is a fixed charge. When you know nothing of such things don't be flinging your insults around. It's a wonder I didn't leave the house never to return."

Scouts For a Subject.

"Well, you are booked to lecture in America, Asia and Africa. Have you chosen your subject?"

"Only partly. I was going to do you the honor to consult you, but I have been made to realize that you are not in sympathy with the object in view."

"I am in sympathy, but I think it will be hard to find an interesting subject. What had you thought of?"

"Why—why, I thought my life and adventures would make a good subject. Don't you think so?"

"Has there been anything unusual in your life?" she soberly asked.

"I am Bowser, ain't I?"

"Yes, but Jones is Jones."

"There you go again! Another insult!"

"But tell me what you can say about yourself to interest the public. What startling adventures have you had? In what has your life differed from the average man's?"

Mr. Bowser thought for a moment as to whether he should get mad or not and then answered:

"Wasn't I nearly drowned in a mill pond when a boy?"

"I believe so."

"Didn't a horse run away with me?"

"Well?"

"Didn't I fall from a tree?"

Mrs. Bowser smiled. She meant to look sober instead, but the smile could not be suppressed. Mr. Bowser turned paler than the dead as he saw it and words failed him. He simply walked down the hall and grabbed his hat and almost jumped outdoors. If he hadn't found a tramp at the gate and had a chance to yell at him and scare him half to death there might have been an explosion.

Druggist Gives a Text.

His family druggist was always sarcastic with him, but the only other man he could consult was the butcher, and the butcher knew more about veal and mutton than lecturing. It was the druggist or nothing.

"Have you the stamina to stand up before an audience?" asked the man of drugs when he had been posted.

"Certainly."

"And the subject?"

"My life and adventures."

"Um! Pretty good."

"Do you think so?"

"Tiptop. Let's see? Your name is Bowser. You have a new scheme on hand every week. When you are not in a balloon you are tucked away in a submarine. When it isn't a chicken farm it's a banana ranch. But for Mrs. Bowser's good common sense and restraining hand you'd have been a pauper long ago. Yes, go on the platform and lecture about it and give her due credit. Entitle your lecture 'The Life and Adventures of a Soft Mark.' This is my busy evening and"—

Mr. Bowser walked out into the night. There was a gentle rain falling; the south wind whispered in his ear; the nightingale or somebody else sang sweetly, but he was not comforted. He had been knocked into a cocked hat. He was $10 out and Mrs. Bowser was another victory in.

TROUBLES OF A CONSUL.

A Sample of the Way These Officials Are Sometimes Badgered.

Consuls the world over are likely to have their hands full with certain types of their fellow country men or women, as in the instance about to be described. It occurred when Capt. A. F. Townshend was acting in his official capacity of British consul in a town in Asia Minor. One day, he relates in "A Military Consul In Turkey," an English lady arrived and was shown into his office. She was invited to sit down, which she did with caution after subjecting the consul to a careful scrutiny.

"You are the consul, I suppose?"

I admitted that such was the case.

"Well," she went on, "my steamer only stays here for six hours, and I want to go to Tarsus to see the place where St. Paul lived, and as I believe the train has gone I want a carriage, and you must guarantee me that I shall be back in time for my steamer, and I want an interpreter who speaks English and Turkish, and"—

"Madam," I interrupted, "I must really"—

"My name is Mrs. X.," she snapped, with a kind of don't-dare-to-madam me air.

"Very well," I replied as meekly as I could, "but as you have not shown me your passport I did not know. If I could find an interpreter who spoke English and Turkish I would buy him for myself, so I fear you can't have that, but I"—

"And you must arrange about lunch for me in Tarsus," she put in.

"But," I continued desperately, "I shall try to get you a carriage as soon as possible. Of course we can't call a cab, you know, as if we were in Regent street, but I'll send a kavass for one."

"Rather unsatisfactory!" she growled.

"And I'll ask the Turkish Government to send a policeman on the box, so that you will be quite safe. I cannot, however, guarantee what time you may get back. It is sixteen miles to Tarsus."

"Well, I won't go at all," she declared, as if she were inflicting a crushing blow. "But I want to change a Bank of England five pound note, and as I don't know the rate of exchange I shall have to trust you to change it for me."

"Really, Mrs. X.," I said, goaded into retaliation, "you seem to have some very mistaken ideas. Let me tell you that I am neither a cab proprietor, nor a tourist agent, nor yet a money changer, and I must ask you to change your note elsewhere."

She sprang up as if she had sat on a wasps' nest.

"Young man, I shall go straight back on board my steamer, and as I have most influential friends in the Foreign Office you will hear of me again!"

"That will be a great pleasure," I murmured as the lady sailed out.

For days afterward I trembled at the arrival of every telegram, but the Foreign Office, in its leniency, must have decided to give me one more chance before dismissal without a "character."

Big Hats and London Churches.

The London churches are suffering because of the big hat craze. As most of the churches are very old the aisles are narrow, and when people commence to pass slowly out after the service is ended the trouble begins. Really only one hat of the present popular size can fit into the aisle at a time, and when the owners of several try to walk along close behind or beside one another the effect is disastrous to the hats, to the eyes of unfortunate men who have no barricades on their heads to protect them and to the tempers of the women themselves. Recently there have been a number of very unpleasant scenes when exasperated ladies quite forgot where they were and sternly reproved their equally large hatted neighbors for damaging their cherished millinery. At a fashionable wedding the other day it actually required male assistance to disentangle three ladies who literally could not break away from each other without crushing their hats.

Parricides In France.

The French penal system, following more closely the Roman law than does the English, has special provisions for parricides. Formerly the criminal's right hand was amputated, and if he were a man he was broken at the wheel. A woman was burned. To-day the parricide is conducted barefooted to the guillotine. He has a white robe and on his head a black veil. Besides these indignities he is required to hear the sentence read in public by the clerk of the court at which he was condemned. Under the Roman law the patria potestas obtained, and in France it is effective to-day in a modified form; hence parricide is considered so horrible a crime.—London Globe.

Obedient Child.

The curly-haired little sprite of the house came running to her father in the study and, throwing her arms about his neck, whispered confidentially in his ear:

"Oh, papa, it's raining!"

Papa was writing on a subject that occupied his mind to the exclusion of matters aside, so he said, rather sharply, "Well, let it rain."

"Yes, papa; I was going to," was her quick response.

Hydrofluoric Acid.

Hydrofluoric acid is the best agent to use for removing sand from castings, particularly those of iron and steel, as it attacks the sand and dissolves it, while other acids attack the metal and only loosen the sand so that it falls off.

A Time Killer.

"You look old to-night, John, dear," said Mrs. Peters as she finally announced her readiness to start for the theatre.

"Yes, my love," replied Peters. "I age a good deal while you are putting your hat on."

A THANKSGIVING

That Had Been Made the Happier by a Long Separation.

By SADIE OLCOTT.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

Some people have given up the notion that there is a real devil. I know that there is, and I know it from my own experience. He got into me once so bad that before I could get him out he had broken up the whole family. I mean my family—my Mark, myself and our children.

Mark and I were brought up on adjoining farms. He was the likeliest young man in the neighborhood, and a good many of the girls were trying to get him. Amelia Jones was the hungriest of the lot for him and was bound that if she couldn't get him no one else should. I knew she was watching him like a cat, and the way I found it out was this: We were at a cornhusking. She and Dan Tomkins were sitting on the heap of corn to be husked, and Mark and I were sitting near them. Mark struck a red ear and kissed me. Amelia was looking straight at us, and you should have seen the look on her face! It was just as if a rattlesnake was coiled for a spring.

I was a fool or I would after this have known that she would strike me whenever she could. There was a barn dance the evening before Thanksgiving, and Mark danced nearly every dance with me. But Amelia by this time saw how matters were going and pretended not to care how they went. But she was working against me underhanded. She didn't dream, though, that when Mark took me home from the dance when Thanksgiving day was dawning in the east what he was saying to me. But even if she had known it she'd have tried to break it up.

Mark and I were engaged just one year. Amelia tried a number of times to make a break between us, but every time we found out that she was at the bottom of what was told Mark about me, and so there was no harm done. Besides, Mark trusted me implicitly. We concluded to be married on Thanksgiving day, just one year from the time when Mark asked me to be his wife.

The summer before we were married Mark was building a house for us to live in. An uncle had given him a little farm, but there was no house on it, and Mark spent the whole summer getting it ready. He had a man to help him till he got the framework up. Then he did the rest of it himself. We planned it together, and I took ten times the interest in it that I would have taken if it had been built by others. I was busy most of the time making up what we would need in the way of bedding and table linen.

THE DINNER OUR REUNITED FAMILY ATE.

The house wasn't quite finished by Thanksgiving day, but it was fairly comfortable. Besides, it was nice to finish up when we were in it. We were married Thanksgiving morning, and I cooked our first Thanksgiving dinner myself. Mark and I ate it alone. We wanted to be alone. After the children came we didn't want to be alone, but we did at this first Thanksgiving dinner. We ate together. It was a very happy day, but I don't think it was so happy as when we had a lot of little ones at the table with us. Anyway, it wasn't the same kind of happiness.

Ten years passed without any trouble whatever, then a lot of it all came at once. A letter came one day for Mark addressed in a woman's hand. Either of us opened the family letters, and I opened this mighty quick. It was from some one I'd never heard of, but was all about things that had been happening between her and Mark for a long while. I was so wild when I read it that I couldn't absorb anything in particular except the end, which was, "With a thousand kisses, your loving," etc.

That was the time when the devil got into me. I just pinned the letter on a cushion, took the children and went right over to mother's, leaving a note for Mark saying I never wished to see him again. As soon as I got quieted down I thought, after all, there was a slight chance that there might be some mistake. Then I waited for Mark to come and at least try to make an explanation. But Mark didn't come. Then I was frightened for fear he had gone away with the woman who had written him the letter.

I went to the house to see if he had left any message for me. I found the house just as I had left it. I went in and looked about for a note. I did not find anything at all from Mark. Then it rushed over me all at once what a fool I had been. I had simply given way to the other woman. I had left everything in a state of uncertainty. If I had waited till Mark came home and showed him the letter he might have explained it. And yet I didn't see how he could.

Months passed and nothing came from Mark. One day in the next October I was walking along the road when who should I meet but Amelia Jones. She was unmarried and had become a skinny old maid with a sour face. She didn't live near us any more, and I hadn't seen her for years. I doubt if I should have known her had it not been for the look she gave me. It was one of malicious triumph.

"Oh, for the land's sake!" I cried. "What have I done? I've gone and helped that viper to ruin me!"

I saw it all now. She had written the letter that had come for Mark. I could have screamed. My first impulse was to turn and curse her. But she had gone on, and I hesitated. In a few minutes it occurred to me that if I charged her with the crime she would only sail away with her nose in the air. It would complete her revenge.

I went home and spent the rest of the day crying. I thought over the things about me she had contrived to get to Mark's ears when we were engaged and how he had told me of them. And how had I repaid him for his confidence? I had simply played into our enemy's hands. Mark was a very high strung man, and doubtless my action in leaving him without giving him a chance to say a word in explanation and my having considered him guilty of the crime had killed his love for me. If I could only know where he had gone I would go to him on my knees.

I lived in hopes that Mark would some day come back to me, but he did not. The house remained just as I had left it. Every Thanksgiving day I would go there hoping that, it being the anniversary of our wedding, Mark would relent and come back there. But he never came. There was a small income from some property he had inherited from his father, and Mark before going away had given an order that this income should be paid to me. So I didn't suffer for funds.

Mark had been gone five years, and every year I had gone to the house on Thanksgiving morning hoping to find him there. On the fifth anniversary I determined to go there the evening before Thanksgiving and sleep there. I lighted a fire on the hearth and sat in my little rocker that I used to sit in beside Mark before that very hearth. I drew his own big easy chair up beside me. And there I sat thinking of him and what a happy family we had been until I had broken it up by my folly. I blamed myself alone for falling into such an open trap. And, thinking, I cried myself to sleep.

I dreamed troubled dreams. First I was back at the husking with Mark. Amelia Jones was sitting near us on the pile of unhusked corn looking at us, and her eyes seemed like coals of fire. Then we were walking along the road running past the house. Mark was bending over me, telling me the story he had told me years before. And I said: "This is not really Mark. Mark went away, and I have never seen him since. And yet here he is walking beside me." I woke up from this dream, my heart beating wildly. I didn't wish to go to bed. I feared I would lie awake for hours. So I took a book from a table near me and read. But I fell asleep again and recommenced my dreaming. This time I dreamed Mark came in and sat in his chair beside me.

I awoke and what did I see? Why, Mark really sitting beside me. Had it not been for the reassuring smile on his face I should have thought that what I saw was his ghost. I sprang toward him, and he took me in his arms.

"Oh, Mark!" I cried. "Have you forgiven me?"

"Yes, I have forgiven you, and I have things to tell you. When I came home and found you and the children gone, the letter pinned to the cushion, I saw at a glance that Amelia Jones had come up after a long silence to strike us. I was angry—angry with you for falling into the trap, for not having confidence in me. I determined to go away forever.

"But I pined for my home, my wife and my children. I was about to come back when I was drawn into a speculation. I concluded to wait for it to make me rich before returning. It took all I had put into it. I tried another and another till recently I struck what has paid me. Then I resolved to come back, forgive you, ask your forgiveness and unite our family."

He went to the bureau, took the letter which had been for five years on the pincushion and, bringing it back with him, tossed it in the flame.

"Burn!" he said, watching it as it shriveled. "You have made trouble enough. It would be well if there were a heavenly fire in which we could burn all past disagreements."

Oh, the happiness of that moment! Though it was late, we went to mother's, took the children from their beds and put them in their cribs at our own home.

I had thought that no Thanksgiving dinner could be as happy as the one Mark and I had eaten together on the day of our wedding. But that one was nothing to the dinner our reunited family ate together on the day after Mark burned the letter that had caused our separation. But it was a happiness that had been sharpened by years of pain.

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF
RHEUMATISM, SCIATICA
Strong Testimony of Emigrant Commissioner the Hon. George Starr, as to the Power of Radway's Ready Relief in a Case of Sciatic Rheumatism.

Van Ness Place, New York.

Dr. Radway—With me your Ready Relief has worked wonders. For the last three years I have had frequent and severe attacks, sometimes extending from lumbar regions to my ankles, and at times to both lower limbs.

During the time I have been afflicted I have tried almost all the remedies recommended by wise men and fools, hoping to find relief, but all proved to be failures.

I have tried various kinds of baths, manipulation, outward application of liniments too numerous to mention, and prescriptions of the most eminent physicians, all of which failed to give me relief.

Last September, at the request of a friend (who had been afflicted as myself), I was induced to try your remedy. I was then suffering fearfully with one of my old turns. To my surprise and delight the first application gave me ease, after bathing and rubbing the parts affected, leaving the limbs in a warm glow created by the Ready Relief. In a short time the pain passed entirely away. Although I have slight periodical attacks, approaching a change of weather, I know now how to cure myself and feel quite master of the situation. Radway's Ready Relief is my friend. I never travel without a bottle in my valise. Yours truly,
GEORGE STARR.

A Duel In Undress.

Dueling, though not dead, was dying out even in Rogers' time and was not taken very seriously. The poet's biographer tells the quaint story of how Mr. Humphrey Howarth, a surgeon, when called out made his appearance in the field stark naked. The astonished challenger asked him what he meant. "I know," said Howarth, "that if any part of the clothing is carried into the body by a gunshot wound festering ensues, and therefore I have met you thus." His antagonist declared that fighting a man in puris naturalibus would be quite ridiculous, and accordingly they parted without further discussion.

Definite.

"Madam"—a census taker was speaking to her who answered his knock—"how many children over six and under twenty-one years of age have you?"

"Lemme see," she reflected; "lemme see. Waal, sir, thar be two over six an' two under twenty-one."—Everybody's.

Most Canadians Have Catarrh

Our Changeable Climate is Responsible.

Where the atmosphere is damp, with sudden changes in temperature, almost everybody has Catarrh, in some form or other. The ordinary cold in the head inflames and weakens the membranes lining the nose and throat, and starts a discharge. The next cold is more easily caught, and soon the patient is never quite free of it.

As Catarrh develops the discharge increases—drops into the throat, especially at night—and takes on an offensive odor. Besides being exceedingly disagreeable, there is great danger of the disease extending to the lungs, stomach, or bowels.

Though it is very difficult to cure, Father Morrisey devised a combined internal and external treatment that has cured thousands. The Tablets tone up and invigorate the system, and assist Nature in throwing off the disease, while the salve, applied up the nostrils, clears out the discharge and heals the membranes. Combined treatment, 50c at your dealer's, or from Father Morrisey Medicine Co., Ltd., Chatham, N.B. 20

THE MAN AND THE HOUR

And the Sin of Omission Alice Charged Against Herself.

By KEITH GORDON.

Elinor for the first time in her life was looking the future squarely in the eye. Hitherto she had been content to nibble at life, munching away contentedly enough, satisfied with the joy of the moment. And she might have gone on so for an indefinite time had it not been for the occurrence of the 3d of June.

New Year's day is significant only because then, by common consent, time moves up a number. This particular June 3 made an indelible impression on Elinor's mind because on that day she began to be thirty-two—began at the very beginning, of course, but still she began.

"I shall say I'm thirty-one all this year anyway," she announced defiantly to that other self that receives our dearest confidences. "It's such bad form to say you're thirty-one years and two months old, or whatever it may happen to be. And if I have to write it I'll make it thirty-one in round numbers—not even thirty-one plus." All of which, as the reader can see, was very unscrupulous.

However, as she found, by far the worst thing about beginning to be thirty-two was the fact that you couldn't forget it. The harder you tried the better you remembered it.

"Well, what if I am?"

This was the remark that our heroine slung into space when, after a week of torment, she sat down with her chin resting on her hands to have the thing out. "What if I am? So are plenty of other gir—women, I mean. Alice is thirty, Mary thirty-one, Mabel twenty-eight."

She paused in her enumeration, struck by the thought that all these friends were married. Matrimony was a subject to which she had given the minimum of thought. She supposed she'd come to it some time, but she was in no hurry to enter that narrow pasture so long as there was pleasant browsing to be had outside.

When she had thought of it at all it had seemed to mean chiefly a tiresome round of housekeeping that resulted in three perpendicular lines just over the nose, a memorandum of worry that she secretly determined to avoid as long as possible. But now that she was beginning to be thirty-two the thing was different.

Could it be, she asked herself, that she had made a mistake after all and that those three incisive lines were as much of an honor as an officer's bars? Could it be that there was a point when one began to be thirty-two, for instance, when becomingness demanded that one should lay aside "Miss" just as it required that one should stop wearing pink?

She faced her plight with a stiff upper lip, realizing that she had no one but herself to blame. There had been a number of men—the mischievous dimple at the corner of her mouth danced into sight for a second at the thought of how many—who had done their best to stop her in what she now recognized for the first time her mad career. She had declined their offers kindly, but with a certain royal carelessness that recked not of possible dark hours to come. When did any woman born to the belief in the divine right of queens ever foresee dethronement?

She had inadvertently "lived over," as she had once heard it quaintly phrased. There was no doubt about it, she was an old maid! She repeated it aloud in all its brutal truth, scorning such euphemisms as "spinster" and "bachelor woman."

"You're an old maid—just a plain old maid!" she said audibly. But it sounded like a joke—like one of those things too bad to be true. She would probably wake up after a bit to find that she had been married since her eighteenth year and had a son ready to enter college and a daughter about to make her debut.

No such happy awakening came, however, and with desperate philosophy she decided that since she was an old maid she would enter into the role for all it was worth. At least she would avoid the error of being kittenish.

Little by little her plainest gowns were brought into requisition. Certain little graces and frivolities of the toilet were one by one abandoned. She timidly asked Alice, her closest friend, to teach the children to call her "auntie," a thing which she had hitherto forbidden under the penalty of a sudden death to the cherub that should first be guilty of it.

"What is the matter with you?" gasped Alice, with a stare of amazement. "And what have you been doing with your hair, and why are you wearing that ugly old dress, with all the handsome things that you have?"

"I'm just wearing the things suitable to my age before the dear friends have a chance to point them out to me," was the answer. And that night her friend confided to her husband, with thoughtful regret, that Elinor was becoming a regular old maid.

Another of her friends and comrades, Max Anderson, also noticed the subtle change. Theirs had been a sort of brother and sister friendship of long standing. For years he had scolded and criticised and bullied her. The one thing that he hadn't done was to make love, and Elinor had long since given up trying to make him.

"Haven't you ever been in love, Max?" she had asked him once, with genuine curiosity in the gray eyes that had been more than one man's undoing. A dull flush came up into his face, and he looked at her strangely.

"Yes," he answered shortly, "I have. Beautiful night, isn't it?" she went on after a moment, and there was a touch of mockery in his voice that made the questioner wince. After that she asked him no more.

"What's up?" he demanded, surveying her cynically as she came down to receive him one evening, with renunciation speaking from every line of her plain gown and her smooth, parted hair. "Is it some sort of lay sackcloth and ashes? What particular sin are you mourning?"

"The great sin of omission!" she answered demurely as they sat down opposite each other. But he looked incredulous. He had not known her fifteen years for nothing.

"Commission, you mean," he said dryly, with an air of remembering things.

"No; omission! I'd tell you about it, only you're never any comfort to a person. You're just like a stone, Max. I don't know how I've endured you so long."

He turned his eyes lazily upon her with a look long, steady, inscrutable. Neither spoke, but after a moment Elinor, with a beautifully assumed air of perfect ease, sought refuge in a study of the pattern of the carpet.

"Possibly I may tell you some time," he said, with a nonchalant laugh, "but go on; let me hear what's the trouble. You always tell me eventually."

And so, in fact, she did. It was the beauty of Max that he made you like and hate him simultaneously. But no matter what you felt you wanted him, and you usually confided in him. That at least had been Elinor's experience, and it was being repeated for the hundredth time now. She wanted to tell him; she always wanted to tell him everything. She leaned forward suddenly, with a childish bid for sympathy in her eyes.

"You see, Max, I've omitted to get married. And now I'm thirty-one"—

"Plus," he corrected gravely.

"Thirty-one," she continued firmly, "and, though it's been great fun—well, all at once I realized that I'm an old maid. It's so unexpected. Why haven't I married? That's what I don't understand."

There was a pause in which it seemed to her that she suddenly heard the beating of her own heart. Before she fully realized what had happened her hands were held close and Max was saying:

"Look at me, Elinor, and see if you can't find out. I've waited years for you to finish sowing your wild oats."

Part of the Game.

The best kind of wit is not the broad joke or quip, but the remark which summarizes the truth of a situation in a striking and, if possible, humorous fashion. President Lowell of Harvard is credited with a reply which meets these conditions. It was at a dinner in England where John Burns, the labor leader, was present. Mr. Burns was talking about some bygone custom of government.

"That is as obsolete," he said, "as the constitution of the United States. Am I not right, Mr. Lowell?"

"I am reminded," returned the other, "of a remark which I overheard at a tennis tournament. Two old ladies were watching the game. One of them said, 'How much easier it would be for the players if that net were not in the way!' The constitution is our net."

Forests of the Philippines.

After several years' investigation of the forests of the Philippine Islands Dr. H. N. Whitford is enabled to make some statements concerning their extent and richness which will be likely to surprise many readers. He says, for instance, that the virgin forest area of the islands, covering 25,000,000 acres, contains 200,000,000,000 board feet of lumber, and he contrasts this with the 400,000,000,000 feet of timber growing on the 200,000,000 acres contained in the forest reserves of the United States. In other words, the Philippine forests are, acre for acre, four times as rich as those of this country. Other authorities agree with Dr. Whitford in the opinion that when the world's eyes are opened to the value of the tropical forests a great asset will have been added to the common wealth of mankind.

Dickens and Marshalsea Prison.

A very interesting relic of one of the London prisons demolished in the course of the Victorian era is about to figure in an auction room in the west end. This is the actual iron and oak grill from the old Marshalsea prison in Southwark, behind which, it is said, the father of Charles Dickens was confined for debt. Readers of the immortal works of the son will not need to be reminded of the fact that the best description of the interior of the famous prison and the life led therein is given in "Little Dorrit." Like more than one other in the London area, the prison was finally razed to the ground in 1809. It was used almost entirely for persons committed for debt and contempt of court and for admiralty prisoners.—London News.

Corn Mills.

Corn mills are often mentioned in the Bible. The original corn mill much resembled the modern druggist's pestle. Moses forbade corn mills to be taken in pawn, for that, he thought, was something like taking a man's life in pledge.

CORDWAINERS.

History of This Ancient Craft of Workers In Leather.

Of the ancient and influential guilds of London the cordwainers have a history second to none. They were first incorporated by Henry IV. in 1140, and in 1439 their charter was made to include all workers in leather within a distance of two miles of the city boundary. Later their control was extended over the London leather markets.

Cordwaining means working in Cordovan leather. These artisans had gathered themselves into an association at an early period. They were originally located on the fringe of the old city of Londinium when the Roman power was predominant in Britain. Here they remained for many centuries, their industry forming one of the staple trades of the country. The craft had long been recognized as an important factor in molding the municipal life of English towns. For instance, the Gilda Corvessorum of Oxford in the twelfth century was successful in obtaining from Henry I. a royal charter upon payment of an annual fine of one ounce of gold.

In the old days the cordwainer, the tanner and the currier had separate rights in the preparing of alum leather, tan leather and working cowhides. The cordwainer was to make boots and shoes of calf's hide. No master was to keep more than eight servants, and the carrying of shoes through the streets for sale was permitted only before dinner.

The first ordinance establishing the Cordwainers' company was granted in 1272 by the will and consent of the mayor and the other barons of the city of London "for the relief and the advancement of the whole business and to the end that all frauds and deceits may hereafter be avoided." In the following reign the prices allowed to be charged for shoes were 12 cents for a pair of shoes of Cordovan leather and 10 cents for a pair of cowhide shoes.

Nowadays the Cordwainers' company exists primarily to keep up its traditions, give its members banquets and incidentally to promote technical education and contribute to charities. Its income is $46,500 a year.

ARTISTS' EMBLEMS.

In Whistler's Butterfly Could Be Found the Monogram J. W.

The mystic emblem or device of a sort of Whistlerized butterfly was adopted in the sixties by the eccentric genius James Abbott Whistler, who changed his name later to James McNeill Whistler.

Close study will reveal that this peculiar scroll is really a monogram of J. W. The earliest of the etchings to bear the butterfly is "Chelsea Wharf" (1863), but many paintings and etchings after that date are signed "Whistler."

Artists have sometimes signed their pictures in some distinct form instead of their names. It generally was done when the name might suggest some emblem or symbol.

Thus Hieronymus Cock demarked two fighting cocks on his panels; Mariotto Albertinelli signed a cross with two interlaced rings, referring to the sacerdotal duties to which at one time of his life he devoted himself; Martin Rota, a wheel; Pieter de Ryng, a ring with a diamond; Giovanni Dossi, a bone; Del Mazo Martinez, a hammer; Lionello Spada, a sword.

Sometimes caprice dictated the selection, as when Jacopo de Barberi used the caduceus, or Mercury rod; Hendrik de Bles an owl, Lucas Cranach a crowned serpent, Cornelius Engelbrechtsen a peculiar device resembling a weather vane and Hans Holbein a skull.

Saved His Life

Mr. H. C. Freeman was completely restored to health and strength by Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, the grand old family medicine.

He writes: "I honestly believe I owe my life to the use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. After 31 years of hard work as expert accountant I suffered a complete physical breakdown and was compelled to give up my work. A hard, dry cough and frequent night sweats were gradually sapping what little vitality I had left. A friend induced me to try Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. Almost immediately I began to feel a change for the better. I am working harder today than ever before, and I feel as I did twenty years ago. Nothing in the world but Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey brought about my present condition, and I am never without a bottle of this wonderful stimulant in my room. It is my only medicine." H. Chester Freeman, 224 South Clark St., Chicago, Ill., U. S.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is one of the greatest strength builders and tonic stimulants known to science. Its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach. Overworked men, delicate women and sickly children will find in it the health and strength-giving properties so necessary to them. It strengthens and sustains the system; is a promoter of health and longevity; makes the old feel young and keeps the young strong and vigorous.

WONDERS OF LAVA

This Molten Rock Is a Most Peculiar Substance.

REDHOT SNOW SANDWICHES.

Curious Effect on Mount Vesuvius Produced by the Lava's Amazing Properties as a Nonconductor of Heat—Deadly Volcanic Ashes.

Vesuvius, the most famous volcano in the world, with its mighty vomitings of lava and dust, is guilty of many queer freaks. Mighty rainstorms have set in motion the lava dust and lava cinders that lie on its sides, and torrents of muddy lava have overwhelmed towns and villages as it swept down to the sea. The resulting effect from this has been so great that it changed the face of the coast line by forming a new promontory.

Lava is one of the most curious of substances. It is simply rock melted by a heat so intense that it flows like thin gruel. When Vesuvius is in eruption thousands of tons of it are squirted up the "pipe" and out of the crater. As it flows out over the edge it soon cools and leaves a thick, ropy coating, which spreads over the entire countryside.

But it is only on the top that it really cools. A few inches below the surface of the lava is often red hot. Visitors are often invited to light their cigarettes in the chinks of a bed of lava that has been lying out in the open air for twenty years or more.

It is the most wonderful nonconductor of heat known. Borings made through some lava beds have shown that they are made up of layers of lava and layers of unmelted snow. As successive torrents of lava came pouring down the surface that lay on the snow cooled at once, and the surface open to the air also cooled at once. But between the two surfaces there was blazing heat; so if you bored down through some lava beds you would find a cool upper surface, a redhot inside, a cool layer, snow, a cool layer, a redhot one, a cool one and then snow again.

In fact, a layer of lava will let neither heat nor cold through. If you built a house entirely of lava on a scorching summer day you would still have 95 degrees inside when there was snow outside. If you built it in the winter ice would form in your parlor in July.

This clearly demonstrates what an extraordinary nonconductor lava is.

There is, indeed, on the slopes of Vesuvius a little lava hut into which summer visitors put bottles of wine to get them chilled.

When a volcano throws its lava out with such tremendous force that it jets high into the air it very often falls in the form of dust, owing to the explosive power of the high pressure steam that spurts out with it. It bursts into a fine spray and falls as dust—dust far finer than any other dust known.

It is so fine, indeed, that sometimes years elapse before it settles. When the mighty island volcano of Krakatoa blew itself nearly into bits in 1883 with a crashing sound of cannonading that smashed windows hundreds of miles away the lava dust was so thick in the air that for hundreds of miles round midday was as black as night. Volumes of infinitely fine dust sailed round and round the earth in the upper atmosphere and made England's sunsets of that year unusually splendid. It was three years before the upper air became quite clear again.

Lava dust has the same properties as lava. Shepherds on the slopes of Vesuvius sprinkle patches of snow in the winter with lava dust so that they may have it when the scorching days of summer arrive.

It was lava dust turned to mud by torrents of rain such as usually come with volcanic outbursts, that, nearly 2,000 years ago, destroyed the famous pleasure city of Herculaneum, and it was showers of volcanic ashes that overwhelmed Pompeii. Herculaneum still lies nearly forty yards from the open air.

There are rivers of lava mud that are blotting out towns and villages now.

A curious point has always been noticed when Vesuvius is in eruption, and that is the strong odor of washing day that hangs around the mountain.

One might wonder why the slopes of such a mountain are so thickly populated when there is always danger of eruptions and of avalanches of lava mud. Well, the reason is that volcanic soil is always very fertile. Some of the best wine of Italy comes from Vesuvian vineyards, and people are ready to take the risks.—London American.

AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.

Midgie Station, N. B.—One can hardly believe this as it is not natural, but it was my case. For ten months I suffered from suppression. I had different doctors, tried different medicines, but none helped me. My friends told me I would go into a decline. One day a lady friend told me what your medicine had done for her, so I wrote you for advice and received your reply with pleasure.

I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and at the second bottle showed improvement. Now I am regular and never was so well in my life, thanks to Mrs. Pinkham's medicine.

Please publish my letter for the benefit of others.—MRS. JOSIAH W. HICKS, Midgie Station, N. B.

Indian Head, Sask.—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is indeed a boon to women who suffer from female ills. My health is better now than it has been in my five years of married life and I thank you for the good your advice and medicine have done me. I had spent hundreds of dollars on doctors without receiving any benefit.—MRS. FRANK COOPER, Box 448, Indian Head, Saskatchewan.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

What Has Dandruff Got To Do With Baldness ?

You see the statement every day that the one cause of baldness is dandruff. But is it?

True, dandruff often precedes the departure of the hair.

It is equally true that you know men with a shock of hair you can hardly pull a comb through, who have carried around a dandruff laden collar as long as you have known them.

You have also seen men whose scalp was kept as clean as a baby's whose hair was surely departing.

That dandruff talk sounds well and convinces a good many of us, but let us not fool ourselves.

Of course dandruff isn't a good thing to carry around, but it is only an indication.

The same trouble that causes the hair to fall out usually causes dandruff, so if you get at the cause and arrest the loss of hair, you will stop dandruff too.

Those who use Nyal's Hirsutone find it the most satisfactory hair healer and hair dressing they have ever used.

It does stop the hair from falling out.

It will also stop dandruff.

Your Nyal Druggist cheerfully recommends it—$1.00 and 50c in sprinkler bottles.

(15) In what sense is the proverb always true, that "one man and God are always a majority ?"

(16) Is it always God's plan to give the victory to every man of God no matter if he is alone and all the people are against him ? Give your reasons.

(17) Verses 23-25— Was the plan Elijah adopted to prove that Baal was no god, his own, or had it been given to him by God ? Give your reasons. See verse 36.

(18) Why would it be either wisdom or folly, in this day, for any good man to adopt the same sort of test to prove that those who opposed Christianity were wrong ?

(19) What is the supreme test or proof to-day that our God is real; and a present help in trouble, and all other gods are false ? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(20) Verses 26-29—What reason is there to believe that these prophets of Baal believed in their god ?

(21) How much value can yop get for the truth of any cause from the evidence that its advocates are willing to suffer, or even dine to prove their faith in it?

(22) Verses 30-39—What proof have we to-day that the Lord is God, fully as convincing as this miracle ?

(23) How much value do you place upon conversions produced by such wonders as here displayed ?

(24) Verse 40—What evidence is there that the wholesale slaughter of four hundred and fifty men by Elijah was done at the command of God ?

BEAUTIFUL DINNER DRESS

The foundation of this dress is violet panne souple, veiled with silver net, the latter having a deep embroidered border at bottom. Silver tulle is used for the oddly-fashioned corsage and side draperies. Venice lace and silver embroidery combine in finishing the bodice.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

To Steam Potatoes

Scrub, peel, and wash potatoes, put them in a steamer, sprinkle salt over them, place the saucepan on the fire, and let the water boil quickly under the steamer. When they are tender, cover with a cloth and dry before the fire. Potatoes are considered lighter if steamed, and it is an economical way of cooking them, as meat can be cooked in the saucepan and potatoes steamed over.

Mock Pate de Foie Gras

Take half a pound of young calves' liver, or five or six chickens' livers, simmer gently with enough water to cover, add a little pepper and salt; then drain and pound in a mortar with enough fresh butter to form a nice paste. Add a little cream if preferred to butter, cayenne, or nutmeg, or mace, as liked. Press into small glass jars for use and pour melted butter over. This is an excellent breakfast or supper dish, spread on buttered toast and garnished with slices of tomatoes.

Marrow and Apple Jam

Six pounds of apples, 6 pounds of marrow, 3 pints of water, and ¾ pound of sugar to each pound of fruit. Pare and scrape all ends out of marrow, cut up fine. Peel and core apples, also cut up fine. Put sugar into the water and make the syrup, and then put in the marrow and apples (all cut up), and soak all night. Next morning put on to boil for two and a half to three hours. When it is sufficiently cooked it will look brown, and be very soft. This quantity will make 18 pounds.

Choosing a Goose

There is an art of choosing a goose for table, especially when a large one is required, for a fine young bird is greatly superior to a big old one. If the bill has an orange tint, the feet a red hue, and more than a few hears can be discovered on these, then the goose is not young. The bill should be only yellowish, and the feet must bend easily when touched. To ascertain if the bird is fresh it is necessary only to observe whether the feet are dry or slightly moist; in the former case the goose must have been killed too long ago.

How to Prepare Lobster

After removing the lobster from the boiling water, drain and wipe dry. When cool split open the body and tail and crack the claws, to extract the meat. The sand-pouch found near the throat should be removed, as also the head and what are termed the lady-fingers. Care should likewise be exercised in removing all feathery, gill-like particles formed about the sides of the body, as they are tough, very indigestible, and couse much trouble. They are thought by some to be reprehensible for the so-called poisoning from eating lobster.

MARRIAGE MAXIMS

The following marriage maxims are worthy of more than a hasty reading. Husbands need not pass them by, for they are designed for wives; and wives should not despise them, for they are addressed to husbands:—The very nearest approach to domestic happiness on earth is in the cultivation or both sides of absolute unselfishness. Never talk at one another either alone or in company. Never both be angry at once. Never speak aloud to one another—unless the house is on fire. Let each one strive to yield oftenest to the wishes of the other. Let self-denial be the daily aim and practice of each. Never find fault, unless it is perfectly certain that a fault has been committed, and always speak lovingly. Never taunt with a past mistake. Neglect the whole world besides rather than one another. Never allow a request to be repeated. Never make a remark at the expense of each other; it is meanness. Never part for a day without loving words to think of during absence. Never meet without a loving welcome. Never let the sun go down upon any anger or grievance. Never let any fault you have committed go by until you have frankly confessed it and asked forgiveness. Never forget the happy hours of early love. Never sigh over what might have been, but make the best of what is.

GIFTS THAT THE ELDERLY FOLKS WILL APPRECIATE

Don't give grandpa a walking-stick or grandma a frilled night-cap. Age does not appreciate being reminded of its advance.

Let me tell you of a family reunion held last Christmas at a certain grandmother's. Children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren arrived with many tributes and good wishes for grandmother, including many gifts of a thoughtful and sympathetic variety. One of these on which grandmother beamed most cheerily was a set of fancy or rather substantial sofa cushions presented by some of her grandchildren. The pillows in themselves were not a novelty, but their rarity of design and suggestiveness made them unique gifts for an aged person. One of them was leather, a soft undressed shagreen. In the centre of the face side they had etched with a pyrographic needle a good reproduction of grandmother's earliest homestead on the prairie. By the same process lilies of the valley—her favorite flower—were burnt along the edge. A picture of the barn, with romping sheep and cattle about it, appeared on the under side.

Another pillow was of dark green burlap, with the names of all of grandmother's living descendants and relatives on one side. Her favorite proverbs and maxims were found on the other side.

The remaining pillow in the set was of the homely and useful sort which are made of silk and muslin scraps. But in this case each little triangle in the cushion reminded grandmother of a particular dress that she or her grandchildren had worn at one time or another. In fact, all were abundantly suggestive of grandmother's past.

Another present which she regarded with endless delight was a solidly framed group picture of her three great-grandchildren, all at the age of swaddling clothes. Still another gift which pleased her wonderfully was a hand-carved box, into the cover of which were inserted three pictures of herself—her bridel picture, one in which she appeared with her first-born, and then her latest photograph as a white-capped grandmother.

All these gifts had something warm and personal about them. In fact, all awakened happy memories and started pleasant trains of thought.

The same idea could be carried out for grandfather, with a different foundation. If he loves to tinker, a tool-box of burnt wood, with etchings of his favorite songs, scenes of his youth, or the hobbies of his prime burnt into the lids or the sides, would be acceptable.

It all depends on the profession or occupation he followed. A white-haired lawyer, aged 88, who belonged to three secret orders, had four different clubs, was presented by his granddaughter with a pair of grey house slippers on which she had designed and worked in colored silk all his club and lodge emblems. It was the kind of gift that age appreciates.

SERGE WALKING SUIT

Heavy twilled in a rich dark shade of blue makes a stylish and durable walking suit, and our illustration today suggests an admirable model for such suit. The narrow plain skirt is most attractive with its narrow stitched hem, and three large black buttons trim each side seam at bottom. The coat is prettily trimmed with buttons, heavily stitched seams and outside pockets, as shown in sketch.

TRAGEDY OF A FROCK

Concerning bazaars, the Archbishop of York once said: "All admired the graceful lady in the beautiful dress who flitted among the stalls of a charity bazaar. But suppose the dress was not paid for, and suppose the unpaid bill meant to some poor dressmaker, harassed for want of capital, the prospect of losing the home which had kept the aged parents and the invalid sister in peace! 'I speak,' added the archbishop significantly, 'of what I know.'"

A Story of the Indian Mutiny

"You see!" she cried. "Have I not spoken truly? These are the men who sacked Meerut. Scarce a Feringhi lives there save those whom I have saved to good purpose. Admit your troops! Proclaim yourself their ruler. A moment's firmness will win back your empire."

The aged monarch now that the hour was at hand that astrologers had predicted and his courtiers had promised for many a year faltered his dread lest they were not all committing a great mistake.

"This is no woman's work" he protested. "Where are my sons? Where is the Shahzada, Mirza Mogul?"

She knew. The heir apparent and his brothers were cowering in fear, afraid to strike, yet hoping that others would strike for them. She almost dragged her father to the front of the balcony. The troopers recognized him with a fierce shout. A hundred sabers were waved frantically.

"Help us, O King!" they cried. "We pray your help in our fight for the faith!"

Captain Douglas, commandant of the palace guards hearing the uproar, ran to the King. He did not notice the girl Roshinara, who stood there like a caged tigress.

"How dare you intrude on the King's privacy?" he cried, striving to overawe the rebels by his cool demeanor. "You must lay down your arms if you wish his Majesty's clemency. He is here in person and that is his command."

A yell of defiance greeted his words. The Begum made a signal with her hand which was promptly understood. Away clattered the troopers towards the Raj Ghat Gate. There they were admitted without parley. The city hell hounds sprang to meet them and the slaughter of inoffensive Europeans began in Darya Gunj.

It was soon in full swing. The vile deeds of the night at Meerut were reenacted in the vivid sunlight at Delhi. Leaving their willing allies to carry sword and torch through the small community in that quarter the sowars rode to the Lahore Gate of the palace. It was thrown open by the King's guards and dependents. Captain Douglas, and the Commissioner, Mr. Fraser, made vain appeals to men whose knees would have trembled at their frown a few minutes earlier. Thinking to escape and summon assistance from the cantonment, Douglas mounted the wall and leaped into the moat. He broke one, if not both, of his legs. Some scared coolies lifted him and carried him back to the interior of the palace. Fraser tried to protect him while he was being taken to his apartments over the Lahore Gate, but a jeweler from the bazaar stabbed the Commissioner and he was killed by the guards. Then the mob rushed upstairs and massacred the collector, the chaplain, the chaplain's daughter, a lady who was their guest and the injured Douglas.

Another dreadful scene was enacted in the Delhi Bank. The manager and his brave wife, assisted by a few friends who happened to be in the building at the moment, made a stubborn resistance, but they were all cut down. The masters in the Government colleges were surprised and murdered in their class-rooms. The missionaries, whether European or native, were slaughtered in their houses and schools. The editorial staff and compositors of the Delhi Gazette having just produced a special edition of the paper announcing the crisis, were all stabbed or bludgeoned to death. In the telegraph office a young signaler was sending a thrilling message to Umballa, Lahore and the north.

"The sepoys have come in from Meerut," he announced with the slow tick of the earliest form of apparatus. "They are burning everything. Mr. Todd is dead, and, we hear, several Europeans. We must shut up."

That was his requiem. The startled operators at Umballa could obtain no further intelligence and the boy was slain at his post.

The magistrate who galloped to the cantonment found no laggards there. Brigadier Graves sent Colonel Ripley with part of the 54th Native Infantry to occupy the Kashmir Gate. The remainder of the 54th escorted two guns under Captain de Tessier.

Ripley reached the main guard, just within the gate, when some troopers of the 3rd rode up. The Colonel ordered his men to fire at them. The sepoys refused to obey, and the sowars, drawing their pistols, shot dead or severely wounded six British officers. Then the 54th bayoneted their Colonel, but, hearing the rumble of De Tessier's guns, fled into the city. The guard of the gate, composed of men of the 38th, went with them, but their officer, Captain Wallace, had ridden, fortunately for himself, to hurry the guns. He was sent on to the cantonment to ask for re-enforcements. Not a man of the 38th would follow him, but the 74th commanded by Major Abbott, proclaimed their loyalty and asked to be led against the mutineers.

Perforce their commander trusted them. He brought them to the Kashmir Gate with two more guns, while the Brigadier and his staff, wondering why they heard nothing of the pursuing British from Meerut, thought it advisable to gather the women and children and other helpless persons, both European and native, in the Flagstaff Tower, a small building situated on the northern extremity of the Ridge.

There for some hours a great company of frightened people endured all the discomforts of terrific heat, hunger, and thirst, while wives and mothers, striving to soothe their wailing little ones, were themselves consumed with anxiety as to the fate of husbands and sons.

At the main guard there was a deadlock. Major Abbott and his brother officers, trying to keep their men loyal, stood fast and listened to the distant turmoil in the city. Like the soldiers in Meerut, they never guessed a tithe of the horrors enacted there. They were sure that the white troops in Meerut would soon arrive and put an end to the prevalent anarchy. Yet the day sped and help came not.

Suddenly the sound of a tremendous explosion rent the air and a dense cloud of white smoke, succeeded by a pall of dust, rose between the gate and the palace. Willoughby had blown up the magazine! Why? Two artillery subalterns who had fought their way through a mob stricken with panic for the moment, soon arrived. Their story fills one of the great pages of history.

Lieutenant Willoughby, a boyish-looking subaltern of artillery, whose shy, refined manners hid a heroic soul, lost no time in making his dispositions for the defence of the magazine when he knew that a mutiny was imminent. He had with him eight Englishmen, Lieutenants Forrest and Raynor, Conductors Buckley, Shaw and Scully, Sub-Conductor Crow, and Sergeants Edwards and Stewart. The nine barricaded the outer gates and placed in the best position guns loaded with grape. They laid a train from the powder store to a tree in the yard. Scully stood there. He promised to fire the powder when his young commander gave the signal.

Then they waited. A stormy episode was taking place inside the fort. Bahadur Shah held out against the vehement urging of his daughter aided now by the counsel of her brothers. Ever and anon he went to the river balcony which afforded a view of the Meerut road. At last he sent mounted men across the river. When these scouts returned and he was quite certain that none but rebel sepoys were streaming towards Delhi from Meerut, he yielded.

The surrender of the magazine was demanded in his name. His adherents tried to rush the gate and walls, and were shot down in scores. The attack grew more and more furious and sustained. The white men served their smoking cannon with a wild energy that, for a time, made the gallant nine equal to a thousand. Of course such a struggle could have only one end. Willoughby in his turn, ran to the river bastion. Like the king, he looked towards Meerut. Like the king, he saw none but mutineers. Then, when the enemy were clambering over the walls and rushing into the little fort from all directions, he raised his sword and looked at Conductor Buckley. Buckley lifted his hat, the agreed signal, and Scully fired the train. Hundreds of rebels were blown to pieces, as they were already inside the magazine. Scully was killed where he stood. Willoughby leaped from the walls, crossed the river, and met his death while striving to reach Meerut. Lieutenants Forrest and Raynor, Conductors Buckley and Shaw, and Sergeant Stewart escaped, and were given the Victoria Cross.

Yet, so curiously constituted is the native mind, the blowing-up of the magazine was the final tocsin of revolt. It seemed to place beyond doubt that which all men were saying. The king was fighting the English. Islam was in the field against the Nazarene. The Mogul Empire was born again and the iron grip of British rule was relaxed. At once the sepoys at the Kashmir Gate fired a volley at the nearest officers, of whom three fell dead.

Two survivors rushed up the bastion and jumped into the ditch. Others, hearing the shrieks of some women in the guard room, poor creatures, who had escaped from the city, ran through a hail of bullets and got them out. Fastening belts and handkerchiefs together, the men lowered the women into the fosse and, with extraordinary exertions, lifted them up the opposite side.

At the Flagstaff Tower the 74th and the remainder of the 38th suddenly told their officers that they would obey them no longer. When this last shred of hope was gone, the Brigadier reluctantly gave the order to retreat. The women and children were placed in carriages and a mournful procession began to straggle through the deserted cantonment along the Alipur Road.

Soon the fugitives saw their bungalows on fire. "Then," says that accurate and impartial historian of the Mutiny, Mr. T. R. E. Holmes, "began that piteous flight, the first of many such incidents which hardened the hearts of the British to inflict a terrible revenge. . . . Driven to hide in jungles or morasses from despicable vagrants—robbed, and scourged, and mocked by villagers who had entrapped them with promises of help—scorched by the blazing sun, blistered by burning winds, half-drowned in rivers which they had to ford or swim across, naked, weary and starving, they wandered on; while some fell dead by the wayside, and others, unable to move farther, were abandoned by their sorrowing friends to die on the road."

In such wise did the British leave Imperial Delhi. They came back, later, but many things had to happen meanwhile.

OLD TIME LIBRARIANS.

Spofford, Whitney and Butler Made a Famous Trio.

With Ainsworth Rand Spofford, for fifty years librarian of congress, who died in 1908; the passing of Wentworth Sanborn Butler, for more than fifty years librarian of the New York Society library, and of James Lyman Whitney, for forty years with the Boston Public library, a triumvirate of old school librarians has gone. The environment, conditions and methods of administration have changed. In the fifties, before the days of elaborate catalogues, with subjects grouped and classified, the librarian was popularly credited with carrying all the knowledge of the universe in his head, ready to impart to all comers on request.

Mr. Spofford and Mr. Butler were both born in New Hampshire and Mr. Whitney in Northampton, Mass., about a decade later. Amherst, Dartmouth and Yale contributed to their culture, and New England and the country gave them their early vigor and resourcefulness.

Mr. Butler knew the beaus and the belles of New York for three generations. William Cullen Bryant, Gulian C. Verplanck, Fitz-Greene Halleck and Evert C. Duyckinck drew upon his various stores of knowledge. The great jurists and statesmen William M. Evarts, David Dudley Field, Hamilton Fish, John Jay and Samuel J. Tilden were intimate friends and constant visitors at the society library.—New York Post.

ROTARY SNOWPLOWS.

These Powerful Machines Are as Big as Freight Cars.

The snowplow is a huge machine, as big as a freight car, and built of steel. On the forward end is a monster wheel with powerful blades of steel looking like an overgrown electric fan so arranged that their angles can be changed. This wheel, which is perpendicular to the track and revolves at right angles to it, is inclosed in a casing or drum, also of steel and with sharp steel edges. The top of the drum is supplied with a pipe or chute.

Inside the snowplow is a steam engine, which drives this huge fan wheel at from 100 to 250 revolutions every minute. Below the body of the plow near the track is an ice cutter to clear the rails of ice before the wheels go over them and a "flanger," as it is called, designed to scrape the bulk of the snow off the track itself after the fan has whittled the snow bank away and thrown the most of it to one side. Behind the snowplow are coupled from one to three or even more powerful engines, and behind these a car.

On the car are many men with shovels, for, despite its enormous power and its ability to toss tons of snow about as you might toss a shovelful, even the rotary gets stuck at times and has to be ignominiously dug out! —C. N. Claudy in St. Nicholas.

Artificial Camphor.

There is in operation in New York state an artificial camphor factory, the product of which is intended to compete in the market with the natural substance. It is maintained that it does not differ, except in the manner of its origin, from that extracted from the camphor trees of Formosa. Artificial camphor is made from essential oils derived from turpentine. Chemically the only difference between turpentine and camphor is the possession by each molecule of the latter of one atom of oxygen which is lacking in the former. By chemical process the needed oxygen is supplied. Three-fourths of the entire supply of camphor is used in the arts and one-fourth in medicine.—Exchange.

Measuring Water by Sound.

An electrical device whereby a sound wave is sent to the sea bottom in relatively shallow water and upon being deflected back to the vessel is re… apparatus has been designed in Norway for measuring the depth of the sea. An automatic record is made of the time elapsed between the departure and the return, and, as the velocity of sound in water is known, the depth is at once ascertained. The apparatus makes a continuous record and is so constructed as to give an alarm when the water shallows to a certain depth. Several tests of the apparatus are said to prove the absolute accuracy of the device.—Montreal Standard.

Why Tudhope's Selected for Canada the "EVERITT"

Same price as in U.S.

$1,450

Two Years' Guarantee

With Extra Tire and Special Equipment

We Needed a Car

In our 60 years of building horse vehicles, pressure from our customers demanded that the Tudhopes produce in Canada a horseless vehicle—a motor car—which would be in that field of transportation as superior as the various Tudhope horse-drawn vehicles are in theirs.

We wanted an ideal car at a low price—a car that would be handsome, comfortable, safe, efficient, simple and strong. This would answer the demands on us.

Points? Cost? Worth?

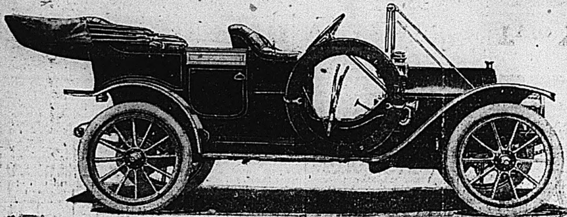
After months of searching, testing, judging and comparing, we decided that the car for Canada was the "Everitt."

We had to get a car that would stand Canadian roads without breakdown, would have a high clearance for the roughest roads, would have a staunch simple motor that wouldn't break down twenty miles from anywhere, would be operated and fixed easily by the owner himself. This car had to be comfortable under all conditions—light enough to be easy on tires. We found cars that nearly met these demands, but with selling prices high above fair intrinsic values. Slow methods of making and costly experiments made these high prices. We would avoid them for Canada. We would cut out the experiments and slow factory methods, and give a car the equal of cars usually sold at $2,500.

You Pay EXACTLY U.S. Prices

Canadians are not charged $250 to $400 over American prices in the "Everitt" car. The cost of the "Everitt" with extra tire and special Canadian equipment in the U.S. is $1,450. The Canadian special equipment costs extra there—is not furnished in the United States—is furnished in Canada. $100 extra is charged in the United States for the extra tire and special equipment that come with the Canadian "Everitt."

You pay the same price here as in the United States—no 'duty' to add—no extra cost.



"EVERITT" STANDARD TOURING 1911 MODEL, $1,450

Double-drop frame, 110 in. wheel base, 56-in. gauge, 34 in. wheels, 3 1-2 in. tires, universal rims, internal and external brakes on rear wheels, Bosch high-tension magneto, improved adjustable cone clutch transmission, selective type, speeds forward, 1 reverse. Motor: 4 cylinder, 4 cycle, long stroke en bloc, 4 in. x 4 3-4, self-lubricating. Equipment: magneto, horn, 5 gas and oil lamps, generator, extra tire, tire cover, bracket, foot-rest, robe-rail, shock absorbers, sight gasoline gauge and tool kit. Extra equipment: mohair top, dust cover and windshield; $125.00. Price, without extra equipment, $1,450, f.o.b., Orillia.

Yet, though we gave $2,500 value, as understood in quality and perfection, we aimed to make the price $2,000 or less. The problem was first one of design, then one of manufacturing methods.

We Sought "High-Price" Standards

In our search we planned to make a car that in material, design and wearing quality would be a de luxe car. This meant using 3½% nickel steel in transmission gears, for instance, getting Bosch magnetos, large wheels, and other "high price" details. It had to be a long-stroke, large-capacity, four-cycle engine, simple and long-wearing. We wanted our car to be consistently good, through and through.

Jigs and Tools

These things added to car value immensely—made the car better. But they also added to cost. Could manufacturing cost—labor cost and material—be reduced, and how? We found they could be by using "jigs." "Jigs" are glass-hard metal fixtures. These hold each automobile part absolutely true while being made. They guide drills, planers, and other machines working up these parts to plane, drill, etc., exactly right. These parts must not vary 1-1000th of an inch, are always absolutely true. A jig is a rigid, exact guide that forces absolute accuracy of work, so no pieces are spoiled, no pieces are imperfect, no pieces vary, no labor-time is lost, no time is consumed in adjustment.

The first cost is great. The labor-saving is immense. The speed of production is tremendous, once work is started, after jigs are made.

We Find How To Give Canada Car Value

This was the new way to make automobiles. The old way was to make pieces roughly by working drawings, assemble these pieces, and fit them together by slow and laborious processes, and slowly turn out a few cars at a high cost per car.

The design of the car being correct, the car we would give Canada would be a "jig" car. We could turn out a hundred such cars at the labor cost of turning out a score of cars made the ordinary way, and fitted together. This reduced cost. It gave value. It gave room for value in materials—in the quality of metals used.

If we could get such a car, we could give Canada the greatest value known in car manufacturing. We could reduce the price. We could entirely make such a car in Canada, having its "jigs" already designed for us.

We Find The Car

Lack of "jigs" for making such a car as we wanted cut out many cars. Finally we found the "Everitt" a car of perfect design for Canadian roads, with 782 special jigs to build it by. Experiments on both car and jigs were avoided.

Our search was ended. We selected the "Everitt." It was right. It met Canadian needs, the Canadian market price, the substantiality and accommodation needed to give a "consistent" car. We took the car itself. We erected a special factory. We built the 782 special fixtures, duplicates of the Detroit fixtures. The "Everitt" car has behind it all the advantages of fifteen years' automobile design, and of modern making, without the cost of experimental work. By doing this we make in Canada, entirely out of Canadian raw material, a car with $2,400 value and $3,000 quality in bearings, etc., at $1,450

Equipment Complete

We equip the "Everitt" to be a complete car at $1,450.

You don't have to spend $100 to $200 extra after you get your machine.

Set of 5 lamps and gas generator are included.

Robe-rail and foot-rest are regular equipment.

This regular equipment is the most liberal and complete ever offered.

A Powerful Motor

The "Everitt" motor has 152 less parts than our nearest competitors. One-piece main casting includes upper-half crank case and crank bearings, cylinders, combustion chambers, intake and exhaust manifolds.

Tremendous strength is possible through this simplicity. All strain comes between the crank-shaft bushings and cylinder heads on nickel-steel studs—3 simple parts, which cannot rack to pieces.

The weight saved means speedier and longer-wearing qualities in the car. It means the motor cannot get out of order easily.

It is an owner's motor.

How Simple The Motor Is

The motor is simple in other ways, too. The oiling, for instance, is automatic. All four connecting-rod bearings dip in the bottom half of the crank-shaft housing. This is like a dish, with oil in it.

The bearings dash into this oil each revolution. They oil themselves. The splash oils the pistons, and the pistons oil the cylinders. The splash also oils the crank-shaft bearings, the cam-shaft, the cams, the push-rods. You personally need have only one care—to fill the oil chamber.

Power At The Tires

The power transmission in the "Everitt" is "flexible." We mean by that that the motor, clutch, shaft and speed-gear box, leading to the rear-axle drive, have "give and take" in them.

If a rear wheel rises over a rock in the road, the axle tilts, the gear box and shaft rise slightly, the clutch accommodates itself—there isn't an ounce of strain on motor, shafting, tire and wheel.

To show how much power the "Everitt" can really get to the rear tires, we use only two universal joints, just behind the clutch. Universal joints consume power as they are out of line. In the "Everitt," unlike many shaft-drive machines, the transmission gears are placed at the rear axle, doing away with one universal joint. The clutch and its universal joints are at the far end of the propeller shaft, where the movement is least. Minimum universal joint movement is in this design. Little power is lost. It means speed, and little strain on motor, shaft or rear axle. It is almost the only way to build a car for the roughest roads in Canada.

Big Wheels, Wide Bodies, Low Hung Car

We wanted the "Everitt" to be far ahead of anything ever offered either in Canada or the United States. The "Everitt" has 34-inch wheels. You find such construction only in $3,000 models and higher.

Rear seats are extra wide, easily taking 3 passengers. This is a luxurious feature. All upholstering is hand-buffed leather—a feature not to be looked for in cars under $3,500.

Long wheel base and short-turning features make an easily handled car.

The double-drop "Everitt" frame permits a low centre of gravity, pulling the load close to the ground, preventing skidding, at the same time permitting 11¼ in. road clearance.

We Meet High-Price Standards

Jigs and fixtures both standardize and lower cost. "Everitt" cost savings allow us to use 3½% nickel steel. This gives you $4,000 car material in a $1,450-machine.

We meet high-price car standards in essential points.

Cars at as high as $3,000 offer no more than the "Everitt" $1,450.

The 5-PASSENGER TOURING model will be beautiful finish and design.

The FORE-DOOR TOURING Model with 5-passenger body, inside control.

PERFECT MOTOR.

Four-cylinder, 4 cycle, long-stroke motor has cylinders, valve chambers, valve seats, magneto and pump brackets and upper half of crank-case and seats for upper half of crank shaft bearings, cam-shaft bearings and push-rod bearing in one piece.

This prevents racking of motor and lost motion between parts. Motor has long life.

CAMS are large, lessening wear by doubling area of frictional contact, and giving long life to cam-shaft and motor, with perfect valve action at all times.

CRANK-SHAFT. Drop forging, 2¾ in. throw, 4½ in. stroke; 3 nickel babbit die-cast bearings.

VALVES. Operated by push-rods leading through upper half of crank-case to valve stem. All valves on left side of motor.

CARBURETOR. Special "Everitt" design, on right side of motor.

SPLASH OILING. Lower half of crank-case is an oil container, and auxiliary oil reservoir, vacuum type, keeps oil at constant level.

LOWER HALF OF CRANK-CASE is aluminum, and by removal gives access to all parts of motor individually.

PUMP. Centrifugal, gear-driven.

BOSCH MAGNETO. High-tension duplex model, driven by pump shaft.

BATTERY ignition in reserve.

TAKE DOWN SIMPLICITY. All parts of "Everitt" 4-cylinder engine accessible to owner for inspection or adjustment by removing lower-half of crank-shaft housing with 16 bolts. Any piston, connecting rod, valve, etc., may be removed without disturbing any other part or disturbing timing. Replacements absolutely true to gauge, all parts being standardized.

CONE CLUTCH of aluminum with bulging facings of chrome-tanned leather to prevent clutch gripping suddenly.

FRAME. Double-drop type, giving low centre of gravity, 11¼ in. clearance. Best channel steel side members, 1¼ x 4 inch.

SPRINGS. 36 in. semi-elliptic at front, and 40 in. full scroll elliptic at rear.

FRONT AXLE I-beam drop forging with drop between springs.

REAR AXLE and TRANSMISSION incorporated in one unit.

Write for Catalogue

REAR AXLE SHAFTS encased in seamless steel tubing.

Ultra Class Features

These are not found in cars that class with or near the $1,450 "Everitt" in price.

Large 34-in. wheels.

Large brake capacity.

Nickel-steel transmission gears.

All parts standardized to within 1-1000th inch.

Long-stroke motor.

Motor simplicity.

Wide rear seats.

Two Years' Guarantee

The "Everitt" is made throughout from the best materials and entirely manufactured with "jigs," by which all parts are interchangeable and an absolute fit without machining or hand work.

On the "Everitt" car this extreme quality and perfection of design enables the makers to offer a guarantee of two years—12 times as long a guarantee as on ordinary cars.

Comfort Devices

DEEP UPHOLSTERING on all seats, doors padded. Upholstering best hand-buffed leather, straps on seat.

SHOCK ABSORBERS supplied on "Everitt" car as regular equipment.

LOW HUNG BODY gives low centre of gravity, but double-drop frame gives high road clearance of 11¼ inches.

SPRING equipment, full scroll elliptic springs at rear.

DOUBLE -DROP FRAME allows "Everitt" to accommodate itself to road inequalities.

LONG-STROKE MOTOR reduces motor vibration, found in no other $1,450 cars.

LARGE WHEELS reduce road shocks by bridging ruts.

STEERING COLUMN set at comfortable angle—avoids shoulder strain. Large 17-in wheel.

DOORS open 90 degrees, giving easy access to car.

INTERNAL BRAKE RODS leave running board clear, no tripping.

GASOLINE GAUGE at footboard shows amount in tank without trouble.

Deliveries

The "Everitt" car, being made by means of 782 special "jigs," templets, fixtures, etc., as explained, not only has its individual parts made very rapidly, but many of the smaller parts are made on automatic machines.

This speed in making absolutely standard parts that are interchangeable from one "Everitt" car to another means easy and early commencement of "setting up."

Unlike cars made by old methods, building an "Everitt" car from its parts simply means joining by their proper bolts and other attachments pieces that are already true, and a perfect fit.

This means deliveries.

"Everitt" cars will be finished and ready on delivery dates promised.

An Owner's Car

In considering a car purchase, remember that the "Everitt" is entirely Canadian-made. It is consistent, reliable, made of as few pieces as possible, especially the motor. You get with your "Everitt" a complete equipment.

You can operate the car and do all the inspection it needs, all the adjusting, all the minor attentions it may need. You do not necessarily need either a chauffeur or a machinist. It is an owner's car in every sense.

The $1,450 you pay for your "Everitt" with its extra tire, and other regular equipment, means an absolutely complete purchase at the same price you would pay in the United States for the car and its Canadian equipment. Without this equipment you would be compelled to purchase a similar equipment, in purchasing any car.

This is explained in the catalogue.

Two Years' Guarantee

In place of a 60-day guarantee, the "Everitt" car is guaranteed for two years. This is possible because each part is inspected many times during the process of making, and each part that is finally put into stock, is a perfect part.

This means to you ample time to bring out any flaws in the material of the car that may have escaped inspection. It means that the Tudhopes stand behind the car.

Everitt" Cars will be on Exhibition at our Front St. Showrooms,

CHICAGO TAILORS EMPLOY "FIXER"

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—Clothing manufacturers in this city employ a prominent politician as a "fixer" so that they may evade the factory laws according to testimony yesterday before the state senate commission investigating the garment workers' strike, by Frank Stich, a former bookkeeper and stock-taker for a clothing house.

The name of the political was not disclosed by Stich, who said he was a "good fellow" and had done the witness favors in the past, and he did not want to make any trouble or him.

"He is a prominent politician," said the witness. "He attends to all jury cases for the clothing manufacturers in the association, getting employes off who are called for jury service.

"He tips off visits of the factory inspectors, so that children under age can be hidden away while the inspectors go through the buildings. He also procurs all the affidavits for children who are working under the legal age."

"Is he considered a fixer?" asked Senator Henson, chairman of the commission.

"He is generally known as that," said the witness.

Senator Henson decided that as Stich was a voluntary witness, and as he was now in business for himself, he would not require him to disclose the name of the politician.

Subscribers renewing their subscriptions or paying arrears at the Office should ask for votes at the time of paying for same.

* *

Don't you think the magnificent prizes offered by The Intelligencer are worth some portion of your time every day? If you don't it's because you have not given the matter serious consideration. Better stop a moment and think about it. Such an opportunity as is being offered you by this paper should not be slighted. If won't be—by you—if you are at all solicitous for your own welfare. If the winning of one of The Intelligencer's prizes meant that you must sacrifice your position, then there would not be a word said to you about entering the contest. But it does not; you can secure the necessary subscriptions during your leisure moments. You must admit that they could not be better employed, because the prize which you will win will be worth a great deal more than the time which you spend in winning it.

INTELLIGENCER WANTS YOU TO WIN.

And while you are working, bear in mind the fact that The Intelligencer shall be glad to see you win. It will take great pleasure when the contest is over in announcing to its readers that you are the prize winner of one of the twelve prizes—that by your own efforts you are richer by a $400 Heintzman & Co. piano, a $100 diamond ring, or one of the ten district prizes for having had the foresight to recognize in The Intelligencer's offer of February 1 a glorious opportunity to profit handsomely by a comparatively small effort.

But you are warned that you are not the only one who has been able to see the chance that has been furnished by this contest. Others, too, have interested themselves, and from now until the close it will be a fight to the finish. Keep in the race every moment of the time, however, and you will win out in the end.

Pitch right in, with a firm determination to win, and give no thought to your competitors. Look after YOUR votes; don't waste time or enthusiasm thinking of what some one else is doing.

That's the way—the only way—to win.

HOW BALLOTS ARE SECURED.

In all cases where vote certificates are issued, subscriptions must be paid in advance. The full amount of money must be sent direct by mail, paid to the contestant, or brought to this office.

PUT ON HIS WIFE'S GARB

Pittsburg Man Put on His Wife's Clothing To Flirt on Streets

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 8. — Without leaving the box a Pittsburgh jury decided in favor of Mrs. George S. Weiss, whom her husband has sued for divorce. In addition to not granting the divorce asked by Weiss, the jury suggested that the court continue the alimony which had been given the wife some time ago, and this was done. The disappointed young husband, who is but out of his teens, claims to have been a very close friend of Clyde Fitch, the playwright.

Weiss is a son of Matthew Weiss, one of the rich hotel owners of Pittsburgh, his father being rated as worth $1,000,000.

Mrs. Weiss declares she was attracted to Weiss because of his "wonderful beauty, matchless complexion and shapely form," but when he began dressing in her garments entirely after their marriage, and frequently going about the streets fearlessly as a girl, often flirting with young men in broad daylight, she became worried. Mrs. Weiss declares that on several occasions her husband impersonated her at evening parties, where her face was not known and that later she received letters and small presents by mail from young men who had become enamored of "her" at the parties in question—parties which she had not attended.

Weiss is now under indictment for perjury in obtaining a marriage license, he having sworn in Ohio that he was of age. The elder Weiss separated the pair soon as possible after the wedding, setting up the claim that Julia had kidnaped his son, offering New York data in evidence that she had been with him on long visits there.

EMMA EAMES PAYS $100,000

PARIS, Feb. [illegible].—The last chapter in the romance of Emma Eames and Emilio De Gorgoza will be written early this spring when the prima donna and operatic baritone will be wedded.

Chief among the obstacles to the match has been the attitude of Mme Elsa Neumoegan De Gorgoza, who was separated from her husband in 1909. Madame De Gorgoza obtained a divorce through the French courts some time ago, but it was conditioned on ample provision being made for her.

One hundred thousand dollars, it is stated, is the amount settled upon her. She considered this sum necessary to insure her support as long as she lives. The money she is said to have demanded had to be bestowed upon her unconditionally.

De Gorgoza was possessed of no such sum and Mme. Eames refused to pay what she considered an exorbitant sum even for a musical affinity. In despair De Gorgoza gave up all hope of ever becoming the husband of the prima donna and sailed for the United States.

Mme. Eames shut herself up in gloomy silence in her handsome home 4 Rue Jean Gougon, and refused all interviews. A few days ago, however Mme. Eames' love for the baritone overcame her aversion to depleting her own purse, and she agreed to give De Gorgoza $100,000 to settle upon his deserted wife.

When Mme. De Gorgoza started suit a year ago to get a divorce and incidentally to discover what a psycho-musical affinity is, she openly charged, Mme. Eames with robbing her of her husband's affections.

When Mme. Eames divorced Julian Story, the artist, the court forbade him to marry again. Mrs. Mme. De Gorgoza divorced the signor, her divorce was also conditional. But Julian Story did remarry in 1909, just the season when Mme. De Gorgoza uncovered the psycho-musical affinity and it was supposed that Signor De Gorgoza was going to marry Mme Eames in spite of all conditions.

A deputation of 800 fruit-growers entered a protest before the government at Ottawa against the free importation of United States fruit. Sir Wilfrid Laurier pointed out that their action was taken at too late a date and assured them that Canadian fruit would find a good market in the United States. Which leads to the query, Why were not the representatives of this and other great interests consulted before the arrangements with our neighbors was entered into? It was a blindfold arrangement on the part of our negotiators who got much the worst of the bargain in every possibl eway.

This reciprocity business is an issue important enough to call for a decision from the people. Why don't Laurier let them? asks the Hamilton Spectator.

UNIVERSITY SUNDAY AT BRIDGE ST

Larger audiences than even the ordinary ones were in Bridge St. Church yesterday, drawn there by the Dominion reputation which the Rev. Charles W. Bishop, B.A., has attained.

Mr. Bishop is the Secretary of the International Y.M.C.A. Students' Association for Canada. The office which he so ably fills is proof of his rare gifts.

He is a son of the Rev. Dr. Bishop, Pastor of Bridge St. Church.

Mr. Bishop's first service yesterday was in Massey Hall at 9 o'clock with the students of Albert College, who were so captured by the intensity of his style and his manifest devotion to their interests that they followed him to the two addresses which he gave in Bridge St. Church at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Mr. Bishop also was welcomed to Bridge St. Sunday School at 2.30 and gave a short address.

Mr. Bishop's next visit to our city will be awaited with considerable interest as in his address he deals with modern problems in an optimistic spirit and presents his convictions in language which is terse.

SPECIAL SERVICES IN CITY CHURCHES

Special services of a highly interesting character were held yesterday in some of the city churches and all were well attended.

ST. THOMAS.

In the evening a service in memory of the late Mrs. F. R. Lingham was conducted by the Rector, Rev. Rural Dean Beamish and there was a very large congregation. The music was of an appropriate character and the service throughout was of a most impressive nature. Mr. Beamish took his text from 1st. Corinthians 15th chap., 50th and part of the 58th verses. "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death; the sting of death is sin. I die daily." From this text the preacher drew a highly significant lesson, and in closing enlarged upon the great work of the deceased in securing better education for her sisters. The congregation listened with close attention and many were moved to tears by the impressive discourse and the solemn music.

CHRIST CHURCH.

Prof. G. Abbott Smith, D.D., preached highly acceptable sermons at both services to large congregations. In the afternoon the new parish hall was opened and was greatly admired by a numerous audience, who were addressed by the Rector Rev. R. C. Blagrave, and Prof.

LATEST NEWS OF THE C. P. R. AND C. N. O. R.

The C. N. R. is Fighting the Battle of the Routes—The Minister of Railways Will Decide—Rushing Work on the Canadian Northern—Grading Virtually Completed Through Sidney—The Trent and Moira River Bridges—Preparing for Work Through the City

The C. P. R. surveyors are busy preparing the final location survey, which, with the plans, will be submitted to the Minister of Railways. Campbellford and adjacent municipalities are seeking to have the line located through those places and so on to Cobourg, and between these conflicting interests the minister will be called to decide. There is little doubt, however, that the decision will be in favor of the route along the front, which is much more in the general interest than is the other.

The C.P.R. valuators have been inspecting properties in the city with a view to purchasing them.

Grading on the Canadian Northern Ontario has been practically completed, between West Belleville and East Trenton. Nothing remains to be done but a few culverts, cattle passes to be put in and a little steel work erected. So soon as the Trent River bridge has been completed the steel will be laid to Belleville by which time the substructure of the Moira River bridge, which will be commenced immediately after the completion of that at Trenton, will have been finished, and the steel for the superstructure will be brought here over the company's own line. The work of erection will be rushed through in the shortest possible time.

Meantime the surveyors are busy in East Belleville making necessary preparations for the early commencement of work.

On the whole, the railway situation is of a roseate character.

Boy Criminal Amazes Police by Recital of Series of Burglaries

NIAGARA FALLS, Feb. 11.—The police were amazed by the confession of Arthur Bunnell, 15 years old, brought here from Industry, N.Y., to testify against Mrs. Lizzie Jacobs and Thomas Shanin, held on a charge of criminally receiving stolen property.

Bunnell was the pal of Andrew Bader, now serving an indefinite term at Industry for the killing of Louis Sundie. Bunnell told the police that he, with the assistance of young Bader, had "pulled off" a number of car burglaries on the town spur, that were never reported outside of railroad circles. He declared that his depredations were invariably committed between the hours of 7 and 9 o'clock in the evening, when the police least suspected car burglars were active. He informed the police of a number of places in which the loot was hidden, but refused to give the name of his "fences."

MANY TRIBUTES FROM OLD FRIENDS

The remains of the late Mrs. Victor Wensley, who died last Thursday at New York, were this morning removed from the residence of her brother-in-law, corner Victoria Ave. and Bleecker Streets, to Christ Church where the solemn services were conducted by the Rev. R. C. Blagrave, Rector, in the presence of a large concourse of sorrowing friends. The body was afterwards conveyed, to the Belleville Cemetery for interment. The pallbearers were, six brothers-in-law, Messrs. J. A. Wensley, Lynn, Mass.; G. A. Wensley, Toronto; W. H. Wensley, Niagara Falls, Ont.; J. Kemp, Kingston; W. R. Wensley and T. Marshall, City.

Following is a list of the floral tributes: Emblematical Star from Maple Chapter No. 3, Order of Eastern Star of St. Thomas of which Mrs. Wensley was a charter member; wreath, Miss A. Craig and Mrs. A. A. Wensley, New York City; wreath, C. C. Conway, New York City; spray, J. G. Weil, New York City; pillow, A. A. Wensley, New York City; harp, Her Sisters, Kingston, Ont.; sprays, employees, Hallet & Davies Piano Co., New York City; Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Cherry, Mr. and Mrs. T. Collins, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. arlow and Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Sills.

UNDER THE CLOCK

RAILWAYS WILL DO BIG ADVERTISING

CHICAGO, Feb. 11. — One and one-quarter million dollars are to be spent for advertising during 1911 by the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads! This startling statement was made at the end of a conference of some fifty of the passenger officials of the lines interested held in Chicago this week.

Such an expenditure for advertising is unparalleled in railroad history and indicates the great confidence of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads in the prosperity of this country.

By this appropriation President R. S. Lovett and his associates are endorsing the policy of the late E. H. Harriman. The $1,250,000 will be divided between the two roads—the former receiving two-fifths and the latter three-fifths. A large share of the entire amount will be devoted to newspaper and periodical advertising and the bulk of it will be spent in the United States, but a considerable sum will be spent in showing the people in foreign lands the many advantages of living in the western part of this country.

"While this sum will be charged to advertising on the books," said Passenger Traffic Manager Gerrit Fort, who presided at the conference, "the purpose for which it will be used is the peopleing of the empire of the west, the filling up of the fertile lands in Colorado, Oregon, Montana, Washington and Nevada. Work of this sort is building for the future."

SON SAYS DOWIE DIED A MANIAC

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Feb. 11.—That John Alexander Dowie died a maniac; that he was in fact insane for the last nine years of his life, is the belief of his son, A. J. Gladstone Dowie, who has just brought his mother to the sanitarium.

Mrs. Dowie is suffering from a serious breakdown. The statement from young Dowie was drawn out by an interview regarding the trouble now on at Zion City over the issue of oysters, candies and tobacco. Dowie has no sympathy with the colony and says his father was mentally weak when he planned it.

"When father began to claim that he was the reincarnation of the Prophet Elijah, in 1900," said Dowie, "we began to see that his mind was failing him. When he began his work on Twelfth St. in Chicago, father worked night and day, preaching and praying, healing and editing his newspaper. He worked so hard that he wore out two or three private secretaries and finally he broke down, mentally and physically."

THE GOLDEN AGE.

Belleville is always proud of her sons. One of her boys is Mr. Joe Doyle. Nature has indeed been lavish in her gifts to our young friend. She has given him a splendid voice, a poetic and romantic temperament, facility in composition and intellectual powers.

Many times, at great sacrifice to himself, he has presented freely and gratuously, the choice gifts of his cultured genius to his native city in aid of some much needed charity. Many an eye has been brightened, many an aching heart, made glad, through his generosity. Men with means can donate money for charitable purposes, and it costs frequently little more trouble than drawing a cheque but Mr. Doyle's gifts have been the results of strenuous and exhausting labors which must have severely tried his physical and mental strength. Wednesday and Thursday nights, 15th and 16th inst, will witness the culmination of Mr. Doyle's efforts. On that occasion, he presents to the city, in aid of the hospital, the latest creation of his brain "The Golden Age." I have attended a rehearsal of this beautiful musical comedy. I can assure your readers that this magnificent effort of Mr. Doyle's will afford to all who witness its performance very great pleasure. Mr. Doyle has associated with him leading amateurs of the city, who are determind to give a most perfect rendering of this beautiful comedy.

Let us cheer Mr. Doyle, his able assistants and the good ladies who manage the hospital with a bumper house. Everybody should go.

I am yours sincerely,
John J. B. Flint.

To Be or Not to Be

Some very harsh anguage has been used by the representatives of Thurlow in the County and Township Councils in condemnation of the application of the City Council to the Legislature to secure the annexation to Belleville of a small portion of the Township of Thurlow in which the Grand Trunk Railway Company have erected their roundhouse and workshops and effected other betterments. This application has been made by Belleville because, a number of years ago, the taxpayers of the city passed a by-law granting a bonus of $50,000 to the Grand Trunk Railway Company on certain conditions. Some of those conditions were not complied with owing to a change of circumstances in connection with the railway, and in consequence the bonus was cut in two, the Grand Trunk accepting $25,000 on certain stipulations, among which—it is not necessary to rehearse the whole—it was provided that the company were to erect and maintain within the limits of the City of Belleville a roundhouse and workshops.

That agreement was, in greater part at least, lived up to by the Grand Trunk until the past year, when the company erected a new and much larger roundhouse and workshops, not, as their contract called for, within the limits of the city, but outside the boundaries of Belleville in the Township of Thurlow.

Under these circumstances the Grand Trunk Railway Company, having in view the conditions upon which they had been bonused by Belleville, offered, through Mr. E. Donald, their Lands and Taxes Commissioner, to assist the city in procuring the legislation necessary to secure the annexation to Belleville of the land purchased in Thurlow and the buildings erected thereon. This arrangement was so strenuously objected to on behalf of Thurlow that the offer was withdrawn by the company.

Such being the position in which the matter stood, and still stands, the City Council determined to seek either the return of the bonus from the Grand Trunk or the annexation of that company's property just outside the city limits—the latter preferably—and that is the object which they are now seeking to attain.

Taking these facts into account, the accusation of Thurlow's representatives that Belleville is "rapacious" and simply desires to annex the Grand Trunk's lands and premises for "taxation purposes" only is certainly unwarranted.

But what are the respective positions of Belleville and Thurlow with regard to the taxation of the Grand Trunk's property? Belleville gives, in consideration of its taxation, protection from fire, police protection, water and gas. Thurlow furnishes—nothing. Its rulers propose to fatten their already overflowing treasury by the unearned increment from the Grand Trunk, the Cement Works, the distillery and the Bay of Quinte Quarry Company. Of course, Thurlow is not rapacious.

That Belleville will extend its boundaries, at first northward, where many people have built just outside the limits, in order to escape city taxes, is beyond doubt. If those peopel refuse to share the cost of the municipal services which they enjoy, including gas, water and school accommodation, then they should be compelled to look to Thurlow for those services.

Whether, all things considered, it is wise to exact the full "pound of flesh" from the Grand Trunk is, in our opinion, at least doubtful. The company fulfilled that part of their agreement which called for the annexation to the city of their premises and the erection of a new roundhouse, and Belleville has during many years received a large amount of taxes from these premises—a fact which is deserving of favorable consideration. Furthermore, the men who have been removed to Belleville will of necessity benefit the city by trading here, and many, if not nearly all of them, will become residents of and taxpayers in Belleville; for several of them have purchased houses here, and more of them will build this year on lots which they have already purchased. It has been proposed that, if the Grand Trunk will transfer to the city the old Grand Junction wharf in lieu of a pecuniary forfeit, the city should accept the same. This, in view of all the facts and circumstances, ought to be a satisfactory arrangement, as Belleville will soon feel the need of deep water wharfage.

The further suggestion has been made that, as an inducement for the Grand Trunk to unite with Belleville in the annexation project, the Company be offered a fixed assessment at the present rate for twenty years. This would certainly be a very great advantage to the Grand Trunk in securing fire and police protection, and we are of opinion that that offer should at once be made.

DIED SUDDENLY AFTER MARRIAGE

Gillies, Sask. Feb. 10.—Investigation will probably follow the death of a young Doukhobor from Slavonka, who came to the settlement near here a few days ago to be married. The marriage took place, but two days later the bridegroom died very suddenly, and outside the village no one knows the cause of his death. The news of the death was kept very quiet by the Doukhobors, but it leaked out, and it is understood the authorities are now taking steps to investigate.

There is much comment here about the manner of Doukhobor marriages. So far as can be learned, they have no minister or ceremony of any kind except a grand celebration and feast, and residents here are asking if they have been given any special privileges in the matter.

OLD FOLLOWER OF JOHN BROWN DEAD

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.— Word has reached here that Henry Thompson son-in-law of John Brown, died Wednesday night at his home in Pasadena, Cal., in his 96th year. Mrs. Thompson, John Brown's oldest daughter, Ruth, died years ago. Thompson had been active with John Brown in the Kansas border warfare but declined to join him in his raid on Harper's Ferry.

It was at North Elba, N. Y., in 1850 that Thompson married Ruth Brown. At this time the lure of Kansas was drawing John Brown's sons westward. Their letters home told of hardships in settling and of the menace of slavery in the territory, until John Brown with his youngest son, Oliver, set out to bear arms and assistance to those who had gone before, Thompson following a little later.

HOCKEY NOTES.

"Slim" Jim's Kingston Frontenacs have been at it again. Last year they played three men over age, and got off with a nominal penalty. This season— but let the Globe tell the story. That paper says in its issue of to-day :— "The O. H. A. has thrown out the Kingston-Peterboro junior second round games, and ordered them replayed. Marchand of Kingston is over age." And is that to be all?

What of Belleville and Picton which played honest teams against Sutherland's pirates? Why should not such persistent offenders, their manager and all concerned be thrown out for such flagrant violation of the strict rules of the game, not to speak of sportsmanship? Belleville, by defeating the only other eligible team in the district, fairly won the honors and ought to have had the play-off with Peterboro. Not that our boys would have had a chance of defeating the Petes, but that club should have been given an opportunity of going higher. The O. H. A. is not now and never was, an upholder of honest sport, and there never was a time when it did not play favorites.

AT THE TRAPS.

The following scores were made at the Gun Club's shoot on Friday last:

Shot at twenty-five—T. Day, 18; M. Sprague, 17; J. Woodley, 14; Wm. Andrews, 14; Geo. Williams, 5; R. Stafford, 5; M. Macguire, 4.

THE RING.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—George, "Kid" Cotton of Pittsburg, former sparring partner of Jack Johnson, was knocked out here to-night by Morris Harris, in the seventh round of a ten-round bout before the National Sporting Club of America. The negroes furnished the fastest battle seen here between heavyweights in years, and the knockout came as the sensational close of a round in which Cotton apparently had Morris at his mercy.

Haris had the better of the earlier rounds and in the third put Cotten down for the count of nine with a right swing to the jaw. When Cotton clambered to his feet he was groggy, but the bell saved him. He came back strong in the next round, and just before the knockout in the seventh he had Harris weak and covering up.

In the last minute of the seventh Cotton forced Harris hard, but, out of a defensive crouch, suddenly Harris let fly a right swing. The blow caught Cotton fairly over his heart and he crumpled like a leaf.

Former Oate at a concert, during the performance of a duet, remarked to his friend: "D'ye ken now Tammas, it's got to ten o'clock, they're singing two at a time to get done sooner?"

ROBINSON & THOMPSON.

TAILORS AND FURNISHERS.

According to Government Estimates

$100,000,000.00

was made in Western Town Property during the year 1909

Did you participate in these huge profits or did you "pigeon-hole" the propositions submitted to you by your western friends for future consideration? In short, are you the man who made a profit or the unfortunate one who had the chance but did not possess sufficient judgment to recognize the opportunity or sufficient courage to close a deal? The man or woman entitled to sympathy is the one who says; "Five or ten years ago I had the chance to buy this or that property at $100 or $500, and now it is worth $10,000." The average persons sneers at the person who makes such a statement, and says: 'I would have bought and made that money." Are you going to say five years from now that you had a chance to buy a lot at Poe, Alta., at from $50 to $100 each, or are you going to be the man who will have from $1,000 to $10,000 in cash as a result of having bought property in this town in this year of grace, 1911?

POE A COMING COMMERCIAL CENTRE.

Poe is located on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Edmonton and Saskatoon. It is located in one of the finest farming districts in Western Canada. The surrounding country is settled by a progressive type of farmers and consequently will become the market centre for Northern Alberta. Poe district possesses rich coal mines, is close to rivers and lakes and large forests are easily accessible from this point. These natural resources insure for the residents of the town, first, low cost of living, and second, great commercial activity, two essentials in the upbuilding of a large town, thus creating valuable real estate.

POE AS A MANUFACTURING CENTRE.

This townsite and contiguous territory has the requirements outlined by large manufacturing concerns for the location of large factories or lareg enterprises of any kind employing large numbers of people. The rivers and lakes furnish water, the coal fields and forest furnish fuel and cheap building material, the fine farming lands furnish farm products, enabling the residents to live at a low cost.

The town is located on the main line of a transcontinental railway, assuring the necessary transportation facilities. These combined conditions will furnish cheap labor, one of the most important features of a manufacturing centre.

Poe townsite was recently placed on the market and already over 200 lots have been sold, and many of these lots have already changed hands at a substantial increase in price. Most of these lots were purchased by representative business men throughout Canada, who are now profiting by their foresight.

The townsite is high and dry and very suitable for building purposes.

OPPORTUNITY

is useless unless you possess the courage to act. You might possess great wisdom, you might read a good deal or travel much and thus see all kinds of opportunities to make money, but unless you have the courage to act on your judgment and wisdom all of these desirable qualities are entirely useless.

Lots in Poe are a good investment at present prices. The town is bound to grow rapidly. Owing to the easy terms of payment you have the ability to buy and if you do not buy now it is because you are lacking in courage, and the chances are you will never be like the man you now admire most, rich courageous and wise.

TORRENS TITLE

Poe townsite is held by us under the Torrens system of title. Under this system the title is guaranteed by the Government, therefore absolutely safe.

PRICES AND TERMS.

Prices of lots range from $50 to $100 each, and they can be purchased on terms of one-tenth cash, balance in eighteen equal monthly payments; or quarter cash, balance in six, twelve and eighteen months.

INFORMATION.

We have issued an attractive circular giving full information pertaining to the town and its prospects, together with map showing lots for sale. If you wish to receive this attractive circular cut out and fill in the attached coupon and mail it to us to-day.

KINGDOM OF ROUMAN'A.

Country Settled by Descendants of Roman Legions.

One of the most interesting of the smaller kingdoms of Europe is Roumania. The people, poorly educated to a great extent, are nevertheless contented and satisfied with their lot. William E. Curtis, who has been visiting Roumania, writes very instructively concerning the country. He says:

The Roumanian language is more like the Italian than the Russian and has a Latin origin because the population of the country is descended from the Roman legions that were sent up in the year 104 A. D. by the Emperor Trajan to hold the barbarians at bay. It is a liquid language and flows freely off the tongues of the people, who talk faster than any Frenchman you ever saw and gesticulate like the Italians. If anyone should hold the hands of a Roumanian woman she would become dumb instantly.

The architecture of the business section is solid and regular and would remind you of Frankfort, or Leipsic, or Dresden, or any city of similar size on the European continent, but the shop windows are more like those of Paris. We were told that the merchants put nearly all their goods in their windows, and that may be true, but they certainly arrange them with a great deal of taste.

There are a number of newspapers, all intensely partisan, including a humorous publication of a great deal of merit. Its cartoons are equal to those of any of the German funny papers.

There are two universities in the country, and the Government pays 39,000,000 francs ($7,800,000) for the support of the schools. Education is free and compulsory, but there is a lamentable lack of schools in the rural districts, so that the purpose of the educational provision in the constitution is not fully carried out. Nearly 70 per cent. of the young men who report for military service can neither read nor write, and only a little more than half the school population are in actual attendance.

There is a good deal of politics in the country, although it is a kingdom, and partisanship usually runs to radical measures during political campaigns. King Carol is more than a figurehead. He takes a very deep interest in diplomatic and legislative affairs and just now is understood to be conducting negotiations for an alliance with Turkey, Austria and Germany against the other Balkan states, England and Greece. Although Roumania has the same religion, neither the Government nor the people have much political sympathy with their neighbors in Bulgaria, Macedonia, Servia and Greece, and in case of war between Greece and Turkey Roumania would undoubtedly be found on the side of the latter. The influence of Austria and Germany is much greater in Roumania than that of any other nation, which is not unnatural, [illegible] is a German and a near Kaiser.

The Roumanian army, for its size, is said to be the best in Europe. The King is a splendid soldier and has taken an active personal interest in its organization and equipment. But the people grumble at the expense. The standing army for a nation of 6,000,000 people here is precisely as large as that of the United States, with a population of 80,000,000, not including 200,000 reserves, who are paid full wages for two months in the year, when they are in camp.

The army of Roumania costs more than $15,000,000 a year, which is almost equal to $2.50 of taxation per capita upon every man, woman and child in the country.

Trial by Jury.

Whence comes the system of trial by jury? In the opinion of Bourguignon, a French jurist, "its origin loses itself in the night of time." Blackstone speaks of it as "a trial that hath been used time out of mind." Reeves thinks it was introduced into England by the Normans, who themselves obtained it from northen Europe. It is certain that the Scandinavians had an established jury system more than a thousand years ago. The Normans on their arrival in England found prevailing there the ordeal of hot irons, which enforced the carrying of a pound of heated metal by the accused for a given distance, and the ordeal of hot water, in which by way of variation a stone had to be withdrawn from a pitcher of boiling water. No attempt at reform in this direction was made by William the Conqueror.

The First Balloons.

The first balloon to carry living freight was in September, 1783, when Joseph Montgolfier sent up a sheep, a duck and a cock, all of which landed safely. This balloon was very gaudily decorated. The first human being to ascend in a balloon was a young French naturalist, M. Francois Pilatre de Rozier, who used a captive balloon for his first attempts. Then, on Nov. 21, 1783, he and the Marquis d'Arlandes made the first trip in a free balloon. This was made in a hot air balloon, and fire was kept burning in a brazier suspended beneath while up in the air.

Order of the Golden Fleece.

The Order of the Golden Fleece was instituted by Philip the Good, Duke of Burgundy, in 1429, on account, it is said, of the profit he made in the wool trade. The original number of knights was thirty-one. At the end of the collar was hung a golden fleece. The order finally became common to all the princes of the House of Austria and now belongs to both Austria and Spain. In fact, its membership includes royal personages from many lands, and the order is practically as wide as royalty itself.

Lucky.

"I'm certainly a lucky man."

"How so?"

"I had on my good clothes yesterday morning when my wife made her collection for the rummage sale. She couldn't give any but old stuff away."

Travels of the Blood.

The mileage of the blood circulation reveals some astonishing facts. It has been calculated, for instance, that, assuming the heart to beat sixty-nine times a minute at ordinary pressure, the blood goes at the rate of 206 yards in a minute, or nine miles an hour, 227 miles a day and 80,000 miles a year.

If a man eighty-four years old could have but one single blood corpuscle floating in his blood all his life it would have traveled in that time nearly 7,000,000 miles.

Frightful State of the Language.

A lecturer gave a very learned and interesting address before a woman's club on "The Decadence of Pure English." At the close of the talk a much overdressed woman came up to him and said:

"I did enjoy your talk ever so much, and I agree with you that the English language is decading something awful. Hardly no one talks proper nowadays, and the lord only knows what the next generation will talk like if nothing ain't done about it."

A Preventive Measure.

"She hugs and kisses me all the time I'm at lessons, and—ugh—I do hate Dutch!" Harriet explained.

Father, who is something of a diplomat, reasoned with her, "See here, my little girl, I have read German and French with fraulein ever since I was your age, and she has never tried to hug or kiss me."

"Father," observed the child dryly, "you had better touch wood."

Ants and the Weather.

Ants are credited with an instinctive knowledge of the general weather for a whole season. When they are observed at midsummer enlarging and strengthening their dwellings it is said to be a sign of an early and cold winter.

A Terrible Trip.

Halifax, N.S., Feb. 13.—Eighteen days out from Harbor Breton, Nfld., during which time she drifted hundreds of miles off her course, from biting winds of the bleak Newfoundland coast, to the warm breezes of the gulf stream, the schooner Cardinio arrived in port yesterday, after one of the longest trips on record, for a sailing vessel, between Halifax and Newfoundland. Capt. Carroll says it was the worst trip in his 25 years' experience on the North Atlantic. It was a series of gales from the time the schooner left the Newfoundland port, and she was driven nearly 200 miles off her course to the south. For five days she lay to, riding out the gale 30 miles south of Sable Island. The sun was not visible during the entire voyage and Capt. Carroll had to run on dead reckoning.

Forty-seven barrels of herrings were swept from the deck into the sea.

Music.

The Chinese claim music was invented by the Emperor Fuhsi some 3,000 years before the Christian era.

RETIREMENT OF LORD BERESFORD

LONDON, Feb. 10.—Admiral Lord Charles William DeLapoer Beresford is sixty-five years old to-day, and by virtue of the age limit clause, is retired from the active list of the British nevy. He has held no appointment since his surrender on March 24, 1909, of the command of the Channel fleet.

There were no official formalities but most of the daily papers take occasion to eulogize the Admiral's notable career.

The Radical Press criticizes his political activities.

Admiral Lord Charles Beresford's active duty came to an end when on March 24, 1909, he hauled down his flag as commander of the Channel fleet. He had rounded out fifty years of service in a career distinguished for professional ability and personal gallantry, and which made him one of the most popular men of England and a figure of world renown.

His retirement was credited generally to friction with the Admiralty Board. In the ordinary course he would have held the Channel command for another year. He had been a severe critic of the management of the navy when he was serving in Parliament, and after he was put at the head of the Channel fleet in 1906 he had trouble both with his superiors and his subordinates. When he struck his flag in March he said:

"Although the Admiralty has ordered me to haul down my flag, which of course, it has a perfect right to do I feel that I shall still be able to do service in other fields of labor. My chief thought always will be the efficiency of the fleet, as my first desire has been that the ships under my control should always be ready for war."

Lord Charles Beresford was born in Ireland in 1846, the second son of Lord John Beresford, fourth Marquis of Waterford. He entered the navy at the age of thirteen years, has been a naval aide de camp, was in command of the Condor at the bombardment of Alexandria, and served on Lord Wolseley's staff in the Nile expedition of 1884-5. He toured Canada in the fall of 1909 and officiated at the opening of the National Exhibition at Toronto

Capt. Collier owner of the Str. Reindeer and a veteran mariner died on Friday morning.

The 1911 edition of this indispensable collection of concrete, crisp Canadian Facts, edited by Frank Yeigh, of Toronto, the well-known lecturer and writer, and author of the new book, "Through the Heart of Canada," has been issued and is filled with fresh data of a most interesting and illuminating character. It is a marvel of condensation, presenting in small space striking figures, relating to every phase and department of Canada's resources, trade and national life.

Its popularity and wide sale can easily be understood, in fact, it is, as has been said "worth its weight in Cobalt silver or Yukon gold." The booklet may be had from the leading newsdealers, or for 25 cents from the Canadian Facts Publishing Co., 667 Spadina Avenue, Toronto.

A SUMPTUOUS VOLUME.

The Intelligencer has received a sumptuously gotten up volume entitled "A Short History of the Eighth Annual Convention of the American Press Humorists, Montreal, August 1910," which modest title gives but little indication of the beauty of the book, which is gotten up in the highest style of the printers' art, the elegance of the illustrations, the wit of the speeches delivered at the luncheon given at the Isleway Club, or the remarkably clever caricatures of the professional humorists. There is in many of the speeches, material funny enough to make a horse laugh, particularly poetry, which is of the most amusing character. The book, which has been issued by the Grand Trunk Railway system, is a credit to all concerned in its production.

FOUND HIS PARENTS WERE BOTH DEAD

ITHACA, N.Y., Feb. 11.—When Lynn Townsend, a student in the college of agriculture at Cornell University, got back to his home in the town of Denoy, about three miles south of this city, having finished his studies at the college, he noticed his stepmother, who was lying down on a couch in her room. When she did not move he called but she did not reply.

An examination showed that she was dead with a bullet in her head. He went to the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Townsend. They came back with him. Then wondering what had become of the husband, Jabez Townsend, they looked through the house and found his body lying on the bed in his own room. One bullet had penetrated his temple and another his heart.

Townsend was 33 years of age, his wife 36. They both had been in poor health for some time and had brooded over it, though friends of the family say there had ben in poor health for sometimevca was no trace of insanity. Townsend had been treated for heart trouble.

That ship of yours that is coming in—can't you communicate with it by wireless?

A Question of Science.

"I remember when I was a student," said a clergyman, "a farmer came to the seminary to visit his nephew, whom he was educating. The farmer had no urban polish. His tea when it was brought was very hot, and he poured it in his saucer, to his nephew's great mortification. Finally, unable to restrain himself, the nephew was so rude as to say:

" 'Uncle, why do you pour your tea in the saucer?'

"The old farmer looked up in surprise. Then he said in a loud, hearty voice:

" 'To cool it, to be sure. The more air surface you give it the quicker it cools. These here modern seminaries don't teach much science, do they?' "

REJOICES IN NAME OF O. B. JOYFUL

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Feb. 10.—A remarkable family of vegetarians has been discovered living in the North Woods, three miles from here.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Tyler and their three children live entirely on uncooked vegetables. Raw potatoes, turnips, parsnips, cabbage and onions are a large part of their diet. Cereals are eaten uncooked. Their son, O. B. Joyful Tyler, a pupil in the Russell School, has never eaten meat or drank tea or coffee in his life. They have a daughter, Lucy Drinkwater Tyler, who eats six raw potatoes for luncheon.

Tyler is an Adventist and believed in the second coming of Christ. State officers have been getting information regarding the family, as there was a report that the children were not properly fed.

FEBRUARY ROD AND GUN.

Some of the many joys of the Canadian winter form the predominating feature of the February issue of Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont. A snowshoe tramp is not only enjoyable but likewise health-giving and as a recreation cannot be surpassed. Hunting in the Land of the Caribou—Newfoundland—well describes the attraction of that island to the big game hunter; while the advantages of Quebec, of Nova Scotia, of British Columbia and of both old and New Ontario for game and game fish are recorded by those who have had experience and recount their experiences for the pleasure and profit of their fellow sportsmen. An illustrated description of a portion of the mountain section of the Grand Trunk Pacific goes to show that in scenic beauties Canada's new transcontinental is going to rival any other route. Altogether this number has only to be seen to recommend itself, as the finest exponent of Canadian outdoor life in its many phases now published.

An English clergyman has sighted a new star; but that's nothing to blow about. Fell and bumped my head the other night and saw about a bushel of 'em myself.
